THE HOME CALLING.

Far off the hills are calling where fair the country shines,
And the brown thrush pipes his treble in the tangle of the vines;
I hear the dews a-falling where the meadow daisies foam,
And hills and streams are calling: "Come home—come home—come home!"

I hear it in the blowing of the wild winds o'er the dells—
The singing of the mocking birds, the ringing of the bells;
In twilight shadows falling on fields I loved to roam—
That low, sweet calling—calling: "Come home—come home—come home!"
It tinkles in the fountains—that message sweet to me;
It echoes o'er the mountains and sings across the sea;
The bee is in the blossom, the lark flies o'er the loam,
And love with yearning bosom calls still: "Come home—come home!"

"Come home!" The sad winds sing it across the rippled rills;
"Come home!" The glad bells ring it: "The night is on the hills!"
"Come home! The lights are shining to guide the feet that roam."
And on love's breast reclining in dreams my heart goes home!
—Frank L. Stanton, in Chicago Times-Herald.

A BRIDE ROSE.

She lived in a little country town. Such a very little town that, after you went up the dusty street, on which there was a line of low, squat buildings bearing legends on their several weather-beaten fronts of "Family Groceries," "Drug Store," Post Office" and "General Supplies Sold Here"—why, there remained no more town to see.

The rest of the old place just trailed off into scattered buildings, some occupied, but many falling to ruin for want of the repair of occupancy.

But if you went swiftly along the quiet country road after awhile you would come upon fair white cottages, trim and neat, set in the midst of broad acres of cultivation; and there would always be space reserved for the sweet-smelling blooms of old-fashioned flowers, such as country folk have time to thrust into the soft, brown loam.

In one of these white cottages she lived. A little fair "old maid," as people called her. A maidenly soul, to be sure, looked out from her sweet eyes, and perhaps a certain gentle precision in her neat attire, and an adherence to ways which Miss Floribel Rose had proved to be good, might have earned for her the epithet considered so unwelcome. But to me she looked the very essence of youth and purity and unconscious innocence.

Be all that as it may, as I started out by saying, she lived in the country, and in a pretty cottage, with bright green blinds and broad surrounding fields, and the prettiest flower garden in the whole village.

Miss Floribel had a perfect passion for "growing things," and it was popularly believed that should she elect to bid the town pump return to its original wildwood condition there would at once appear those little nibs and nobs of green which show the beginning of growth!

Miss Floribel wrought no miracles, however, save those needing great patience and constant care. But it was a fact that, under her gentle care, flowers seemed to become sentient things and appeared to develop consciences of their own, which obligated them to a certain amount of bud and bloom, in return for her ministrations.

We will peep at her as she walks leisurely through the small gate which divides the flower from the kitchen garden on a balmy May morning. She is a tiny woman—small head, small hands, small feet and delicate features, with flower-like ripples and lines along her gentle fairness. Her hair is soft and brown, and waves away from a sweet, placid forehead in smart, crisp little ripples, which necessitate frequent applications of Miss Floribel's small pink palm in a series of subjugatory pats and pressures. Her eyes are of a deep and shadowy blue, and they look straight out into this workaday world with an expression of pleased surprise at finding it so "good." Her figure is all soft, warm curves; and she has many dimples which come and go in all manner of unexpected places. For instance, who would ever expect to see a little quavering dimple set up for itself high on the delicate bloom of an "old maid's" cheek? Very high up, so that when she smiled at you, which she very frequently did, there it was, a provoking piece of prettiness, near to the sweep of the curling lashes, and in a nest of soft rose-color, which was the flush on Miss Floribel's sweet cheek.

On one side of the long, deep gallery, or veranda, that ran all across the front of the white cottage grew a tall rose-bush, with long, delicately-fluted foliage and buds of pure, snow-whiteness, gleaming in the midst of all the pale greenness of the bush. This rose held a strange place in Miss Floribel's life.

Twenty years ago there had gone from the village a gay, rollicking lad, with a reckless record back of him and all sorts of possibilities fronting him. He was beautiful, to begin with, with the beauty of slim, graceful lines, high-spirited and clear-cut features and deep and rich coloring. He was gifted; learning all that the crabbed old scholar who taught the village school could teach him, in the time in which the other lads had just begun to comprehend, and assimilating all of outside information that came his way. He was a favorite with all who knew him, as much for his lonely, solitary existence as for his charm of person and manner.

About his mother had clustered the village romance. An undutiful daughter—a runaway marriage—and the inevitable sequel; the return to the stately mansion which had been her childhood's home, with death on her young brow, despair in her broken heart and a son in her poor, frail arms to hold up as peace offering to her only parent left, her stern old father. The mother died during the first year of her daughter's absence.

This Leonard d'Orville (which was the boy's sole inheritance from a worthless father—a high-sounding name) was "inclined to be wild," and these inclinations had been crystallized into set forms of as much callow wickedness as the sleepy old village could furnish, by the undue severity of his grandfather. So the time came when Leonard flung on his back a parcel containing a change of clothing, his little savings bank, his mother's picture and a bundle of notes written in a girlish hand, with, among them, a long tress of rippling brown hair cut from his sweetheart's head. Bidding his implacable enemy (and grandfather) a merry good-by, he took his way along the highway whereon travel set its tide city-ward.

But before leaving, he spent an hour beside a brook which chattered away in the rear of Dame Rose's kitchen garden. Nor was he alone; for a fair-haired girl with long and rippling curls sat near him, and their hands were closely clasped; and more than once, as the lad's eyes darkened with the overpowering forethought of the coming years and their loneliness, the tender heart of his companion would prompt her to lean still nearer and meet and return—the kiss he turned to give. And as they passed through the garden in the brooding twilight, the pale buds of the rose, newly flowered, caught Leonard's eyes. Plucking one, he held it against the flowing sweep of the girl's soft hair, looking dreamily at the pure curves of the cheek, turned to hide the brimming eyes; at the tip of the small ear that peeped from the abundant curls, and at the fair bud gleaming like a star against the brown waves. Then his voice deepened to manhood's earnestness, as he whispered:

"Some day, Floribel, my sweet Floribel, I'll send you a bunch of these pale roses, and then I'll follow soon—soon enough for them to be still fresh for our wedding."

The lad had a world of latent romance in his heart, and it all welled out in his love for this sweetheart of his boyish days.

"And I," Floribel had whispered, "will never wear a bride rose until you come to me."

"Swear it, Floribel, swear it!" and he would not leave her until her gentle eyes were lifted and her rose-red lips vowed to wear no bridal flower, save at her wedding with her lover, Leonard.

II.

And year after year, as the girl saw the thriving rose tree begin to bud, would her innocent thoughts cluster about the possibilities that her immediate future might hold. And year after year the spring passed and the summer came and went, and there was no break in the quiet monotony of her secluded life. Time, the merciful, had smoothed away those graven lines of remembrance, and her life began to be filled with other interests, and the memory of her boyish love remained only as an evanescent odor, that came and went with the flowers or those long, pearly buds that grew beside the cottage door.

Waves of the doings of the great dames of fashion and of form had even widened their circle to take in the modest cluster of houses and the one street of public shops called Ivesdale (after Miss Floribel's father), and the "Society for the Comfort of the Poor" had for many years been a thriving institution, with Miss Floribel for president. As spring came in, huge crates of flowers would leave the nearest station as contributions from country to city, sent directly to a sister society for distribution to the members.

In this part of her useful life Miss Floribel had contrived to weave the memory of her early romance. First, I must tell you, that beyond a few floating rumors as to his whereabouts no word had ever come to her, over the weary years, of the lad who had promised such fealty. But each year there would go from the hand of the lonely woman a little token of remembrance. In the packing of the blossoms, over which Miss Floribel always presided, there would go the fairest and most perfect of the buds of the bride rose tree, bearing a tiny slip of paper, inscribed "In memory of Leonard." A harmless bit of romance, indulged in secretly by a woman whose heart was as pure as the bud she touched. At first, tears were the dew of the blossom; but now the deed was only done as an act of gentle remembrance, as we lay a flower upon the sod that years have won to ripened greenness.

The hospital wards were full, but the interest had so centered about the pretty, pallid child, lying patiently on her pillow, awaiting the coming of the surgeon, that a crowd of nurses and attendants stood near, waiting to anticipate her slightest wish. Through the long "aisles of pain" had fluttered a bevy of bright-faced, sweet-voiced women and the whole atmosphere bore witness to their gentle ministrations, for on each pillow there lay a blossom fresh and fair, and by each cot there stood a bunch of flowers, some rare, all beautiful.

It really seemed by a process of "fitness" that the bud which lay within reach of the little wasted hand, resting so quietly on the quiet breast, was as fair as a pearl, and it seemed as did the child, an emblem of purity and peace.

This day had been set for an operation, to perform which a celebrated surgeon was coming from a distance. The operation was to be done in the interests of science; hence the cost had not been a matter of consideration, otherwise the child, being a daughter of the poor, would have exhaled her life away in prolonged and unrelieved torture.

At last they essayed to lift the light form and bear it to the operating room. Gentle hands were about her, but she murmured, and one leaned down to listen:

"My rosebud! My beautiful flower! May I not carry it with me?"

And she smiled contentedly as her small, fevered hand clasped the long, flexile stem.

Beside the long table in the brilliantly-lighted room stood several men, one, made prominent by the lofty grace of his bearing and the grave beauty of his thoughtful face. This was the surgeon who had consented to come from a distance that a mysterious ailment might be penetrated and its causes laid bare.

How tenderly he leaned over the small, pale face ere yet the anæsthetic had been administered; how deep and thrilling the tones of his voice as he spoke words of encouragement to the sufferer. Stooping in the presence of the assembled students and bearded men of the resident medical faculty, he laid his lips in a light kiss on the fair forehead of the child. As he leaned above her his eye caught the gleam of the pearly-petaled bud that lay upon the childish breast. And did he start, or was it a flicker of one of the myriad lights? Very gently he lifted the bud, his hand encountering a strip of paper tied about the long stems as he did so; and, turning, he laid it down with the gloves, which he had doffed upon entering the hall.

All was over, and well over. The child had rallied, and was sleeping quietly. Beside her watched skilled nurses, and within reach of her waking hand stood a great bowl of choicest bloom, but the creamy bud was gone. These had come in its stead.

III.

Alone in the room assigned him in the hotel sits the surgeon. In a vase before him droops the pale bud, and the delicate fragrance from its heart seems to mount to his brain, for he rises from his chair, to pace with restless feet the narrow room. He holds in his hand a slip of paper, and a thousand times has he read and reread its simple legend: "In memory of Leonard."

Was the tale tattled to him by envious tongues of a desolate home, a ruined and blighted life, misplaced and too ardent affections a lie? And have his feet trodden the weary round of endless search after forgetfulness, only to return and find himself the one in error and his little love still faithful to a childish dream?

Leonard d'Orville, the man, was almost as much a creature of impulse as ever was Leonard d'Orville, the boy.

Rising swiftly to his feet, with a look of resolution on his dark face, he dashes out into the night. In a box of long, pale buds, buried deep in their emerald foliage, he places a letter, and it reads:

"Floribel: I have trodden the whole of earth to find forgetfulness, only to learn that I have fled from the cup of happiness that waited near my lips. Your message and your rosebud have found me. Here are our bridal roses. If you had been the wife of another your little messenger would never have left your loyal hand. I will wait here. If you do not desire me to come to you, a word will banish me. If I hear nothing, and a weary time it will seem, within the next four days, I shall know that you are willing I should come. Should your heart call out across the years, as does my own, send but a word, a bud from our bride rose tree, and the mission of a flower could come to no sadder heart or lorlier life! I love you, dear. I have always loved you. I have tried to become the man of whom you could bestow the priceless treasure of yourself! God bless you—whether I am to be, or not, your own.

"LEONARD."

And Floribel Rose became Floribel d'Orville; and, at their marriage, above them swayed to and fro a canopy of pale, emerald foliage, with here and there an oval bud of purest white. For there were but few buds left when Miss Floribel leaned to pluck the one she sent to the city in answer to Leonard's love letter, for most of them had gone to comfort the sick and the sorrowful ones of earth.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Wonderful Power.

The power of imagination is amusingly illustrated in the story told of an old lady who had never heard the celebrated violinist, Paganini, play, and one day obtained permission to attend a rehearsal of one of his concerts. It so happened that Paganini did not take his violin with him to the rehearsal that day, but borrowed one from a member of the orchestra, and instead of playing as usual, simply kept up a kind of pizzicato accompaniment. After the rehearsal the old lady went up to Mr. Cooke, the musical director, and said in a burst of enthusiasm: "Oh, dear! Mr. Cooke, what a wonderful man he is! I declare I never knew what music was capable of till this morning." "Indeed, madam, he is truly a marvelous man," assented Mr. Cooke, with a smile; "but this morning you are indebted rather to your imagination than your ears for the delight you have had, for Paganini has not really played at all. He has not even touched a bow." "Well," said the old lady, after a moment's astounded silence, recovering herself, "then all I can say is, he's even more remarkable than I thought he was! For if he can affect me in such a manner without playing, what should I do, how should I feel, when he really did play!"—Youth's Companion.

Ungracious.

Givers who bestow their benefactions in such a way as to attract the most attention are entitled to credit, not because they give in that way, but because they give. But if they heard all that is said of their gifts they would probably not be so well pleased with themselves as they sometimes are. The story is told that a certain very miserly man, who during the greater part of his life, had never been known to give anything either publicly or privately, at last bestowed a chime of bells on a church in the town where he lived. "What do you suppose he did that for?" some one asked. "Oh," some one else answered, "he did it so that he could hear the ring of his money!"—Youth's Companion.

—A certain teacher wanted to make his pupils comprehend the parable of the Good Shepherd, so he said: "Now, dear children, suppose you were all little sheep, and I had charge of you and you followed me, what would I be?" "A big sheep!" was the unanimous chorus.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redying. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? THE CASTLE ARRESTS

Efforts To Prove the Husband's Complicity in the Robberies.

WIFE'S GUILT VIRTUALLY ADMITTED

She Is Said To Be Suffering with Some Disorder of the Mind---Bail for Accused Accepted in the Sum of $150,000.

London, Oct. 14.—It developed at the hearing at the Marlborough street police court of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Castle of San Francisco, who were arrested at the hotel Cecil, Tuesday of last week, charged with stealing a quantity of furs, etc., from various dealers in this city, that the efforts of the prosecution will mainly be to prove that Mr. Castle was a party to the theft, as the defense will not contend that the woman is innocent, but that she is suffering from a disorder which affects the mind. The court room was packed with spectators long before it was time to call the case of the Castles. James R. Roosevelt, secretary of the United States embassy, and H. Hodson, one of the under secretaries of the embassy, were seated on a specially reserved bench. The other persons present out of curiosity in court included a large number of Hebrews, among whom were a few women. Mr. and Mrs. Castle entered the court room at 11:45. Mr. Castle first walked calmly into the dock, and a moment afterwards his wife was led in by two policemen. She sobbed violently while in the dock and kept her handkerchief to her face. When the first witness was called she became hysterical and the police brought a bench upon which she and her husband were allowed to sit.

Some of the Alleged Stolen Articles.

Mr. Avory prosecuted for the treasury. He told the circumstances attending the arrest of the prisoners, said that he was informed by the officials of the United States embassy that Mr. and Mrs. Castle bore a high reputation in San Francisco, and produced a long list of articles found among the Castles' effects. He said that it was not a case of wealthy persons buying goods which they did not intend to pay for, but it was a regular case of shoplifting. He said he would not read the whole list of articles which it was claimed were stolen, but he begged to call the attention of the magistrate to the following: Eighteen tortoise-shell combs, seven hand-mirrors, two sable boas, two muffs, two neckties, seven gold watches, nine clocks, seventeen valuable fans, sixteen brooches, seven tortoise-shell eyeglasses, two plated toast-racks marked "Hotel Cecil," and a large number of smaller articles and trinkets of less value. Part of the property, the prosecutor further stated, was found among the husband's clothing. He mentioned this in anticipation that the defense would be that the female prisoner alone was guilty. But, from the circumstances mentioned, and the fact that the prisoners occupied one room at the hotel, it appeared to him that the man must have known what was going on.

Testimony of Shopkeepers.

Several witnesses were then called by the prosecution, Mr. Harris of a furrier's firm taking the stand first. He testified that Mr. and Mrs. Castle, accompanied by their son, visited the store together upon three occasions. Mrs. Castle done most of the talking and the party separated while in the store, going to different counters, the boy, in the meanwile, running about. After the departure of the Castles, some sable boas and some chinchilla skins were missed and the suspicions of the members of the firm were aroused. Counsel for the treasury department at this stage of the proceedings made an attempt to prove that Mr. Castle accompanied his wife and son upon each occasion. But, after considerable legal fencing, the witness became so entangled that they could not say definitely that he formed one of the party every time Mrs. Castle visited the store. Several other storekeepers who claimed to have been robbed by the Castles also testified.

Admitted to Bail in $150,000

Prosecutor Avory, at the conclusion of the testimony, asked that the prisoners be remanded for a week. Charles Matthews, for the defense, then asked that the prisoners be released on bail. He said: "We can clearly prove that Mr. Castle is entirely innocent and that he is a man of the very highest reputation. We do not contend that his wife is innocent, but we shall be able to prove by the testimony of physicians in court that she is suffering from a disorder which affects the mind. We have present four sureties and are able to give bail." Dr. Scott, the physician in charge of Holloway jail, then testified that Mrs. Castle was suffering from intense nervousness and that further confinement in prison would be extremely dangerous to her. The magistrate then asked Mr. Avory if he was willing to accept bail. The prosecutor replied that he was not willing to take the responsibility of saying yes, although he did not oppose the release of the prisoners on bail. The magistrate then granted the release of the prisoners on £30,000 bail, accepting two sureties in £5,000 ($25,000) each, and the prisoners' own sureties of £10,000 ($50,000) each. The outsiders who gave bonds were: Mr. Seymour, managing director of the Anglo-California bank, and Charles Guthrie of Guthrie & Co., bankers, Idol lane; Lewis Weill, a watch manufacturer of Hatton Garden, and Augustus Cohen, a diamond merchant of Holborn. Mrs. Castle was then removed to the jailer's room, sobbing hysterically.

PUNTS AND KICKS.

The Y. M. C. A. team will practice tonight, rain or shine.

The members of the Y. M. C. A. eleven will meet at the grounds tonight at 8 o'clock for practice. All candidates for the team are requested to wear their football suits.

Captain Freeman, of the Y. M. C. A. football team, is making great preparations for the game with Westfield on Saturday, October 24th. He promises that Plainfield will have the strongest team that ever represented her on the gridiron.

The Elizabeth Athletic Club is quite proud of its eleven this year and, in truth, it has some right to be. The defeat of Rutgers last Saturday has added to their excellent showing and Yale has, at last, consented to give the Jersey boys a chance to exhibit their prowess. The game will be played at New Haven on October 28th. On Saturday the E. A. C. team meets the naval cadets at Annapolis.

There is, or at least was, several days ago, a remarkable state of things at Rutgers. The 'varsity team has its hands full in defeating the "scrub" team, and when the 'varsity backs are put on the "scrub" eleven, the latter more than holds its own with the first team. The moment, however, the men from the "scrub" team are put on the 'varsity they seem to lose their head and are easily beaten. And so it stands.

The team that plays the Y. M. C. A. in this city Saturday afternoon is a strong one. It comes from the Rahway Athletic Club and is looked upon as being a match for the Plainfield team. Two of the backs are substitutes on the Rutgers 'varsity eleven, while one of the other men has a big reputation in Bayonne. Rahway, like Plainfield, has plenty of good material, and this week the team is steadily practicing for the game. Plainfield will be represented by a strong team. Waring will be able to play and will return to his position at quarterback, where he is invaluable.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company has received three maroon enameled ladies Crescents with wooden mud guards.

H. A. Lozier & Company, the manufacturers of the Cleveland, have a new way of showing the excellence of their wheels. A young man named J. W. Grimes, who weighs 485 pounds—that's correct, no typesetter's error—rides around on a Cleveland Swell Special and is now making a tour of the Cleveland agencies. He is expected to visit the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company tomorrow. He is six feet two inches high.

AROUND THE BASES.

The Plainfield Athletic Club managers are already planning for next season. It is purposed to form a league of several clubs and to secure convenient grounds, which will be enclosed. As yet the plans are in a crude shape, but before long there will be some news of interest to every lover of the National game.

CATHOLIC LEGION AFFAIRS.

A Total Membership of Nearly 7,600 in New Jersey.

The fourteenth annual convention of the New Jersey State Council, Catholic Benevolent Legion, was held in Orange yesterday with about 150 delegates present.

John J. Ghegan, the State Secretary presented a report showing a total membership of about 7,600. The increase in membership, he said, had not been as large as hoped for, but was satisfactory. Total receipts of the year were reported to be $6,461,96.

Officers were elected as follows: President, J. F. Sinnot, of Newark; vice-president, James F. Thorton, of Newark; orator, E. L. Schreiner, of Orange; secretary, J. J. Ghegan, of Newark; treasurer, E. H. Preigers, of Newark; spiritual director, the Rev. J. F. Devine, of New Brunswick; marshal James Devine, of Newark; guard, W. J. Hallisey; finance committee, E. W. Connolly, J. H. Hanagan, E. J. Cunningham; trustees, F. H. Huber, John Magee, J. J. Kronberger, James Smith; national representative, J. A. Laine; alternative, Thomas Gallagar.

Charged With Larceny.

Richard Carvel was brought before Justice Mosher yesterday noon and charged with larceny by Lucie Williams. The case was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

Luccio Before the Grand Jury.

Ernesti Luccio, the young Italian who was charged with abducting Louise Giles, is being given a hearing before the Grand Jury at Elizabeth today.

—Probably the oddest name that appears on any of the registry books in this city is Svetozar Gavrilovisch. Mr. Gavrilovisch is a resident of the First ward, and is employed by Eugene Laine, the barber. He is an Austrian by birth, but has been a citizen of the United States for some years.

RAIN AND REPUBLICAN

agreed with John Sherman that the source of all the troubles and difficulties is deficiency in the revenue. Under Harrison and Morton, with a protective tariff, the country became the richest in the world and paid off a large portion of the National debt. Under Cleveland and the Wilson bill, he continued, the debt was greatly increased, the factories closed, and riots caused.

He then took up the topics of free silver and bimetalism and free silver, and said that every Nation that had tried free silver had failed. Even the United States has tried it with disastrious consequences. To make 53 cents of bullion into $1 means profit for somebody. "Who gets it?" he asked, and he answered, the western mine owners and the English syndicates that own mines there.

He then sketched the situation, as he imagined it, should Bryan be elected and drew a lurid picture. Such a situation, he was sure, would not happen, as all the right-minded men will vote for McKinley. He closed with an eloquent appeal to the voters which, when finished, brought forth tremendous applause.

That ended the meeting and the crowd soon dispersed.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Catholic Club, held October 13th, 1896, the following resolutions on the death of Morris Higgins were presented by the committee and adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to call from his sphere of usefulness our esteemed and beloved brother, Morris Higgins, therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the Plainfield Catholic Club, express our sincere sorrow for the loss of one who was a worthy member of our organization, a good citizen and a faithful Christian man; therefore be it

Resolved, That we do hereby extend our deepest sympathy to the members of his bereaved family in the great loss they have sustained; and be it also

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our late lamented brother and that a copy be sent to the Plainfield daily papers and that they be spread in full on the minutes of this society.

THEATRICAL.

We are to have that popular comedian, William Jerome, and his excellent company of players at Music Hall, Thursday evening, in his twentieth century idea of an entertainment entitled, "Town Talk." It is entirely different from any other attraction on the road this season, being a combination of high-class vaudeville with sparkling farce comedy—thus giving a continuous performance from the rise of the curtain until the finish of the last act. The company is composed of such artists as Maud Nugent, the Mahr Sisters, Daly and Hilton, Barnes and Coakley, W. C. Davis, Master Tommy Meade, Charles Sedgwick and others.

Experience of the last decade in New York has been strong in evidence that the critical test of a comic opera's worth, or the opposite, comes about midway in the second week of its production. Such being accepted as a criterion of comic opera conditions, Francis Wilson has once more established himself in the midst of a thorough success—"Half a King"—and the Knickerbocker Theatre is sure of its nightly crowded house. "Half a King" met with so great a degree of popularity from the very first that it seems needless to say that improvements have been made. Everyone has grown "easy" in his or her assignment, and Mr. Wilson gives something bright and new at each performance.

AN ORDINANCE.

An ordinance to amend an ordinance adopted by the Common Council June 30, 1889, and entitled an "Ordinance to provide for the licensing, regulating and restraining of persons and vehicles for the sprinkling of the streets of the city of Plainfield with pure water."

The Inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That the ordinance cited in the title to this ordinance be and is hereby amended by adding thereto the following:

"Sec. 7. That every person or company licensed under this ordinance shall employ for the purpose of sprinkling the streets of said city wagons having the following qualifications:—a—Those employing levers and valves in sets independently operated or that can be jointly operated to any desired extent according to the grade or spray of water desired for sprinkling purposes. b—Those having devices capable of changing the grade or weight of spray instantly to suit the desired flow of water. c—Those having devices susceptible of change at either side of the wagon so that the same or different grades of spray can be simultaneously and independently used or only one grade at a time on either side of the wagon without waste of water, time or labor. d Wagons constructed substantially as above specified, and which shall be fully and completely acceptable to the Street Committee of the Council and to the Street Commissioner, or equivalent city officer having in charge the work upon the streets."

Sec. 8. No licensed person or company shall sprinkle any of the streets of the city with the use of any sprinkling wagons not of a character required by Section 7, under penalty of a fine not exceeding twenty dollars ($20), for every offense, and in case of a second conviction, the Common Council may by resolution forfeit and cancel the license of the convicted person or company.

Adopted by the Common Council October 8th, 1196.

WIFE TAKEN IN; HUBBY TURNED OUT.

Another Exciting Chapter in a Romantic Love Affair.

GIRL-WIFE HELD LIKE A PRISONER.

Ernest Luccio, the Italian, Discharged From Court, Starts to Receive the Parental Blessing and Forgiveness, But is Rudely Refused and Locked Out.

Unhappy, indeed, has been the married life of Ernesti Luccio, the young Italian, and Louisa Giles, his fifteen-year-old bride. Unfortunate was the beginning and unfortunate has it been throughout. The first story of the trouble was told exclusively in The Daily Press. Then followed the discovery of the girl and the arrest of her supposed abductor. The marriage certificate was produced and then young Luccio was charged with marrying a girl under the age of consent. He was held for the Grand Jury by Justice Newcorn and, after waiting thirty-five days, he was released. Yesterday, the Grand Jury dismissed the complaint and Judge McCormick summoned the young couple before him. He asked them if they wanted to live together.

"Yes," was the answer of both.

Then he asked Luccio if he would support and take care of the girl. Again the Italian replied in the affirmative. Then he told them to go home and secure the parental blessing. It came not, however, for Mrs. Giles took her daughter in, while the young husband was forced to go another way. And so they remain, Louisa almost a prisoner, while Luccio waits without.

A Daily Press reporter visited the Giles home on Lake street yesterday afternoon to learn the feelings of the mother at the result.

A little lad answered his knock and soon the mother came. She looked older than she did before this awful trouble had entered her home. There was a worn, set expression on her face, but a look of determination showed her to still be a woman of considerable will.

"I understand your daughter is with you now," remarked the reporter.

"Yes," said Mrs. Giles.

"Are you going to allow Luccio to live with her?" queried the newspaper man.

"Never!" was the vehement response. "Not while I live. After that," she added, "they can do as they please."

"Did he return with your daughter this afternoon?" continued the questioner.

"No," said Mrs. Giles, and she spoke with great feeling. "My two little children are ill and I have been ill myself, so I had to get another woman to go down with her. She brought her back. He, in his mean, sneaking way," and Mrs. Giles' brow grew darker as she referred to her son-in-law, for such he is, "followed them to the very door and then went over to his Italian lodging house across the way."

"Are you going to allow him to come here?" was the next question.

Then Mrs. Giles' voice grew bitter and harsh as she answered:

"Not while there's breath in this body. I believed in the justice of God and man. Now I know that there is no justice. I tried to bring my children up as they should be," continued the broken-hearted mother, "and now, when they are led astray by some Italian, the courts will not protect them, but stand up for him. I will take the law in my own hands. This miserable hut is mine, and while there's breath in this body he shall never cross this threshold!" She planted herself firmly in the doorway, a determined woman that few men would care to face, while her daughter, the bride of this unhappy marriage, looked over her shoulder apparently as unconcerned as usual.

"He thought," the mother continued, "that I would give him a place to lay around in, but I shan't. You can do what you please and say what you wish in the paper; I have nothing more to say."

In response to an inquiry as to the location of Luccio's present home, she again burst forth:

"He has no home, he has no name. I don't consider those Italians as men; they are two-legged monkeys!"

As the reporter said good afternoon, she retired to her fortress and the clouds still continued to grow darker as night drew on. In one home, at least, all was not bright and happy.

If your children are subject to croup watch for the first symptom of the disease — hoarseness. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse it will prevent the attack. Even after the croupy cough has appeared the attack can always be prevented by giving this remedy. It is also invaluable for colds and whooping cough. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

THE SENATOR FOR KIRK.

WILL NOT COME OUT OPENLY BUT HIS INFLUENCE WILL BE FELT.

The Senator Feels Favorably Disposed Towards Plainfield Republicans for the Support They Gave Him for Governor.

It was talked among the Republican politicians last night that Senator Foster M. Voorhees, of Elizabeth, will rally to the support of William T. Kirk in his fight for the Shrievalty nomination, and this news put the Kirk stock up several points. It is probable that the Senator will not come out openly and advocate the choice of Mr. Kirk, but through his friends the proper influence will be felt.

The Senator feels quite favorably disposed towards Plainfield Republicans for the support they gave him in his canvass for the Gubernatorial nomination a year ago and knowing well that the local leaders have their minds set on making Mr. Kirk the nominee, he doubtless figures that he can best repay them by lending his support in this direction.

Mr. Kirk is making a thorough canvass of all parts of the county for support and feels quite sanguine of success, though he admits that the Elizabeth people who are pushing ex-Freeholder Robert Houston are adepts at landing pretty nearly everything lying around loose in the Republican camp, and he has a hard lot to overcome.

It was rumored in political circles in Elizabeth yesterday that ex Freeholder William H. Hulskamper is being talked of as a candidate for the Elizabeth delegates to compromise on in the event that Houston's defeat seems imminent.

William E. Sackett, the political writer, has the following in The Herald this morning concerning the Shrievalty canvass:

The next excitement in prospect for the politicians is that which is to attend the holding of the Union county primaries, on Monday next. You may think that John Kean will make the State Senatorship the bone of contention there, because of Mr. Kean is looking for the United States Senatorship he would naturally desire to have the State Senator from his own county with him. But you are mistaken in your prognosis. Mr. Kean is said to have had Congressman Fowler at his mercy. The well authenticated report is that if he had been fit to have presented himself as a candidate before the Congressional convention Mr. Fowler could not have scored a renomination. On the assumption that Foster Voorhees is not quite in accord with him, some uninformed persons have seen in Sheriff Kyte's candidacy for the State Senatorship a similar demonstration on Mr. Kean's part against Voorhees' renomination. But Elizabeth politicians say that Mr. Kean is not behind Kyte; that Kyte is in for himself and by himself, and that Foster Voorhees will not only be allowed to go before the voters a second time without Kean opposition, but that in the Senatorial struggle he will be with Kean provided Kean should be a likely aspirant.

Even if Mr. Kean were against him, it is likely that the blond haired young statesman who has so ably represented the county in the State Senate for the past three years would achieve a renomination. Of course, with Kean out of his way, his path is practically unobstructed. So with the Assemblymen. Codington, Roll and Klaus will be given their second terms without opposition. But the fur is to fly in the contest for the nomination for Sheriff. Freeholders Hulzkamp and Houston and only "Billy" Kirk, of Plainfield, have been listed. Hulskamp is willing to get out of Houston's way, because he and Houston are from the "Port" district; but if the Plainfield man looms up over Houston he is prepared to jump in aggressively. So the struggle has been narrowed down largely to one of the localities—whether the "Port" end of the county or the Plainfield section shall name the man. That the "Port" end is to be favored with the Senatorial nomination, in the person of Foster Voorhees, is a circumstance that must count in favor of the Plainfield man, and the probability is that when the dust of the primary scrimmage shall have cleared away "Billy" Kirk will stand revealed to the gaze of his admiring friends as the winner.

Will Make a Fine Thoroughfare.

Work on the new street which will extend from Stearns avenue in the borough to West Front street, this city, is progressing finely, and when completed will be one of the best thoroughfares in this section. The street will be sixty feet wide, which is the same width of the proposed Watchung avenue, and will be a great improvement and convenience to that part of the borough and city, affording a much-needed outlet.

THE PREACHER ON THE STUMP.

Rev. John Wells Out Hustling for Votes for Congress.

HE IS MAKING A GOOD IMPRESSION.

Learned the Truth of the Money Question When a Farmer and Wheat Went Down—For Ten Years He Has Looked on and Now He is in to Win

The fact that Rev. John A. Wells, the Democratic candidate for Congress in this district on the free silver platform, has a Presbyterian church and flock to look after in the little mountain village of Liberty Corner, back of Plainfield, does not lessen the ardor of the enthusiastic personal campaign he is conducting.

Mr. Wells' long years in the pulpit lead him into rather incongruous slips for a political speaker, but his hearers laugh these things off. He has been preaching for twenty-four years, and he finds it very hard not to address his audience, now and then as "dear brothers and sisters." Again he has shown an inclination to quote Scripture largely and to tell ministerial anecedotes, but for all that he is making an excellent impression.

Tuesday evening Mr. Wells went to New Brunswick to meet the members of the Democratic Club. R. H. Becker, an influential German of wealth and position, met him at the George Street station and escorted him to the rooms, and introduced him to those present. Then the reverend gentleman made a very eloquent and forcible speech, that carried conviction to all his hearers. He said:

"I have been a Republican, but for the past ten or twelve years I have not been identified with either party. I have just stood back and looked on. This year, as the result of studying the situation during the past year, I became convinced that the truth was all on one side. I decided then to do all that I could to assist the party with the truth on its side. I never thought of running for office until a week ago, when a gentleman, who represented many other gentlemen, called upon me and asked me to become a candidate for Congress. I accepted the offer and was nominated.

"I intend to make an aggressive campaign, and have placed myself completely in the hands of the committee. I am ready to speak every night in the campaign if the committee so arranges. I will devote this week to Middlesex county, the next to Monmouth and the following one to Somerset. No, I won't resign my charge at the church. I think I can look after that and attend to my Congressional duties also. Of course, when I go to Washington, as I expect to do, I shall get some young preacher to occupy my pulpit, but I shall continue as the pastor of my church.

My experience in the northwest had much to do with forcing the truth of the situation upon me. I went out there to raise wheat. I thought I could sell it at $1 per bushel, the price then prevailing, and thus pay for my farm and the improvements I had made upon it. The first year the price went down to 90 cents a bushel. The next year wheat brought but 70 cents and the following year but 50 cents. I was afraid that it wouldn't bring anything the next year, and so I left."

Sustained Painful Injuries By a Fall.

Mrs. Van Nest, of Elmwood place, sustained severe injuries last evening about 7 o'clock while passing on the south side of Duer street between Linden avenue and Park place. At this point there is a board walk, which is in a very bad condition, and Mrs. Van Nest caught her foot in a loose board. Before she could recover, she was thrown with great force to the ground. She struck her face against some hard substance leaving the flesh black and blue and causing it to swell considerable. She also received several bruises about the upper part of the body and it was with difficulty that she reached home. She will be under treatment for several days as a result.

Quiet Home Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Jeannette M. Walley, daughter of Joel R. Walley, of 54 Elm place, and Samuel H. Lewis, coachman for Dr. Endicott, was celebrated last evening at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride's father. Rev. J. W. Richardson officiated in the presence of just the intimate friends and relatives. The bride was a valued employe of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cook, of Washington Park. The bridal couple left on the 8:30 train last evening for New York, will be absent about ten days, and they will reside in this city on their return.

—The broken culvert at the corner of Watchung avenue and Second street, has been repaired by Street Commissioner Meeker's men.

JOINED BENEATH A FLORAL ARCH

Charming Home Wedding Solemnized on Liberty Street.

CEREMONY PERFORMED BY DR. LEWIS

Laura May Pennington and Charles Stillman Randolph the High Contracting Parties—Happy Couple Left on a Wedding Tour Amid Omens of Luck

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan C. Pennington, of Liberty street, was the scene of a pretty wedding last evening, when their daughter, Laura May Pennington, was united in marriage to Charles Stillman Randolph, of Park avenue. The ceremony was performed at 7:30, the bride and groom standing beneath a floral arch suspended from which was a wedding bell. Dr. A. H. Lewis officiated and the wedding march was rendered by Miss Gertrude Sharp. The bride was attired in white silk, with pearl and lace trimmings and satin ribbon. She was attended by her sister, Edith Pennington, as bridemaid, who wore a gown of pink silk with lace trimmings. Both carried handsome bouquets of roses. The best man was Robert R. F. Randolph, cousin of the groom. Immediately after congratulations supper was served, after which the bride and groom left amid a shower of rice for a wedding trip of a week. On their return they will occupy a house on Park avenue, just built and furnished by the groom. A very handsome collection of presents were received. Guests were present from Plainfield, South Plainfield, Bayonne, New York and Brooklyn, among whom were:

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Rhennie Randolph, Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. A. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Soper, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Soper, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. THREW OUT ONE CHARGE.

Lucy Williams Couldn't Prove That Dick Caldwell Had Her Trunk.

Judge Mosher's court was filled with colored people this morning, all of whom were anxious to hear the trial of Miss Lucy Williams against Richard Caldwell, both of whom are colored. Lawyers Runyon and Swackhamer represented the plaintiff and Lawyer Hetfield the defendant. There were two charges. The first was that the defendant had confiscated a trunk belonging to the plaintiff, and had it checked to some point out of town. The evidence was so incomplete and lacking that the Judge threw it out after hearing both sides.

The second charge is that Caldwell obtained money to the amount of $105 under false pretences. The trial on the latter charge will come up tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock before Judge Mosher.

Deft Fingers at Work.

The sewing school at Warren chapel opened on Saturday of last week and thirty-five scholars were present. The school is doing a most excellent work, but needs more teachers. Ladies desiring to help a worthy cause are invited to join the school at the next meeting on Saturday, Oct. 17.

Ready to Start His Work.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, formerly pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church, of this city, who has lately been assigned to the field of lecturer, starts this afternoon on a two month's lecturing tour through Pennsylvania, Virginia and the far west. His trip will take him as far west as Bolder, Col.

An Echo Meeting.

An echo meeting of the recent Christian Endeavor convention will be held in the Trinity Reformed church next Thursday evening. The '96 choir will sing, led by H. J. Martin. Ford C. Ottman, of Newark, will act as leader of the meeting.

Will Renominate Both.

The Union county Republicans will renominate Assemblyman J. Martin Roll, Henry Clauss and William R. Codington, says the World. The county convention will be held Oct. 21st.

Many political speakers, clergymen, singers and others who use the voice excessively, rely upon One Minute Cough Cure to prevent huskiness and laryngitis. Its value as a preventive is only equalled by its power to afford instaneous relief. L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

A GIANT ON A BICYCLE.

HE WEIGHS 480 POUNDS AND IS ENJOYING LIFE.

J. W. Grimes is His Name and He is Here Today as a Guest of Frank L. C. Martin—Called at The Press Office.

Think of it, 480 pounds of human flesh all distributed about one body and that body belongs to a young man from Cleveland, O. His name is J. W. Grimes, and he is an enthusiastic cyclist. The Cleveland is the wheel of his choice, and H. A. Lozier & Company, manufacturers of that wheel, have converted him into a walking, or rather riding, advertisement. He is only twenty-seven years old but stands six feet two inches in height.

He is now making a tour of the Cleveland agencies, and this morning he came out to the store of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company, where he attracted widespread attention. Mr. Grimes is something of a traveler and has moved that ponderous form of his considerably. He goes to Europe next summer. He will remain here for the day. His cards have been distributed and on the back of them is the significant quotation

Just tell them that you saw me;
They'll know the rest.

He paid a visit to the Daily Press office this afternoon, accompanied by Mr. Martin, and kept the staff in a state bordering on distraction for fear the chair would collapse under his weight. The chair trembled, but was equal to the occasion.

WINKLER APPEALED THE CASE.

Says That He Took No Bass From the New Market Pond.

The draining of the New Market pond has resulted in plenty of excitement. First, Theodore Roantree and Frank Winkler, of that town, were arrested by Game Warden Sebring for spearing bass there; then they were brought before Justice Storms and fined $20 each. Roantree admitted that he did spear the fish, but Winkler claimed to be entirely innocent. He wanted time to get his lawyer, but the trial was rushed off at once.

Now, Winkler has retained City Judge De Meza to defend him, the appeal bond has been filed and the Middlesex County Court of Common Pleas will hear the case. He claims that he was not given a chance to defend himself in the first trial, and now proposes to add somewhat to the excitement.

Sues for Heavy Damages.

George M. Grant, a wealthy lumber dealer of Summit, has begun suit in the Union County Court for $100,000 against the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad Company. The case was called for trial yesterday by Judge VanSyckel, in Elizabeth. Grant and his young son were run down by a train at Marion some time ago while being driven across the tracks. The boy was instantly killed and his father lost an arm and an eye.

Their Fifth Wedding Anniversary.

The fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Keller was celebrated at their home on Somerset place, in the borough, last evening. About twenty-five couples were present and spent the evening dancing to Prof. Lawson's music. The presents were largely of wooden ware and the supper was composed of the most appetizing relishes.

Death of an Estimable Woman.

All that was mortal of Mrs. Phœbe E. King, a resident for many years at 57 Clerk street, Jersey City, was committed to mother earth yesterday afternoon. The late Mrs. King was the mother of Frank King, well-known in this city, and leaves besides him, a husband, and a daughter, to mourn the loss of a christian wife and mother. Her death occurred on Sunday, and was the result of paralysis.

Attending the Synodical Convention.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Synodical Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the State is being held today at Paterson. Among those who are in attendance from here are the president, Mrs. W. E. Honeyman; Mrs. J. H. Manning, Mrs. Kimball, Mrs. S. Milliken, Mrs. W. Shotwell and Miss Petrie. The delegates went in a body, leaving here on the 8:31 train.

Cure for Dyspepsia.

No better testimony could be given as regards the usefulness of the business men's gymnastic class at the Y. M. C. A. than was given the other day by one of Plainfield's leading business men. A year ago, he said, "I was a thoroughly sick man and now I am in perfect health." He is now one of the regular attendents at the meetings of this class.

—The Bible class, taught by Rev. D. M. Stearns, will be omitted next Monday night on account of the sudden death of Mrs. Stearns.

ITS FLOW MUST BE CLEAR AND PURE

Another Charge That Green Brook is Being Polluted.

CHAPOT AND SONS THE ACCUSED.

They Assert That Inspector Pangborn is Wrong in His Supposition That the Water Discharged From Their Factory Into the Brook is Filthy—Will Fight It

Long and vigorous has been the campaign of the North Plainfield Board of Health against the pollutors of Green brook. Sewer after sewer, that hitherto had emptied its filthy contents in the little stream of water that separates Union and Somerset counties, has been closed through the efforts of the Board. The campaign started with the closing of the North avenue sewer and has gradually worked westward until yesterday ex-Marshal Wm. H. Pangborn, inspector for the Board, notified Chapot & Sons that they must cease at once emptying the refuse water from their chamois factory near Clinton avenue into Green brook.

There is a small pond on the south side of the Jersey Central railroad about 100 yards from the factory. A spring supplies the water for this pond and a wooden drainway with a culvert under the railroad embankment carries the water away. It is carried under Front street and then flows down to join Green brook. A four-inch tile pipe runs from the factory to the side of the hollow in which lies the pond and drainway. Then the water from the factory is allowed to trickle down the incline into the pond and drainway and so into Green brook.

Inspector Pangborn visited the place and, after examining the situation, notified the proprietors that they could no longer use Green brook, as a sewer.

A Daily Press reporter visited the factory this morning to learn what Chapot & Sons had to say regarding the action of the Board of Health. He was received by one of the junior members of the firm who talked freely about the matter. He stated emphatically that the present method of disposing of the superfluous water at the factory would be continued, even if the firm had to fight for it. The water, he said, that was being emptied into the brook, is not at all impure and is perfectly healthy. It only contains salt and sulphuric acid, which act more as disinfectants than impurities. He then showed the reporter the way in which the factory is drained, the impure water, containing animal matter, being emptied into a large cistern under the lavatories and allowed to filter away.

The rest of the water, including the rain water from the roofs and the steam exhaust from the engine, is carried away to a cistern on the opposite side of the factory. When the water runs in faster than the earth can absorb it, an outlet is furnished by the above mentioned tile pipe.

Mr. Chapot and the reporter walked down to the end of this pipe and found a little stream of water flowing out of it. The weeds and earth about it were discolored, which Mr. Chapot claimed was owing to the salt and acid in the water. There seemed to be no odor and Mr. Chapot washed his hands in the water to show how pure it was. It was quite clear but apparently showed a trace of something besides water. Mr. Chapot said it was the salt and acid. Mr. Chapot said that Inspector Pangborn had seen the steam from the exhaust coming from this pipe and thought it the vapor from impure water. He declared that there had been no complaints as Mr. Pangborn claimed had been made and that even if there had been an odor, no one lived near enough to know it. The other ponds of stagnant water in the vicinity were, he said, much more unhealthy than this one.

Little Sammy to Be There.

Rev Matthew Francis, returned missionary from the Soudan, and little Sammy, the native boy who made one of the most stirring addresses delivered in Carnegie Hall, last Sunday, will be present and speak at the meeting of the Christian Alliance this evening at 7:45 in the parlors of the W.C. T. U. on Watchung avenue.

Faithful Stewards.

At the annual election for three Elders and three Deacons of the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church, last evening, the following brethren were unanimously re-elected: Elders, A. Willet, Geo. L. Van-Emburgh, J. F. Laire; Deacons, H. E. Gayle, W. S. Oliver, F. S. Cutter.

Many lives of usefulness have been cut short by neglect to break up an ordinary cold. Pneumonia, bronchitis and even consumption can be averted by the prompt use of One Minute Cough Cure. L. W. Randolph, 144 West Fron street.

TURK MUST SUBMIT

Little Doubt That the Bancroft Will Force the Dardanelles.

WASHINGTON OFFICIALS RETICENT

Our Mediterranean Fleet and Warships of the Powers To Assist if Necessary—Smyrna Customs Duties May Be Seized To Satisfy Indemnities.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Assistant Secretary Rockhill was again closeted with Secretary Olney for over an hour this morning. Secretary Olney afterwards went over to the White House to see the president. Mr. Rockhill said he knew nothing of any alleged intention on the part of the United States dispatch boat Bancroft to pass the Dardanelles, whether the Turkish government protested or not. Secretary Herbert declined to talk. The story that the Brancroft is to force her way through the Dardanelles under the threatening guns of the Turkish fortifications, and that if any obstacles are placed in the way of the boat's passage, the Mediterranean fleet, with Admiral Selfridge in command, will assist the Bancroft in making the passage, is generally believed here. It is also understood that the powers will not only offer no resistance to the passage of the Bancroft, but will, if necessary, aid her in getting through the Horn.

May Seize Smyrna Customs Revenues.

For some time past the necessity of having a guard ship at Minister Terrell's disposal has been a subject of earnest discussion in the cabinet and frequent consultations had been held between the secretary of state, the secretary of the navy and the president, at which the views of Minister Terrell, who was exceedingly anxious that a man-of-war belonging to our government should be in Turkish waters pending the long disturbed condition of affairs in Turkey, were thoroughly made understood and more than a year ago a decision in accordance with Minister Terrill's wishes in that direction was reached and all details of the important service were carefully and advisedly considered. After the declination of Turkey in January last to allow a naval vessel to pass the Bosphorus, Mr. Terrill promised that if the Bancroft should be sent he would find a way to get her in. The Bancroft left Gibraltar in company with the Cincinnati a week ago last Sunday and should have reached Smyrna and probably did reach that port Tuesday, steaming at the rate of 200 miles per day. If the navy department has been advised of her arrival at Smyrna, it has seen fit to withhold the information. The Bancroft assuredly started for Constantinople. Orders were given to the proper bureau chiefs of the navy department to fit her for guard duty in the Golden Horn, and she was so equipped in August and September under urgent ten-day orders from Assistant Secretary of the Navy McAdoo. There is abundant information to the effect that this government intends to collect the Harpoot, Marash and other indemnities before congress meets. National insult may be met as a method of last resort—the Corinto incident between Great Britain and Nicaragua being adopted as a precedent, in which events Admiral Selfridge might seize the customs of Smyrna until the proper amount is collected and, in the opinion of some prominent naval officers here, the admiral will employ his fleet for that purpose, unless apologies and indemnity are soon forthcoming.

Anxiety for an Overdue Steamer.

Boston, Oct. 15.—There is some little anxiety felt for the British steamer Moonstone which left Progreso, Mex., on the 4th for this port, and is nearly a week overdue. As she was in light trim it is feared that she fared badly during the destructive blow, and was probably blown off the coast. Ship owners are anxious to hear from the large fleet of sailing vessels that were out in the hurricane, and it is feared that the reports for the next few days will bring tidings of disaster to many of them.

Promotion for a War Hero.

Washington, Oct. 15.—The retirement yesterday of Col. Reuben F. Barnard of the Ninth cavalry caused the promotion of Maj. James F. Randlett, Ninth cavalry, to the grade of lieutenant colonel. Col. Randlett is another one of the heroes of the war. He entered the service in August, 1861, as captain of the Third New Hampshire volunteers. He is now in command of Fort Dushane, Utah, and is also acting agent for the Uintah and Uncompagre Indians.

Striking Weavers Return to Work.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 15. — The weavers of the Stevens mill, who have been on strike nine days, returned to work to-day. They went in a body to the superintendent late last evening and were told by him that notices of a reduction would be taken down. They left work on account of the alleged readjustment of the wage schedule which, in reality, amounted to a 4 per cent. cut down.

Willis-Davidson Nuptials.

Cooperstown, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The marriage of Miss Almira B. Davidson, youngest daughter of deputy secretary of state Andrew Davidson, to Nathaniel P. Willis, took place here yesterday afternoon. Mr. Willis is a graduate of Hamilton college and a practicing attorney of this village.

Munich Art Exhibition.

Washington, Oct. 15.—A communication has been received by tht state department from the German ambassador at this capital inviting the United States to take part in the international art exhibition which is to be held at Munich next year.

CHASING THE REBELS

Another Party of Cuban Insurgents Said To Have Been Routed.

LEFT TWENTY-TWO DEAD BEHIND

Medicines and Stores Captured by the Spanish Troops—Castellanos, According to Reports, Continues His March into the Rebel Country.

Havana, Oct. 15.—Official reports received here state that the Pizarro regiment surprised a party of rebels under Juan Delgado at Coco, near Bejucal, in the Havana province, and by a brilliant bayonet charge routed the insurgents completely, compelling them to retire in such haste that they were unable to carry off their dead. The bodies of twenty-two dead rebels were left on the field and many of their men were wounded. The Spaniards captured a quantity of medicines and other stores which the insurgents were forced to leave behind them. The loss of the government troops was one captain and eight privates wounded. Further details of the fight between Gen. Castellanos' command and the rebels are to the effect that after the Desmayo engagement Gen. Castellanos' force started on the march to San Miguel. The troops were engaged in several skirmishes with the rebels during the march, but no battle of importance was fought. On the 9th the Spaniards marched into El Baga, where Gen. Castellanos ordered a number of barges which were lying at that place to transport the troops to Nuevitas. The soldiers embarked upon the barges, which were then taken in tow by the gunboat Golondrina, arriving in Nuevitas the same day. The sick and wounded Spaniards were placed in the hospitals and the troops rested until the 11th, when they took trains for Minas.

Another Fierce Battle.

Madrid, Oct. 15.—A special dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says another engagement has been fought between the insurgents and Spanish troops at Cascorro, Camaguey, which place was recently besieged for thirteen days by the rebels. In this battle the force of Gen. Castellanos, the Spanish leader, was compelled to retreat. The loss of the rebels is estimated at 200.

THREE KILLED OUTRIGHT.

Two Others Fatally Injured in a Trolley Car and Locomotive Collision.

Hazleton, Pa., Oct. 15.—Three men were killed, two others were fatally hurt, and a score of other people injured in a collision between a locomotive and a trolley car here last evening. The dead are: David John Williams of Plymouth, Pa.; William Stapleton, a traveling man of Milton, Pa.; Jefferson Kirschmer, telegraph operator of Hazleton, Pa. The fatally injured are: Morris Ferry, boy, and Patrick Doud, conductor. A heavy fog was the cause of the accident.

Preparing for the K. of L. Convention.

Washington, Oct. 15.—The general executive committee, Knights of Labor, has been in session preparatory to the annual convention to be held at Rochester, N. Y., November 10. The report of Worthy General Foreman Bishop will strongly recommend that a new fight be organized the coming winter for government ownership of railways and telegraph and telephone lines. He maintains that the development of air and electric motors promises a new era in transportation, and that the government should act before the new conditions are established.

No Venezuelan Decision Yet.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Respecting the report that the boundary commission had practically decided the matters submitted to it in favor of Venezuela, S. Mallet-Prevost, secretary of the commission, enters an emphatic denial. The commission is not yet in possession of all the facts necessary to form a definite judgment and will not be until the return of Prof. Burr from Europe, about the end of this month.

Decision in Favor of Gold Democrats.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Palmer and Buckner men may use the name "national democratic party." So decided the appellate division of the supreme court, sitting in Brooklyn. Its decision reverses that given by Justice Clement. Judge Hatch wrote the decision, which was concurred in by Judges Barnard and Brown. Judges Bartlett and Cullen dissented.

Storm Damage on Newfoundland Coast.

Halifax, Oct. 15.—A number of small casualties have been reported as the result of Wednesday night's storm, but no authentic news of anything serious has been received. There is a rumor that a schooner was driven ashore and destroyed at Sphinx cove, near Sambro, and that her crew had perished. Nothing definite can be ascertained.

Died of His Injuries.

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 15.—Elisha Tobey, aged 75, who was injured by the board of trade sign falling upon him on Monday, died from the effects of the blow at the city hospital last evening. Mr. Tobey was a wealthy retired farmer of Minnesota. He came east to visit friends.

Death Sentence Commuted.

Parry Sound, Ont., Oct. 15.—The minister of justice has commuted the death sentence of Christian Hanson, a Swede, convicted of the murder of Jas. Mullen, to imprisonment for life. He was to have been hanged on Saturday.

Enormous Catches of Mackerel.

New London, Conn., Oct. 15.—Enormous catches of mackerel were made off Block Island yesterday, four vessels bringing in about 75,000 fish, which were shipped to New York and Boston.

NEW MEXICO.

A Traveler's Views of the Country—Remains of Aborigines.

From the aborigines who are living one turns naturally to the remains of those who have passed away, leaving no record in words, but instead many indications of a manner of life that will prove of unfailing interest to the student. There were the human bank swallows, for instance—the people who dug holes in the faces of steep cliffs when making their homes. These were agriculturalists as are some modern tribes, and their canals that carried water for irrigation in the old days are of intense interest because there is now no water to fill the old ditches and more than that the grade has been changed so that what was once down grade is now the reverse.

More curious still are the remains of a race that once lived in the valley of the Rio San Francisco. On almost every knoll along this valley may be found the remains of houses whose walls were sunk in the earth—the houses were all cellars, so to speak. In many places these houses were two stories deep, and in one case a third story was reached by excavators. The remarkable feature of these structures is found in the fact that they were at first apparently of only one very deep story—they were cellars from 12 to 18 feet deep. But after some years of occupation the bottom of the pit or cellar was filled in for five or six feet and a new floor of adobe clay was laid over the filling. Eventually another six feet of filling was put in and a new floor laid, and then last of all the whole pit was filled.

On almost every floor the investigator finds the skeletons of the dead laid out in decent order with bowls and pots and trinkets about the heads and on the palms. But in some cases death seems to have come in strange form to the people of a household. There are skeletons of those who died while in flight, though their death was not from violence, since every bone is unbroken. One man died as he smoked his pipe and leaned his back against the wall of his house. A woman died as she was kneeling on the floor grinding corn with a metate. She had one hand on the metate and one in a bowl of corn when life passed away and in this position a searcher found her. While yet her dead body was in its position the room had been filled with fine earth that held the skeleton in place. So were the bones of the smoker with his pipe in his mouth held, and so were many other skeletons held.—John R. Spears, in Chautauquan.

In combination, proportion and process Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself, and unequalled in true merit.

No other medicine ever possessed so much curative power, or reached such enormous sales, or made such wonderful cures, as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It is undoubtedly the best medicine ever made to purify, vitalize and enrich the blood.

That is the secret of its success.

Read this statement:

"When my son was 7 years of age, he had rheumatic fever and acute rheumatism, which settled in his left hip. He was so sick that no one thought there was any help for him. Five sores broke out on his thigh, which the doctor said were sores. We had three different doctors. Pieces of bone came out of the sores. The last doctor said the leg would have to be cut open and the bone scraped, before he could get well. Howard became so low that he would eat nothing, and one doctor said there was no chance for him.

"One day, a newspaper recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla was left at our door. We decided to try this medicine. Howard commenced taking it the last of February, after having been sick for a year and a half. He hadn't taken it a week before I saw that his appetite began to improve, and then he gained rapidly. I gave him five bottles, when the sores were all healed and they never broke out again. The crutches he had used for four years were laid aside, as he had no further use for them. I give all the credit to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. ADA L. MOODY, Fay Street, Lynn, Mass.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in one minute.

One Minute Late

It makes no difference whether you were one minute or one hour late, if you missed the train. Better get there on time, even if you have to wait. One hour early is better than one minute late. Delay costs thousands of lives each year. "Neglected colds" is the beginning of the story; and consumption is the end. Few remedies, and but little of them, cure in the beginning. Later, many remedies long continued, and tedious journeys, too frequently end in disappointment.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil with the Hypophosphites soothes the cough, heals the inflamed membranes, and restores the parts to a healthy condition. This it does promptly and permanently, if taken in time. One bottle does more now than five would accomplish later on. If weak, pale and thin, Scott's Emulsion will give you strength, color, and flesh.

WILL WED AN INDIAN GIRL.

A Washington Young Man Chooses a Bride in the Creek Nation.

Washington, Oct. 15.—During the month of December the Creek nation in Indian Territory will witness the marriage of the belle of the nation to Van H. Manning of the United States geological survey. The bride is Miss Elizabeth Crabtree, the daughter of a wealthy ranch owner and stockman, one of the most prominent men of his tribe. The romance which will be consummated by the ceremony in December is not one of the John Smith-Pocahontas variety. When the members of a corps of the geological survey pitched their tents in the nation, the Creeks accorded them a most hospitable welcome, and social pleasures relieved the irksome duties of the young surveyors every evening during the week. Young Manning formed a violent fancy for the dark eyes, raven hair, the capper complexion and the lissome form of Miss Crabtree and his affectious being reciprocated the engagement naturally followed. Miss Crabtree's mother is one of the Virginia Carters. She has been educated at one of the best female institutions in the territory and is a young woman of high attainments. She is 19 years of age and extremely fair for one whose veins are half filled with the blood of the native American race. Mr. Manning is a son of the late Representative Manning of Mississippi. His mother and sisters live in Georgetown, D. C., and there he will carry his bride to spend the honeymoon. He is a fine looking fellow, very popular among the young officers of the capital and is a widower.

DR. HAMILTON RESIGNS.

End of the Surgeon-General's Fight Against Being Transferred.

Chicago, Oct. 15.— Dr. John B. Hamilton, surgeon-general of the United States marine hospital, stationed in this city, has sent in his resignation to President Cleveland. This action is the outcome of a long and bitter fight in the higher circles of the war department. Some time ago Dr. Hamilton was ordered to the marine hospital at San Francisco, by the war department. His headquarters have been in Chicago since 1891, and he has a large and valuable private practice, as well as real estate holdings. Owing to these circumstances he objected to being transferred, and made an official protest. This protest was overruled, and Dr. Hamilton again ordered to the west. He then protested to Secretary Carlisle, and after witing until Sept. 24 was notified that the secretary would no interfere. He then decided to resign, and on Monday took that action. He has not yet received any reply. Dr. Hamilton blames surgeon-general Walter Wyman for the objectionable order.

IN A GASOLINE LAUNCH.

Long Journey of a Chicago Man in His Frail Craft.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 15.—A gasoline launch, 35 feet in length with a 3 1-2 foot draught, steamed up the Erie canal in this city yesterday. The owner of the boat is C. E. Paine, a wealthy Chicagoan. Two other western gentlemen were with him. Mr. Paine built the boat two years ago, and has sailed down the Mississippi, through the gulf, around Florida, and up the coast to New York; thence up the Hudson to the canal and through to Rochester. From Buffalo he goes into Lakes Erie and Huron to Lake Michigan, finally reaching Chicago by Dec. 1. Mr. Paine says he used a small sail while in the open sea and was able to make about fifty miles a day. He had many experiences with sharks, whales, etc.

Meadows Disaster Recalled by a Suit.

Camden, N. J., Oct. 15.—A suit for damages commenced in the Camden county court recalls the fatal accident at the crossing at Atlantic City, when forty-four persons were killed by the Reading Railroad express crashing into the center of a West Jersey excursion train. Edward Farr was the engineer of the Reading express. When he saw that the accident could not be avoided he stuck to his train and was killed at his post. His widow, Mrs. Annie Farr, has commenced a suit for $20,000 against the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad company.

Novel Hotel Warming.

New York, Oct. 15.—The opening of the New Manhattan hotel in this city yesterday was celebrated in a unique way. In the construction of the hotel over 100 different firms were interested and to the men who were in charge of these various branches of industries on the building, Messrs. Hawk & Wetherbee, the proprietors of the Manhattan, gave an elaborate luncheon and reception. The guest of honor was the foreman of the job.

Aged Baptist Minister Dead.

Baltimore, Oct. 15.—The Rev. Dr. Franklin Wilson, the oldest Baptist minister in Baltimore, died yesterday, aged 74 years. He was ordained to the ministry in 1846. As editor of religious publications and founder of the Young Men's Christian association in this city he became widley known.

COURT WAS LENIENT

British Public Surprised That the Castles Were Admitted to Bail.

DETECTIVES CLOSELY WATCH THEM

Believed To Be Stopping in Seclusion with Friends---Outcome of the Case Problematical---Mrs. Castle's Relatives in Philadelphia.

London, Oct. 15.—Walter M. Castle of San Francisco, and his wife, who were released under £40,000 bail Tuesday, are supposed to be still in London, but their whereabouts cannot be ascertained. After they had furnished the bonds required, they were led back into the police station and discharged from there. Since then the general public has been in ignorance as to their whereabouts. No one knows, or rather no one will tell, where they have gone, but it is believed that they are stopping with friends. It is said that the movements of the couple are being closely watched by detectives, but none of the men detailed on the case will disclose anything concerning Mr. and Mrs. Castle. While among friends of the prisoners in America the bonds demanded will be regarded as entirely out of all proportion to the offense, yet here it is regarded that they were treated with leniency in being admitted to bail at all. Still nobody here ever heard of such bonds before, and the figure is without a parallel in this or any other country. Englishmen cannot realize that in America £100 would be considered a satisfactory bond for a charge of shoplifting, while £200 would be thought excessive. English laws regard stealing as a very serious matter.

Outcome of the Case Problematical.

The case will come up again on Tuesday next, and the outcome is problematical. Plenty of evidence will be put forward by the prosecution to show that quantities of goods found in the prisoner's apartments in the Hotel Cecil were stolen from the various shopkeepers, but Charles Matthews, counsel for the defense, will make a hard fight. He will admit that Mrs. Castle stole certain trifling articles, but will endeavor to show by medical and other testimony that her diseased condition of mind was responsible, and that her husband knew nothing of what was going on. People who were present in court Tuesday agree that, while Mr Castle made a good impression upon the judge and audience, Mrs. Castle did not.

MRS. CASTLE'S RELATIVES.

They All Believe She Is Mentally Afflicted. Her Father in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 15.—A sister of Mrs. W. H. Castle resides in this city. She is prostrated over the unfortunate occurrences and out of consideration for the family her name is withheld. The father of Mrs. Castle arrived here yesterday from North Carolina and will remain here until more definite information is received from his daughter's attorney in London. None of the family believes Mrs. Castle was guilty of willfully stealing, and are of the decided opinion that she is suffering from mental trouble. "She has always been a deep student," said a relative, "and was unusually intelligent and well educated. I feel certain that she must be ill, for I know that while she was in San Francisco a physician attended and treated her constantly for brain and nervous affections. It cannot for a moment be thought that she would commit a crime while in a sound mental state. She is wealthy and has everything money could obtain. She wants for nothing, for Mr. Castle adores her and grants every request that his wife makes. She comes from a prominent family and moves in the best society at home and abroad. No person is more proud of her lineage and her position, and no woman guards her name with more watchfulness. Many expressions of sympathy have been received by the family and all our friends give assurances that an investigation will satisfactorily clear up the mystery."

Fatal Coolie Riots at Demorara.

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 15.—A dispatch received here from Georgetown, British Guiana, says that alarming riots have occurred among the coolies in Demorara. The ringleaders of the rioters were arrested, and while they were being taken to the lock-up by the police who had them in custody the latter were attacked by the mob and were finally obliged to fire upon their assailants. The fire of the officers was effective, three of the rioters being killed and many others wounded.

Friends of the Indians in Session.

Tohonk Lake, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The fourteenth annual conference of the Friends of the Indian began at Lake Mohonk Mountain house yesterday. Rev. Edgerton R. Young of Toronto, long a missionary among the Crees in Manitoba, told of the progress they were making in civilization, and Francis E. Leup reported on visits of various reservations in the interest of the board of Indian commissioners and Indian Rights association.

Prize Fighters Plead Guilty.

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINEES

The following are the Congressional nominees filed with the Secretary of State from the Third and Eighth districts:

Third District--Benj. F. Howell, Rep; John A. Wells, Dem; Wm. S. Jones, Nat. Dem; Patrick Henry, Socialist, and A. W. Marshall, Prohibitionist.

Eight District--Chas. N. Fowler, Rep; Freeman O. Willey, Dem; Alex. D. Moyer, Nat. Dem; Wm. J. Campbell, Socialist, and S. Wilson, Prohibitionist.

Former Assemblyman Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, will be nominated by the Republicans of Somerset county for the Senate. His opponent may be former Senator Keys. Mr. Reed made a splendid record, and is the strongest man in Somerset county today.—Elizabeth Journal.

The delegates elected at the Republican primaries in Somerville Tuesday night are opposed to the nomination of Charles A. Reed for Senator. In the majority of other towns, however, the delegatee look with favor on Mr. Reed's candidacy, and he will probably receive the nomination.

The button craze has got to be such a nuisance among the students in the public schools in New York that a rule has been established prohibiting the students to wear any other than political buttons. It might be emulated in Plainfield with good results.

Gold Democratic Notes.

The National Democrats have completed arrangements for a Palmer and Buckner ratification meeting. It will be held at Music Hall on Friday, the 30th inst. Edward M. Shepard, of Brooklyn, and Richard V. Lindabury, of Newark, will address the meeting. Joseph W. Yates has joined the club, and they have made public the following letter addressed to William J. Curtis, of Summit:

"My Dear Mr. Curtis.

In reply to your favor of a few days ago, I would say that I am a member of the Sound Money club of Plainfield. The problems referred to and involved in the present political situation are probably of a more serious nature than most of us are willing to acknowledge. As an individual I am opposed to each and every one of the "issues" arising from the unfortunate Chicago Convention and trust that every good Democrat will take the same position. Yours very truly.

J. W. Yates."

The next sound money meeting at Muhlenberg Place and South Second street will be held to-night. Mr. Dexter O. Tiffany will speak.

Game and Fish Protective Meeting.

A regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the local branch of the New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society was held in the society's rooms in the Babcock building last evening, with a full representation of the members present. President John Goff presided. Besides the usual routine of business, new and attractive certificates of membership badges were distributed among the members. Members of the society are requested to call on the secretary and treasurer, Henry Haurand, for their insigna. It was unanimously resolved that a committee of the Board go over the balance of the leased territory on Saturday afternoon, and post the game law notices. A committee of three was also appointed at a nominal salary to be on the alert for violators of the State game and fish laws. Heavy penalties are attached to violations of these laws, and the society is making strenuous efforts to capture the guilty ones.

The Plainfield Camera Club have decided to exhibit the prize set of slides which are now in their possession, at the club rooms, Thursday, October 22d. A BIT PERSONAL.

People Always Interested in Each Other's Welfare.

Incidents From Private Life That Will Surprise and Interest the Whole World.

DOVER, N. H.—A cynic of old once said—"Other people's affairs are tedious." We believe, on the contrary, that there is nothing so interesting to us as what happens to other people.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Grant, who reside at 490 Central Ave., Dover, N. H., both talk unreservedly of the matter.

"I had a complete case of nervous prostration," said Mrs. Grant. "I became greatly reduced in flesh and was rapidly growing weaker and less able to work about the house.

"Having heard of the wonderful curative properties contained in Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, I concluded to give it a trial. After taking one bottle I was greatly improved, and before the third bottle was gone I was able to be about my work as usual."

Mr. Grant is no less enthusiastic. He says:

"Having employed the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy in a chronic case of nervous indigestion with the most gratifying results, I can sincerely recommend it to all who are suffering from this horrible malady. It aids digestion, strengthens the stomach and builds up the entire nervous system at the same time."

MR. F. W. GRANT.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy surely cures. The reason is plain. It is the prescription of the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, hence of necessity, is perfectly adapted to cure just these chronic complaints. Its discoverer, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th Street New York City, can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

THEATRICAL.

What in all probability will strike the patrons of Music Hall this evening will be the unique idea of witnessing a performance without the usual tedious waits between acts. Such has been William Jerome's idea in presenting to the public his Twentieth Century Farce intitled "Town Talk." This company is comprised of some of the best people in the profession, combining high-class vaudeville, artists with farce comedy comedians, gives lovers of both a rare and delightful evening's entertainment. Every act is a novelty, every scene of farce a laugh.

Will be Held Responsible.

At this time when so much is being said regarding the ice pond and dam which is being built at Washtonville, it might be well to state that the Somerset County Board of Freeholders have nothing whatever to do with giving permission for its construction, as some people supposed. The company thought that if the Freeholders would give their sanction in the matter they would have something to fall back on in case any damage resulted. The Freeholders refused to sanction the construction of the pond and dam, but on the contrary they have served a notice on the company that the owners of the same will be held responsible for any and all damages to the township.

—The Young Men's Republican Club will hold a meeting Monday night.

—The Young Men's Republican Club will hold its big smoker on Saturday evening at the Republican Association rooms.

—The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will hold a business meeting tomorrow evening, when the semi-annual election of officers will be held. The members of the society who sung in the '96 convention choir will sing.

The Crescent Wheelmen will hold a club meeting on Wednesday evening.

The Darlington, Wis., Journal says editorially of a popular patent medicine: "We know from experience that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is all that is claimed for it, as on two occasions it stopped excruciating pains and possibly saved us from an untimely grave. We would not rest easy over night without it in the house." This remedy undoubtably saves more pain and suffering than any other medicine in the world. Every family should keep it it in the house, for it is sure to be needed sooner or later. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

how low the price, baking powders that vary in strength are expensive.

They raise pretty well once or twice, and then, losing their strength, fail, and so waste good butter, flour, eggs, sugar, time and temper.

Cleveland's baking powder never varies. It does the work just right every time, and that is why housekeepers prefer it.

Cleveland's, Pure and Sure.

ATTACKED BY A HORSE.

Mrs. Pierson, While Feeding the Beast, is Kicked in the Face and Breast.

Mrs Pierson, the wife of George Pierson, of the firm of Everitt & Pierson, masons, of Garwood, went into a lot adjoining the house yesterday to catch her horse, as she was often in the habit of doing when she desired to go driving.

She had called the animal to her and was feeding him with lumps of sugar when, without warning, the beast turned suddenly and kicked her in the breast with one foot, while the other landed full in her face, knocking her insensible.

The unfortunate woman was conveyed to the house by neighborers who had witnessed the accident. Her chest was badly contused, and her face, having received the full force of the horse's shoe, was cut and mangled. Her jaw was broken in four pieces.

Arranging for the Fair.

A meeting of the G. A. R. fair committee was held last evening in Grand Army hall when matters in detail concerning the coming fair were discussed. As yet the committee is unable to announce the place where the fair will be held, though it is quite likely that it will be on East Front street near the Grand Army hall. It is proposed to have dancing as one of the features. A specialty will be a museum containing a valuable collection of war relics both from the north and south. This will no doubt interest the children and many older people. Another meeting of the committee will be held at an early date.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

SCOTCH PLAINS.

William Mann, Harlem River Park, New York City, has been spending a few days at Blimm Bros. hotel.

Fred Clark and George Traynor drove to North Branch and Somerville yesterday, looking for horses.

Ben Clark started his husking peg going yesterday and he is making rapid progress in his big fields of corn.

Mrs. John Blimm is quite ill at her home with the grip, and symptoms bordering on pneumonia were noticed yesterday.

The mechanics and helpers who are erecting the new bridge over the railroad tracks at Terrill road expect to be here for four weeks yet.

Robert Clawson, of Plainfield, who is employed as stereotyper on Harper's Weekly, has been spending a day or two with Scotch Plains friends.

The Kickapoo Indians continue to attract large audiences in Excelsior hall. Next Monday the company leaves here for Milburn and from there they will probably go to Plainfield.

The Engineering and Supply company of New York, are running their stone cracker to its utmost capacity. Something like 120 tons of rock ballast is being taken from the mountain daily and most of it is shipped to Red Bank. The works will continue in operation all winter.

The Berkley Heights stone crusher near here is now running on full time and the five teams employed in carting the stone from the crusher are inadequate to meet the demand. Superintendent John Boyle would like to engage a few more teams and he went to Plainfield yesterday for that purpose. But he was unable to fill the bill.

Edward Emery, chairman of the last Democratic primary has caused to be posted, bills announcing that the legal voters of Fanwood township and the borough of Fanwood, are to meet in Bucket and Engine company's house on "Saturday evening, October 1896." No other date appears in the notice and most of the voters are at a loss to know what Saturday evening is intended.

DUNELLEN.

Miss Clara Twinamal, of Carmal, N. Y., is visiting Mrs. Charles Dickason, of South avenue.

The roads are very sloppy, and many of them, especially the back roads, are badly in need of repairs.

Paul Reusch, who was operated upon by Drs. Ard and Long, Saturday, is doing nicely, and yesterday he was able to sit up in bed for a short time for the first.

Sanford Staples begun yesterday digging the cellar for a new house on what is now known as Depot street. The building will be 26x28 feet in dimensions, and the construction will be pushed rapidly forward.

Still more improvements are making, and still another new house is going up. This one is for Henry Lenterwiser, and the location is on Jackson avenue. Mundy Bros., of Plainfield, it is said, has the contract for the carpenter work.

F. H. Gise started yesterday the brick work on the new colonial cottage which is to be erected for R. J. Swackhamer, on Church street. The building is to be 28x28 feet in dimensions, and will be fully equipped with all the modern conveniences.

Washington avenue is the main thoroughfare that runs between the station and Washington Rock, and the portion between the brook and Greenbrook road is now in a very poor condition. The heavy stone wagons that constantly pass over it have cut up the road bed with deep, wide ruts, so that bicycling is impossible, and driving with a light carriage nearly so. The road is gradually becoming worse and promises to be almost impassible this winter, unless some steps are taken to improve its condition.

The marriage of Miss Ida Amy Fletcher, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Frank Fletcher, to Robert Lowrie Giddis, of this place, will take place on Wednesday, October 21st, at 3 p. m., in the First Baptist church, New Market. The ceremony will be performed by the bride's father, and following there will be a reception at the bride's home on the New Market road. The following Wednesday evening a reception will be held at the groom's house on North avenue. Some seventy invitations have been issued for the wedding and subsequent reception. The best man at the ceremony will be Bert Fletcher, a brother of the bride, and the bridemaid announced is Miss Jessie Haynes, a neighbor and dear friend.

ANOTHER TICKET IN UNION.

James Clark, of Plainfield, to be Named for State Senator.

The gold standard Democrats at their meeting at Elizabeth last night decided to place a full county ticket in the field in Union county. Candidates for Sheriff and three Assemblymen will be named today or Friday.

James Clark, of Plainfield, was selected for State Senator, and will accept the nomination.

No trouble is anticipated in filling the ticket. Vice-president S. M. Williams, of the Jersey Central Railroad, who is one of the State electors on the Palmer and Buckner ticket, was a conspicuous figure at the meeting.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. George Thatcher and daughter will leave for Philadelphia today.

The condition of Robert Anderson, who has been so seriously ill for several days past, is reported as no better today.

The condition of A. M. Runyon, whose serious illness was recorded yesterday, is today somewhat improved.

Mrs. John Valiant, of the borough, will entertain the Missionary Society of the Grace M. E. church at her home next week Thursday evening.

Mrs. Stanton Clark, of Westerly, Rhode Island, who has been spending a week with her brother, W. H. Williams, left for home today.

J. L. M. DuFour, of Franklin township, Somerset county, a candidate for the Assembly on the Democratic ticket, was in town today.

Dr. J. H. Stevenson, of West Fourth street, who was stricken down with a paralytic stroke several weeks ago, is no better, and this morning his condition was reported as most serious.

Miss Nettie Wilson, daughter of the late Street Commissioner John Wilson, arrived home from Scotland last night. She has been away since June 1st last, and has enjoyed a very pleasant trip abroad.

George D. Bremer, of Somerset street, came here from Hamburg, Germany, in 1874, and was in the German-France war prior to his departure for this country. He was in several battles, but escaped without a wound. During the six years he has been in business for himself he has built up a large trade.

SHE SEES THE FUTURE.

Five-Year-Old Girl's Remarkable Gift of Prophecy.

Reared in Humble Surroundings and Her Parents Are Unable to Explain the Phenomenon—Some Samples of Her Power.

Little Mabel Miller, five years of age, living on Houston avenue, near Nineteenth street, South Chicago, is a prophetess, a natural one, who does not deem it necessary to go into a trance when she wants to foretell events. She simply tells what is to happen, in the most matter-of-fact way, and thinks no more about it.

She delivered her first prophecies when but two years of age, when she began to learn to talk, and at first they excited no particular comment, as her mother is a plain, unimaginative woman, who possesses no knowledge of occult matters, and therefore gave no heed to the chatter of the infant phenomenon. Mabel's father is a German, but her mother's father is a Frenchman, M. Jovine. German is the language spoken in the house altogether, and, although Mabel has never heard anything else, she is able to speak English quite as fluently.

Illness in the family she invariably predicts, and there has not as yet been an instance where she was in error. When asked how it is she can tell when a member of the household is about to be ill she invariably says: "I sees 'em in the bed." As a rule her prophecies are without solicitation, as she usually makes no reply when asked concerning future events, and if she does not feel like talking nothing can induce her to say a word.

Mabel's home is a modest two-story frame house, like hundreds of others in the vicinity, and the family are in modest circumstances, the father being a workman in a neighboring factory. All the members of the family are attendants upon the Lutheran church, know nothing of spiritualism, never heard of such a thing, and would not know what it meant if told. The little girl has never been brought into contact with anything of the sort, and does not realize that she is doing anything remarkable in thus peering into the future. In fact, she is but a baby, is childish in everything she does, and has no conception of anything beyond her own little childish pleasures.

It is true she does not predict wars, revolutions, changes in government and the overthrow of dynasties, for they are beyond her comprehension, but as she grows older she may be enabled, through the exercise of her peculiar powers, to foretell all sorts of happenings. At present she confines herself to predicting sickness in the family and the families of relatives, the arrival of visitors at the house, and things that are to happen to her little playmates.

Her mother does not pretend to understand the child. As for the father, he says nothing. The grandfather, Jovine, thinks she is of the supernatural, and the neighbors agree with the grandfather.

One day when her grandfather was visiting at the house she asked him for some pennies. He replied, in jest: "I have none; I am poor, and can't give pennies to little girls."

She quickly answered: "You've got some money in your pocket, and pretty soon, when you sell the house, you will have a lot of money the man will give you."

The grandfather at the same time was negotiating the sale of a house, and a few days afterwards the deal was consummated, but the old man had not said a word to any member of the family on the subject.

As early as three years ago Mabel could read the future in regard to events that were of interest to her. One day she told her mother: "Aunt Anna is coming this afternoon, mamma; so you had better hurry through with your work."

Another day she said: "Grandma is coming to-morrow, and I am going home with her."

In each case the relative came, as prophesied, and Mabel went home with her grandmother, as she said she would.

At another time, when playing with some other children, she said to one of them: "Elsie, you are going to the circus; your uncle is going to take you." Sure enough, Elsie went to the circus with her uncle, although she had not known the treat was in store for her.

Mabel is also an adept at telling the nationality of those with whom she is brought into contact, a peculiarity her parents cannot understand. She can tell at a glance whether a person is French, English, American or German, but how she does it none of the family knows. From what source her inspiration comes no one can tell. She is a natural musician and can sing any song she has ever heard, although she has had no sort of musical training, and is also a natural actress and a lover of the beautiful in everything.

BEWARE THE ROGUE.

Peer in the shadow of her hazel eyes,
Waiting to capture men, Love lurking lies.
Her glances are the arrows of his bow,
Wherewith he lays unwary victims low;
And she, unused to Cupid's artful wiles,
Unconscious aids his purpose by her smiles,
And knows not, as her smiles and glances dart,
What anguish these may bring to many a heart.

Ah! hapless maiden, innocently gay,
No presage of the future breeds dismay;
She does not know how soon the treacherous guest
Will make her heart the haven of unrest.
Ungrateful Cupid! Soon from her he'll fly,
And seek a refuge in some lover's eye,
Then from that point of vantage aim a dart
To pierce and agonize her maiden heart.
—Thomas Dunn English, in Harper's Magazine.

AN ASYLUM DANCE.

As this story traveled in a roundabout way it may have been elaborated and built up before it came to hand, but the facts, as nearly as they can be learned, are about as follows:

Mr. Melton, a young man interested in the lumber trade, traveled on a suburban train one Friday night to attend the weekly dance at the asylum for the insane.

Mr. Melton is constantly longing for "experiences." He would rather look at an opium joint than a donation party, and would rather go "slumming" than attend a Sunday school picnic. The ball at the insane asylum appealed to his love for the picturesque. Lowry, the politician, had promised to take him out, and Melton had not allowed him to forget the promise.

Lowry came aboard the train at one of the stations on the way out, and the two were warmly welcomed when they arrived at the asylum, for this Lowry was a companionable man of considerable influence.

As Melton stood in the doorway of the ballroom and glanced at the rows of well-behaved and rather abashed people against the wall, he could hardly believe that he was so different from the others. He reflected that if he were to arise some morning and tell the other boarders that he was the emperor of China and had more money than he could use, he might become one of this company.

Except that many of them were pale and melancholy and a few of them were heavy-eyed intent on studying the floor, the assemblage would have compared favorably with any chance gathering of respectable everyday people.

He knew, of course, that the violent patients or those totally demented were not allowed at the ball. The company was made up of convalescents or those whose vision was merely twisted so that they could not see things in their proper relation. Some of the younger men had attired themselves with particular care and wore buttonhole bouquets. Many of the women too bore the outward signs of gayety. Melton was rather disappointed. He had wanted to witness something "uncanny."

"I want you to dance this evening," said Superintendent Lucas, standing at his elbow. "One trouble with the visitors is that they stand around and stare at the patients as if they were a lot of freaks. Now these people are not dangerous. You needn't believe everything they tell you, but if you mix up with them and are friendly you'll find them very easy to get along with. Come on, I'll introduce you to some of them."

The little orchestra was tuning up, and a patient who had been installed as floor manager was giving a correct imitation of a sane man who had been thrown under the same trying responsibility.

Melton had attended many evening parties, but he felt a new embarrassment as he passed along a line of demure women patients, and bowed to each of them in turn. He shook hands with several of the men, and then backed up to the wall to watch the opening. The superintendent, standing beside him, said: "Oh, by the way, you must meet Miss Caldwell."

He beckoned to a young woman who was talking to the leader of the orchestra, and as she came across the room Melton whistled to himself and said: "Here's a case of blighted love, and she's not over 20."

"Miss Caldwell, I want to present Mr. Melton," said the superintendent. "He's rather bashful in company, but perhaps you can entertain him. Now I'll go and look after Lowry."

Melton found himself staring at a very pretty girl, who returned his gaze in half-frightened manner.

His head buzzed, and he never before was so much in want of a topic. How was he to begin a conversation with a young woman who might fancy him to be the prince who had come to rescue her from the tower?

"Do you dance?" he asked, in sudden desperation.

She gave a start, and he imagined that she shrunk back a little.

"I'd rather not," said she, timidly.

"Well, then, let's sit over here in the corner and watch the others."

They found an out-of-the-way place, and Melton, who had recovered a little, remembered the instructions given him by the superintendent.

"These dances are very pleasant little affairs," said he. "They seem to be attended by an agreeable lot of people."

"I think it's a good idea to have them," said she. "You know most of these people, of course."

"I've met a number of them," he replied.

"You like Mr. Lucas, don't you?"

"Very well, indeed. Nice fellow."

"He didn't tell you, did he, that I was a cousin of his?"

Mr. Melton began to suspect the nature of her delusion. He resolved to be diplomatic.

"Oh, yes. I knew that," he said. "So you're a cousin of Mr. Lucas?"

"Yes. I'm here visiting him. I've been here about two weeks. Mrs. Lucas is so good to all the people here, isn't she?"

"Yes, indeed. She's very considerate."

Melton now understood the situation. This girl did not know that she was in an asylum. They had told her that she was a visitor.

"It's a nice place to come for a visit," said he. "I came out here with a friend of mine, a gentleman named Lowry. I live in Chicago."

"Oh, yes. Well, I'm sure you'll like it out here."

"I'm sorry I can't stay longer. I'm going back to town to-night on the late train."

"Going away to-night?"

"Yes, I have to go to Milwaukee in the morning."

"Why do you have to go there?"

"I'm going up to see about a deal in lumber. I may buy some hardwood lumber up there."

"How much?" she asked.

"Well, she's inquisite enough," thought he, but he was tolerant and answered: "Oh, perhaps 1,000,000 feet."

"Oh, 1,000,000 feet! Won't that be nice? I hope you'll get it."

Melton was rather amused at her interest in his affairs. He began to question her.

"Will you remain here long?" he asked.

"No, I'm going to leave in a few days and go to New York. I have an uncle there, and I expect to take a trip with him on a yacht."

Melton repressed a smile at the reference to the "uncle" and the "yacht." He resolved to investigate further. He had heard that patients were always willing to talk of their delusions.

"I notice that you are wearing an engagement ring," said he. "So you are to be married, are you?"

For a moment she appeared startled and then laughed heartily.

"I'm engaged to one of the nicest fellows in the world," said she. "You're not jealous, are you?"

This was more than Melton had bargained for. He had been impelled by the curiosity of the student, but he was not enough of a ghoul to have fun with the delusions of an unfortunate girl. He had detected the maniacal tone in her laugh.

"Oh, no," said he, hastily. "I congratulate you."

She laughed again.

"If I remain here I'll have her violent," thought he. So he excused himself and hurried over to rejoin Lowry.

As they rode to the city on the late train Melton told Lowry that the most interesting patient he had met was a girl who thought she was only a visitor at the asylum, and who expected to go to New York and ride on a yacht, and who, saddest of all, wore an engagement ring and really believed she was soon to be married to some nice young man, who existed only in her disordered brain.

No longer ago than last week Melton was at luncheon in a quiet restaurant. He looked up from the bill of fare and saw at the next table—the asylum girl!

She was radiantly attired and was chatting gayly with an elderly woman.

"By George, she's cured," said Melton to himself. "I wonder she remembers anything that happened. If she does remember, it will be mighty embarrassing if she happens to recognize me."

Then he asked himself whether it would be proper to speak to her in case she recognized him. He knew the society rule as to ballroom introductions, but he had never learned what was good form in the case of asylum introductions. If he spoke to her he would have to refer to their former meeting. That would be painful to both of them.

Suddenly the pretty girl looked toward him and gave a startled "Oh!" and then blushed furiously. He was recognized! He simply stared at the bill of fare to hide his confusion.

The voice of Superintendent Lucas aroused him.

"This is Mr. Melton, isn't it? Come over here. I want to tell you a story."

"No, no!" exclaimed the young woman.

But, Mr. Lucas, who had come into the restaurant to keep his appointment with the woman, seized Melton by the arm and led him over to the other table.

"Mary," said he to the elderly woman, "this is Mr. Melton, who came out with Lowry that night. Melton, I'm going to tell you this: 'You've met Miss Caldwell."

The girl's face was one fiery blush, and she seemed ready to cry.

"Well, sir," said the superintendent, without pity. "She met me that evening you were out there and told me that the most interesting patient she had met was that Mr. Melton. She said you seemed to be all right until you started to talk about lumber."

"I'll never speak to you again," said Miss Caldwell, decisively.

"And, by the way," continued Mr. Lucas, "she says you asked her if she was engaged."

"Really, I must apologize," said Melton, a great light breaking in upon him. "I wouldn't have talked that way only I thought—well, you didn't say—I supposed she was one—"

"What!" exclaimed the girl.

Mr. Lucas roared and poor Melton collapsed. Then there was a general understanding. They insisted that he take luncheon with them and he did so, devoting the entire time to a labored explanation.—Chicago Record.

Too Bad.

A prominent Washington physician who owns a cranberry meadow on Cape Cod was entertaining an English cousin some years ago, says the Post of that city. One night at dinner cranberry sauce was on the table. The Englishman was delighted with it. Indeed, he expressed his pleasure so much and so often that after he had returned to London the doctor sent him over a barrel of fine Cape Cod cranberries. A month or so passed, and then came a letter from the Englishman. "My Dear Mr. So-and so," it said, "it was awfully good of you to send me those berries, and I thank you. Unfortunately, they all soured on the way over."—Youth's Companion.

A big wash looks discouraging.

But when you have the right weapon to attack the great stack of soiled clothes with, the battle is half won already.

is the weapon to use. It will make that big wash look like a pile of driven snow.

All the sheets and blankets as well as the delicate fabrics will be saved by Sunlight Soap, and there won't be any tearing or ripping, because you don't have to rub.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redying. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

The Departing Prelate Given a Reception by the Catholic Club of New York.

New York, Oct. 15.—A reception was tendered Cardinal Satolli at the Catholic club last night. There were scores of Catholic priests present from all over the diocese, and laymen eminent in all walks of life were to be seen in great numbers. President Daly read an address to the prelate, which was in part as follows: "The members of the Catholic club, feeling in a special manner the great regret of the community at the approaching departure of your eminence from America, after laying down the office of delegate apostolic to the United States, beg leave to wish you a safe and prosperous journey home, long life and happiness. We deem it at this time as not improper for us to testify to the general admiration felt for the perfect comprehension of the government and institutions of the United States displayed by your eminence, and for your appreciation of the character of the American people, their citizenship, patriotism and love of justice and truth, and we feel sure that your written and spoken words expressive of your feeling towards this country will be treasured in lasting and loving remembrance." Cardinal Satolli smiled as the address was being read and joined in the applause that followed its finish. He made a short and appropriate reply and closed by saying: "Were I to endeavor to carry away with me in a material way my affections for America, the high esteem and kindly feelings I entertain for American institutions, the admiration I feel for the church of this country, so great, so glorious, so progressive, I am sure I would have to press into service another steamer larger than the Kaiser Wilhelm which is to bear me away."

BIG CIGARETTE SYNDICATE.

All of the Patents of the National Tobacco Company Sold To Foreigners.

New York, Oct. 15.—The National Cigarette and Tobacco company, the chief competitor of the tobacco trust in this country, has sold its foreign patent rights to an English syndicate known as the Harrod-Stores company, which has organized the Baron Cigarette Machine company, limited, with headquarters in London. The new company has a capital of $600,000 of which $500,000 has been paid in to the National Cigarette and Tobacco company, $300,000 being paid in cash and the balance in stock. The remaining $100,000 is the working capital. The object of the company in purchasing the patents issued to the National Cigarette and Tobacco company for its cigarette manufacturing machine and other appliances in all the countries of the world outside of the United States is to form stock companies in the different countries to sell these machines. The aggregate capital of these subsidary companies is estimated at several million pounds sterling.

JUDICIARY INVOLVED

Famous Slack-Perrine Case Now Promises a New Sensation.

SINGULAR AND IMPORTANT FEATURES

The Long Drawn Out Contest for the Custody of Two Children Brings the U. S. Supreme Court and District Court at Washington into Conflict.

Washington, Oct. 15.—The somewhat famous case of Slack vs. Perrine, involving the custody of the children of Mrs. Slack, promises to develop a sensation along new lines, a controversy between the supreme court of the United States and the courts of the District of Columbia over the question of jurisdiction. The case possesses many singular and interesting features, and one very important question is wrapped up in its disposition. Mr. and Mrs. Slack, who were residents of the District of Columbia, separated. Mr. Slack died while visiting his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Perrine, in New Jersey. By his will, probated in the district, he confided the custody of his children, two little girls, to his sister, Mrs. Perrine. Mrs. Slack instituted procedings in the New Jersey courts to obtain possession of her daughters and a judgment in her favor was rendered by Vice-Chancellor Bird, whose decision was afterwards set aside by the chancellor, on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction. Afterwards, Mrs. Slack renewd her efforts, this time in the District of Columbia, to get possession of the children, two actions being instituted against the Perrines—one for injunction and the other for writ of habeas corpus. Early in June, the district court of appeals, by a majority opinion, decided that Mrs. Slack was entitled to the custody of the little girls, and subsequently an order was granted by the two associate justices of the supreme court, a majority of the bench, directing the judge of the lower court in which the habeas corpus proceedings had been begun to issue an order giving Mrs. Slack the custody of the children. In the meantime, however, and after the court of appeals had made a decision in favor of Mrs. Slack, the Perrines had prayed for a writ of error to carry the case to the supreme court of the United States, and it had been granted by Chief Justice Alvey of the court of appeals, the Perrines signing a bond in the sum of $10,000, which, it was claimed, acted as a writ of supersedeas. Now counsel for the Perrines have applied to the supreme court of the United States for a writ of supercedeas directed to the district courts which have engaged in the matter for the purpose of annulling the order of the lower court of the district and the order of the associate justices of the court of appeals, on the ground that their action subsequent to the issue of the writ of error was in violation of the laws, and in derogation of the dignity and rights of the supreme court of the United States, as, by the issue of that writ, it alone obtained jurisdiction of the case. The will of Mr. Slack, by which he made his sister testamentary guardian of the children, was the subject of debate in congress, in which Senator Hale remarked that if the laws of the District of Columbia permitted a man to take his children out of the custody of their mother, by will, it was time the laws were changed. A bill to effect such a reformation in the statutes was introduced in congress.

Canadian Caledonians Bolt.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—The Caledonian society of this city at a meeting passed a resolution withdrawing from the North American United Caledonian association. The officers say this action was because the society was not deriving any benefit from the connection with the American association.

Hartford, Oct. 15.—Richard H. Condon of Unionville, who was nominated by the silver democrats of the Fourth district for state senator, will not run. It is not probable that another senatorial convention will be held to fill the vacancy.

PUNTS AND KICKS.

Ernest Rapalje, formerly of the Plainfield High School, is now playing an excellent game at full back on the Rutgers 'varsity team.

The Y. M. C. A. team will meet again tomorrow night for practice. Every player that wishes to play on Saturday is requested to be present.

Louis Darling has recovered from the effects of his accident in the game with the San Remo team and will again be seen behind the line on Saturday.

The Y. M. C. A. football team met for practice last night. The members of the team showed their devotion to the cause by turning out and playing in the rain while the field was an immense mud puddle.

Harry Lovell will be unable to play on the Y. M. C. A. team Saturday as he will be out of town. He will return in time for the Westfield game, however, and is expected to creditably fill the position of tackle in that game.

One of the team that put up such a good game for the Y. M. C. A. last year will play his first game this season against Westfield on the 24th. It is George Schoonmaker and his absense from the gridiron this year has been from business reasons. He will probably play on one end the line.

Captain Phillips, of the Alis football team, is disgusted and, in truth, he has a right to be. Long and earnestly has the team practiced for Saturday's game with the Scotch Plains eleven, and now the captain of the latter team writes that they will be unable to play before the twenty-fourth of this month. It is supposed that the Scotch Plains boys have realized the necessity of team work and are going to practice it during the intervening time. Captain Phillips is now trying to arrange a game with the Metuchen eleven for Saturday.

The annual football game between the U. S. Naval Academy and the Elizabeth Athletic Club which was originally scheduled to be played at Annapolis, Md., next Saturday, has been postponed. The Elizabeths, however, will meet the strong team of Pennington Seminary on the Elizabeth Oval in their stead. Pennington claims to have the strongest team that has ever represented the Seminary this season and Elizabeth will in consequence have out her strongest team. Pennington tried to arrange a game with the Plainfield team but no date, satisfactory to both, could be agreed upon.

There was no better baseball team in this part of New Jersey than the Woodbridge Browns. Now, the same Brown brothers, that were the mainstay of the Woodbridge nine, are playing football and they are as good at that game as at the other. Three of them are now on the eleven of the Rahway Athletic Club that plays here Saturday with the Y. M. C. A. Each one of these wonderful brothers weigh over two hundred pounds and are six feet high or over, and together they will make a wonderful center trio. With such a center to buck against the Plainfield boys are not likely to make large gains in that direction.

Interest runs high in this city and Westfield as to the result of the first game between the elevens from these two places which is to be played here on Saturday afternoon, October 24. The players themselves are anxious as to the result and the game promises to be one of the hardest fought battles that has ever been seen on the gridiron in this city for a long time. A very good chance to compare the two teams will be given on Saturday when Westfield plays the San Remo team of New York which was defeated two weeks ago by the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team. The score was only 4 to 2 and, if Westfield is equal in strength to Plainfield, then the result next Saturday should be close. A party of football enthusiasts from this city, including one or two from the teams will go to Westfield, Saturday, to see what kind of a game Westfield is playing.

Every year there comes a wail from the large colleges, one after another, that the football team of that college is going to be very weak, much more so than usual. This year is no exception. Princeton enthusiasm is at a low ebb at present, while the Yale men are claiming to be downhearted about the chances of their team. Princeton really seems to have some cause for her sorrow, as many of the best men have, for various reasons, decided not to play this year. Cornell's outlook is very bright, however, and that plucky New York team seems to be playing a great game already. Pennsylvania will still have one of the foremost elevens if present prospects point toward the truth. It is too early to compare the teams as yet, but of all, Cornell seems to show the most improvement; the Yale men play well at practice but, as last Saturday's game showed, their playing in a game is not up to the standard.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR MEET.

Annual Report Shows a Loss in Membership During the Year.

The annual session of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey of the Knights of Honor was held yesterday in Masonic Temple, at Elizabeth. Delegates were present from all parts of the State. The reports of the officers showed a loss in the membership during the last year, due to an increase in the number of assessments for death claims.

After the transaction of routine business the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Grand Dictator, L. F. Burke, of Paterson; Vice Grand Dictator, Gottfried Jothe, of Newark; Assistant Grand Dictator, T. W. Monk, of Bloomfield; Grand Chaplain, J. Asche, of Newark.

Branching Out.

It is interesting to notice the enterprise shown by Plainfield business men. This comment is induced by a recent visit to the store of Curtis M. Thorpe, the mantel dealer, when in answer to the inquiry as to the condition of business he referred to a few recent orders for mantels and fireplace goods from out of town places. The list only went back a few days, yet it included Asbury Park, Lakewood, Bound Brook, Dunellen, Rahway, Metuchen, New Brunswick, Cranford Westfield, New Providence, Chatham, Summit, New Dorp, S. I., and Yonkers-on-the-Hudson. Mr. Thorpe is also engaged in tiling bath rooms in Elizabeth and New Brunswick. At the latter place he has an order for tiling windows in a large shoe store. This is a feature which is not to be seen in Plainfield. Mr. Shotwell, the traveling salesman, is evidently a hustler. Mr. Thorpe also reports that his Plainfield trade is growing nicely. The only thing he wants to see is more building.

Cutting Down the Grade.

The sidewalk and curbing on West Fifth street between Park and Arlington avenues is being cut down to grade. It has been necessary to cut down several large trees which do not conform with the grade. Wm. Hand has charge of the work. Division street, between Seventh and Sixth streets, has also been cut down to grade and that street, which was fomerly one vast mud puddle at every rain, is now in good condition. Mr. Hand did the work for D. W. Pond who lives at the corner of Division street and West Seventh street.

A Welcome Change.

The recent change that J. Linn Edsall has made in the lowering of prices of goods throughout the entire store, is a most welcome one and is being taken advantage of by the people of Plainfield and surrounding towns in great numbers. The popularity of the movement is shown in the large increase of daily sales, and Mr. Edsall says that the encouragement he has already received inspires him to go on with the change, even to the cutting to still lower prices in the future.

ARGUMENTS MADE; QUESTIONS ASKED.

Considerabld Interest is Shown at Gold Standard Meetings.

D. O. TIFFANY OPPOSES FREE SILVER.

The Remarks Followed by a Lot of Questions in Which the Enquirers Seek to Tangle Up the Gold Leaders—The Meeting Finally Summarily Closed.

The interest on the part of all political classes in the gold standard Democratic meetings, being held in the West End, seems to grow very rapidly. The attendance at the meeting last evening was exceedingly large and the interest shown was clearly evinced by the discussion of various political questions. Dexter O. Tiffany was the speaker and he was introduced by President Atterbury. Mr. Tiffany's remarks were in substance as follows:

"So serious do I consider this money question that I deem it the duty of every citizen to vote intelligently and for the best interest of the country and himself. Every man present is in the same boat and what affects one affects all. This silver nut is a hard one to crack, and the free, unlimited coinage of silver means dishonor to the country. Bryan wants to pass a law which will allow me to take 53 cents worth of silver to the mint and have it coined into dollars and pay them out if anyone is so foolish to accept them. Suppose the United States should purchase an amount of clay equal to 100,000 bricks and stamp each brick one dollar, and the Government should stand pledged to redeem each one in gold. People would accept the bricks, knowing full well that the Government could and would keep its promise. But on the other hand suppose a law was passed allowing everybody to bring their clay to the Government and have it made into bricks and have them stamped into dollars. You know that the Government could not, neither would it, stand pledged to redeem each one in gold. It would debase the currency and so it is regarding silver. I am not trying to raise a scare, but this is a question which affects each one of us. The silver dog wags his tail and says 'Come here and I will give you more money.' Bryan has not told us how we will get more money. The silver mine owner will get it all. Why don't Bryan offer to make dollars out of pennies? You might just as well call sparrows hens. About the only way left for you and m self to get money is to earn it by working for it. High prices means hard times, and the free coinage of silver will knock the dollar out of about one-half its face value. It is only recently that we have learned to understand the silver question. The only people who knew the story well was the silver mine owners, of whom there are about twenty five, formed into a most infamous ring. When silver became abundant the price fell, and it has been falling rapidly every since. Then the mine owners started a cry that it it was more money the country needed. They told us that our pockets would be full of silver, and the demagogues and politicians have taken up the cry and have led people to believe that their theory is correct. Since the Chicago convention people have been looking into the matter and making a study of it. Ex-President Harrison, Republican, and Carlisle, Democrat, were both at one time strong silver men, but now they are against the policy tooth and nail, for they know it is a bad thing. I cannot think or believe that Bryan and his followers are sincere, and the best reason for it is that the policy is dead wrong. Today we owe England money and if we should pay her what we owe in fifty-three cent dollars it would not be honorable. The question is whether we will maintain our honor or let it go down and, like Esau, sell our birthright for a mess of pottage."

At the conclusion of Mr. Tiffany's address those present were thoroughly aroused and filled with all sorts of questions which they asked. Mr. Atterbury took charge and announced that he was ready to answer the questions.

One young man, who has previously sought information at the meetings, had an idea that National banks were making good profit from notes which they issued. Mr. Atterbury explained the matter by stating that there was very little profit in issuing notes, and that most banks were not issuing them. Another man tried to explain how banks were making forty-two per cent. a year on one dollar. His idea was that a depositor would place his dollar in a bank and the banks would invest the dollar for two weeks at a time at different places and draw their percentage at the termination of

MR. POLLAK WILL ACCEPT.

Sound Money Democrats of Union County Name a Summit-Man For Senator.

Gustave Pollak, of Summit, will be the National Democracy's candidate for State Senator. James Clark, of Plainfield, was nominated Tuesday night at a meeting but only on condition that Mr. Pollak would not consent to run. A telegram was sent the latter last night from the meeting by Comptroller Carlton, who is engineering the sound money movement in Union county. No answer was received until after the meeting adjourned. Late last night a reply came from him stating he would accept the nomination.

Mr. Pollak is a well known editorial writer on The Evening Post.

The meeting also indorsed Franklin Noyes, of Orange, for Congress. Following is the ticket placed in nomination yesterday: For Senator, Gustav Pollak, of Summit; for Assembly, Aaron W. Rand and Howard C. Tracy, of Plainfield, and Louis B. Bonnett, of Elizabeth; for Sheriff, Miller F. Moore, of Roselle.

Mr. Moore is senior member of the firm of Samuel L. Moore's Sons, the builders of the cruiser Bancroft, and is an Alderman in Roselle.

REPORTS SHOW PROSPERITY.

Junior American Mechanics' Funeral Benefit Association Elects Officers.

At the annual session Junior Order United American Mechanics' Funeral Benefit Association, held in Trenton Tuesday afternoon, gratifying reports were read.

On October 1, 1895, there were 169 councils and 16,299 belonging to the association. On October 1, 1896, there were 189 councils and 19,370 members—a gain of 22 councils and 3,071 members.

During the year 10[illegible] claims were paid by fifteen assessments, the amount paid being $25,[illegible]50. The ratio of deaths to membership is one to one hundred and seventy-eight, which is considered an excellent showing.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of the following: President, Rev. J. Morgan Read, of Good Will Council, No. 32, of New Brunswick; vice-president, P. Hall Packer, of Ashland Council, No. 20, of Seabright; secretary, William N. Grany, of Onward Council, No. 98, of Red Bank; directors, George H. Poulson, of Trenton; Howard S. Morris, of Newark; William H Fischer, of Tom's River; John D. Anderson, of Plainfield; Auditing Committee, J. Fren Long, of Elizabeth; Edward H. Senior, of Newark, and Lewis Lewis, of Raritan.

AN AUTUMN ENGAGEMENT.

A Plainfield Belle to Marry a Brooklyn Young Man.

Another autumn engagement is that of Miss Martha May Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wright, of Plainfield, N. J., and Frederick Kelsey Rupprecht, of this city. Miss Wright is well known in Brooklyn, having lived for many years with an uncle in Gates avenue, during which time she attended the Packer Institute. On the occasion of her graduation in the class of '94 Miss Wright was one of the honor girls, her essay at commencement, an exceptionally bright and entertaining paper, eliciting much favorable comment from the faculty and board of trustees. Besides her cleverness, she is possessed of an unusual share of beauty, and her perfect lack of self consciousness is one of her greatest charms. Miss Wright recently returned from a trip abroad, and is at present visiting friends on the Hudson. She intends to spend a part of the winter in Brooklyn, and it is quite possible that her marriage will take place in this city, although no date has been fixed.—Brooklyn Life.

NOW PROPERLY OFFICERED.

High School Cadets Organize for the Winter Season.

Plainfield's only military organization at present is the High School Cadet Corps. That company has now reached a firm basis and is now ready to go ahead. A number of new recruits have joined the ranks since school opened and the membership list reaches nearly to forty-five There was some delay in selecting the officers, as it was necessary to see who were best qualified for the positions. The commissioned officers were chosen several weeks ago, but at the drill held yesterday afternoon, the roster was completed.

The officers are now as follows: Captain, George Proctor Smith; first lieutenant, Sydney R. Titsworth; second lieutenant, Henry W. Brower; first sergeant, Arthur W. Lederer; quartermaster sergeant, Charles Noble; second sergeant, William A. DeLong; third sergeant, Lindley R. Hillman; first corporal, Bryant G. Harman; second corporal, Royal T. Phillips.

SHE WAS BOUND TO HAVE THE BOY.

Mrs. Brennan Took Her Grandson From His Father's Home.

THEN SHE REFUSED TO GIVE HIM UP.

Met the Father and the Constables at Her Door With a Defiant Spirit and a Stove Poker—A Two Hours Wrangle Before the Boy Was Finally Rescued.

With a defiant spirit and a stove poker in her hand, Mrs. Brennan, of Dunellen, last night made John Shirley, her son-in-law, aided by two constables, fight for two hours to gain possession of three-year-old John Henry Shirley, whom she had unceremoniously taken from his father's home at 311 Plainfield avenue, in this city, a few hours before.

The child was in charge of Mr. Shirley's sister, Mrs. Eggleton, who keeps house for him. About three years ago the boy's mother died, and from that time until within a few months past the boy was cared for by Mrs. Brennan, his grandmother, the father going to Dunellen every Sunday to see him. During this time Mr. Shirley learned certain things which led him to believe that his boy was not receiving the care he should. Mrs. Eggleton at that time was living at New Rochelle, and occasionally journeyed to Dunellen with clothing for the boy. In making these visits she noticed that the general appearance of the boy was not good and it evidently showed that he was neglected. However, when the father called the boy always presented a clean appearance and wore good clothes. As time went on Mr. Shirley naturally felt as though he would like to have the child with him where he could see him often. Accordingly, he persuaded his his sister, Mrs. Eggleton, to come to Plainfield a few months ago and keep his house for him and his son. She consented, and the boy was brought to this city, where he has been living until yesterday. When the child was taken away from Mrs. Brennan she objected seriously and claimed that she was nearer to the child than the father.

However, everything was all right until yesterday, when Mrs. Brennan came to Plainfield and demanded the child. She met Mrs. Eggleton and told her that she had come for the boy and was going to have him no matter what happened. Mrs. Eggleton remonstrated with the grandmother and said that the boy had been ill for some time and was in no condition to be taken away. But Mrs. Brennan was not to be baffled in her efforts, and hastily snatching the child from Mrs. Eggleton and throwing her cape around him, she took him from the house. She quickly boarded a street car and went to her home at Dunellen. Mrs. Eggleton was too disconcerted to interfere at the moment, but afterward hastened to the Potter Press Works and informed her brother of what had happened. In the meantime Chief Grant was told of the affair and he suggested that the husband go to Dunellen with an officer and get his child. When Mr. Shirley stopped work at 6 o'clock he went to Dunellen. When he reached there he obtained the services of a constable and the two went to Mrs. Brennan's home. They made known their errand and were given a lively reception, for Mrs. Brennan, aided by a stove poker, kept the two from entering the house. Finally another constable was obtained, and the three went back for the child. In spite of the fact that they had the necessary papers to claim the boy, Mrs. Brennan made strong efforts to keep him. She made all sorts of threats and for awhile there was a lively time. After two hours hard work Mr. Shirley got his boy and took him home. Mrs. Brennan says that she is going to have the boy and that nothing can stop her.

Mr. Shirley has been advised to have Mrs. Brennan put under bonds to keep the peace, but he does not feel like doing so. If she insists on making trouble he will have to pursue that course.

Plainfield Women Elected

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Synodical Home Mission Society of the Presbyterian church, held at Paterson yesterday, Mrs. Honeyman, wife of Rev. W. E. Honeyman, of Lincoln place, was elected president for the ensuing year, and Miss Josephine Petrie was elected corresponding secretary and Mrs. J. H. Manning, treasurer.

BUFFETING ABOUT ON HYMEN'S WAVES.

Stormy Voyage of Mr. and Mrs. Luccio on the Matrimonial Sea.

GIRL WIFE WITH SWARTHY LOVER.

Left Her Parents Home to Go to That of Her Aunt, but She Was Afterward Seen With Luccio and is Supposed to be Living With Him at the Present Time.

Developments in the married life of Ernesti Luccio and his fifteen-year-old bride, Louisa Giles, follow each other with startling rapidity. Yesterday morning, Louisa was at her parents home on Lake street, almost a prisoner. Now she has gone, her family know not where, but everything points to the fact that the young couple are at last united, after passing through more difficulties and troubles than few newly married people are called on to experience.

Yesterday afternoon, Louisa Giles left her home ostensibly to visit her aunt. Several of the neighbors saw her walking with her husband soon after, and her cousins living on Columbia avenue, a little thoroughfare running parallel to North avenue between Terrill road and Leland avenue, saw her walking along North avenue in the direction of the Italian shanties, side by side with her swarthy complexioned husband. That they went to the hut where the natives of sunny Italy spend their nights is only a matter of conjecture, but it is certain that the child wife has left her home and Mr. and Mrs. Luccio are together once more.

A Daily Press reporter visited the Giles home this morning to learn, if possible, the whereabouts of the recreant daughter. Mrs. Giles said that the girl's aunt, Mrs. Pangborn, who lives on the Rahway road, was ill and had sent down yesterday to know if Louisa might come up and spend the day and assist in the housework. She went yesterday morning and had not yet returned, so Mrs. Giles said. She supposed Louisa had decided to remain over night. When the reporter asked if Mrs. Giles thought that Louisa had joined her husband, she replied that she did not, but still it might have happened.

"Shall you try to get her back if she has joined him?" asked the reporter

"I don't think I could," said Mrs. Giles. "I'll see what her father says." After a short conference with the father Mrs. Giles returned.

"If she has gone off with that Italian again, we shall disown her. She shall have nothing more to do with us or the children. She shall never come back here."

The reporter then went to the home of Mrs. Pangborn to find that though they had expected her yesterday, she never came. On learning that her interviewer was a newspaper man, Mrs. Pangborn's daughter said that she did not think Louisa had gone away with her Italian husband, but was probably visiting an aunt, Mrs. Hoagland, at Bound Brook, waiting for the excitement to blow over.

At the home of Mrs. Staats, of Columbia avenue, the reporter learned that Louisa and her husband had been seen yesterday afternoon going in the direction of the Italian shanties.

Connect With Sewers.

Property owners are required by chapter 203 of laws of 1896, to connect with sewers. This fact is not generally known, and a fine of twenty-five dollars is imposed for failure after thirty days notice, and ten dollars per day afterwards. Connections to the sewerage system have been made very rapidly and now is the time that all connections should be made before cold weather. Property owners will understand that it is to their advantage to make these connections so as to do away with the trouble and expense of cesspools, and good citizens should not wait to be compelled by the Board of Health to make such connections. The Board of Health will soon pass the ordinance regulating such such connections.

Kirk Strong in Rahway.

The political indications in Rahway are stronger than ever that William T. Kirk, of Plainfield, will have the support for Sheriff of the solid Republican delegation from that city, says the Newark News. It is also reported there that the delegates from all the townships, with the possible exception of Union, will be in line for the Plainfield man. Should this prove to be so, it would be sufficient to nominate him, with two votes to spare.

WILL CIRCLE THE GLOBE.

William Reyman Had Covered 20,000 Miles When He Stopped Here Today.

For three years has William Reyman lived almost entirely on his wheel and during that time he has covered 20,000 miles. This morning he called at the Daily Press office—a picturesque figure, indeed, with his odd chinese green straw hat of unique design and his solid tired bicycle nearly covered with strange shaped bundles and packages. He was on his way back to New York after riding all through the south and southwest. From New York, he expects to sail to England and then start on a tour around the world awheel.

He is a traveling mechanic from Maryland and, at present, he is riding for no particular wheel, but he hopes that the record for long distance riding he is making for himself will secure a position for him with one of the large companies.

The wheel that he rides is a strange-looking object. It is a solid tire machine and the spokes are strengthened with wires running around the wheel. He carries on it a camping outfit, his bag of tools and repair kit, with which he plies his trade. The bicycle and equipment weighs altogether eighty pounds. Reyman himself weighs 180 pounds and is about five feet, eight inches in height. His wheel is only geared to 53.

Last night he was at New Brunswick, where he was entertained by the Brunswick Cycle Company. From Plainfield he went to Elizabeth.

WOULD PAY BY MARRYING.

Dick Carvell Not Willing to Make Good a Promise Made Sometime Ago.

The case of the State against Richard Carvell, charging that money was obtained under false pretenses, was tried before Justice Mosher this morning. The plaintiff, Miss Lucy Williams, claimed that from time to time Carvell obtained money from her on the promise that he would marry her. On the above promise she had given him $100. The defendant claimed that the plaintiff had let him have the money on the promise to pay it back. He did not contradict the statement that he promised to marry the plaintiff.

The case was very warmly contested by Lawyers Runyon and Swackhamer for the plaintiff and Lawyer Hetfield for the defendant, after which Judge Mosher reserved his decision until Monday.

Dizziness Caused His Death.

Charles Haskard, 50 years old, a painter, who lived in Newark, was killed yesterday afternoon by falling from a scaffold while painting the house of Sydney Ward, at No. 28 Hawthorne avenue, East Orange. Haskard was at work with other painters, near the roof of the building, when he was seized with a fit of dizziness, and before the other workmen could go to his rescue he tumbled from the scaffold to the street striking on his head. His head was crushed in. Mr. Haskard is a brother of Mrs. Wm. Addis, of Orange street, this city, and well-known here. He leaves a wife and four married children. The funeral will be held from his late home on Chestnut street, Newark, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

An Evening of Dance.

A large gathering was present in Red Men's Hall last evening when Martha Washington Council, No. 23, D. of A., gave their first reception. The evening was pleasantly passed in dancing, the music for which was furnished by A. Naylor. Precisely at 12 o'clock refreshments were served by the lady members of the council, and dancing was again resumed until early morning. The following is the committee who spared no pains in making a delightful evening for those who were present: Mrs. I. F. Riker, Mrs. Randolph, Mrs. J. B. Higgins, Mrs. Angleman and Messrs. William Hartpence, Benjamin Webster and Fred Leland.

Lovers of Football.

Lovers of football should not miss the game at the Y. M. C. A. grounds tomorrow afternoon. The visitors are the team from Rahway Athletic Club and they expect to make the Y. M. C. A. boys of this city do some hustling. The game will begin at four o'clock. Admission to the grounds will be twenty-five cents. The Y. M. C. A. team will probably line up as follows: Ends, Peck and Serrell; tackle, McClure and Titsworth; guards, Brown and Milne; centre, Cuming; quarter back, Waring; half backs, Freeman and Dupee; full back, Darling.

Many lives of usefulness have been cut short by neglect to break up an ordinary cold. Pneumonia, bronchitis and even consumption can be averted by the prompt use of One Minute Cough Cure. L. W. Randolph, 144 West Fron street.

JUSTICE'S TEMPLE FILLED WITH DIRT.

Jurors Complain of the Condition of the City Court Room.

CLAIM THAT IT IS TOO FILTHY.

Wads and Butts of Tobacco, Waste Paper and New Jersey Real Estate Find a Permanent Resting Place There—The Board of Health Notified

This city is in trouble Yesterday afternoon twelve of her citizens made a complaint against her and now the Board of Health will be called to act in the case. The cause of all the trouble is the city court room in the Serrell building on West Front street, and these citizens have decided that it is a disgrace to the town and a menace to the health of the other citizens that are called to congregate there.

Yesterday afternoon, a Sheriff's jury, composed of Vincent W. Nash, foreman; William Addis, D. W. Littell, Charles H. Hand, C. V. D. Corle, Jeremiah Cash, Charles W. Runyon, Wallace V. Miller, George Whitlock, Eugene A. Leine, David Smalley and Ed. Bowman met in the city court room to consider the sanity of Mrs. Anna P. Thorn. They found the room in a deplorable condition, so they state. Everything was dusty while Jersey mud of the finest quality was to be found wherever human foot could reach, and there was plenty of it, too. According to their account, they found cigar and cigarette butts in every corner while scraps of paper littered the floor. There was a musty odor about that dingy room that did not please the visitors and they remarked on the fact. One of them compared its appearance to that of a bar room that had not been swept for a month, and thought that it must have been nearly thirty days or even thirty years since the courtroom had seen a good cleaning.

When the jury had completed its labors, the jurors again discussed the condition of the courtroom and finally decided that it was their duty as true citizens of Plainfield to complain of its condition which was, in their opinion, exceedingly detrimental to health. The formal complaint was drawn up and Mr. Littell chosen a committee of one to present the matter to the Plainfield Board of Health.

George W. Rockfellow, president of the Board, was one of the commissioners in the case, and he was told of the complaint. He took the matter as a joke at first, but the others informed him that it was no joking matter and that they were thoroughly in earnest.

It might be said that within the last week the courtroom has been used almost daily and each time a large audience was present. The recent storm caused muddy boots and shoes and hence the unusual amount of Jersey real estate deposited on the floor.

A Daily Press reporter saw Mr. Rockfellow, president of the Board, this morning and found him still inclined to take matter as a huge joke. He tried to laugh off the inquiries of the reporter, but finally admitted that such a complaint had been made. To carry the joke further, he said that he was going to write a letter to Mayor Gilbert stating that a complaint had been made, and requesting that the city have the courtroom cleaned at once. That, he thought, would have the desired effect. At present, he said, the room was in a very filthy condition.

City Judge DeMeza had not heard of the affair until a Daily Press reporter interviewed him this morning. It is the custom of the present City Judge, and was the custom of his predecessors, to allow the local justices to try their most important cases in the city courtroom and it has been used quite often. Usually, Judge De Meza has a woman come and clean the room out every week. He visited the courtroom this morning in company with the reporter and agreed that it was in a very bad condition. He accounted for it by the fact that a trial of some kind has been held there nearly every day this week. The room, he said, was cleared out last week for the usual Saturday morning session. None of the justices who try their cases there, he said, ever offered to clean the room. Everybody seems to regard the room as public property and despite the efforts of Judge De Meza's clerks to keep it locked up and in order, the doors have been forced and the fastening smashed several times, while other occupants of the building, so the Judge states, leave their ashes and refuse in the hall by the courtroom door.

HAD MANY VICTIMS

Banker Cole's Stealings Said Be Over Half a Million.

WAS ARRESTED AFTER TWO YEARS

His Former Partner, Who Is Now a Laborer, Tells How the Bank in Canal Street in New York City Was Ruined.

New York Oct. 16.—The arrest yesterday at the Broad street depot in Philadelphia of Adolphus Cohen Cole will cause great surprise and much rejoicing to the numerous victims who patronized his defunct Canal street bank. It is alleged that Cole stole fully $500,000 and his alleged perfidity extended through all the little towns in New York and Pennsylvania coal regions, as well as many of the Italian bankers in Philadelphia. All the little fruit sellers lost their deposits in the crash, as well as those outside of New York, who had collateral dealings with Coles & Morrelli. Greble Youngson of New York lost $9,000 in cash and later failed for $100,000; Felix Boofen & Co. of Hazleton, Pa., was compelled to assign for $60,000. The other heavy failures caused by the absconding of Coles were Angelo Deminto, $10,000; M. Lamy, $20,000; P. Polonius, $40,000; Felix Bendillo, $90,000, all of New York, and Frank Desanto of Bridgeport, Conn., $50,000. Morrelli, Cole's former partner, did all he could to make good the loss, but he could only raise $95,000, and this he paid to the creditors, and he is now a laboring man.

How His Arrest Came About.

Through Interpreter de Mayo, former Banker Morrelli made this statement in Philadelphia last night: "Coles and myself had been in the banking business on Canal street in New York for almost two years and no idea of anything wrong concerning him ever occurred to me, and as we were doing a good business with our depositors and correspondents in the towns outside of New York, things began to look very promising for us. He was a shrewd man of business and the smaller merchants of New York had as much confidence in him as I had. It was on the eve of Christmas, 1894, that I last saw him. On the next banking day I went to our place of business, and was so completely shocked on the discovery I made that I was almost tempted to take my life. All the safes were empty of cash and negotiable securities, and the bank was wrecked. The amount missing was a little over a half million dollars. Soon the truth dawned upon me, and then I believed that my partner had become an embezzler. As soon as possible I placed the matter in the hands of the proper officials, and was greatly grieved when I learned that he had sailed for his native home, Italy. So, when I saw him on Ninth street to-day I was very much astonished at seeing him and followed him to the depot, where I supposed he was going to take a train, and get away from me again. My friends have helped me, and I succeeded in helping to have him placed under arrest."

His Plan of Action.

Coles' plan was to go to the small Italian bankers who could not afford to keep correspondents on the other side and offer to send drafts on his correspondents at a very low commission. When the drafts were presented for payment in Italy they were returned as invalid. The money which had been given Coles for the drafts he spent in fast living. When his clients complained to him about the non-payment of their drafts he would tell them that there had been some mistake, which he would at once remedy. In this manner he managed to avoid suspicion for about a year, and the bankers of Mulberry street were greatly surprised when they learned that he had absconded, not having for one moment doubted his honesty. Several of the bankers who had been taken in by Coles managed to get their money by seizing some property which he owned in Rome, Italy, but the majority of them lost every cent.

An American Fishing Tug's Nets Seized.

St. Thomas, Ont., Oct. 16.—The Dominion government's cruiser Petrel, Capt. Dunn, discovered a tug in the act of setting nets within the prescribed limits near Port Stanley yesterday and immediately made for her. The captain of the tug espied the cruiser and tried to escape, but the latter was too speedy for her and overhauled the tug after a short chase. The tug proved to be the Edna Goodill of Erie, N. Y. Capt. Dunn of the Petrel, after searching the tug, allowed her to go. The Petrel then returned to where the nets were set and picked them up. There were 105 nets in all.

He will not sever his connection with Yale, but will have classes at the New York institution four times a week.

Big Steel Works in Full Blast.

Pittsburg, Oct. 16.—The Edgar Thompson Steel works has resumed work in all its departments, after a two weeks' shut-down. The present order is from the Japanese government and is for 10,000 tons of steel rails. The Carnegie companies at Duquesne and Homestead are again in full blast.

Washington, Oct. 16.—After a conference with the superintendent of the military academy Secretary Lamont announced that Col. Mills would be continued as commandant of cadets at West Point another year.

BOSTON HIGHBINDERS.

They Now Bring Charges of Attempted Extortion Against Chinese Christians.

Boston, Oct. 16.—Wednesday members of the Chinese Christian union filed charges with the police against the secret order of highbinders in Boston, alleging that a plot had been concocted, which if carried out, would result in the assassination of all the members of the union. To-day there is a denial of the alleged plot on the part of the highbinders, who claim that certain members of the Chinese Christian union demanded $100 from each of the gambling houses and said if it was not paid the police would be communicated with and information furnished which would land all of the gamblers behind the bars. This mixes matters very badly. It has created a sensation in Chinatown such as was never heard of before and it will be a long time before things get quiet again.

YALE'S PROPERTY TO BE TAXED.

College Authorities Will Oppose Payment on an Assessment of $1,000,000.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 16.—The town assessors are now engaged in computing the value of the property of Yale university for the purpose of taxation. This is in accordance with the opinion of the town counsel rendered some months ago. This opinion was that the town had the right under the law to tax the property of the university, not used exclusively for educational purposes. This would include dormitories, gymnasium and the like. The value of the Yale property which the assessors will tax is at present hard to arrive at, but it is believed it will reach $1,000,000, if not more. The college authorities will no doubt oppose paying a tax on this assessment, and litigation over the matter is certain to come.

BIG VERDICT FOR INJURIES.

G. M. Grant Awarded $51,527 Against the N. Y., S. & W. R. R. at Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 16.—The largest verdict ever rendered in a damage suit in New Jersey was given by the jury in the Union county circuit court yesterday. George M. Grant of the Woodstock Lumber company, Jersey City, sued the New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad company to recover damages for injuries received January 31, 1895, at Jersey City. He was leaving his lumber yard with his son and they were run down by an engine. The son was killed. Grant lost an arm in the accident and his brain is affected as a result. He brought suit for $100,000. The jury awarded him $51,527.05. Another suit is to be begun against the company for the killing of the son.

DRANK POISONED TEA.

Several Pittsburg People Seriously Ill, Two of Whom Are Dying.

Pittsburg, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Harriet Walker, aged 60 years, and her daughter Mabel, 26 years old, are dying at their home on South Highland avenue from poisoning. Both made ante-mortem statements, according to which they became ill immediately after drinking tea purchased from a local dealer. The tea was analyzed and found to contain traces of tennate of copper. Another analysis is in progress. Mother and daughter are suffering intensely, and there is no hope of recovery. Several other, but less serious, cases of poisoning have been reported in the neighborhood, in each of which the victims have traced their illness to tea drinking.

New York Board of Charities.

Albany, Oct. 16.—The state board of charities has unanimously appointed Dr. Robert W. Hebberd of New York city as secretary of the board in the place of Edmund Lyon of Rochester, resigned. During the quarter ended September 30, the board's agent caused the removal of seventy-seven alien paupers to their homes in other countries and 341 state paupers to other states from institutions in this state, thus relieving the state of their support.

FIGHTING EDITORS.

Scribes Who Were Always Ready for a Personal Encounter.

In the eighteenth century, says the Gentleman's Magazine, the editor of the Daily Courant was deliciously amused when he wrote: "I will give no comments of my own in this paper, as I assume that other people have sense enough to make reflections for themselves!" Henry Bate, the editor of the Morning Post, never picked his words with care. His savage onslaughts raised smiles in coffee houses and clubs and also brought him face to face with peril. He was composed of stern stuff. He lived up to the motto: "I never apologize. I never retract."

Capt. Stoney, a buck of the time, demanded satisfaction for a very personal paragraph that appeared in Bate's paper, but he got little. "The editor's choice lay between a horsewhipping and a duel, and he chose the duel. The two gentlemen, meeting in the Adelphi tavern, in the Strand, called for a room, shut the door, and, being furnished with pistols, fired at each other without effect. They then drew their swords and continued to fight till the door was burst open by the police." Bate was not the only London editor called upon to use sword and pistol, as well as pen, and at a later date an editor in the north, bravely focusing public opinion on the instigators of a dastardly trade outrage, sat night after night with a revolver on his desk, prepared for a surprise visit.

JUST TOO LATE.

Thought Too Long About Kissing in the Tunnel.

"We are now coming to the tunnel," said the cautious lover, reports the Detroit Free Press, "and according to the foolish tradition of others in love we must kiss each other. I mention it because I did not wish to surprise you."

"Nothing that you could do would surprise me," she said.

"D-o-do you see anyone we know?"

"Not a soul."

"Nor anyone that knows us?"

"No, no."

"I suppose there isn't any sticking plaster on your face?"

"No. Why?"

"It might betray us. I read of a young man like me, who kissed a girl like you when they were going through a tunnel."

"Well, what of it? How slow you are."

"The sticking-plaster was on her face when they went in; when they came out it was on his."

"How lovely. We are nearly through the tunnel."

"Then it must be now or never," said the cautious lover, and the passengers smiled audibly, for the train emerged into the broad daylight just as he saluted his girl with the long-deferred kiss.

COSTLY GAME HEADS.

The Musk Ox the Most Expensive, the Buffalo's Head Next.

The head of the musk ox is the most costly of mounted game heads and next is the head of the bison, or buffalo. Fine buffalo heads, well mounted, bring from $150 to $500. A head at $500, says the New York Sun, would be one exceptionally large and choice; and a fine head can be bought for $250. Fifteen years ago well-mounted buffalo heads could be bought for from $50 to $100. The increase in price is accounted for by the growing scarcity of the buffalo, which has now practically disappeared from the United States. The wood bisons of the Great Slave lake region of British North America, which inhabit woodland or mountain districts, are rather more numerous than the prairie buffaloes of this country, but their numbers are limited and decreasing. The wood bison is not so large as the prairie buffalo, and its hair is straighter, and very black.

Musk ox heads are held at $300 and upward. One musk ox head owned by a taxidermist in this city is valued at $750.

England's First Railroads.

The origin of railways has been traced to a contrivance for simplifying the transit of coal from the English mines to the places of shipment. The invention consists of a double parallel line of wooden beams or trams, fixed to the ground and furnished with flanges to prevent the wheels of the cars from slipping aside. The motive power was furnished by horses. The date at which these roads were first used is set down as between 1602 and 1649.

THE HONEST SHAKERS AND THEIR CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.

The shopkeeper who cheats us by lying with regard to the quality of his goods, and the grocer who gives us short weight, is a thief. However, their knavery touches nothing but our pocketbook. There is another widespread form of misrepresentation of a far more dangerous and villianous character.

We refer to the false statements and worthless guarantees that frequently accompany medicines. To guarantee a medicine to cure is to brand it as a quack product. If we can guarantee to cure disease, then we can guarantee everlasting life, for in a large majority of cases people die of disease, the proportion of violent or accidental deaths being very small.

The Shakers have always been known as a most upright and honorable people, and their success in the manufacture of medicines has also been well known. It is therefore not surprising to find them pursuing a very original and novel plan for the introduction of their remedy for dyspepsia.

God-fearing people whose motto has always been "Try all things and hold fast that which is good," have put upon the market ten cent sample bottles of their product, or sufficient to give it a trial.

The Shaker Digestive Cordial is so prompt in its action that for the trivial sum of ten cents, a person can usually determine as to whether or not it meets the requirements of his case. There are forms of dyspepsia which it won't help, but these are very rare. In most cases the first dose relieves all distress, and an increase of appetite at once follows.

All druggists have it, and the next time you are troubled with indigestion send out and try this popular and successful product. It represents nearly a hundred years of patient investigation and study.

A DEAD-AND-ALIVE CITY.

Cordova Has Little of Its Old-Time Wealth and Power.

From the station we drove through a staring white suburb, past the well-whitewashed walls of the bull-ring, to the Fonde de Oriente. It was early in the afternoon, writes Elizabeth R. Pennell in Century, the sun fierce, the light blinding—the hour when all summer we had been sleeping and dreaming in the Alhambra's halls and the Generalife's gardens. Remembering their loveliness, and hoping for new beauty like it, we could not stay in the dull hotel bedroom, though with its tiled floor it was fairly cool and clean, and we went out into the town. Silence hung over it like a pall. Every winding street in the labyrinth beyond the paseo was empty, not a living creature in sight, only once in awhile a beggar, who rushed from some spot of shade to assail us; all the low, white houses, with their iron-barred windows, were tight shut; the place was abandoned and desolate, its silence unbroken by sound of toil or traffic.

Was this really the Cordova of Musa and Abderrahman, the Cordova once called the Bagdad or Damascus of the west, whose streets were alive with the clang of arms, the pomp of processions, the clatter of students going to and from school, and whose name was a synonym for wealth and power, for culture and industry—the world-famous town with its sentinels and merchants and women doctors? It was as if a plague had fallen suddenly upon the town, and left not one man, woman or child to tell the tale.

A DUST STORM.

An Estimate of the Weight of the Load It Carries.

Blown dust is a general and familiar nuisance to housekeepers over the entire west. A minimum estimate, verified by direct observation, for the quantity of dust settling on floors during such storms, says a writer in Appleton's Popular Science Monthly, is about a fourteenth of an ounce of dust on a surface of a square yard in half a day. A maximum estimate made on the basis of the above newspaper accounts would be at least five pounds to a square yard of surface for a storm lasting 24 hours. If we then suppose that a house is 24 feet wide and 32 feet long, has open crevices which average a sixteenth of an inch in width and have a running length in windows and doors of 150 feet, the wind may be supposed to enter half of these crevices with a velocity of five miles per hour for the time the storm lasts, or for 24 hours. The dust may be supposed to settle on not less than 85 square yards of surface, including floor space and horizontal surfaces of furniture. The minimum estimate, based on these figures, gives us 225 tons of dust to the cubic mile of air. The maximum estimate would be 126,000 tons.

An Offending Postcard.

All sorts of complications have arisen in connection with Italy's new post card. The design of the card is intended to commemorate the union of Rome with Italy and the fall of the temporal power of the pope. Leo XIII. considers the issuing of the card an offense to the church, and in deference to his protests Austria, Spain, Portugal and several of the southern German states have refused to receive it or pass it through their mails. France and Belgium have done the same in a number of instances, and the expostulations have now been addressed by the Italian government to the foreign powers concerned, with claims for compensation made on the ground that the postcard is framed in strict accord with international postal laws.

Good Work of Royalty.

When the queen and Empress Eugenie are together they spend all their spare time in doing needlework for the poor. Both the queen and the ex-empress are fond of the old-fashioned style of embroidery. The queen bestows all her handiwork upon her poor tenants at Balmoral and at Windsor. Empress Eugenie sends hers to poor convents, whence it is distributed to the needy.

RELEASE OF TYNAN

The Alleged Dynamiter Set Free by French Authorities Last Night.

WILL SPEND A FEW DAYS IN PARIS

Speaks in High Terms of the Many Privileges Accorded Him in Prison—His Treatment Commented on by a London Paper.

Boulogne-sur-Mer, Oct. 16.—Patrick J. Tynan, the alleged dynamiter, whose extradition to England was refused by the French government, was released from prison last evening. He will go to Paris in company with two American friends. He says he is satisfied with his treatment while in prison. He was allowed cigars and other luxuries. It is probable that Tynan will not remain in France more than a few days as he is anxious to rejoin his family in America. Tynan refuses to discuss his relations with his alleged fellow conspirators. Bell, now under arrest in London, and Kearney and Haines, who were arrested and subsequently released in Rotterdam. All he will say regarding them is that they had a mission to accomplish and this they have done.

Comment of a London Newspaper.

London, Oct. 16.—The Daily News to-day publishes a dispatch from Boulogne-sur-Mer contrasting the treatment of Tynan with that of a British subject who had fallen into the hands of the French police. The Englishman was conducted handcuffed to the Folkestone boat yesterday by officers and expelled from the country on suspicion that he was an anarchist. He had been confined in prison for ninety-six days, but the authorities were unable to prove anything against him.

ENGLISH RAILROAD OFFICIALS.

General Manager Harrison and Party Dined by Pennsylvania Officials.

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—A luncheon was given yesterday afternoon by the officials of the Pennsylvania railroad to general manager Frederick Harrison and party of the London & Northern Railway company. Mr. Harrison arrived from Washington shortly after noon accompanied by Robert Turnbull, superintendent, and C. A. Barattoni, general passenger agent and freight agent for the English company in America. They were met by Third Vice-president Pugh and several other prominent Pennsylvania officials. After lunch they visited the Baldwin Locomotive works and Independence hall. In the evening they continued their journy to New York and will sail for England on the Majestic on Wednesday.

WOUNDED NEGRO LYNCHED.

Taken from Surgeons Who Were Dressing His Injuries.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 16.—Henry Milner, a negro, was lynched near Griffin yesterday. Wednesday he committed a criminal assault on Miss Blanch Gray. He was captured and taken before Miss Gray, who identified him, and he then confessed to the crime. On leaving the Gray's home, Milner broke away but was shot in the back and recaptured. He was taken to Griffin and a physician began to dress the wound, when a crowd of fifty or more men rode up and seized the negro, carried him half a mile out of town and swung him to a tree.

The Drought in India.

Simla, Oct. 16.—At the viceregal council yesterday afternoon the minister of agriculture stated that the local authorities of a large portion of India reported that distress was expected as the result of the drought and the consequent rise in the price of wheat. The construction of government works and the importation of wheat from California would prevent acute famine.

For Tax Reforms.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 16.—Attorney-General Stockton presided at a meeting of the "Equal Tax commission" which was held here yesterday. "The commission," he announced, "had discovered that about one-half of the property in the state escaped assessment, and we shall report to the legislature the need of sweeping reforms in taxation."

Charged with Robbing Their Employer.

New York, Oct. 16.—Charles Bowe, Peter Petersen and Herman Singer, are under arrest charged with having robbed Pierre Matis, a woolen merchant of No. 329 Broadway of goods valued at $30,000. The men were in the employ of the firm.

Price of Cotton Affects Wages.

Salmon Falls, N. H., Oct. 16.—A notice has been posted in the mills of the Salmon Falls Manufacturing company that an eight per cent. reduction in wages will go into effect Monday, Oct. 19. The reasons given are the high price of cotton.

Three Cases of Beri-Beri Fever Aboard.

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—The steamship Goodwin which arrived last evening at the Delaware Breakwater from Java has three cases of beri-beri fever among the crew. The men were removed to the government hospital at Lewes.

Team Record for Trotters Broken.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 16.—The world's team record for trotters or pacers was broken here yesterday by Miss Rita and Josie B., Orrin C. Hiskok driving. They went to the quarter in 32½, half in 1:04, three-quarters in [illegible], mile in 2:09¼.

Knocked Out in One Round.

Buffalo, Oct. 16.—Joe Butler of Philadelphia was knocked out by Charlie Strong of Newark, N. J., in the first round of their fight at the Empire Athletic club last night.

THE HONEST SHAKERS AND THEIR CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.

The shopkeeper who cheats us by lying with regard to the quality of his goods, and the grocer who gives us short weight, is a thief. However, their knavery touches nothing but our pocketbook. There is another widespread form of misrepresentation of a far more dangerous and villianous character.

We refer to the false statements and worthless guarantees that frequently accompany medicines. To guarantee a medicine to cure is to brand it as a quack product. If we can guarantee to cure disease, then we can guarantee everlasting life, for in a large majority of cases people die of disease, the proportion of violent or accidental deaths being very small.

The Shakers have always been known as a most upright and honorable people, and their success in the manufacture of medicines has also been well known. It is therefore not surprising to find them pursuing a very original and novel plan for the introduction of their remedy for dyspepsia.

God-fearing people whose motto has always been "Try all things and hold fast that which is good," have put upon the market ten cent sample bottles of their product, or sufficient to give it a trial.

The Shaker Digestive Cordial is so prompt in its action that for the trivial sum of ten cents, a person can usually determine as to whether or not it meets the requirements of his case. There are forms of dyspepsia which it won't help, but these are very rare. In most cases the first dose relieves all distress, and an increase of appetite at once follows.

All druggists have it, and the next time you are troubled with indigestion send out and try this popular and successful product. It represents nearly a hundred years of patient investigation and study.

A DEAD-AND-ALIVE CITY.

Cordova Has Little of Its Old-Time Wealth and Power.

From the station we drove through a staring white suburb, past the well-whitewashed walls of the bull-ring, to the Fonde de Oriente. It was early in the afternoon, writes Elizabeth R. Pennell in Century, the sun fierce, the light blinding—the hour when all summer we had been sleeping and dreaming in the Alhambra's halls and the Generalife's gardens. Remembering their loveliness, and hoping for new beauty like it, we could not stay in the dull hotel bedroom, though with its tiled floor it was fairly cool and clean, and we went out into the town. Silence hung over it like a pall. Every winding street in the labyrinth beyond the paseo was empty, not a living creature in sight, only once in awhile a beggar, who rushed from some spot of shade to assail us; all the low, white houses, with their iron-barred windows, were tight shut; the place was abandoned and desolate, its silence unbroken by sound of toil or traffic.

Was this really the Cordova of Musa and Abderrahman, the Cordova once called the Bagdad or Damascus of the west, whose streets were alive with the clang of arms, the pomp of processions, the clatter of students going to and from school, and whose name was a synonym for wealth and power, for culture and industry—the world-famous town with its sentinels and merchants and women doctors? It was as if a plague had fallen suddenly upon the town, and left not one man, woman or child to tell the tale.

A DUST STORM.

An Estimate of the Weight of the Load It Carries.

Blown dust is a general and familiar nuisance to housekeepers over the entire west. A minimum estimate, verified by direct observation, for the quantity of dust settling on floors during such storms, says a writer in Appleton's Popular Science Monthly, is about a fourteenth of an ounce of dust on a surface of a square yard in half a day. A maximum estimate made on the basis of the above newspaper accounts would be at least five pounds to a square yard of surface for a storm lasting 24 hours. If we then suppose that a house is 24 feet wide and 32 feet long, has open crevices which average a sixteenth of an inch in width and have a running length in windows and doors of 150 feet, the wind may be supposed to enter half of these crevices with a velocity of five miles per hour for the time the storm lasts, or for 24 hours. The dust may be supposed to settle on not less than 85 square yards of surface, including floor space and horizontal surfaces of furniture. The minimum estimate, based on these figures, gives us 225 tons of dust to the cubic mile of air. The maximum estimate would be 126,000 tons.

An Offending Postcard.

All sorts of complications have arisen in connection with Italy's new post card. The design of the card is intended to commemorate the union of Rome with Italy and the fall of the temporal power of the pope. Leo XIII. considers the issuing of the card an offense to the church, and in deference to his protests Austria, Spain, Portugal and several of the southern German states have refused to receive it or pass it through their mails. France and Belgium have done the same in a number of instances, and the expostulations have now been addressed by the Italian government to the foreign powers concerned, with claims for compensation made on the ground that the postcard is framed in strict accord with international postal laws.

Good Work of Royalty.

When the queen and Empress Eugenie are together they spend all their spare time in doing needlework for the poor. Both the queen and the ex-empress are fond of the old-fashioned style of embroidery. The queen bestows all her handiwork upon her poor tenants at Balmoral and at Windsor. Empress Eugenie sends hers to poor convents, whence it is distributed to the needy.

RELEASE OF TYNAN

The Alleged Dynamiter Set Free by French Authorities Last Night.

WILL SPEND A FEW DAYS IN PARIS

Speaks in High Terms of the Many Privileges Accorded Him in Prison—His Treatment Commented on by a London Paper.

Boulogne-sur-Mer, Oct. 16.—Patrick J. Tynan, the alleged dynamiter, whose extradition to England was refused by the French government, was released from prison last evening. He will go to Paris in company with two American friends. He says he is satisfied with his treatment while in prison. He was allowed cigars and other luxuries. It is probable that Tynan will not remain in France more than a few days as he is anxious to rejoin his family in America. Tynan refuses to discuss his relations with his alleged fellow conspirators. Bell, now under arrest in London, and Kearney and Haines, who were arrested and subsequently released in Rotterdam. All he will say regarding them is that they had a mission to accomplish and this they have done.

Comment of a London Newspaper.

London, Oct. 16.—The Daily News to-day publishes a dispatch from Boulogne-sur-Mer contrasting the treatment of Tynan with that of a British subject who had fallen into the hands of the French police. The Englishman was conducted handcuffed to the Folkestone boat yesterday by officers and expelled from the country on suspicion that he was an anarchist. He had been confined in prison for ninety-six days, but the authorities were unable to prove anything against him.

ENGLISH RAILROAD OFFICIALS.

General Manager Harrison and Party Dined by Pennsylvania Officials.

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.—A luncheon was given yesterday afternoon by the officials of the Pennsylvania railroad to general manager Frederick Harrison and party of the London & Northern Railway company. Mr. Harrison arrived from Washington shortly after noon accompanied by Robert Turnbull, superintendent, and C. A. Barattoni, general passenger agent and freight agent for the English company in America. They were met by Third Vice-president Pugh and several other prominent Pennsylvania officials. After lunch they visited the Baldwin Locomotive works and Independence hall. In the evening they continued their journey to New York and will sail for England on the Majestic on Wednesday.

WOUNDED NEGRO LYNCHED.

Taken from Surgeons Who Were Dressing His Injuries.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 16.—Henry Milner, a negro, was lynched near Griffin yesterday. Wednesday he committed a criminal assault on Miss Blanch Gray. He was captured and taken before Miss Gray, who identified him, and he then confessed to the crime. On leaving the Gray's home, Milner broke away but was shot in the back and recaptured. He was taken to Griffin and a physician began to dress the wound, when a crowd of fifty or more men rode up and seized the negro, carried him half a mile out of town and swung him to a tree.

The Drought in India.

Simla, Oct. 16.—At the viceregal council yesterday afternoon the minister of agriculture stated that the local authorities of a large portion of India reported that distress was expected as the result of the drought and the consequent rise in the price of wheat. The construction of government works and the importation of wheat from California would prevent acute famine.

For Tax Reforms.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 16.—Attorney-General Stockton presided at a meeting of the "Equal Tax commission" which was held here yesterday. "The commission," he announced, "had discovered that about one-half of the property in the state escaped assessment, and we shall report to the legislature the need of sweeping reforms in taxation."

Price of Cotton Affects Wages.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

(Furnished by Weather Observer Neagle.)

Tonight and Saturday Fair, Preceded by Cloudy Tonight; Slightly Cooler Saturday.

At 2 o'Clock Leggett's Thermometer Registered 66 Degrees.

The candidates for honors on the Bryan ticket in Somerset county are as follows: For Senator, ex-Assemblyman George Cranmer, Andrew Lane and William Logan, Director of the Board of Freeholders. For Assembly, M. Mount Corle and James Trewin, J. L. M. DuFour and Thos. Gallagher.

Statisticians estimate the population of the United States on September 1st last at 71,645,000. The census count of 1890 was 62,838,969; indicating an average annual increase of over 1,500,000. The numbering of the people in 1900 would disclose, at this rate a population in the United States is not less than 77,000,900.

New Jersey has more miles of railroad to every hundred miles of territory than any other State in the Union. This is stated in the annual report of the statistician of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The report, which covers the entire country, has two tables of comparisons, one showing the number of miles of railroad every State has for every 10,000 of population and the other the number of miles of railroad for every 100 miles of territory. New Jersey has but 13.95 miles of railroad for every 10,000 of population. But she has 29.72 miles, which gives her the lead, when compared with her every 100 square miles of territory. Rhode Island stands second in territorial equipment with 20.37 miles of railroad. The total mileage of New Jersey's railroads is 2,215.62, an increase over the preceding year of 60.40.

MARSH OUT FOR BRYAN.

Says the Democrats Have a Good Chance in Union County.

Former Senator Fred C. Marsh came out for Bryan and Sewall at the Democratic rally in Elizabeth Wednesday night, and made a vigorous speech which was received with great enthusiasm. This was Mr. Marsh's first public utterance since he attended as a delegate the Chicago convention.

He said the Democrats could elect a Senator, Sheriff and Assemblymen if they made a united effort, even if they should be unable to carry the county for Bryan and Sewall. Mr. Marsh declared a vote for Palmer and Buckner was like throwing a ballot into a sewer, as they had no show, and the men who were supporting them were only assisting Republicans.

Mr. Marsh's utterances were loudly cheered, and he will doubtless be renominated for State Senator if he will consent to run.

VERDICT FOR OVER $50,000.

Man Who Lost an Arm and Was Otherwise Injured Awarded Damages.

One of the largest verdicts ever rendered in a damage suit in New Jersey was given by the jury in the Union County Circuit court yesterday. Geo. M. Grant, of the Woodstock Lumber Company, Jersey City, sued the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad Company to recover damages for injuries received Jan. 31st, 1895, at Jersey City. He was leaving his lumber yard with his son and they were run down by an engine. The son was killed, Grant lost an arm in the accident, and his brain is affected as a result.

He brought suit for $100,000. The jury awarded him $51,527.05. Another suit is to be brought against the company for the killing of the son.

New Pastor Commences His Duties.

Rev. Dr. Main, the new pastor on trial at the Seventh Day Baptist church, will conduct the regular Friday night prayer meeting in the church this evening. Dr. Main comes here most highly recommended, and he will preach his initiatory sermon to-morrow morning.

A Good Investment.

ARGUMENTS--QUESTIONS.

every two weeks. In this way he claimed that a man could get forty-two per cent. a year on a dollar.

Mr. Atterbury said that he was a lawyer, but if he could make money in that way he would give up his law business and go into the banking business.

When this questioner concluded his remarks, another man, a Socialist, politically, stated that Mr. Tiffany had spoken against Bryan and his theory, but had offered nothing better as a substitute. His theory was that in order to get good times and plenty of money the Government should own the railroads in the country. But, as Mr. Atterbury stated that the meeting was not called for the purpose of discussing that question, he would not talk about it.

During this discussion C. P. Bull and Charles Corwin had something to say, and they advocated a gold standard. One man present thought there should be a double standard, but Mr. Bull said that the double standard had been tried and had failed in many instances.

Towards the close a number of persons asked questions all at one time and as the hour for closing had passed Mr. Atterbury refused to continue the meeting, and accordingly closed it, after announcing that Carl Pfeiffer would speak next Tuesday evening at the same place.

EARLY INTELIGENCE.

—There will be a special meeting of No. 2 Engine Company next Thursday evening.

—George H. Leland, the well-known plumber, was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza this morning charged with violating the sanitary ordinance. His trial was set down for October 24th.

—The houses belonging to Mr. Messerschmidt and Lewis Bird are the only ones left to be moved off of the line of the Watchung avenue extension. Mr. Rutledge moved his house yesterday.

—The Borough Republican mass meeting will not be held on Monday evening as Saengerbund hall cannot be secured. If the speakers can be secured the meeting will be held on Tuesday evening.

—Next Monday evening a district meeting of Odd Fellows will be held in Queen City lodge rooms, at which time a successor to the present District Deputy, L. S. Pocock, will be chosen, and other important business will be transacted.

—The requisite size of the much-needed sheets for Muhlenberg Hospital is five yards long and two and one-half yards wide. This statement is made as there seems to have been a misunderstanding about them at the last meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary Board.

About a Plainfield Boy.

Thomas Schaeffer, who has been engaged by the Knights of the Golden Eagle Lodge to assist in entertaining the public during the fair in the Assembly room, will appear in his baton drill tonight. This is Mr. Schaeffer's farewell appearance in that act. He will appear later in the evening as the college boy in his club juggling act. He has been engaged to appear at Proctor's Theatre, New York, late in November.—New Brunswick Times.

Argued Pro and Con.

Passengers waiting for the 7:58 New York train this morning were treated to a free political argument at the North Avenue station. The discussion was between two well known citizens, one a gold bug and the other a silverite, and for some time the argument waxed warm and strong. It was, however, friendly, and fully a hundred persons stood around listening to the excellent points advanced on both sides.

Shooting at Live Birds.

Wm. Cannon, of Dunellen, had an idea yesterday that he and his gun needed practice, so he gathered in 30 of his best flying pigeons and invited Messrs. Dealaman and Gray to accompany him to the shooting grounds, where they spent an hour or two blazing away at the birds. "Billy" was in fine trim, killing 18 without missing a bird. In all he knocked over 25, missed four and let one get away

Will Avoid the Trolley.

The Real Estate News reports that the Chimney Rock trolley road has been granted a right of way through the Cook farm to Shepherd's lane, to run thence up Mountain avenue and through the Camp Ground to Chimney Rodk and Martinsville. In this way it will avoid passing the Bound Brook cemetery, which is objected to, for fear of frightening horses on funeral occasions.

Delegates to Grand Encampment.

Noah Dove Encampment met last evening and elected L. G. Sheppard a delegate to the Grand Encampment, and J. Kettering a delegate to the Odd Fellow's Home in Trenton. The Grand Encampment meets at Trenton next month in annual session, previous to which an inspection of the Home will be made.

The Darlington, Wis., Journal says editorially of a popular patent medicine: "We know from experience that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is all that is claimed for it, as on two occasions it stopped excruciating pains and possibly saved us from an untimely grave. We would not rest easy over night without it in the house." This remedy undoubtably saves more pain and suffering than any other medicine in the world. Every family should keep it in the house, for it is sure to be needed sooner or later. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

Prompt Returns.

The right kind of advertising, of the right kind of goods cheap, by reliable and trustworthy houses, always pays. J. Lint Edsall says that it is remarkable how promptly he receives calls for goods advertised in The Press. No sooner was the paper out on the streets yesterday afternoon than were the people calling for the articles mentioned in his ad. Hundreds of pairs of kid gloves went off before closing time as well as many other articles. Edsall's new change of prices is making a big stir in town certainly, and he says there is more to follow.

MIDST OF THE FIGHT

How the Presidential Campaign Is Progressing.

TWO LEADING CANDIDATES ACTIVE

Canton Residents Preparing for Another Big Influx of Callers on Major McKinley To-morrow---Mr. Bryan Making Speeches in Michigan.

Canton, O., Oct. 16.—To-morrow promises to be another big day for Canton and Major McKinley, as, in fact, every Saturday has been for the past six weeks, and the citizens of this place are making preparations, with which they are now extremely familiar, for the reception of the half dozen big delegations that are booked to visit Canton to pay their respects to the republican nominee. Only three delegations are scheduled for to-day and this fact will permit Major McKinley to prepare another batch of speeches. The weather is pleasant and Major McKinley is in the best of health and spirits. The commanding feature of yesterday at Canton was the spontaneous labor demonstration which took place late in the afternoon. Four thousand Canton workingmen called on Major McKinley. It was all done quietly and without ostentation. Hundreds of the men came just as they left the mills, the foundries and the shops, attired in blue blouses and overalls and carrying their tin dinner pails. They arranged the call themselves, and it was in no sense the work of political managers. The delegation which came from the northern part of Chautauqua county, N. Y., early in the afternoon, was an enthusiastic one. Congressman W. B. Hooker was the spokesman. Major McKinley was greeted with applause and he made one of the neatest speeches of the campaign.

MR. BRYAN IN MICHIGAN.

Closes One Day's Journey with Three Speeches at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 16.—From the time he reached Grand Rapids, at 7 o'clock last night, until he escaped to his special train and went to bed, William J. Bryan was the recipient of a continuous ovation. A big crowd was at the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee station when he arrived, and he encountered many more when he reached the busier parts of the city. An open air meeting was scheduled at Campau square, and it proved to be one of the largest of the day. Mr. Bryan was well received. He made a twenty-minute speech and then hurried off to the Powers house to address another big audience, almost entirely composed of ladies. The women adherents of Bryan and Sewall in Grand Rapids had imitated their sisters of Minneapolis and Duluth and secured the opera house for their exclusive use. From the Powers Mr. Bryan went to Lockerby hall and made his third and last speech.

WATSON'S THROAT IMPROVING.

His Doctor, Nevertheless, Says He Must Not Make Any Speeches at Present.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 16.—A special from Thomson, Ga., to the Constitution, says Thomas E. Watson has mailed his letter of acceptance of the populist nomination for vice-president to senator Marion Butler at Chicago. Senator Butler is expected here to-day, and he will not get the original letter until he returns to Chicago. Mr. Watson has not given out the contents of his letter, but says that he has put it in mail. Mr. Watson's throat is improving. Dr. Richardson, his physician, says that there is absolutely nothing the matter with Mr. Watson except a trouble local to his throat, and that it will be well in a few days. The doctor says Mr. Watson must not make any more speeches for some time to come.

Treasury Officers in the Campaign.

Washington, Oct. 16.—In a letter to George M. Davis of Louisville, Secretary Carlisle has fixed dates for his campaign speeches in Kentucky. They are October 23, 24, 26, 28 and 30. Mr. Carlisle expressed a desire to make his first speech at Covington. Mr. Eckels, the comptroller of the currency, left Washington last night for his home in Ottawa, Ill., to take part in the campaign. He is not expected to return until after the election.

Gen. Wilson To Speak in West Virginia.

Washington, Oct. 16. — Postmaster General Wilson will leave Washington to-morrow for his home, Charleston, W. Va., where he will make an address on the financial question. The postmaster general will advocate the gold standard.

Instructions for Connecticut Voters.

Hartford, Oct. 16.—State Secretary Mowry has sent to town clerks a synopsis of the election laws and instructions how balloting must proceed at the national election on Nov. 3.

Erie Canal Improvement.

Albany, Oct. 16.—State Engineer and Surveyor Adams will ask the next legislature to enact a law which will allow him to use a part of the $9,000,000 canal appropriation towards the construction of a proposed single steel lifting lock both at Cohoes and Lockport. The engineer needs no permission to use the money, but it is necessary to gain permission before any part of the canal can be abandoned.

Will Accept No Compromise.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 16.—The striking weavers of the Salts Textile company announce that they will accept no compromise. The present scale of wages is almost too low to allow them a living. They could not stand another reduction. The state arbitration committee was here yesterday. It accomplished nothing.

DUDLEY'S GREAT GUN.

It Uses Compressed Air to Expel Immense Shells.

The Same Principle, It is Believed, Can Be Employed in the Useful Arts, Particularly in Quarrying and Tunnel Work.

Guns which can shoot high explosives without bursting the gun itself are in demand by every nation of any standing whatever. Governments have spent millions of dollars experimenting with guns and armor, and a considerable portion of this money has gone toward building guns for throwing torpedoes and shells containing from 200 to 500 pounds of dynamite or some equally high explosive.

It has been found that compressed air is the safest and best agent for expelling the shell.

The Scientific American in a recent issue describes a pneumatic gun which it believes has solved the problem. This is the Dudley gun, and it is a gun and compressed-air plant in itself. It certainly is a most ingenious arrangement, and its use of gunpowder for the purpose of compressing air opens up possibilities in the application of the principle which will be apparent to any skilled mechanic.

The Dudley gun might be called a long tube, bent upon itself so as to show three tubes side by side. These tubes lie parallel to each other. The long central tube is the firing tube, and weighs 250 pounds, in a four-inch gun.

The two side tubes might be called the air-compressor, for it is in them that the air is compressed to 850 pounds to the square inch. At the forward end of the gun, the two outside tubes are connected by an air passage.

The rear end of one of the tubes is connected by a similar passage to the central or firing tube, and the rear end of the other side tube is fitted with a suitable breech mechanism to receive the powder cartridge. A glance at the diagram will show the passage of the air when the powder is ignited.

The central or firing tube has a breech mechanism similar to a breech-loading rifle. In this the projectile with its load of high explosive is placed. Then the breech piece is locked, the powder cartridge is placed in the side tube, and its breech is locked.

The powder is ignited, and the air in the tubes is compressed by the generate gases. The force of the explosion, cushioned by the two columns of air which are between the powder cartridge and the projectile, acts upon the projectile. The shell leaves the gun with little noise of explosion and no smoke whatever.

DUDLEY PNEUMATIC GUN.

The recoil of the gun is slight, and springs are provided for taking it up. The projectiles used in the gun are brass cylinders with pointed ends. The fuse is attached to the front end and from the rear end of the shell extend vanes or rings to insure rotation. The entire shell is 52 inches long, and when fully charged weighs [illegible] pounds.

In the main body of the shell, which is the brass cylinder, the dynamite or nitroglycerin is placed. In the forward end of the charge is placed a charge of gun cotton, and in the center of the gun cotton is a case containing fulminating mercury.

An ingenious arrangement in the shell is the fuse which explodes the charge of dynamite. It is arranged to operate by inertia or by direct impact. If the shell strikes the water, the inertia operates the ignition.

A steel ball within the cap is driven forward when the motion of the shell is retarded, and by striking causes the detonation of one or more of three percussion caps.

The tube of slow-burning powder is thus ignited; this communicates with the fulminating mercury, which in turn explodes the gun cotton, and thus the main charge of high explosive is exploded.

If the shell strikes armor, the head is crushed in, and this drives the pins against percussion caps, which start the series of explosions that at last fire the main charge.

In order that the steel ball may be forced against the percussion caps prematurely, a little windmill is placed in front of the shell. This windmill is centered on a little shaft which is screwed into the steel ball.

The windmill is inclosed in a recess, from which it escapes when the shell leaves the gun, and at once it begins revolving, and unscrews the shaft from the steel ball. By the time the shell has traveled a few hundred feet, the steel ball is free to move when the shell strikes the water.

It is believed that the principle of compressing air by the explosion of gunpowder, as it is done in the Dudley gun, can be employed in the useful arts, particularly in quarrying and tunnel work, where air drills are remote from the main pipe of the air compressor plant.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable. NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand re-dyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Good Work Accomplished by the Postoffice Department During the Last Year.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Assistant Attorney General Thomas of the postoffice department in his annual report states that the courts in every instance have sustained the department in the issuance of orders against the fraudulent use of the mails. Lottery companies, he says, have moved to foreign countries. Mexico and Honduras seem to be the favored localities. Judge Thomas states that the names and addresses of those who answer the various alluring fraudulent advertisements and the letters written by them are sold in the market, the theory being that all such may probably be victimized. One enterprising firm advertized that it had three millions of letters for rent or sale. The "green goods" men, quack doctors, the advertisers who catch their victims with the word "free," bucket shop operators and various other concerns deal in these addresses and letters. Judge Thomas has drafted a bill which he recommends to congress to prevent obscene matter being transmitted through the mails. The postmaster general at present has not the power to deny the privileges of the mails to senders of such communications.

OFFERED A BRIBE.

A Wyoming Populist Swears He Was Approached with an Offer Against Fusion.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Secretary Edgerton of the populist party has received an affidavit signed by D. L. Van Mater of Weston county, Wyoming, who says that he was offered a bribe by W. O. Owen, if he would refuse to withdraw from the populist electoral ticket in order to prevent perfect fusion in Wyoming. Van Mater says that Owen offered him a lucrative surveying contract and a good position with a half interest in the profits together with certain railroad transportation, if he would enter the scheme which he alleges was proposed. Van Mater refused, but subsequently decided to remain on the ticket, he having meanwhile accepted the democratic nomination for elector.

To Be Kept in Chains.

New York, Oct. 16.—Alfred Watts is chained to a mast on board the British sailing vessel Shenir. He is cook, and on Tuesday afternoon, as charged, he assaulted Joseph Griffin, the steward of the vessel, with an iron spoon. Griffin received a concussion of the brain, which at first threatened to result seriously. Capt. Mason had Watts arrested and arraigned before Magistrate Mott. The magistrate on being informed that the assault took place on board a British sailing vessel decided that Watts would have to be tried on British soil, but consented to the imprisonment of Watts until the British consul had been consulted. The British consul agreed with Magistrate Mott, and last evening Watts was turned over to the captain, who said he would place him in irons and keep him in safe custody until the vessel sailed for Freemantle to-morrow.

Rhode Island's New State House.

Providence, Oct. 16.—The corner stone of the new Rhode Island state house was laid yesterday with Masonic ceremonies. The affair was under the supervision of the board of state house commissioners and the Masonic Grand Lodge of Rhode Island, William H. Crawley, grand master. Notwithstanding threatening weather fully 10,000 persons were present and the spectators joined in singing "America" and the "Doxology." The ceremonies were conducted by members of the Masonic fraternity, the state legislature and state officials.

No Fusion in North Carolina.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 16.—The populist state committee was in session all night and until noon. It discussed the democratic committee's proposition for state congressional and legislature fusion and rejected it by a vote of sixteen to two. The chairman of the populist committee in refusing to enter into further fusion arrangements says that he does so because the democrats on August 1 declined Senator Butler's proposition for a complete fusion, and also because it is now too late to make fusion a success.

Final Report World's Fair Commissioners.

Washington, Oct. 16.—The members of the committee on final reports of the Columbian World's Fair Commission assembled here to-day for the purpose of perfecting their reports to the president and congress. They will be in session several days. Those in attendance are president Thomas W. Palmer of Michigan, John Boyd Thacher of New York; Massey, Delaware; Martin, Colorado; Roach, South Carolina; St. Clair, West Virginia; Lannon, Utah, and Toweday, Minnesota.

Killed Wife and Himself.

Bangor, Me., Oct. 16.—At their home in Hamden yesterday afternoon William Clark shot and killed his wife, Lillian Clark, and then committed suicide with a 38-calibre revolver. Clark filled a tumbler with laudanum to use in case his bullet did not take effect, but he did not need it. The cause of the deed was jealousy. Clark's wife was about to obtain a divorce for drunkenness and abuse, and he had an idea that she wished to marry another.

Sentenced To Be Electrocuted.

Rome, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Michael Corey, of New York, convicted at Morrisville yesterday of murder in the first degree in killing James George, an Indian, was sentenced to be electrocuted during the week beginning Nov. 23. This was Corey's second trial.

Call for Rev. B. G. Boardman.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 16.—Rev. B. G Boardman of Geneva, N. Y., has been called to the vacant pastorate of the First Baptist church in this city, and is expected to accept.

BANCROFT'S MISSION

How the Report from America Is Viewed in England.

ANTI-TURKISH AGITATORS HOPEFUL

The General Belief, However, Is That the United States Will Not Take the Risk of Isolated Action—Press Views.

London, Oct. 16.—All of the morning papers here discredit the report circulated in the United States that the Bancroft was to proceed through the Dardanelles without regard to any protest offered by Turkey and was to be protected in doing so if necessary by the United States squadron at Smyrna. The Chronicle says the report is "purely sensational, without a vestige of truth," and suggests that in the event of the United States deciding to do for Europe what Europe does not dare to do for herself, the United States with three cruisers might seize the customs at Smyrna. The Graphic and Post concur in the opinion that such action as the passage of the Dardanelles by the Bancroft would fail to settle the eastern problem.

As Viewed by the British Public.

The report from America that the United States was preparing to assume leadership to bring the sultan to terms raised hopes among those who have taken an active part in the anti-Turkish crusades, but the belief is more general that even the great American republic would hardly risk the peril of isolated action. Some there are, however, who believe that an understanding has been arrived at between the United States and the great powers whereby the American republic is to take the initiative, and whatever assistance is necessary will be accorded her.

Bancroft at Smyrna.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Outside of the bare announcement that a cablegram had been received stating that the Bancroft had arrived safely at Smyrna, neither the state or naval officials will discuss in any way the mission of the little cruiser. The belief that she will soon be anchored in the Golden Horn still prevails, but just how she is to pass through the Dardanelles no one with any authority can be found who is willing to talk.

TO END THE TOBACCO WAR.

Negotiations Said To Be Pending Between the Big Rival Manufacturers.

New York, Oct. 16.—It is said by well-informed people that negotiations are pending between the American Tobacco company and one or both of its large competitors in St. Louis—Liggitt & Meyers and Drummond company. The object is to reach an understanding which will terminate the present war between the rival interests on plug tobacco and cigarettes. Present indications are that the negotiations have made such progress that an announcement of importance may be expected at any moment. The St. Louis concerns are understood to be in a position which permits the consummation of a deal or even an absolute transfer of control. It is also said that the P. Lorillard company is in a position to sell out its property, as the period of three years for which the organizers agreed to tie up their common stock has now expired. Whether the negotiations now pending embace the last named company is not known with certainty.

Pleaded Guilty to a Brutal Murder.

Baltimore, Oct. 16.—James Smith, who murdered Miss Margaret Drowne at Seat Pleasant, near Bannings Station, on July 28, was arraigned at Marlboro yesterday afternoon and found guilty. When asked to plead Smith said in a firm and steady voice: "Guilty of the murder, but not of the assault as charged." He said during his testimony: "On the evening of July 28 Miss Drowne and me had a quarrel. I knocked her down, choked her, went down-stairs, got a knife, returned, took the knife and cut her throat. That's all there was to it." The judge pronounced the death sentence with a few brief remarks. The governor will name a day for the execution.

Poisoned Two Towns' Water Supply.

Quincy, Mass., Oct. 16.—Four men were in the district court yesterday charged with putting paris green in the waters of Great Pond, Randolph, to kill ducks and geese that had been placed there as decoys by hunters. The towns of Randolph and Holbrook obtain their water from this pond and the offense, if proven, is punishable by a long term in state prison. The cases were continued to October 24.

Globe Yarn Mills New Treasurer.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 16.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Globe Yarn mills yesterday afternoon Arnold B. Sanford, one of the best known manufacturers in New England and for fifteen years treasurer and agent of that corporation, declined a re-election as treasurer, and Edward B. Jenning was elected in his place.

Monument to Federal Dead.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 16.—The corner stone of the monument over the Federal dead in the National cemetery was laid here yesterday afternoon, Commander Chase of Chattanooga officiating. Gen. G. P. Thurston of Nashville delivered the principal address. Many veterans were present.

Damaged During the Storm.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 16.—The steamer Lord Erne, nine days out from Baltimore for London, with 403 head of cattle, put in here last night for repairs. She encountered a hurricane on Monday and Tuesday, during which she lost 130 head of cattle and received considerable damage.

PUNTS AND PASSES.

A.P. Simmonds, of this city, will play on the New Jersey Athletic Club team tomorrow afternoon against the eleven of the University of New York.

Ladies will be admitted free tomorrow afternoon to the football game between the elevens of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A and the Rahway Athletic Club.

The Y. M. C. A. team will meet again for practice tonight at the Y. M. C. A. grounds. It is very important that all who expect to play tomorrow should attend as a thorough knowledge of the new signals is necessary.

Gilbert Lovell, of this city, has secured a place on the Academic fall freshman crew at Yale, and will pull in the match race between the crews from the Sheffield Scientific School and the Academic department.

The new uniform of the Y. M. C. A. team, which consists of maroon and black jerseys and stockings, was worn for the first time last Saturday. The jerseys are very pretty and the team looked very well in them. Wednesday night's practice in the mud took some of the fresh appearance out of them.

Stevens Institute, at Hoboken, has a very poor football team this season. Really, they haven't any team at all and the manager simply collects eleven players for each game and they go without signals or any suggestion of team play. It is doubtful whether they will be able to finish their schedule this fall.

The following games have been booked for the Westfield Football Association: October 17, San Remo of New York, at Westfield; 24, Plainfield Y. M. C. A., at Plainfield; 31, Passaic High School, at Westfield; November 3, Hamilton A. C., of Brooklyn, at Westfield; 7, Hoboken High School, at Westfield; 14, Plainfield Y. M. C.A. at Westfield.

No candidate for the Y. M. C. A. team has shown great improvement since last year than William L. McClure. He is now one of the most aggressive players on the team and is showing a great faculty of breaking through the line and downing the runner for a loss. In defensive work, he is not so good but practice will soon improve that and his earnestness and willingness make him a favorite with management and team.

Plainfield has the honor of having within its bounds one of the best quarterbacks in the State and who ranks among the foremost in the country. The player in question is Charles Denice who fills that position so acceptably on the Elizabeth Athletic Club's eleven. He has taken much interest in the Y. M. C. A. team and will play a game with them if Elizabeth will allow it to go. It is hoped that he will be able to play in the game with Westfield. Another year Plainfield should secure him on the Y. M. C. A. team for the season.

The football season is now in full sway and all the large college teams are playing once or twice a week. The principal games for tomorrow afternoon are: Harvard against Brown, at Cambridge—Yale against Dartmouth, at New Haven—Princeton against West Point, at West Point—Pennsylvania against Lehigh, at Philadelphia—Cornell against Tufts, at Ithaca—New York University against New Jersey Athletic Club, at Ohio Field, University Heights, N. Y.—Rutgers against Haverford, at New Brunswick—Wesleyan against Amherst, at Middletown, Conn.—Williams against Syracuse, at Albany—Elizabeth Athletic Club against Pennington Seminary, at Elizabeth—Plainfield Y. M. C. A. against Rahway Athlectic Club at Plainfield—Westfield against San Remo Football Club at Westfield.

THEY ALL GOT A DRINK.

How a Millionaire's Son Driving a Street Car Treated His Passengers.

After the late George Law was graduated from Columbia college his father made him a driver on the Eighth avenue street car line in New York, says the San Francisco Argonaut. One night, after a cold rain had chilled the young driver to the marrow, a college friend of his jumped on the car and suggested that a drink would be in order. On Fifty-fifth street, midway between Eighth and Ninth avenues, there was a well-known sporting resort kept by an ex-boxing master of Columbia. Mr. Law's frend proposed that he stop the car, while they ran down the street, hurriedly took a drink, and returned to the car. But Mr. Law preferred to follow his own ideas in the matter. Giving the horses a sudden yank he turned them sharply toward Ninth avenue and whipped them up until, by a quick effort, they lifted the car off the track. Over the cobbles the strong horses drew the car to the amazement of the conductor and the passengers, and, rattling down through the street, stopped in front of the saloon. Mr. Law alighted with his friend and so did the rest of the passengers. After they had all taken a drink at the driver's expense, they turned to the vehicle and the car again started its noisy progress over the stones. When it was again on the rails and the journey up Eighth avenue was resumed it was rather the worse for wear.

A hacking cough is not only annoying to others, but is dangerous to the person who has it. One Minute Cough Cure will quickly put an end to it. L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

THE NAVAL RESERVE.

Plans For the Young Jack Tars of New Jersey.

The winter drill season of the Battalion of the East of the New Jersey Naval Reserve, will probably begin next week on board the United States ship Portsmouth, foot of Fourteenth street, Hoboken. The reserves are prepared to put in an unusual amount of work in order to be in shape for next year's cruise, which will probably be for two weeks, instead of one, and will take in not only Long Island Sound, but the Jersey coast as far south as the Delaware capes. The second, or Newark division, will drill on alternate Monday nights in Newark and aboard ship; the third, or Hoboken engineer division, will drill on Tuesday nights, and the first, or Jersey City division, will drill Wednesday nights.

The officers and men of the battalion have spent considerable time on the ship since the summer's cruise, and the old vessel is fitted as completely and comfortably as a modern man-of-war. "Headquarters night," which is Monday night, and the night upon which the officers assemble for conference with Commander Irving, has become very popular, and for a month past has been notable for the number of distinguished guests entertained at dinner in the wardroom.

The ship's cook is assigned to the Portsmouth by the Navy Department, and each Monday night has a first-class menu ready for the officers and their guests. Several of the New York Naval Reserve officers have already been entertained on the ship, and last Monday night Commander Irving had as his guests at dinner Constructor Nixon, of the Nixon shipyard at Elizabethport, and Chief-Engineer Ransom, of the Navy, who is acting as inspector of the torpedo-boats being built at the Nixon yard. Both expressed surprise at the fact that Commander Irving had a ship which could go to sea at a moment's notice, and declared that the Battalion of the East was better equipped for actual service than any other Naval Reserve in the country.

WHO OWNS THIS DOG?

Two Men Claim Ownership Where Once the Canine Was a Stray Mongrel.

Carl Lorenklau is mourning over the loss of a dog. According to Carl's story he bought a hound dog or one resembling that species, from the borough dog catcher some time ago, for which he paid $2.30, including license fee and board for the dog while it was incarcerated. The number of the dog's license was 132. Recently Mr. Lorenklau met ex Dog Cather Frisby on the street, and the latter claimed that the dog belonged to him, but it was not transferred as Frisby requested, and Mr. Lorenklau took his purchase home and securely fastened it in his dog house.

Nothing was thought of the matter at the time, but on Wednesday night some one with malice aforethought or bent solely on mischief went to Mr. Lorenklau's kennel and confiscated the dog. leaving the collar and chain behind.

Frisby claims that he found the dog on Park avenue some months ago, and that he is therefore the rightful owner. On the other hand Mr. Lorenklau claims that he purchased the dog in good faith and he is now looking for his purchase.

In connection with the above case, Frisby makes an explanation. He says he found the dog at the corner of Front street and Park avenue, while he was on his way to catch the early mail, and, furthermore, he has the dog now and intends to keep it. He cites a clear title to the canine and says he got the dog and another one from his brother-in-law in Buckingham, Pa., and brought them here on September 18th, 1895. One of them has since died, and during last fall both were hunted by a prominent Plainfield lawyer and a hotel keeper. Some interesting developments are likely to grow out of the case.

Kites Sent to Great Altitude.

When Mr. Eddy first began to fly kites at Blue Hill, Mass., an altitude of 1,500 feet was considered remarkable, but recently an altitude of 7,200 feet above the level of the surrounding country was attained by a kite. The Boston Transcript says: "The Blue Hill boys have now some two miles of strong wire on hand and think that they can achieve still greater penetration into the upper air than the present record of a mile and a quarter. The experiments of the present week are likely to be of importance, since Prof. Harrington, late chief of the weather service, and Mr. Archibald, from England, the first person to use kites for meteorological purposes, are in town. These gentlemen will visit Blue Hill and trials will be made during the week to eclipse even the already noteworthy record."

THE ORGAN.

Its Presence in an Indian's Home an Evidence of Aristocracy.

When traveling over the Crow Creek and Lower Brule reservations, adjacent to this city, it is no uncommon sight, says the Minneapolis Journal, to see elegant and costly organs occupying positions in log houses whose exterior present anything but a cheerful or prosperous appearance. Yet these Indians are fairly prosperous, and having during the past few months received considerable money from the government, have expended it for such articles as meet their fancy. In addition to fine furniture, carriages and carpets, many of them have purchased organs. Indian families that have invested their surplus wealth in organs are the envy of all their neighbors until the envious ones can themselves purchase instruments, and then harmony is restored in the Indian settlements.

Sometimes the Indians, in their desire to live as their white neighbors do, assume obligations which they are unable to meet. Such was the case with John Barry, a Sioux who lives north of this city near the big bend of the Missouri river. Barry and his family wanted an organ badly, and after considerable negotiating prevailed upon an agent to sell them an $80 instrument upon payment of five dollars—all the money they had—the remaining $75 to be paid at a certain date. The amount became due a short time ago. The money not being forthcoming, the agent secured the services of Sheriff Jordan, of this city, and together they proceeded to the home of the Indian, took possession of the organ and carted it to town. Barry and his family have now lost caste with their brethren who are fortunate enough to own organs, and are again looked upon simply as ordinary Indians.

THEY WINKED NOT AS THE TEAM RAN

The Most Remarkable Case of Sleep Yet on Record.

RODE RECKLESS IN A DRUNKEN STATE

Bill Smalley and His Driver Imbibe Too Much Newark Fire Water and Let the Team of Horse and Mule Go as They Pleased—All Smashed Up.

History has recorded many wonderful sleepers and Plainfield added another to the list last night, when Will Smalley, a hay carter from Dunellen, broke all existing records in that line. Yesterday, Smalley and his driver took a load of hay to Newark. It was a delightful day and when they arrived in Newark they decided to have a delightful time. Smalley met some of his friends and drank their health at a neighboring saloon. In the evening the party started for home. Smalley went to sleep and left the driver to look after the team, one horse and one mule.

The stillness of the night and the soft moonlight was too much for the driver who had also imbibed quite freely and he fell asleep. The team plodded on as usual. It was cold and the silence was oppressive. The horse suggested a trot, and soon the hay wagon was rattling along at a lively rate. The blood—began to course wildly through the mule's veins and he proposed a gallop. The gallop changed into a race and soon the team was running away. Smalley and his driver slept peacefully on.

The runaway team came flying into Plainfield. They began to run blindly and at the corner of East Front and Richmond streets they collided with an iron rail fence. Mr. Mule went over, after scraping most of the skin off his side and leaving it on the fence. The wagon pole snapped and the hayrick was partially wrecked, but still Smalley and his driver slept on. But horse and mule were cut by the collision and the blood began to flow, but the situation was too deep for them to unravel and they patiently waited.

It was 1:30 o'clock this morning when Roundsman Frederickson came along on his bicycle. He tried to rouse Smalley, but shaking, kicking and yelling didn't do any good. The driver finally awoke and took care of the team, Smalley, still asleep, was carried to the rookery and locked up.

At 9:30 o'clock this morning he was awake and was then arraigned before City Judge De Meza. He had nothing to say except that he didn't want to spend another night in jail. He paid his fine of $3 and departed to see what had became of his team and the driver.

A Great Sale.

On Monday morning Mr. Edward White will commence a great sale of high-class dress goods, all of this seasons importation. It will not be a sale of odds and ends or of old stock but all new, desirable goods. The season has been such that importers have either had to carry the goods or cut the prices and an inspection of the goods will show that they have cut prices very deep and Mr. White is in a position to take advantage of just such changes. The sale will commence Monday morning and continue until Tuesday night. They will offer in addition to the low prices, to every one who buys a dress pattern they will make the skirt free of charge.

Good Time Assured.

No set programme has been arranged for the meeting to be held tonight by the Young Men's Republican Club, but there will be good speaking, vocal and instrumental music and a smoker. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

ROMANTIC COURTSHIPS END HAPPILY FOR ALL.

Italians Celebrating Over the Reuniting of Mr. and Mrs. Luccio.

LIVING HAPPILY IN THEIR MANNER.

For a Night and a Day Festivities Ran High at the Italian Boarding House After the Arrival of the Couple.—Luccio to be Set Up in Business in a Small Manner.

Far out in the woods on the outskirts of Plainfield stands a board hut. North avenue stretches away at either hand, while the tracks of the Jersey Central Railroad lay back of the structure. In the hut all was jollity. It wasn't conducted on the same lines as the usual American jollification, for the sons of Italy were in charge. There was music and singing, while the corks popped and all was merriment.

It was the concluding chapter in the romance in which Ernesti Luccio and his child-bride, Louisa Giles, were finally reunited. Back to his countrymen had come Luccio, accompanied by his wife. The watchful policemen had been persuaded, the strict courts satisfied and the angry mother outwitted. Louisa Giles, a child of fifteen years, had renounced kindred and home to join her Italian lover.

Mr. and Mrs. Luccio, for that is what they are now, went to the Italian boarding hut near North avenue and Terrill road on Thursday afternoon. When Luccio's fellow-countrymen came in that evening there was general rejoicing. A grand jollification was arranged and all that night and yesterday the Italians continued their festivities. The Italian storekeeper was taxed to his uttermost to supply them with materials for the feast. And what a feast it was, held after the Italian fashion, with that one girl in the company of the crowd of jabbering, grinning foreigners, only one or two of her own sex being present. And they, too, belonged to this gesticulating, chattering race.

These foreigners are not rich, far from it, but they can live on what an American would call prison fare. The house is of the barest possible architecture, a mere shanty, knocked together for the occasion. Despite their squalid surroundings they are generous in their own way, and when the young couple came there for refuge they had the sympathy of all the lodgers; but the latter did more, they decided to start Luccio in business. A collection was started and money enough was raised to start the young husband in a simple way. He will soon enter the business world and Plainfield people will forget the little romance that has darkened one home with its shadow.

Eight Hundred Dollars For Nothing.

"I will give you eight hundred dollar's worth of experience for nothing," said a journalist to a friend. "I spent that amount in an effort to cure a nervous affection, and learned at least that the origin of the trouble was in the eyes, and that a timely examination would have saved me that outlay. At the first symptom of nervous disorder you should have your eyes examined at once." Expert examinations are free to all at Collier's, 103 Park avenue.

Found the Cap.

While Driver Breem of the fire department was out exercising his team yesterday, a cap off of the rear wheel of the truck was lost. It was not missed until the truck was returned to the house. Harry Bush at once started out to search for the missing article. He had not gone far when he met Acting Roundsman James Totten with the cap in his hand. The latter had found it on East Fifth street and was on his way to headquarters with it.

Dislocated His Shoulder.

J. Harrison, colored, living at 208 Park avenue, fell off a load of wood yesterday afternoon while attempting to drive through the lane adjoining Theodore Pruden's house on East Second street. He landed on his shoulder, dislocating it. Friends assisted him to his home, where he is being cared for. Those who saw the accident consider that Harrison was fortunate in not breaking his neck.

Runaway at the Plains.

Driver Milton Giles, who is employed by Rogers, the seafood dealer, of this city, was delivering orders near the Fanwood station yesterday, when the horse became frightened and ran away. The shafts were broken and the driver had to telephone to Plainfield for another rig in order to make his rounds.

Bride Answered Advertisement in a Matrimonal Paper.

THE GROOM CAME FROM THE WEST.

Acquaintance Was Brought About by a Paper Which the Bride Found in a Car Way Down in Texas—Advertiser Came East and Fell in Love With Her.

The sequel to a romance was brought to a close near Fanwood last evening at the home of the bride's aunt, when Miss Emily Alice Lawrence was married to Edward N. Levine, of Colorado Springs, Col.

The acquaintance that came to such a pleasant ending was brought about by a paper, which the young woman happened to find in a seat which she took on entering a train while on a visit at Galveston, Tex. The paper was one of those matrimonial sheets that are published for the benefit of those who like to have correspondents and perchance a wife. In this instance Miss Lawrence read over the advertisements, and when she arrived home jokingly said to her cousin as she handed her the paper:

"There is one man who wants to hear from some young lady who is the kind of man I would like to meet, if he is as he describes himself."

Her cousin jokingly dared her to write to the number given, as all the advertisements were identified by numbers only. Some time elapsed after her letter went before a reply came. Then one letter followed another, photographs were exchanged, and the result was a visit from her correspondent, who remained for a month. This time the acquaintance so strangely begun was so attractive to both that upon receiving recommendations from prominent business men of Colorado Springs an engagement was entered into. Then Mr. Levine returned home to prepare for the coming change in affairs.

The Club of Seven Wonders.

There are clubs and there are other clubs, but none can equal the "Seven Wonders." This club was organized in this city recently by seven of Plainfield's fairest and most popular young ladies and wonderful are the times that the charming members of this organization are planning for the winter. Yesterday afternoon the club held an informal dance in the Olympia for the benefit of its members and their young lady friends. In other words, it was a "dove" party. On Hallow E'en, the "Seven Wonders" will give a leap year party at the home of Miss Bessie Baldwin, of Willow avenue, and much envied will be all the young people fortunate enough to receive an invitation for this affair.

REED ON FIRST BALLOT.

THOMPSON UNABLE TO DEFEAT THE YOUNG LAWYER FOR SENATOR.

Expected That There Would be a Big Fight in the Somerset County Convention, But the Field Was Left to Reed.

[Special to The Daily Press.]

Somerville, Oct. 17—Charles A. Reed the "tall Sycamore of Somerset," was on the ground early this morning in preparation for the political battle today which was to decide his fate in the direction of occupying a seat in the higher Legislative body. Though the majority of the townships elected delegates favorable to him, he found considerable opposition, headed by Senator Lewis Thompson, against him in Somerville. His opponents had two reasons for not wanting his nomination. First, they said that he was asking too much to be advanced to the Senate with only one term in the Assembly; and second, they asserted that inasmuch as Newton B. Spencer, of North Plainfield, is slated for the nomination of Surrogate for next year, and Reed's Senatorial term would extend for a year beyond that, North Plainfield was asking too much in wanting two of the best offices in the county for borough men.

It was said that the animus that prompted Thompson to oppose Reed was that he feared the young lawyer's elevation to the Senatorship might give him too much prestige as a party leader in the county, and his own influence might be lessened very much thereby. He recognizes in him a quiet but adroit manager who knows how to pull all the strings—if the opportunity is given him—to make the political jumping-jack gyrate to his fancy.

Thompson's candidates were Lewis Schenck, of Branchburg, and Matthew Suydam, of Franklin.

The convention was called to order at 11 o'clock by W. H. Long, of Somerville, secretary of the County Executive Committee, who named W. W. Howland, of North Plainfield, for temporary chairman. Mr. Howland took the chair and delivered an eloquent address for Republican principles. W. B. R. Mason, editor of the Bound Brook Chronicle, was chosen temporary secretary.

The following committees were appointed by the chair:

Rules—B. A. Hegeman, North Plainfield; S. M. Wyckoff, Hillsboro; Henry Baird, Branchburg; George Conklin, Bernards; John Hornby, Bridgewater.

Resolutions—Jas. G. Griggs, Bridgewater; J. Newton Voorhees, Franklin; H. W. Hoagland, Montgomery; Edward Fields, Bedminster; Chas. Roberts, Bernards.

Permanent Organization—Peter A. Emmons, North Plainfield; G. Thurston, Bedminster; Adam Martin, Warren; Charles McMichael, Bernards; I. R. Thatcher, Franklin.

Credentials—Aug. Miller, Franklin; I. J. N. Van Lew, Branchburg; E. C. Taggart, Montgomery; H. B. Dilts, Bridgewater; James Brown Bridgewater.

After the appointment of the committees the convention took a recess till 1 o'clock, when the committee on permanent organization recommended that the temporary officers be made permanent, and the decision was accepted.

On the first ballot for nomination of a Senator, Reed received 24, Suydam 12 and Schenck 9 votes.

Mayor Hegeman moved to make the nomination of Reed unanimous in a strong speech, and Delegate Voorhees did the same thing for Suydam. Mr. Hegeman's motion was adopted and the decision was received with cheers.

For Assemblyman, J. B. D. VanDoren, of Millstone, and Henry Field, of Bedminster, were nominated. The former received 28 and the latter 17 votes.

VanDoren was declared the nominee.

Speeches were made by Mr. Reed and Congressman Howell.

Afterward members of the county executive committee were appointed.

The North Plainfield delegates are N. B. Smalley, Peter A. Emmons, W. W. Howland, B. A. Hegeman and Worth Coddington.

WRESTLING WITH A KNOTTY PROBLEM.

Town Improvement Association Would Dispose of Leaves.

BAGS AND FARMERS TO BE USED.

The Association to Propose to Divide the City Into Districts and Appoint a Superintendent to See That the Plan is Put in Operation—Prizes for Backyard.

The perplexing question of what disposition shall be made of leaves was the all-important topic for discussion at the public meeting of the Town Improvement Association held yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. building. At the last meeting the members were unable to advance any theory or propose any feasible plan whereby the annual nuisance of burning leaves could be abated. At that time the members were asked to consider the matter and be prepared at the next meeting to offer something definite. There was a good attendance yesterday and the discussion of the subject showed that the members had considered the matter pro and con. In the absence of the president, Mrs. L V. F. Randolph, her place was ably filled by Mrs. Pierre Malli, while Mrs. S. R. Krom served in her usual capacity as secretary.

The first matter under consideration was introduced by Mrs. Opdyke, who offered a suggestion that the city be set off in districts and that certain members be assigned the various districts, for the purpose of taking charge of the leaves. Mrs. Opdyke thought it would be wise to send boys around to collect the leaves, have them placed in bags and then arrange with farmers to collect them.

A lively discussion then followed as to whether bags or barrels would be advisable. Several members thought that barrels were too bulky while the bags could be handled more easily.

H. P. Reynolds, who was present, very kindly drew a rough sketch of the city as divided by wards on a blackboard, so that the members could discuss matters more intelligently.

Continuing the above discussion, it was stated that the farmers could not always call for the leaves when wanted and this fact might be a drawback. Another suggestion was that the association purchase suitable bags and furnish them to the people to put their leaves in.

Mrs. Krom read a letter from the street committee of the association in which it was stated that the new garbage disposal company might be willing to take the leaves.

Mrs. Malli gave as her opinion that inasmuch as the association could not rid the city entirely of leaves this fall it would be well to try the scheme of securing bags and collect the leaves in one district as an experiment. If it was a success, the scheme could then be put into general operation next year. Mrs. Opkyke offered to take charge of district No. 1, of Plainfield, provided that she was furnished with bags. Mr. Reynolds expressed his idea by saying that as the profits would naturally be small to several farmers. it would be wise to arrange with one farmer to take the leaves and let him make all the profits there is in the business. Mrs. Titsworth thought that the scheme would eventually end in everybody taking care of their own leaves as they do at present.

Mrs. Gilbert stated that bags could possibly be purchased for 18 or 20 cents. She thought the leaves should be raked twice a week. A motion was finally made and adopted that $10 be appropriated by the association for the purchasing of bags, they to be distributed as far as possible in Mrs. Opdyke's district.

Mrs. Pond, chairman of the street committee, who was unable to be present, sent a communication in which she complained about the lack of street signs, about the method of grocers blocking the sidewalk with their goods, and sweeping their rubbish into the streets. Mrs. Pond also said that many people were obliged to leave town on account of the burning of leaves and thought that such bon fires could be indicted as a nuisance.

In accordance with Mrs. Pond's suggestion, J. T. Baker was elected a member of the advisory board. Mrs. Krom suggested the idea that it would be well to change the day for the public meetings, and she gave a month's notice as required by the constitution, and said that she intended making a motion at the proper time that the day be changed from Friday to some other day. She hoped the members would consider the matter and come prepared at the next meeting to vote for a change.

Miss Tweedy spoke about Mrs.

CAPTAIN SAVED HIM

Plucky Steamship Master Protects a Passenger at Havana.

HIS SURRENDER WAS DEMANDED

The Vessel Was Not Permitted To Leave Port Until Consul-General Lee Took Matters in Hand---More Fighting in the Interior.

Havana, Oct. 17.—The police authorities here detained the New York & Cuba Mail steamship Vigilancia, which was to have sailed hence at 11 o'clock Thursday night for Vera Cruz, on account of the refusal of her master, Capt. McIntosh, to deliver to the police an alleged Spaniard, who came from New York on board the steamer enroute to Mexico. Consul-General Lee was informed of the facts and he approved of Capt. McIntosh's refusal to surrender his alleged passenger. The affair was finally settled and the Vigilancia sailed last night with the passenger on board. Col. Aguilera reports that his cavalry command of 151 men has had an engagement with 350 insurgents, commanded by Delgado and Pitirre, at Cangre, near Madruga. The insurgents were entrenched behind stone fences, but they were dislodged by the Spaniards and they retreated to the Economica estate, where they engaged in battle and were defeated by Aguilera's men. The insurgents, according to Col. Aguilera, left forty of their number dead on the field, and despite the official statement that they were "completely routed," they carried many of their wounded with them. As The Spanish loss was two killed and four wounded. Two of the latter are lieutenants.

GOLD IN THE TRANSVAAL.

More of the Yellow Metal Unmined Than Now in Use Throughout the World.

Washington, Oct. 17.—There is more gold in the Transvaal fields ready to be mined than the amount now in use throughout the world, according to Dr. George F. Becker, the chief expert of the United States geological survey, as regards precious metals, who has recently returned from Johannesburg where his exhaustive investigations were in progress at the time of John Hay Hammond's trial. Most of the Americans there, including Hammond, had formerly been assistants or pupils of Dr. Becker, and, in a great measure, his telegrams to Secretary Olney insured impartial trials to our citizens. In a lecture last evening before the National Geographical society on the Witwatersrand and the Uitlanders revolt, Dr. Becker declares that the primary cause of the troubles in the Transvaal was the lack of sympathy between the extremely commercial, industrial foreigners or Uitlanders and the bucolic Boers. The Boers had made repeated and extraordinary struggles for freedom from English rule and regarded the influx of English to Johannesburg as a new and insiduous form of aggression. Their distrust of the English was excusable on historical grounds. The English, he said, had not pursued a policy of deliberate oppession in South Arica, but they had made many blunders with effects as bad as if their motive had been evil. Gold production on the Rand, Dr. Becker said, began in 1887. Since then the town of Johannesburg has grown up, with 51,000 whites and as many colored inhabitants, according to a census in July. The number of Boers in the Transvaal is probably only about 125,000 souls. The reformers laid no plot against the independence of the republic, their idea being to frighten the adminstration into redress of grievances, or at most to substitute forcibly a more liberal administration for the present one. Jameson's announcement that he would raise the British flag was made only after he had crossed the border in contravention of an explicit agreement with the leaders. It came as a great shock to the reformers, and Hammond, the only American among the leaders, immediately demanded and obtained an oath of allegiance to the Transvaal flag from all members of the reform committee. Had he failed to take this step the punishment subsequently awarded to the reformers would have been much more severe. There were seven Americans among the reformers, but none of them were in the slightest degree implicated in any attempt to overthrow the republic; they took their punishment like American men, and have done nothing to forfeit the respect of their countrymen.

Damage Claim for Personal Injuries.

Albany, Oct. 17.—A claim for $10,000 has been filed with the state board of claims by E. H. Barto, as guardian for Edward R. Barto of Flushing. This amount is claimed as damages by reason of young Barto being shot in the ankle by a member of the National Guard while practicing in the state range at Creedmore.

To Meet Next at Syracuse.

Buffalo, Oct. 17.—At the final session of the convention of the western New York federation of Women's Literary and Educational organizations there was much friendly rivalry over the place of the next year's convention, the claims of Niagara Falls, Batavia and Syracuse being presented. Syracuse was finally chosen.

Death of Gen. Rufus Scott.

JUDIGIAL SCANDAL.

Several Justices of the Peace in Washington Likely To Be Removed.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The attorney general has taken cognizance of a scandal that has long prevailed in this city. It has been well understood for a long time that a suit for debt brought before almost any one of the justices of the peace in Washington would result in a verdict for the plaintiff in every case where there was a chance for collecting the money, and the impression has been widely spread that the attorneys practicing before these courts "pooled their issues" and divided their fees. Attorney General Harmon, it is officially stated, is now considering the question of recommending the removal of certain justices of the peace of the District of Columbia, upon the report of the examiner who recently investigated their methods in cases of landlords against tenants, to recover possession of rented property. It appears from the report that the practice of issuing summons in such cases without the sworn complaint in writing of the owner being first filed, which is in direct violation of the statute, has been the common practice of some of the justices. It also appears from the report that this law is very much abused; that it is not used to obtain possession of property, but merely as process to enforce the payment of rent; that in many cases judgment by default is given as a matter of course without proof, and that the effect of this misuse of the judicial process is to work great injustice on the poorer class of people.

CATHOLIC DIGNITARIES.

Gathering in New York of the Great Prelates of the Roman Catholic Church.

New York, Oct. 17.—The presence here of some of the highest dignitaries of the Roman Catholic church in America is the one great theme of conversation in religious circles. The arrival of Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul and Bishop McGoldrick of Duluth at the Fifth Avenue hotel yesterday were the latest additions to the distinguished company. Among the topics under discussion were the meeting of the board of directors of the Roman Catholic university which will be held at Washington next week, the election of a rector to succeed Bishop Keane, the forthcoming meeting of the archbishops of the United States and the departure of Cardinal Satolli for Rome. The cardinal was a passenger on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II., which sailed from Hoboken this morning at 10 o'clock. Bishop McGoldrick was seen by a reporter this morning. He said: "It is folly for any one to predict what will be the outcome of the meeting of archbishops. As to Bishop Keane's successor it is idle to talk or to make predictions."

TO BE EXPELLED FROM BRAZIL.

Action Against a Correspondent of the London Times.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 17.—The chamber of deputies has requested the president to expel the London Times' correspondent from Brazil. This action is presumed to be on account of a dispatch from this correspondent, recently published in the London Times, reporting that a commercial and financial panic prevailed in Brazil, and that a moratorium might be declared. The statements of the dispatch were promptly contradicted by Brazilian officials.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL DISCOVERIES

Interesting Revelations Through Delving in the Ruins of Nippur.

The desire to know more than history tells us of the long ago is almost as strong as the wish to lift the veil that hides the future. So it comes to pass, says the Washington Post, that institutions of learning and scientific organizations send expeditions to all habitable parts of the globe to minister to this craving for information. Prof. Hilprecht, of the Pennsylvania university, is at the head of a scientific expedition sent out to the sites of ancient places to bring together such relics as intelligent scrutiny can unearth, and he has sent a wondrous tale from the site of ancient Babylon. A dispatch from London shows that the professor's researches at Nippur, where Babylon stood, have brought to light the most remarkable data ever found by such investigators. It appears that the professor suspected the existence of a deeper city far down below the foundations of the ancient city, where previous researches had abandoned the quest. The first excavations had ended 36 feet from the surface; 30 feet underneath this the Hilprecht party struck the traces of still another city. In this layer, which, it is said, must have been a Babylon so far back that even the oldest races we have any record of never heard of it, were found inscriptions and relics dating 7,000 before Christ.

Liberia.

T. Thomas Fortune, the well-known negro writer, tells in the New York Sun of the experience of Rev. Juno Moore, who went from South Carolina to Liberia 27 years ago, made a fortune there, and has returned to South Carolina for a visit. He is a Baptist minister, but finds time for successful business enterprises. He reports that the climate of Liberia has been greatly maligned, and that there is very rarely such weather as the United States has been suffering from of late. There is fever, but there is no great danger for those who take care of themselves. Coffee is the chief product, but ginger, sugar and cotton can also be raised with profit The great need at present is industrial education. He finds that negroes from the United States do not have sufficient independence and energy to make their way.

Subjects of Conversation.

When an American has nothing else to say he talks of the weather. An Englishman talks of his "tub," a Frenchman of his amours, a German of his stomach, a Russian of his beard, a Spaniard of his dulcinea, an Italian of his country, a Swiss of his mountains and a Turk of his last journey.

Women

Who are nervous, weak, worn out with local troubles find pure blood, nerve strength, and perfect health in Hood's Sarsaparilla.

We do not say the above to raise false hope. It has been the experience of many, very many women in those intensely trying periods which demand and consume so much

Like a confidential friend we suggest the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, a reliable blood purifier and tonic; it has helped many others and will help you.

dizziness, heartburn and pains in my back made me think I should never be well again. A friend prevailed upon me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Shake it off

The general belief among doctors is that consumption itself is very rarely inherited. But the belief is becoming stronger that the tendency to consumption is very generally transmitted from parent to child. If there has been consumption in the family, each member should take special care to prepare the system against it. Live out doors; keep the body well nourished; and treat the first indication of failing health.

NATIONAL BANK VICE-PRES.

A Most Important and Distinguished Testimonial For Dr. Greene's Nervura.

Hon. J. H. Hastings, Judge of County Court, Senator, and Vice-Pres. National Bank, Tells the People to Use Dr. Greene's Nervura to be Cured.

JUDGE J. H. HASTINGS, VICE-PRESIDENT NATIONAL BANK OF WATERBURY, VT.

You are sick and out of order and want to get well.

To get well you desire to take the remedy which will surely cure you—the one which is strongly recommended by some one in whom you have perfect belief and confidence.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the medicine which will surely cure you.

And here is the strongest possible recommendation to use it by one of the most eminent and distinguished Judges in this country, Hon. J. H. Hastings, of Waitsfield, Vt., an Associate Judge, Senator in the Vermont Legislature, Vice-President and Director of the Waterbury National Bank, and Treasurer and Trustee of his town.

Such is the exalted standing of the famous Judge and able Financier who is enthusiastic in praise of the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Greene's Nervura, who has used it with most remarkable benefit in his own family and who tells you that he has known so many cases cured by this grand medicine, that he advises you to use it by all means, if you wish to get well.

Judge Hastings says:

"I have heard Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy most highly recommended by my friends and neighbors who have used it, and know of several decided cures where people have been in a very feeble state of health and had failed to get relief from the usual sources.

"A lady who lived in my family has often spoken of the wonderful good which Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has done her mother who was cured of nervous prostration by its use. One of my near neighbors who used the Nervura and derived benefit from its use, advised me to use it in my own family. They are all enthusiastic in its praise and I join in the same. You are at liberty to publish this letter for others' good."

You can depend upon Judge Hastings' word. You can depend upon Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to cure you.

Take it, you who feel weak, nervous, tired, without your old-time snap, energy and vim; it will give you strong nerves, pure blood, sound, natural and refreshing sleep, from which you will rise strong and vigorous instead of languid, tired and exhausted. If your stomach troubles you, if you have gas, indigestion, dizziness, distress after meals, bloating, faint feeling at pit of stomach, constipation, kidney or liver complaints, Dr. Greene's Nervura will give you perfect digestion and regular and natural action of all the organs. It will cure headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, and is the best remedy in the world for female weakness and nervous debility.

The carefully compounded prescription of our most successful physician in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, this greatest of medical discoveries is perfectly adapted to cure just these complaints. The Doctor can be consulted free of charge, personally or by letter.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S HAT.

End of a Suit for Possession of the Beaver He Wore When Assassinated.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The hat which President Lincoln wore the night he was assassinated in Ford's theatre, this city, was the subject of a controversy in the district courts which ended yesterday afternoon in a judgment for the custodian of the museum of Lincoln relics contained in the house where the martyred president died. The evidence in the case disclosed these facts: The hat, now a rusty beaver, was presented by Mrs. Lincoln to the Rev. Dr. Phineas D. Gurley, then pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian church, who preached the sermon at the funeral of the dead president. After Dr. Gurley's death the hat was placed on exhibition by his son in the patent office, whence it disappeared after some years. It was next seen in the Smithsonian museum without the card stating that it was a loan from the Gurley estate At that time it was seen by representatives of the Gurley estate, but they made no effort to reclaim it, until some years later, when it had been transferred to the Lincoln Relic museum. Judge Cole held that this delay was fatal to the Gurleys, under the operation of the statute of limitations that having then failed to assert title they could not now do so.

MAYOR GLEASON'S CITIZENSHIP.

The Question of His Eligibility to Office Before the Attorney General.

Albany, Oct. 17.—Mayor Patrick Jerome Gleason and the question of his eligibility to the office he now holds consumed but a few minutes of the time of Attorney General Hancock yesterday afternoon. Nothing that has not already been published was brought out at the hearing, which was on a petition of certain citizens of Long Island City requesting the attorney general to begin an action to test Mayor Gleason's title to his office on the ground that he was not a citizen when he was elected mayor last year. The petition is based on the ground that when Mr. Gleason was first naturalized years ago he had misstated the year of his birth. A few weeks ago on learning from a birth register the exact year of his birth Mr. Gleason again secured naturalization papers. The petitioners claim that Mayor Gleason was not a citizen previous to his taking out the second naturalization papers and upon this the present proceedings are based. Mayor Gleason's attorney is given until Monday to file a reply. The attorney general expects to announce his decision next week.

NEW YORK EXCISE LAW.

Its Provisions Regarding the Sale of Liquor on Election Day.

Albany, Oct. 17.—State Excise Commissioner Lyman has received many inquiries regarding the operation of the new excise law and the keeping open of saloons on election day. The law prohibits the sale of liquor on election day within one quarter of a mile of any voting place while the polls are open. The excise department holds that this does not prevent hotels selling liquor under a hotel license to their guests at meals, nor does it prevent druggists holding a pharmacists license selling liquor on prescription of a physician. In determing the distance of one-fourth of a mile, the prohibition limit, the department holds that the measurement must be taken by an air line from the polling place to a saloon and not by the way of roadways and streets between the two places.

To Indemnify Sufferers in Crete.

Washington, Oct. 17.—In connection with the disturbed state of affairs in Crete, which is just now exciting so much European solicitude, Minister Terrell writes the department of state from Constantinople that, in conformity with the understanding arrived at between the sublime porte and the missions of the six great powers, an over-tax of custom dues of three per centum will be collected on the goods imported to Crete, in order to indemnify those who have suffered losses during recent events.

OUTLOOK OF BUSINESS

Conditions Now Favorable for an Early Improvement.

COMING ELECTION DELAYS PURCHASES

Hardening Tendency of the Money Market---Mercantile Collections Continue Slow---Cotton Mills Running, But Their Stock Is Accumulating.

New York, Oct. 17.—Bradstreet's weekly review of the condition of business will, to-day, say: While the volume of general trade has not increased materially, new conditions are favorable to an early improvement. Notwithstanding many interior merchants prefer to wait until after election before placing orders, features of the business week are the continued advance in price and strength of wheat and the maintenance of a large volume of wheat exports, notably to India and Australia. While wool is no higher, holders have sold enough to render them indifferent to immediate business, and are holding stocks for full figures. While new orders for iron and steel products are not being placed freely, they would be if makers would accept current quotations for 1897 delivery. Southern pig is 25 cents higher, and, notwithstanding the growing export trade in iron and steel has been checked by higher ocean freight rates and cut prices by German steel makers, it is anticipated that within three weeks the domestic demand will meet expectations.

Hardening Tendency in Money Market.

Unfavorable weather early in the week was more effective than usual in depressing general trade, owing to light interior stocks and merchants being in the habit of ordering for immediate wants only. A hardening tendency in money emphasized the situation. Mercantile collections continue difficult to make, except in the larger spring wheat states and adjacent territory, where collections have been easier on the advance in and free shipments of wheat. Cotton goods continue in unsatisfactory demand. Mills are running on full time, but stocks tend to increase again, as jobbers and other wholesalers are slow to pay the advance asked while having lower-priced stocks on hand. Depression in woolen goods continues, the mills running being on part time or on samples. Prices continue the upward tendency of several weeks past, shoes, leather, southern pig iron, wheat, wheat flour, canned goods, Indian corn, oats, pork, coffee and print cloths being higher, petroleum lower, and cotton, anthracite coal, lumber, sugar and various finished products of iron and steel unchanged.

Speculative Interests Awaiting Election.

Speculative interests in the New York stock market show a general disposition to curtail engagements pending the election. This has resulted in both covering of "shorts" and scattered liquidation of "long" holdings, the latter predominating. Bears have taken advantage of the latter fact to depress prices, and the market is narrow and utterly professional. The most unsettling factor is the hardening of the money market due to the disposition of financial interests and the general public to strengthen their position. Large gold engagements are announced, nearly $8,600,000 having been taken in London this week for shipment hither. Bank clearings totals amount to $994,000,000 this week, 6 per cent. less than last week, 14.6 per cent less than in the second week of October, 1895, and 28 per cent. less than in the corresponding week of 1893. The increase, as contrasted with the like period of 1894, is 4.6 per cent., and as compared with 1893, nearly 6.4 per cent. The total number of business failures reported throughout the United States is 279, twelve fewer last week, ten less in the second week of October, 1895, but twenty-six more than in the corresponding week of 1894. As compared with the second week of October, 1893, this week's total shows a decline of sixty-one.

St. John's Custom House Robbery.

St. Johns, N. F., Oct. 17.—Investigation of the recent robbery at the custom house shows that the condition of the department was rotten to the core. The accounts contain no trace of the sum stolen. The police believe that a gigantic system of peculation has been practiced. The whole colony is shocked by the revelations, which it is believed surpass last year's smuggling scandals.

Elaborate preparations have been going on for this celebration for a year and a half, and present indications point to the event as the most interesting and important in the history of the institution.

CUT RIGHT IN TWO.

Wall Paper Sold at Cut Rates by Love, the Manufacturer.

The man who makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, has been rightly called a benefactor of the human race. Love, the wall paper dealer, of North and Watchung avenues, is doing the nearest possible to this by offering to the people of Plainfield for a while two rolls of wall paper for the price of one. By a reference to his advertisement in another part of the paper it will be seen that he is offering elegant wall paper at 3 cents a roll.

This will be Mr. Love's course until the people are convinced that his is the one store in Union county where a stock is carried equal in variety and style to the large stores in New York.

Many will be surprised to learn that there is a stock of wall paper in Plainfield that supplies many of the fine decorators of New York and Brooklyn. Applications for samples from dealers came in this week from even as far away as Hayti, West Indies.

It is Mr. Love's expectation that this great sacrifice of wall paper, with the aid of his advertisement in The Daily Press, will in a short time bring the large volume of wall paper trade that goes to New York, to his corner where all the cars stop to give the people an opportunity of taking advantage of the greatest sale of wall paper ever known before in this city.

WITH A KNOTTY PROBLEM

Pond's complaint regarding the grocers sweeping rubbish into the streets. Her idea was that printed notices containing the ordinance on the subject should be distributed among the grocers, and that they should be requested to refrain from such practice. Miss Tweedy offered a motion that such notices be printed as stated above. Mr. Reynolds seconded the motion and stated that it would be well if some member of the association would serve the notices. He felt sure that the grocers and every storekeeper would willingly comply with the request. The motion prevailed. Mrs. Krom made a motion which was adopted unanimously, that Mrs. Malli be chosen president pro tem until Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph returns to the city. Sometime ago the association offered two prizes of five dollars each to the persons having the best kept yard, and as the time for awarding the prizes, November 1st, is drawing near, Miss Stewart, who had charge of the matter, announced that the committee had decided that Mrs. Matilda Workman, of Cottage place, had received the first prize, and Daniel Webster, of West Second street, the second prize. Mrs. Malli said she had thought it would be pleasant to have the members meet at the proper time Friday afternoon, November 6th, and proceed in carriages to the above two places and present the prizes. She felt sure the effort would be appreciated. Both the winners of the prizes were highly complimented for their efforts. After placing the matter of purchasing bags for leaves in the hands of street committee the meeting adjourned to November 6th.

We also tender to the grief-stricken family our sincere sympathy in their heavy affliction in the loss of a loving husband and father; and be it

THEATRICAL.

Without taking issue with either faction in their political views, Manager Leavitt acknowledges he is much impressed by the power of gold and silver; without it he is not able to move his large aggregation of artists, chorus and ballet and his carload of special scenery from town to town, and the public, he says, is not in a fit condition to cope with the issues at stake without some emancipation from the cares and strifes of business and politics, so Mr. Leavitt has turned benefactor and is engaged in penetrating the darkest recesses of the political arena with the new spectacu-extravaganza, Spider and Fly, in which everything is brand-new and right up to date, nothing old but the title. He has engaged the famous Les Foujires, Parisian character duet ists and grotesque dancers, from the Folies Bergere, Paris, as a special feature; also the well-known and favorite Goldsmith Sisters, Beatrice, Mattie and Lillie and Sparrow, the greatest of all comic jugglers and pantomimists, to impart silver-lined clouds and sunshine of gold to those whose sky seems the most obscure. These artists will be surrounded by a bevy of pretty chorus and ballet girls, and magnificent scenery, with wonderful electric effects, at Music Hall on next Friday evening. See ad.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

SCOTCH PLAINS.

Stewart Toms and his two hound dogs made a hunting tour on the mountain yesterday and got seven fine woodcock.

Messrs. Blimm Bros. have been in the hotel business here just one year yesterday, and their anticipations have been more than fully realized.

Constable George Rockafellow was in town yesterday afternoon serving subpœnaes on several persons who are wanted before the Grand Jury at Elizabeth on Monday.

The Kickapoo Indians continue to attract large audiences. In fact, it's the only amusement the young and old have to contend with these dreary fall nights.

Miss Cook, daughter of Henry Cook, was driving around the corner at Westfield and Park avenues, yesterday, when her rig accidentally collided with a stone wagon. Only a bent wheel was the result.

The sound of the joyful handorgan was heard on the streets yesterday and when the grinder started in on "Spring, Gentle Spring" there was a mad rush of the town boys for ancient eggs and antiquated turnips. The organ is due at Plainfield this afternoon.

James Collins, a brother of Mrs. John H. Blimm, who left Plainfield some ten years ago, has recently been heard from. He is employed in a large hardware store in Chicago and is reported to be doing well. A letter announcing these facts was received from him yesterday.

Tom Paff, Sr., Geo. Lyons, alias "Jack," and George Wright fished in the Passaic yesterday and captured five nice bass. On the way home "Jack" Lyons, who was sitting on a fish basket, was thrown from the wagon and landed backward in the roadway. He was, however, able to be about and relate his experience last evening.

Ephriam Carman, ex-motor power for the defunct Daily Bulletin in Plainfield, was in town last evening. He was on his way from Bound Brook to New York with a load of furniture and stopped over to size up things in general. Carman, it will be remembered, was the direct cause of a brief strike among the hands on The Bulletin in 1881, at the time when smallpox was raging in Plainfield, and he was employed by the local authorities to assist in caring for the sick and burying the dead. This work he continued in the night time and during the day was about the office more or less, being employed to turn off the edition by hand. It was on this account that the strike was instigated.

DUNELLEN.

Mrs. A. N. Randolph spent yesterday with friends in Somerville.

Mrs. Joseph Laing, of Milstone, has been visiting among friends here.

Arthur Giles is today finishing up the tinning on the new Town Hall.

Thos. Maloney, who has been employed in the signal service here, moved to Greenville, Thursday.

Twenty-seven coal train jumpers were noticed on one empty westbound coal train passing the station, yesterday.

Rev. Solomon Parsons, of Paterson, will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church, one week from tomorrow.

The Dunellen Building and Loan Association will hold a regular meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms on Monpay evening next.

Frank Creeley, the well-known wing shot of Somerville, was in town yesterday looking for hunting prospects and hunting dogs.

The Schubert Musical Club will give an entertainment and reception, to the members who took part in the recent concert, at the home of Miss Anna Nelson.

Jack Denyer, who occupies the Handren place, received two barrels of snapping turtles by express, yesterday, indicating that he intends to dine his friends on turtle soup.

Bert Apgar, of Front street, is mourning the loss of his bike. It was stolen from his back porch a few nights ago, and all efforts to trace it have thus far proved unavailing.

The members of the Euchre Club met at the home of Miss Churchill, of Washington avenue, Thurday evening, to organize the club and elect officers. The officers elected are as follows: President, Miss Sadie D. Barrett; secretary and treasurer, Miss Blanche Marlow. The club will be known as the Washington Avenue Euchre Club, and will have their first regular meeting on November 6th.

Assessor Day, of the borough, has been out for a day or two distributing tax bills. The tax rate this year, one of the authorities say, is five per cent. less than last year. But how this is so, is not explained.

The regular autumnal services will be held in the M. E. church Sunday evening. In the morning Rev. Mr. Custard, the pastor, will preach, and in the evening the service will be under the auspices of the Young People's Society.

Owing to discontinuing the running of several trains over the Central and its branches, "Phil" Smith, who has had a passenger run between Jersey City and Newark during the summer, has been transferred to his former position as brakeman on drill engine No 112.

J. Hamilton had thirteen bushels of potatoes come down by express from Northern New Jersey, yesterday, and when they reached the station most of the bags were minus a peck or so of the "murphys." The sacks were rotten and had spilled some of the contents at every transfer.

A hay carter from Milstone who was on his way to J. T. Closson's in Plainfield, drew up on the scales at Cole's coal yard, yesterday afternoon, and requested that the hay be weighed. He said he had bet a ton of coal with a man in Bound Brook that he did not have on 4,000 pounds. Just 3,800 was registered by the scales, and the driver said he would have to put side boards on his hay rigging in order to carry his bet home.

FANWOOD.

An amateur theatrical and musical entertainment was given by the choir guild of All Saints P. E. church, Scotch Plains, in the Fanwood club house last evening. The hall was well filled, about 150 persons being present, and everyone agreed that the whole programme was a great success. The entertainment opened with an overture "Golden Sceptre" by Mrs. Buckly, Miss Poole and Miss Day, after which a farce in one act entitled "First aid to the Injured," was presented in a highly creditable manner. Then followed a march, "Broadway" by the trio. A play in two acts, entitled "A Box of Monkeys," was then given. The talent, all local, acquitted themselves in a masterly style and the various parts were exceedingly well taken. After the rendition of the programme an impromptu dance was enjoyed by the young people.

WASHINGTONVILLE.

A serious accident happened to Jeptha Wagner, Wednesday, that may confine him to the house for a long time. Mr. Wagner is a well-known eccentric character. He is now over seventy years of age and lives with his family above Washingtonville. While fixing the roof of his house he fell to the ground, where he was found by his two children, seven and nine years of age. His wife works in Orange, and his thirteen-year-old daughter lives out, so as to lighten the expense and support those at home. At present they are in dire need of the commonest necessities of life, but they are too modest to let their circumstances be known if it were possible to hide it. The family is deserving of any aid that may be sent to them. Anything sent to The Press office will be forwarded to them.

OAK TREE.

An entertainment for the benefit of Marconnier Chapel will be held at the residence of Gen. Schenck on Tuesday evening. It will be a mock marriage.

The marriage of Miss Lizzie Burroughs, of Washington street, and Benjamin Frederickson, son of Roundsman Frederickson, will take place next Tuesday evening, at 6:30 o'clock, at the home of the groom.

THE BABY'S FIRST SMILE.

There's many a pleasure we meet with in life,
Of joy there is many a thrill;
There are transports that come in the midst of the strife,
When the noise of the conflict is still.
But there's naught in this world so wond'rously sweet,
From Greenland's white snows to the Nile,
There's nothing so heavenly, pure and complete
As a dear little baby's first smile.

The lover's first kiss—we know it is fine;
Its memory will haunt us for aye;
Though the flowers may fade and the stars may decline,
Its rapture will never decay.
Yet not for a moment can we compare
What may have a tincture of guile,
In an Eden of blossoms so fragrant and fair,
With an innocent baby's first smile.

An angel, perhaps, is a beautiful sight,
But an angel we never have seen,
And far, far away on the regions of light,
With their daisy-starred meadows so green;
But we are content when here we behold,
Encumbered with burdens the while,
A gleam from the city whose streets are of gold,
In a sweet little baby's first smile.
—George W. Crofts, in Chicago Inter Ocean.

A SHIPWRECKED CREW.

BY GEORGE H. COOMER.

"That fine-looking boy who holds the bat," said the new master, indicating a young lad in the center of the playground, "is one of my best pupils. He is English, and was brought here a year ago, after being taken from a wreck."

"Ah," I replied, "you like him, then. I am glad of that. As to his studies, there is certainly one in which he will be likely to excel, and that is geography."

"Geography!" exclaimed the master. "It is really a pleasure to hear the little fellow recite it. He fairly devours it. I think he would be able to floor the committee in that branch of study."

The new master was a grave, elderly man, who, whenever I met him, seemed to take pleasure in talking to me, though our acquaintance had been only for a week or two.

But now Arthur, the English boy, catching sight of my calico shirt and blue jacket, came eagerly to the spot where we stood; and then, for the first time, the teacher knew that his young pupil and myself were fast friends.

"You must tell me the story, from first to last," he said, after listening to the greeting between Arthur and me, in which we had dropped some remarks that aroused his curiosity. "I must hear it, for I feel a great interest in both of you."

We seated ourselves on the schoolhouse steps—the master, Arthur and I. But how difficult it seemed to realize the past and feel that this happy schoolboy had ever looked upon terrors so dreadful as those amid which I had once seen him, far out upon the great deep.

How his bright eyes sparkled or moistened, as I related the circumstances which had, a year before, brought us acquainted, and which I will repeat in substance for the reader:

I had sailed in the ship Altai, bound for Maranham, in Brazil, and on the equator we were becalmed for 23 days.

There was from the first, a sail in sight, which after a time was brought quite near us by those momentary puffs of air which will occasionally ripple the water in such a calm; and we at length found her to be the whaling brig Catherwood, of London, Capt. Dore.

Her officers were several times on board of us, while the vessels lazily drifted within half a mile of each other, and it seemed very pleasant to meet such neighborly people upon the ocean. They laughed, however, when we complained of the tediousness of our passage, which had up to that time occupied five or six weeks, and said they had not seen land for seven months!

It was then that I first saw young Arthur, whom I found to be the captain's son. Mrs. Dore, the lad's mother, was also making the voyage; and coming on board with the others fairly charmed our crew with her sweet face and manner.

Seven months out from port, the captain's wife and son were hungry for books and papers, and we were happy in being able to supply them, in exchange for the well-thumbed reading matter which they brought us from their brig.

Capt. Dore told us that as soon as the calm should be over, he would go northwardly, toward the West Indies, to give everybody a good run ashore; but that he did not wish to enter Maranham, near which we then were, as a vessel he had spoken had reported the yellow fever there, and he feared for his wife and boy.

When the wind again sprang up, we stood for the Brazilian coast, while the Catherwood bore away to the north, carrying away with her more domestic happiness than I had ever before associated with the idea of a whaler.

Arthur waved his handkerchief to us from the maintop, and then dimmer and dimmer grew the white sails of the English brig, till even her main royal disappeared—a demonstration, if any were needed, that the world is a mere ball.

We lay at Maranhan for a number of weeks, then started on the return passage. Once more at sea I speculated on the chances of again falling in with the Catherwood; but the old proverb of "a needle in a haystack," naturally recurred to me, as I felt how improbable it was that we would meet with her. In the meantime, I had been much interested in the whaler's books, and wondered how Mrs. Dore and her boy liked those which they had obtained from the big merchant ship.

But we were fast sweeping to the northward. The West India islands were passed, and I ceased to think of the English brig as hovering anywhere near our path.

One night, however, when we were almost up with Bermuda, I dreamed of going on board the Catherwood, and seeing her crew in the most terrible distress. I have little faith in dreams, yet so vivid was the impression conveyed by the one in question, that during all the following watch I felt my spirits oppressed by a melancholy which would permit me to think only of shipwreck, starvation and death.

It was early that forenoon, when one of our men, at work aloft, reported an unusual object off the lee-bow. Upon standing in its direction, we discovered it to be a portion of a vessel's deck, on which were five men. Yet they hardly seemed men, for their faces and forms were those of frightful skeletons. They had almost lost the power of articulation, and not one of them was able to rise upon his feet.

After being carefully lifted to our deck, they showed an anxiety to inform us of others of their vessel's crew who were somewhere drifting in a like condition. Three or four of us ran aloft, away up to the royal mast heads.

In a moment or two we hailed the deck, announcing a discovery, and the ship was headed for the forlorn object which we made out upon the distant waters.

We came down from our lookout to find one of the five poor sufferers already dying, and our kind-hearted tars doing all in their power to alleviate the misery of the others.

That portion of the wreck for which we were steering was soon visible to all hands, and as we hove-to and towed it alongside with our boat, it was seen that among the nine persons who lay upon it were a woman and a boy.

Until this moment I had not connected the Catherwood with the tragic scene, but the sight of these two inspired a sudden thought of her, and recalled my dream of the night before.

Yet that they could be Mrs. Dore and her son appeared almost impossible—this ghastly woman and boy who resembled nothing living that I had ever seen before.

The child appeared at the point of death, but the woman, although very weak, seemed to have borne up better than any other of the sufferers. She could speak with a great difficulty, and her first words, upon being handed over the ship's side, were those of anxiety for her boy.

"Do not mind me now," she said. "Attend to him. Oh, do not tell me that he is past help!"

Still, we could not see in her Mrs. Dore, or in her son the little lad we had so petted as a most welcome visitor only a few weeks before.

But presently she added:

"We belong to the brig Catherwood. I remember your faces. I came on board your ship off Brazil. Save my poor boy! Oh, to lose him now, after all this suffering!"

Her woeful, sunken eyes were wholly dry, as she spoke, but those of our honest sailors were moist indeed.

In the meantime, one of the unfortunates had already breathed his last on our deck, and most of the others looked as if they must soon follow him.

There were now of remaining, five of whom died within three days; but Capt. Dore, with his wife and boy, and five of the foremost hands, began slowly to mend.

They told us that the Catherwood had been caught in a hurricane to the southwest of Bermuda. Her masts were swept by the board, and she became water-logged, but the oil she had below prevented her sinking. The casks, however, thumped so heavily as, after some days, to start the deck, which, breaking into two parts, floated with the crew, the remainder of the vessel going down.

There had been 25 persons on board, of whom three were lost in the hurricane, while eight had died of starvation before our ship hove in sight; the only morsel of food tasted by the sufferers during their ordeal of 14 days having been the carcass of a small dog belonging to the captain.

A week after the rescue, we placed the survivors safe on shore at our own port, where in a few months they regained their former strength.

Capt. Dore, being under no necessity of returning to England, accepted the command of a fine American whaleman, while Arthur, as intelligent as modest, became the most popular boy in the school of his suburban neighborhood.

By the time I had told the master the story, the boys had all gathered around; and I left them standing, with looks of admiring sympathy, about their little marine associate, who had seen and suffered so much more than themselves.—Golden Days.

Abbot Islip's Rebus.

One of the greatest of the many abbots who have ruled the abbey was Islip, who held office in the sixteenth century. He had a genius for architecture, and did so much toward the building of Westminster and other cathedrals throughout the kingdom that he is known in history as "the great builder." His body lies buried at Westminster in a little chapel called by his name, near the west entrance. In designing and building this chapel the abbot made the room itself a monument to his memory, by repeating over and over again in the elaborate carved stone frieze which adorns the wall his favorite rebus or name sign—an eye, with the branch, or "slip," of a tree, grasped by a hand; and, as a second form, a man slipping from the branch of a tree to the ground.—Max Bennett Thrasher, in St. Nicholas.

Valuable Boots.

A fresh example of legal acumen comes from a French police court.

"You say you have been robbed of a pair of boots," said the magistrate. "How much were they worth?"

"Well," said the complainant, "they cost me originally 12 francs. But I have had them resold four times at an expense of three francs each time; so that makes altogether 24 francs."

"Clerk," said the judge, "write: 'One pair of boots worth 24 francs.'"—Youth's Companion.

AN ARMY OF VISITORS

Thirty Delegations to Visit Canton To-day.

ABOUT 20,000 PEOPLE ARE EXPECTED

Major McKinley Expects To Make Twenty-five Speeches Before the Day Is Closed --- Progress of the Campaign.

Canton, O., Oct. 17.—All Canton was astir bright and early this morning to receive the army of visitors scheduled to visit Major McKinley to-day. Thirty delegations are expected, and by 3 o'clock this afternoon it is believed there will be fully 20,000 visitors in the city. The visitors began to arrive as early as 5 o'clock this morning, and at noon the streets were alive with marching clubs and the air filled with brass and martial music. Many of the visiting clubs are uniformed and some of the campaign trappings are elaborate and handsome. Major McKinley began to receive the callers as early as 9 o'clock, and he expects to make twenty-five speeches before the close of the day. He is in excellent health and form, and said this morning that the arduous work which confronts him to-day did not in the least worry him. He said that the hardest and, at the same time, most pleasing part of the receptions was the handshaking, and the major's right arm will no doubt ache before night falls. On account of the many delegations Major McKinley will be compelled to considerably cut his speeches to-day. Delegations are already booked to arrive up to as late as the day before election.

MR. BRYAN'S CAMPAIGN.

The Democratic Nominee Speaks to Large Crowds in Michigan.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 17.—Excursionists from Grand Rapids, Detroit, Battle Creek, Jackson, Ann Arbor, Hillsdale and many other places came to Lansing last night to hear William J. Bryan, and the capital city was full of visitors when he arrived at 7 o'clock. Flambeau clubs on horse and afoot escorted him from his train to Mead's hall, where he addressed a meeting exclusively for women. The second speech was delivered on a canopied platform in Hotel square. A great crowd of people were there, but Mr. Bryan's voice was husky and could not reach very far. Later, however, from the brilliantly lighted balcony of a hotel, he addressed an audience equal in numbers to that on the capitol grounds. Mr. Bryan's voice sounded clearer from his commanding position on the balcony. Then he went to the armory, a spacious building, and spoke to those packed within its walls, and concluded the evening at a big tent which was also crowded. There was little, if anything new in Mr. Bryan's Lansing speeches. If the platform from which Mr. Bryan spoke at Albion to about 2,000 people early in the afternoon had not been so low, a serious accident might have occurred. Mr. Todd introduced the candidate and the talker was in the midst of a speech when the frail stand from which he was speaking collapsed, carrying with it Mr. Bryan and two score of others. The crowd had hardly time to know what had occurred before it saw the nominee pick himself up and jump on a truck to continue. Nobody was hurt. Mrs. Bryan, who usually sits on the platform while her husband is speaking, fortunately remained on the train at Albion.

TOUR OF UNION GENERALS.

Gen. O. O. Howard and Party Making Campaign Speeches in Ohio.

Columbus, O., Oct. 17.—At the big republican meeting held here last night Gens. O. O. Howard, Daniel E. Sickles, Russell Alger, G. C. Stewart, D. A. Maradan, Corporal Tanner and Major Durst were the speakers. A feature of the evening was the parade which preseded the speech making. While the clubs were forming the horse ridden by Col. Geo. D. Freeman, chief marshal of the parade, fell, throwing the rider under him. Col. Freeman's skull was fractured, his right leg broken and he is thought to be fatally injured. Chairman Kurtz has made special arrangements for the entertainment of the union generals during their stay in Ohio. The party crossed the border into the state from the west at Cincinnati. They will go from here to Zanesville. State and Raiload Commissioner Kirkby will have charge of the train. To the rear of the special is a flat car carrying a cannon, which will be fired at intervals during the flying trip.

National Democracy in Connecticut.

Hartford, Oct. 17.—State Secretary Mowry has decided to make no reply to the protest of Alexander Troup, state chairman of the silver democratic party, against the name "national democratic" on the gold democratic ballots. The secretary simply supplies the paper for the ballots, and does not print them.

Palmer and Buckner in the South.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 17.—Gens. Palmer and Buckner and their party left this city at 7 o'clock this morning, and will make short speeches at Scranton, Ocean Springs, Biloxi, Mississippi City and Bay St. Louis, reaching New Orleans this afternoon, where great preparations have been made for their reception.

Congressman Joy Renominated.

St. Louis, Oct. 17.—Congressman Charles F. Joy has been renominated by the republicans of the Eleventh congressional district.

Appointed by the President.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The president has appointed Arthur L. Brown of Rhode Island to be United States district judge for Rhode Island.

UNCLE SAM'S ARMY

Interesting Statistics from Adjt.-Gen. Ruggles' Annual Report.

ONLY ONE FORTY-YEAR-SERVICE MAN

Few Who Have Served over Fifteen Years. Per Centage of Discharges and Desertions---Decrease of Fraudulent Enlistment---Post Exchanges.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Adjutant-General Ruggles' annual report to Maj.-Gen. Miles, commanding, shows that 8,289 enlisted men of the army are now receiving increased pay under the service act. From this it appears that but one man has served forty years, that there are six men who have had 35 years service, thirteen have had 30 years, 395 had 25 years, 425 had 20 years, 1,023 had 15 years, 2,137 had 10 years and 3,451 had 5 years. A steady decrease of fraudulent enlistment since the law of 1892 is shown. In 1893 these were 301, in 1894, 253; in 1895, 147, and in 1896 the number fell to 84. Discharges by favor have also decreased over 30 per cent. in the past year. The number of desertions was 1,835, an increase of 100 over the number reported for the last year. This represents 5.46 per cent. of the enlisted strength. Concerning these desertions, Gen. Ruggles says 60 per cent. of the whole number deserted during their first year of service. These men may be generally classed as restless or, perhaps, congenitally so, unable to withstand the monotony of a regular life and mildest discipline. In cases of older soldiers who desert the incentive is likely to be found in some local entanglement. The cause of desertion is, therefore, not altogether in the service, for it is part of human nature. Its absolute eradication cannot be hoped for. The reference to the canteens or post exchanges is, in part, as follows:

Post Exchanges.

To-day an exchange doing its full work embraces the following sections: A well stocked general store in which such goods are kept as are usually required at military posts, and as extensive in number or variety as conditions will justify; a well kept lunch counter supplied with as great variety of food as circumstances permit, such as tea, coffee, cocoa, non-alcoholic drinks, soup, fish, cooked and canned meats, sandwiches, pastry, etc., a canteen at which, under conditions, beer and light wines by the drink and tobacco may be sold; reading and recreation rooms, supplied with books, periodicals and other reading matter, billiard and pool tables, bowling alleys and facilities for other proper indoor games as well as apparatus for outdoor sports and exercise, such as cricket, football, baseball, tennis, etc.; a well equipped gymnasium possessing also paraphernalia for outdoor athletics. Receipts from the sale of beer have gradually decreased until now they are over 40 per cent. less than in the early days of exchange. The aggregate receipts during the past year were $1,513,829.52, the expenses $1,164,675.24 and the profits $348,151.28. The exchanges are now largely manned by civilians and all reports indicate that the institutions are giving satisfaction.

The Castles Still in Seclusion.

London, Oct. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Castle of San Francisco, accused of shop-lifting, and who were release on $150,000 bail, are still in seclusion, refusing to see any one, and even the officials of the United States embassy are ignorant of their address. Counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Castle say that the latter is in a precarious condition. She has been violently hysterical and the constant attendance of physicians has been necessary.

Hart Held for Trial.

Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—The hearing of John D. Hart of this city, who is charged with being connected with a recent Cuban filibustering expedition on the steamer Laurada, was resumed yesterday afternoon before United States Commissioner Adams. After an extended argument the commissioner held Hart in $2,000 bail for trial at the November term of the United States court.

Promotions in the Navy.

Washington, Oct. 17.—President Cleveland has just signed commissions making promotions in the navy as follows: William W. Gilpatrick, to be commander; Lloyd Rankson and John G. Townesey to be naval constructors with the rank of first lieutenant. In the case of Gilpatrick the commission comes too late, he having died several weeks ago.

PUNTS AND PASSES.

The Y. M. C. A. team will not play on Saturday, November 21, the date of the Yale-Princeton game.

Armstrong, who played guard on the E. A. C. team last year, is coming back for the Yale game while he is to play tackle.

The second eleven of the Elizabeth Athletic club goes to South Orange this afternoon to meet the South Orange Field Club.

Captain Freeman of the Y. M. C. A. team does not expect to play today. His ankle is troubling him again and he wants to save all his strength for the Westfield game.

Think of it, two Rahway boys, Plum, the right halfback on the team, and quarterback Wilson, rode over to Plainfield yesterday to tell the Y. M. C. A. boys of this city that the Rahway team would defeat them this afternoon. They were both nice fellows except for this little mistaken idea and they happened to be old cruising friends of Wm. L. McClure, of the Plainfield team.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team will not go to South Orange on the 31st as expected. The South Orange Field club will be unable to play that day as a number of their players are to take part in a parade in New York. No game has been arranged for that date as yet but if the Rahway Athletic club puts up a good game this afternoon or if they should happen to defeat the Plainfield boys, then a game is likely to be arranged at Rahway.

An effort was made by the local management to secure a game with the Rutgers 'Varsity team. Plainfield has not given football sufficient support this year to allow Rutgers very high terms to acceded to so the scrub team from that same college has been secured, probably for election day. Now, as has already been stated in these columns, the Rutgers scrub is almost if not quite as strong as the varsity eleven and Plainfield will have to turn out its strongest team if she wants to win.

The Elizabeth Athletic club has easily the strongest team in Union county, but outside of that the championship of the county would be between the teams from Westfield, Rahway and Plainfield. This afternoon will, providing it does not rain, settle the supremacy of Rahway or Plainfield, and next Saturday Westfield and Plainfield will meet in close conflict. Although no championship series has been arranged, the winner of these games may be looked upon as the best team in the county, next to the Elizabeth boys. Another year it is to be hoped that a regular Union County League can be formed.

The one position that has caused the most trouble in the Y. M. C. A. team has been the centre. It was expected early in the season that Harry Rand would fill that position as he did last year but he was unable to and so Thomas A. Cuming was taken from tackle, where he really belongs, and tried in the middle of the line. Cuming was quick to learn and his willingness and perseverance made him a valuable man; but he had one fatal defect. His weight is about 150 pounds, just the thing for a tackle but too light for centre. Cuming has played centre in all the games this season, however, and put up a strong game, too. His quickness has several times counted very advantageously for his team. Captain Freeman has been on the lookout for somebody with the required weight and quickness combined and, his attention was called to Walter Manning. About six feet in height, weighing over two hundred pounds and with great muscular power, Manning appears to be the right man for the place. He attended practice last night and, after he has had the necessary coaching he promises to complete a very powerful central trio for the team. Milne, as first guard, is a perfect jewel while Brown is indispensable at the other.

The Yorkville Wheelmen have scheduled a run to this city tomorrow, starting from the clubhouse on East Eighty-seventh street at 8 a. m.

A. H. Barnett, the well known racer, was in town yesterday. He has been laid up for some time with throat trouble but has now recovered and plans to go south this winter and attend some of the southern meets beside taking a crack at the long distance records.

C. J. Baxter, State Superintendent of School, and Station Agent J. A. Haynes, of this city, have gone fishing on a private reserve in South Jersey today. They left no explicit orders as to what disposition would be made with their catch, but it goes without saying that when they reach home at 9 o'clock tonight, there will be plenty of fish for all their friends.

AN OLD RESIDENT DEAD.

Robert Anderson Passed Away Early This Morning.

The death is announced of Robert Anderson, which occurred at his home on East Second street at an early hour this morning. His death resulted from a complication of diseases and old age, heart trouble being the direct cause. He was seventy-seven years old and leaves two sons, Robert W. Anderson, of Honolulu, and Dr. A. Willis Anderson, of this city.

Mr. Anderson was born at Trenton, Dec. 7th, 1820. In early life he engaged in the clothing trade in Columbia, S. C., where he remained for a time, and previous to the war married Miss Mary Walker, of New York.

His wife died at the close of the war, and after her death he went to Asheville, N. C., for a time and finally came to Plainfield, locating at the corner of Front street and Watchung avenue, where he continued in the hardware business up to the time of his death.

Mr. Anderson was for many years a partner with the late Cora O. Meeker in the hardware business here. He was a consistent member of the Crescent Avenue church and was a regular attendant up to within a few weeks of his death. He was a brother of Miss Eliza Anderson who lived with him, and also of Mrs. M. A. Meeker, of Front street and Watchung avenue. Notice of the funeral appears in another column.

A RECORD ROSE TREE.

Mammoth Proportions of a Comparatively Young Bush.

A remarkable rose tree grows in the gardens of the Chateau Eleonore, in Cannes, the summer residence of Lord Brougham, a nephew of the famous chancellor. The plant, says the New York Herald, is a variety of the tea rose known as "Marie Van Houthe." Though only six years old it already measures 67 feet in circumference, and will, if permitted, grow very much larger. Lord Brougham attributes its extraordinary dimensions principally to the soil, which consists of rich loam of great depth, and also to the liberal way in which its appetite for manure is satisfied. This tree is planted on the slope which descends from the house to the main road. It is of interest to recall the fact that the Chateau Eleonore was the first winter residence built at Cannes, which, it may indeed be said, was literally "discovered" by Chancellor Brougham, uncle of the present owner, while in the beautiful garden, not far from this gigantic rose bush, is still to be seen a tree beneath the shadow of which the great chancellor used to sit toward the evening of his busy life. The chateau itself remains much as it was when he lived in it, but the gardens have been greatly extended and improved, now containing a fine collection of palms, cocos, shrubs, and all sorts of flowers. The gardens are, however, specially famous for their tea roses, of which 150 varieties are grown, and are beyond all question, the finest in Europe.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redying. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? EXCITING PRELUDE TO A MARRIAGE

Lovers, Objecting Parents, Policeman and Minister Figure in It.

THE WEDDING TOOK PLACE THOUGH

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harold Opposed the Marriage of Their Daughter Lyda to a New York Man Saturday Afternoon—Refused Consent But the Event Solemnized

Romantic marriages in which parental opposition has been prominent have been the fad with Hymen in Plainfield for the last month or so, and Saturday afternoon another such affair was added to the list of matrimonial events.

For a long time Joseph McGraw, of New York, has been courting Miss Lyda Harold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Harold, of 142 East Fifth street. The courtship did not meet with the approval of the bride's parents, who had asked their daughter to terminate it. Miss Lyda is a prepossessing blonde, pleasant and popular among her companions, and though young McGraw was not permitted to call on her at home, she frequently met him clandestinely.

Saturday morning Mr. McGraw came to Plainfield and met Miss Harold. They decided to be married that day, if possible with the consent of her parents, but at any hazard to be made man and wife.

Soon after lunch, the would-be groom called at the house and without delay the daughter broached the subject of marriage to her parents. The latter would not listen to the proposition of the wedding taking place that day, and asked that it be postponed till next Wednesday. On the other hand, the lovers were just as perverse in there intention of being joined that afternoon. The argument was continued and tho parents, particularly Mr. Harold, became very excited. He demanded that the young McGraw leave the house, but there was some dissent about complying with the request, and word was sent for a policeman.

Patrolman McCue went to the residence. Mr. Harold was scarcely able to contain himself. He demanded that McGraw be arrested. The officer learned what the trouble was and told the young man that he had better leave or else he would be compelled to arrest him, though he was loath to perform such a duty.

"All right, sir," said McGraw, "I'll get out."

"Well, if he goes, I go to," passionately exclaimed the daughter

Previous to this Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, had been sent for to act as peacemaker, and about this time he also arrived on the scene. The daughter consented to remain and see if the minister could not amicably arrange matters.

Though Rev. Mr. Herring used his most persuasive manner in the attempt to placate the objecting parents but he utterly failed, as they resolutely refused to give their consent to the couple being married.

During the time that the plea was being made, young McGraw paced nervously back and forth in front of the house. The consciousness that there was parently opposition in defiance of all rules of Cupid, together with the delay and the cold, piercing wind that almost benumbed him as he awaited the decision, aggravated him.

When it was seen that Mr. and Mrs. Harold were not to be changed in their refusal to permit the wedding to take place at that time, Miss Harold joined her waiting lover at the gate, and accompanied by Rev. Mr. Herring, they went to the latter's home on East Second street, and there the nuptial knot was tied.

They afterward left on a bridal tour to Boston and on their return will reside in New York.

A Press reporter called at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harold this morning, but the latter absolutely refused to say a word about the affair.

Bad Cut in His Head.

Daniel Sullivan, a gardener, living at Fanwood, in returning from New York on Saturday night, jumped off of a train which did not stop at Fanwood. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to the Muhlenberg Hospital, where upon examination it was discovered that he had a scalp wound. The man was properly treated, and will be confined only a few days.

—No license cases were up in the Somerset county court to day. Only assault and minor cases were on.

INCITED BY SUNDAY RUM

PISTOL SHOTS MAKE UP A FIGHT OF WESTFIELD BUMS.

Pugilist by Name of Moore Sent Two Men Sprawling on the Floor, Then Bly Got Fly and Made Things Hot by a Shot.

The Sunday serenity of Westfield was disturbed yesterday afternoon by a good-sized row, which might have ended in a murder.

Robert Moore, with a number of companions, had been drinking freely all day, and about two o'clock in the afternoon got into a dispute near the railway station with Mason Frank Ledley. Moore is an expert boxer and soon laid out Ledley and also Liveryman William H. Barton, who interfered and tried to stop the fight. Constable Todd arrested Moore.

A short time afterwards, John Bly, one of Moore's drinking companions, took offense at a remark in reference to Moore's conduct, made in his hearing by Thomas Tolsom, a colored man. Bly demanded a retraction from the negro, and not getting it, drew a revolver, quick as a flash, and fired. The bullet missed its mark and before he could fire again Bly was disarmed and arrested.

Moore and Bly were arraigned before Justice Collins, and in default of bail were committed to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. They were taken to Elizabeth on the 3.42 train yesterday afternoon.

A FIGHT NOT ON THE SCHEDULE.

A Pugnacious Dog Chewed the Nose of an Inoffensive Cow.

There was war on the local football field Saturday afternoon before the game. A cow belonging to D. N. Groendyke, of Mercer avenue, was peacebrowsing in a far corner of the field when a bulldog belonging to a man named Green appeared. The dog is noted for its pugnacious qualities, and without more ado the canine tackled the cow by the nose. The beast threw her head but still the dog hung on. Things began to grow lively and some of the football players came to the rescue. They were for smashing life out of the dog with an extra goal post, but the owner of the brute objected as he considered the life of his pet more valuable than the cow's nose. At last the bulldog loosened his grip after he had chewed up the nose of the poor cow. The latter was badly hurt and bled freely. She was taken to her stable for treatment. A large crowd saw the fight.

SMOKE AND TALK.

Young Republicans Eschew Politics and Have a Good Time.

Tobacco smoke and young Republican voters filled the Republican Association rooms to overflowing Saturday evening when the Young Men's Republican Club held its "smoker." Each young man was presented with a pipe and package of tobacco and while they sat and smoked, they were entertained with stories, songs and exhibitions of skill by a lightning change artist.

John F. Dillon, a professional comic singer and story teller from New York and Emil Cichss, a pantomine and lightning change artist from Newark, were the principal entertainers and kept their audience in a continual roar of laughter. Alfred E. Holmes and William H. Runyon, of this city, sang in their usual excellent manner and their efforts were well received. The audience was a large and enthusiastic one.

FIERCELY FOUGHT FOOTBALL GAME

Plainfield Defeated the Rahway Boys By a Score of 18 to 0.

BRILLIANT INDIVIDUAL WORK DONE.

Plainfield Had the Strongest Eleven Ever Put on the Gridiron From This City—The Crowd Was Large and Their Yells Could be Heard for Blocks Away.

When the football eleven of the Rahway Athletic Club appeared on the Y. M. C. A. grounds Saturday afternoon to do battle with the Y. M. C. A. team, there was a murmur of consternation from many of the spectators. The visitors looked as if they could play football, and so they could but not as well as the Plainfield boys. Plainfield was represented by the strongest team that has ever played on the gridiron under her name and excellent team work, combined with plenty of brilliant individual playing, gave the home team a victory by a score of 18 to 0. It was a good game, a trifle one-sided, perhaps, but the Rahway boys fought fiercely enough to make it exciting. The crowd was the largest that has yet attended a game this season, and included a number of the gentler sex.

The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD.		RAHWAY.
Serrell	right end	Wilkins
Dupee	right tackle	Polan
Brown	right guard	Coddington
Cuming	centre	Armstrong
Milne	left guard	Mooney
Peck	left end	Miller
Waring	quarter back	Wilson
Freeman(Cap)	right half back	Plume
Cathcart	left half back	Wilson
Darling, Smith	fullback	Dubyns

Touchdowns for Plainfield—Smith 2; Cathcart, Milne; for Rahway—0. Goals—for Plainfield Milne; for Rahway 0.

Referee—Arthur Maurice, of Rahway. Umpire—Royal T. Phillips, of Plainfield.

Linesmen—A. Willis West and Carroll Runyon, of Plainfield.

Plainfield defended the eastern goal and Rahway took the kickoff. Serrell caught it. Cathcart bucked the centre for eight yards, and gradually the ball was worked down toward Rahway's goal, Cathcart making two runs of fifteen yards. Rahway got the ball on her two yard line by the quarterback running with it. Dubyns kicked to Waring on the twenty yard line. Cathcart, aided by splendid interference, circled the right end, dodged the Rahway fullback and crossed the line for a touchdown. Waring missed the goal. Score, Y. M. C. A., 4. Rahway, 0. Time, 7 minutes.

Freeman caught the ball on the kick off and ran twenty yards. Then Plainfield's centre began to show its superiority and although the Rahway men laid on the line they could not stop it and good gains were made in that direction. Rahway got the ball on a fumble only to lose it on a blocked kick when the indispensible Brown fell on it. Plainfield was given five yards on offside play. Rahway recovered the ball on her three yard line and kicked to Freeman. Darling retired and Smith took his place. Cathcart bucked the center for fifteen yards and Smith through left tackle for a touchdown. Milne kicked the goal. Score, Y. M. C. A., 10; Rahway, 0.

Dupee returned the kickoff and the first half ended with the ball in the center of the field.

The only change in the second half was that Pope was substituted for McClure at tackle. Rahway braced up and began to gain around the ends. Serrell blocked a kick and Waring got the ball. Then Plainfield resumed her offensive play. Cathcart and Freeman carried the ball to Rahway's forty-five yard line and then Smith circled the left end and raced away down the field while the Rahway backs vainly tried to catch him. He crossed the line and scored another touchdown. Milne missed the goal. Score, Y. M. C. A., 14; Rahway, 0.

Smith went into the line and Dupee took his place and after a few minutes' play Smith retired and McClure was put at tackle. It was growing dark fast. Freeman and Dupee circled the ends in fine form for long gains while Cathcart backed the centre advantageously. Dubyns tried to kick on his twenty-five-yard line but it was blocked and Serrell fell on it fifteen yards from Rahway's goal with two minutes to play. Two downs brought the ball to the two-yard line with fifteen seconds to play. Then a pretty trick was worked and Milne pushed across the line for a touchdown. He missed the goal and time was called. Score, Y. M. C. A., 18; Rahway, 0.

A House Looted.

One of the houses at Picton, belonging to Mrs. Mary Ayliffe, was found to have been robbed Saturday. The house is fully furnished, but unoccupied. Mrs. Ayliffe went away about three weeks ago and did not return until Saturday, so it is impossible to tell just when the house was broken into. Cut glass and silverware were taken, and some bedding and clothing. The value of the stolen goods will amount to about $200.

THROUGH FIELDS AND OVER FENCES

A Hurdle Chase in Which a Cop Was Outwitted by a Negro.

COLORED MAN HAD BEEN FIGHTING.

He First Tried to Escape With a Horse, But Acting Roundsman Totten Was the Fastest, and Then the Culprit Jumped from the Wagon and Took a Fast Sprint

Acting-Roundsman Totten has decided that hurdling is a very necessary accomplishment of a policeman. He came to that decision Saturday afternoon after an exciting chase after an evil-doer.

Totten was on duty Saturday afternoon near the North Avenue station when S. S. Guion, of Carleton avenue, drove up and told him that Harry E. Cramer, of Watchung avenue, wanted a policeman as a fight was in progress at Isaac Brown's dumping ground, near Watchung avenue. Mr. Guion drove the officer to the scene of action, where the latter learned that two colored men, named William Brown and Christopher Malbry, had gone to the dump with their horses and wagons and there gotten into a quarrel. Brown had chased Mabry around with a pithfork, and they were in the midst of a rough and tumble fight when the officer arrived.

Totten started in to have a hand in the fray but the scrappers took to flight. Totten followed Brown to the corner of Ninth street and Third place where Brown's brother, Edmond Brown, was waiting with a horse and wagon. Now Acting Roundsman Totten can run when it's necessary and he hustled after the brothers in the rig. The horse was not built on the lines of a "Maud S," or "Salvator" and the officer began to gain. On West Eight street, Brown jumped out of the wagon and continued the race on foot, greatly refreshed by his ride. Totten's blood was up, however, and he began to overhaul the colored man at West Seventh and Liberty street.

Brown, with Totten close behind, took to the yard and jumped the fence all the way to Plainfield avenue. The negro cleared the fences in fine style while the policemen got over them somehow, cutting a slice out of his hand in an encounter with some barbed wire Brown increased his lead by this scheme and ran for his home on West Third street, throwing off his coat as he ran. Totten again lessened the distance between them, but finally lost track of the offender who managed to hide somewhere in the thickly settled portion of the West End.

Totten, however, captured the brother and arrested him for assisting his brother to escape. City Judge DeMeza held him in $100 bail for trial on Saturday. Mabry was also arrested by Totten. He pleaded guilty in fighting but said it was done in self defence. City Judge DeMeza held him in $50 bail for Saturday's trial.

The guests were received by the Misses Cooley, Walz, Evans and Huntington. A large number attended. In the evening the golfers of the Hillside Club gave their visitors a dinner at the Union County Country Club.

CRAMER TO OPPOSE REED

A BRANCHBURG DEMOCRAT IS NAMED FOR THE SENATE.

Robert Lamont Chairman of the Convention, and in Accepting the Honor He Made a Great Speech—Assembly Contest.

[Special to The Daily Press.]

Somerville, Oct. 19—James Trewin, of Somerville, by authority of Joseph W. Ballentine, the chairman of the Somerset County Democratic Executive committee, called the Democratic County Convention to order at a few minutes past 11 o'clock, and Robert Rives Lamont, of Bound Brook, was elected temporary chairman. Mr. Lamont made a lively speech that was well received by the convention. He was roundly encored. His speech was masterly. He is the son of George Lamont, president of the Bound National Bank, and who was a candidate on the Prohibition ticket for Governor a few years ago.

The convention was a lively one, and there was present many well-known leading citizens from different parts of the county. Charles N. Hoagland, of Franklin, was elected secretary. North Plainfield was represented on several of the committees by the following delegates: Credentials, W. H. Smith, the quarryman; permanent organization, H. M. Cooke; rules, George Kirch; resolutions, John Vetterlein. The convention then took a recess until 1:30.

There are mentioned as candidates for Senator the names of ex-Senator W. J. Keys, of Somerville, ex-Assemblyman George Cramer, of Branchburgh, and Andrew Lane, of Hillsborough. For Assemblyman's honors there is a large number of candidates. The indications at this writing are that ex-Assemblyman Cramer will be the nominee. The Assembly candidate cannot be foretold at present. The available candidate must come from a different section from that of the Senatorial nominee.

William Henry Rogers, of Warren township, the ploughshare poet of the second mountain, is a delegate and a member of the Committee on Resolutions.

On reconvening at 1:35 o'clock this afternoon the temporary organization was made permanent. Nominations for State Senator were then called for. George Hall, of Branchburg, presented the name of George H. Cramer, of Branchburg.

J. J. Meehan and W. J. Logan, both of Bridgewater, were named, but declined. David J. Carney, of North Plainfield, seconded Cramer's nomination, and moved that it be made unanimous. The motion was carried.

Thomas P. Gallagher, of Somerville, Charles Somer, of Branchburg, G. W. Anderson, of Hillsboro, and W. J. Logan, of Bridgewater, were named for Assemblymen. The platform of the Chicago convention was unanimously adopted. After recess Mr. Logan was nominated.

HAVE BLOCKED THE STREET.

The Structure is Wider than the Thoroughfare and Trouble is Ahead.

Chatham street near the extension of Watchung avenue has been blocked since Saturday by a house owned by Thomas Rutledge. The house recently stood on Race street and the owner wanted to move it on his lot on Chatham street. The street is thirty feet wide and the house is thirty-five feet long. Mr. Rutledge thought however, that he could get the house though the street. In the attempt a fence owned by Mrs. Horton was removed and several trees cut down. The property owners objected to this sort of thing and Mayor Hegeman decided that no more trees should be cut down or any further damage committed, but that Mr. Rutledge must remove the kitchen part of the house before another move was made. The house stills stands in its present position and Chief Marshal Wilson is on duty to see that Mayor Hegema'n orders are complied with.

Too Many Decoctions.

West Third street was not big enough for Michael Gleason Saturday night. After loading up with numerous glasses of various decoctions, he thought that he owned Day's saloon. Patrolman Post assured him that he didn't and started to lead him jailward. Their path was not exacty straight, as Gleason was constantly acquiring notions that he wanted to go somewhere else. Post finally landed his prisoner in the lockup, but was nearly exhausted by his efforts. This morning Gleason was fined $5 for his fun by City Judge DeMeza.

Mrs. C. F. Leggett, president of the Whatsoever Circle of the King's Daughters, received $7 this afternoon from Miss Mamie Thatcher on the amount raised by her lawn festival for the Babies Fresh Air Camp last August.

THE WAY PLAIN FOR THE SIMPLEST

Rev. C. A. Herring Makes a Parable From His Tour.

SAYS THE WAY OF LIFE IS PREPARED.

The Best Road the Minister Knows of is the Way of Life, But it is Not Always Represented as Scripture Tells—The Right Way Obedience to God's Will.

While Rev. C. E. Herring was traveling through Europe on his wheel last summer there were several things which suggested themselves to his mind as good texts for sermons. Last evening at the First Presbyterian church, Mr. Herring gave his first talk from the text "Semplice diritte," which translated means simply direct. The text was commonly used in Italy. It will be noticed in the reverend's remarks that he gives the same expression in the Belgium and German language. It is not Mr. Herring's purpose at present to deliver sermons on his trip but simply to give a course of talks preparatory to a series of illustrared sermons which will be given early in November. He spoke as follows:

"There were three expressions I soon learned the meaning of when travelling through the continent. They were lout droit in Belgium, gerade aus in Germany and simple diritto in Italy. A thousand miles or more in a strange land and among people of various languages might seem a difficult task, but yet when I asked the way the answer was simply direct, altogether direct, straight out. These words were sounded in my ears a great many times and it seemed so strange that in all these countries the thought was the same. The way is plain, the way is simple. It was easier to find than the way in our own country. My mind then reverted to that verse in the thirty-fifth of Isaiah which says. 'a highway shall be there a way of holiness so plain that the simplest shall have no difficulty in finding it.'

"The way of life is a prepared way. Talk about good roads; the best road I know of is the way of life. It is sometimes represented as being difficult but that is not the representation of scripture. The best road for you to travel is the one prepared for pilgrims to the eternal city."

"The way of life is a direct way—simple and direct. It requires no great learning to find it. The man with no pretence to learning finds it readily. God has chosen the foolish things of this world, and they find them when the wiser ones fail.

"It is a holy way; nothing unclean passes over it. It is a way of holiness because it is the way of obedience to God's commands. There are laws for the highway and they will be strictly enforced. The owner of the highway is rigid in his requirements. Blessed are the undefiled in the way who walk in the law of the Lord.

"It is a secure way. No liar is there. Holiness in a man's life is a safeguard against temptation.

"God's presence is on the way. The marginal reading puts 'He shall be with them' instead of 'and it shall be for those' which gives a better sense. The simple man is not trusting to his own simplicity. He is so simple he can let God guide him. Wise men prefer no such guidance.

"It is a way where you find good company. The redeemed of the Lord walk there. All are brethren traversing that road.

"There is a destination looked for. My thought was, I am aiming for the eternal city. I cared more about Rhine, the eternal city than any city along the route. So the traveler is looking for the eternal city, Zion. The ransomed of the Lord shall return to Zion and when he reaches that city joy that shall be everlasting shall be his."

First Evangelistic Services.

The first of a series of evangelistic services was held at the First M. E. church last evening, under the direction of Dr. Barnes, the pastor. A short sermon was preached from the subject "What is sin and who is the sinner?" It was a forcible discourse. Several present read short scripture selections and offered prayer. The service was especially helpful to all. Next Sunday evening Dr. Barnes will take for his text "Human Remedies for Sin," and on the following Sunday evening "Divine Remedies for Sin." He will demonstrate the great difference between the two remedies. The music last evening was not one of the least of the features.

—Four street cars were transferring their possengers at North and Watchung avenues Saturday night, when a fresh bicyclist rode by and shouted: "Trains for all parts of the world; all aboard."

TALKS TO NEWSBOYS

Mr. Bryan Breaks a Rule Not To Make Speeches on Sunday.

DID SO TO OBLIGE A FRIEND

Made a Brief Address at Newsboys Hall in Detroit Last Night---At His Own Request Only a Few Visitors, Outside the Boys, Were Present.

Detroit, Oct. 19.—The rule established by William J. Bryan to avoid any public utterances on Sunday was broken last night when he spoke briefly to a gathering of newsboys at the Newsboys' hall. He did it to oblige his friend and supporter, Col. I. B. Butler, president of the Newsboys' association. At Mr. Bryan's request the affair was kept very quiet, and outside of the little vendors a few visitors only were present. This was his speech, in part: "Boys, I did not come to make a speech to-night, because this is the day I rest and I have felt the need of having a day of rest more recently than ever before. But I came because I never like to decline an invitation to be present at any place where an endeavor is being made to do good. And I don't know of any work which is better than that work which is done for boys. We were all boys once—and some of us not so very long ago—and when I see boys I am reminded of what one of our presidents—I think it was Garfield—said: That you couldn't tell what possibilities were buttoned up under the vest of a boy. We are not ourselves responsible for the surroundings of youth. We are born in this world and the surroundings meet us, and to a certain extent they affect us. But beyond that we have much to do with shaping our course. What we amount to in this world depends upon the ideas which we have. Some one has said that a person who aims at the stars will shoot higher, which simply means that those who have the highest ideas will accomplish the most. A meeting of this kind, where they teach patriotism, where they teach you regard for each other, respect for each other's rights, necessarily elevates your ideas, gives you broader views of life, and those views will help you to accomplish more. I want you to remember that no good ever comes to boys or men from doing wrong, and that right always pays. I know it is hard always to believe, but if you take the broad view of life and its possibilities you will find that it always pays to do what you believe is right. I want you to remember this also: That you are not the only ones who are benefitted by these things, because the Creator has so arranged the things of this world that when we try to help others we help ourselves. If I can leave this idea with you, I think that it may be of use to you: That the highest good that can come to you is from service—from doing something for others and you will find among your playmates that the boy who does most for the boys around him is the boy who is liked best and is the boy who enjoys himself most." Mr. and Mrs. Bryan attended services at the Westminster Presbyterian church during the morning in company with Col. I. G. Butler, Hon. Justin R. Whiting, candidate for the lieutenant-governorship on the fusion ticket; Mrs. Whiting and John W. Tomlinson of Alabama. At 11 o'clock last night the party retired on board the special car Idler, which left at 4 o'clock this morning for Dayton, O., where the candidate is scheduled to speak to-night.

THE BELIEF AT CONSTANTINOPLE

Understood That Such Arrangements Have Been Made by the Washing Government with the Sublime Porte.

London, Oct. 19.—The Constantinople representative of the United Associated Presses telegraphs that considerable anxiety is felt regarding the condition of affairs in Caeserin. It is believed in Constantinople that the Washington government has arranged with the porte for a peaceable passage of the Dardanelles by the United States practice ship Bancroft. Mr. Terrell, the American minister, has not, however, applied for permission for the passage of a guardship since last January, when the porte objected to the presence of an American vessel in the Bosphorus, on the ground that if permission should be granted to the United States the smaller nations would follow her example and also ask for guardships.

READING REORGANIZATION.

Receivers To Turn the Property over to the New Company on Dec. 1.

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—Plans for the reorganization of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad company are now almost complete, and unless hindered by some unforseen obstacle the property will be formally turned over by the receivers to the company on Dec. 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year. The title of the New company will be the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad company, and its organization will mark an important era in the history of the great corporation, as with its foundation will disappear the old charter, which was one of the most valuable and comprehensive ever granted by the legislature of Pennsylvania. Application will be made for a new charter under the laws of the commonwealth, which will bring the company within the provisions of new constitution and greatly curtail its powers. The most important change as a result, will be the severance of the coal and iron company from the railroad company.

RIGHTS OF LITTLE ONES.

Let Them Have Their Own Property and Their Own Responsibilities.

There are many parents who have a great prejudice against locks and keys in the hands of children. By some curious process of reasoning they seem to resent anything that their children incline to keep from them.

In a conversation not long since a middle-aged lady sharply criticised some remarks made by the young mother of a growing family. This woman said that she never allowed her little ones to have any secrets from her, and never permitted them to have a key to anything.

"It cultivates secretive habits," she said, "and might make them deceitful."

The woman of experience related an incident in her early life that made quite an impression upon her hearers.

"I was," she said, "the oldest daughter of the family. My brothers were, I suppose, like all boys, boisterous, careless and rough, and when they got hold of my frail and delicate toys there would be nothing left of them in a very short time. In my room was a little bureau, the key of which had long been lost. I had some ingenuity, and, finding an old key, I filed it and fitted it until it would turn the lock. In this bureau I put all my treasures and wore the key on a ribbon around my neck. For some time no one seemed to be aware that I had anything locked up, and I myself did not realize that I was committing a very grave offense in doing so.

One day, after a visit to one of the neighbors, I went to my room, found the drawers of the bureau turned bottom upwards on my bed and the lock broken. I went downstairs with a bitter complaint against what I supposed to be the boys' intrusion, but was met by the angry face of my mother, who asked me what I meant by locking things up, and what I had secreted there that I was afraid some one would see. I think in the whole course of life I never had a greater shock. I was hurt, indignant; my sense of justice was completely outraged, my ideas of propriety were rudely upset. I declared that there was nothing to conceal, as anybody could see who had opened the drawers. As soon as my nerves got a little steady I showed some anger, but this was nipped in the bud by a most severe punishment, and a peremptory order never, as long as I was under my mother's roof, to be guilty of a like offense. It took me a long time to understand that there are people in the world so cruelly jealous of their power over and control of their children that they cannot endure to have a thought concealed from them. I never tried to keep any of my treasures out of sight in the house after that—indeed I never saved many things. It made me careless, heedless and indifferent. I had no distinct personality of my own as far as that house was concerned, and I found myself taking advantage of the affection of a lady, where I often visited, by putting in her possession the few things I cared enough for to keep. After awhile this was found out and there was more trouble.

"For years I suffered from this indignity, and am sure that it had its effect upon my entire life. There is no characteristic in a child that should be so carefully treated as its sentiments about its own personal rights. Of course, these should never be permitted to encroach on the province of others; but self-respect can be maintained only when a child is allowed a certain amount of individuality, and to think its thoughts in its own way, and to feel that it has a right to something of its own. I believe that if every boy or girl, from the time it is able to go about the house, had its own room, its own property, and its own responsibilities, it would develop faster, grow stronger and come to a more symmetrical and useful career than it is possible when it is perpetually irritated by the cross-purposes of common property and the feeling that what has been given it it holds only by the grace of superior power."—N. Bath Money.

Among the Turks bath money forms an item in every marriage contract, the husband engaging to allow his wife a certain sum for bathing purposes. Should it be withheld she has only to go before the cadi and turn her slipper upside down, and if the complaint be not redressed then it is a ground for divorce.

that cough or throat trouble may go to your lungs. What does that mean?

HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR

Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar isn't claimed to cure consumption, but it will often prevent it. A positive cure for a cough. Sold by druggists.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in one minute.

out in the rain

A good drenching in a cold rain is often the beginning of consumption. Yet no one claims that the germs of this disease exist in the rainwater. Then how was this brought about? The exposure was followed by a cold; the vitality was lowered; the cough continued for some weeks; the throat and lungs became congested; and thus all the conditions were favorable for the consumption germs.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, does not directly attack these germs and kill them. But it does tone up the whole system and restores the body to health before serious harm is done. The germs of consumption thrive best when the system is weakened and the throat and lungs congested. Do not delay until it is too late, but treat your cough early. Cod-liver oil and the hypophosphites, in the form of Scott's Emulsion, are the very best remedies.

"JUST AS GOOD" IS NOT SCOTT'S EMULSION.

PARIS AT SOUTHAMPTON.

The Crippled American Line Steamship Reaches Port Safely.

Southampton, Oct. 19.—The American line steamship Paris, Capt. Watkins, from New York, Oct 7, before reported as proceeding with her starboard engine disabled, arrived here yesterday. As soon as she was in her dock she was boarded by a representative of the United Associated Presses, who interviewed Capt. Watkins as to the accident that befell the engine. Capt. Watkins said that the accident occurred at 8:40 o'clock on the morning of October 8. The starboard shaft broke in the tube at a point about fifty feet from the propeller. The vessel at once stopped and remained stationary for an hour. After a close internal and external examination had been made it was decided not to turn back for New York, but to proceed for Southampton under the port engine. The Paris was 353 miles from New York. During the trip the Paris spoke fully twenty vessels. No attempt to patch up the break could be made owing to its position, and the Paris completed her passage under her port screw. She averaged 12 1-2 knots per hour, and would have made much better time had she not been compelled to drag her starboard screw, which materially retarded her progress. Nevertheless, she covered the course without a hitch. On Friday the passengers met in the saloon and presented a testimonial to the captain and chief engineer. During the passage the weather was rough, but no anxiety was felt, except on Wednesday last, when a heavy gale prevailed. Happily the weather was fine on the day the mishap occurred.

NO DUEL ARRANGED.

Blackburn Says He Has No Desire To Fight One of the Carlisle "Kids."

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 19.—Senator Blackburn has recovered from his recent illness and came up to Lexington yesterday. When asked concerning the prospects of a duel between himself and Logan Carlisle, he said: "I never heard of that duel until after I got sick the other day. I saw it in a newspaper while in bed. As I am not in good fighting trim, I honestly believe that duel story is a newspaper canard. If I have been considering entering into a duel, or have ever said anything about fighting young Carlisle, I must have done it in my sleep. You may rest assured that if I wanted a fight out of the Carlisle family, I never would have sought to have it with one of the kids." Mr. Blackburn has received a letter from Chairman Jones asking him to go to Indiana and follow Secretary Carlisle on his tour through the state, lasting about four days. He has not yet decided what he will do in reference to the call.

BEHIND IN THEIR WORK.

San Francisco Highbinders Have a Number of Murders on Hand.

San Francisco, Oct. 19.—The Highbinders of the Chinese colony in this city are waiting for a relaxation of police vigilence to inaugurate a reign of terror. The Chinatown police squad has been so largely increased of late that the Highbinders are afraid to take any openly concerted action, but many murderous plans are said to be on foot as a result of the efforts of Fung Yung Hang, the Chinese consul, to break up the See Yups, reputed to be the most lawless and desperate of the Highbinders cabals. The president and vice-president of the four companies comprising the See Yup society are reported to be in hiding, having learned that their death warrants have been signed by the Highbinders of their society, and that to assassins have been assigned the work of killing the officers. The Highbinders accuse their officials of treachery in having signed a treaty of peace with the officers of opposing societies, pursuant to orders from the Chinese minister at Washington. The Chinese are furious at the consul for the destruction of Highbinder rooms and Josses.

Scotland Yard Under a Cloud.

London, Oct. 19.—The home secretary, Sir Matthew White-Ridley, has expressed in decided terms his views as to the mismanagement in the case of the so-called dynamite conspirators. That there has been gross bungling somewhere is evident, and it is not improbable that the resignation of one or two of the leading officials at Scotland Yard will be announced before the last is heard of the "brilliant captures" of Tynan and his friends. Moreover, the matter will certainly be brought before parliament.

Favors Annexation of Hawaii.

Boston, Oct. 19.—German D. Gilman, formerly United States minister to Hawaii, has just received a letter from a resident of Hawaii, in which is quoted a letter from an Augusta, Me., friend, that Joseph H. Manley had informed the writer that it was Mr. McKinley's purpose, if elected to the presidency, to urge upon congress, immediately after his inauguration, the annexation of Hawaii to the United States.

Forgot His Name and Past Completely.

Mankato, Minn., Oct. 19.—A well dressed stranger, having the air of a prosperous business man, called on a physician here Saturday to see why he could not recollect his own name, home and wanderings. He came into Mankato on foot, he knows not from where, and had lost his valise and pocketbook. He is evidently an Englishmen, 50 years old. He thinks he was in Winnipeg recently, and that he was in some business there.

Big New German Steamer Launched.

Hamburg, Oct. 19.—The new twin-screw North German Lloyd steamship Queen Louise, which measures 20,000 tons and is 550 feet long, was launched Saturday at the yards of the Vulcan Shipbuilding company at Stettin.

REPUBLICAN CLAIMS

Gen. Grosvenor Now Estimates 292 Votes Sure for McKinley.

SOME DOUBT ABOUT A FEW STATES

Kansas, Virginia, Tennessee and Missouri Not Placed in the Sure Column, But He Expects They Will Give Their Votes to McKinley.

Washington, Oct. 19.—The following revised estimate has been received here from Gen. Grosvenor of Ohio: "There have been some significant changes in the situation since my first bulletin, and I have taken very great pains, by the use of all available means, to ascertain substantially what the result is to be. There is yet some doubt and uncertainty about some of the states, but I think the following may be safely placed in the absolutely sure column. McKinley and Hobart will have: New England, 39; New York, 36; New Jersey, 10; Maryland, 8; Delaware, 3; Pennsylvania, 32; West Virginia, 6; Ohio, 23; Indiana, 15; Illinois, 24; Michigan, 14; Wisconsin, 12; Iowa, 13; Minnesota, 9; South Dakota, 4; Wyoming, 3; Nebraska, 8; Kentucky, 13; Oregon, 4; Washington, 4; California, 9; North Dakota, 3. Total, 292. There are some states which I do not class as sure for McKinley, which I believe will give him their votes, to wit: Kansas, 10; Virginia, 12; Tennessee, 12; Missouri, 17. Total, 51.

Conceded To Bryan.

"The states which do not seem to be doubtful, and which must be conceded practically without controversy to Bryan, remain as in my first table, except that Florida has disclosed an uncertainty as to her status, and I think that Texas may be added to the sure vote for Bryan. North Caroliana is a doubtful state, with chances in favor of Bryan, in my opinion. Thus, we have 292 votes for McKinley and Hobart, with 224 necessary to their election. If they gain in the same ratio for the next three weeks as they have gained in the last three this is a very conservative estimate of the electoral vote for them."

SNOW-FALL AT CANTON.

Major McKinley Goes to Church in the Storm Accompanied by Union Generals.

Canton, O., Oct. 19.—When Major McKinley looked out of his window Sunday morning he saw the first snow of the season. He has thoroughly recovered from the fatigue incident to the arduous labors of Saturday. He went to church in the morning and the veteran union generals went with him. He walked home from church in the whirling snow under an umbrella with Gen. Alger on one side and Gen. O. O. Howard on the other. The train bearing the union generals arrived early in the morning. On it was Gen. and Mrs. R. A. Alger, Gen. D. E. Sickles, Gen. Thomas A. Stewart of Pennsylvania; Gen. O. O. Howard, Gen. George A. Warden of Massachusetts; Gen. James Tanner, Major J. W. Bust of Illinois; Col. G. O. Hopkins of Detroit; Col. I. N. Walker of Indianapolis. The whole party dined with Major McKinley last evening. They left for a trip through western Ohio this morning, after holding a meeting here at 7:30 o'clock.

FUNERAL OF HENRY E. ABBEY.

Remains of the Theatrical Manager To Be Interred at Northampton, Mass.

New York, Oct. 19.—The remains of Henry E. Abbey, the well known theatrical manager, who died Saturday of a complication of kidney and liver trouble, from which he had been suffering for months, will be interred tomorrow at Northampton, Mass., where his first wife is buried. Funeral services will be held in this city to-morrow at the Paulist church. William Steinway, A. M. Palmer, Augustin Daly, Frank Sanger, G. G. Havens, G. L. Rives, and his partner, John B. Schoeffel, have been selected as pall bearers. His other partner, Maurice Grau, is in Europe and is not expected to sail for home until Oct. 31.

Prince Hilkoff To Be Depew's Guest.

New York, Oct. 19.—The czar of all Russia's railroads, Prince Hilkoff, who at one time worked in a Philadelphia machine shop at a dollar per day, reached this city last evening, and after lunch at the Waldorf left for Buffalo. Prince Hilkoff is to visit Niagara Falls as the guest of the New York Central Railroad company, and will, it is understood, before sailing for Russia, some time during the present week, spend several days in this city as the guest of President Depew.

Rectorship of the Catholic University.

London, Oct. 19.—An authority at the Vatican, writing on the subject of the deposition of Bishop John J. Keane from the rectorship of the Catholic university of America, says that his successor will be chosen after the arrival in Rome of Cardinal Satolli. All the Vatican officials believe that Bishop Spalding of Peoria will be appointed to the rectorship, in view of his obtaining the donation of $300,000 made to the university by Miss Caldwell.

An American Girl's Success Abroad.

Berlin, Oct. 19.—Miss Leonore Jackson, a pupil of the famous German violinist, Joseph Joachim, who has just been brought out by Theodore Thomas in Chicago, gave a concert in the Singing academy on Saturday. The young lady met with a very enthusiastic reception, and Herr Joachim declares that she will win a European reputation.

Four Children Suffocated.

Berlin, Oct. 19.—A fire occurred in the residence of Herr Levy, a Berlin councilor of justice, Saturday night, with the result that four of Herr Levy's children were killed by suffocation.

A WASTE OF ENTERPRISE.

Again we see evidences of the new journalism right at home. Last week a North Plainfield man went fishing to New Market pond—a phase of life not uncommon to many Plainfielders with the tastes of Izaak Walton. But, distinct and unusual from the rest of the angling tribe, MacDonald, the fisherman, hooked a bicyble and brought it to the surface. No sooner had their startlin intelligence invaded the New York Journal's editorial department than an industrious reporter, with a large equipment of imagination, was assigned to write a story about the incident. In the parlance of the past, the reporter did it "up brown." Incidentally, an artist added effect to the "enterprise" with five unlifelike illustrations. And really, all about nothing. Such is pew journalism.

A DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR.

Several features that marked that jollity of the "smoker" of the Young Men's Republican Club, Saturday evening, are deserving of the severest condemnation. The attention of The Press has been called a half-dozen times this morning, and no one has been found who is willing to contradict the charges, that a portion of the evening's programme was given up to the relating of obscene and indecent stories by an alleged humorist of New York. So offensive were many of them that several who had attended with the understanding that the meeting was simply to be a pleasant and clean social affair, were compelled to retire. The Press cannot believe that the Republican campaign managers approve of such proceedings and it trusts that they will see to it that the campaign fund is not again prostituted in this manner.

HOT CONTESTS EXPECTED.

The Republican primaries will be held throughout the county tonight to elect delegates to the county convention to be held at Elizabeth next Thursday, and it goes without saying that they will be the liveliest held in some time. The great bone of contion is the choice of delegates favorable to candidates for the Shrievalty nomination. Here in Plainfield, of course, everything will be for Kirk from the word go, and in many of the townships he will have a walkover, but in Elizabeth, whose Republican loyalty is looked at in askance by Plainfield members of the party, delegates opposed to Kirk will probably be successful. However, Mr. Kirk and his backers believe that they will be successful in capturing the coveted prize at the county convention.

UNSEASONABLE TASTE.

People living in glass houses shouldn't throw stones. Some weeks ago the Westfield Standard took the Daily Press to task for publishing a special article on "June Weddings" in August. Now we have the pleasure of "getting even" by cautioning the Standard that it displays unseasonable taste in publishing a special story on "Spring Millinery" just before the snow flakes fly, as was the case in the issue of last week.

Court News.

Judgment was given the plaintiff this morning by Judge Newcorn in the case of Dewitt C. Ivins & Co. against Van Lieu.

Judge Thomas this morning gave judgment for the plaintiff in the landland and tenant case of L. M. French, director of and agent for the Home Building and Loan Association against D. C. Allen, and a dispossess notice has been served.

The Darlington, Wis., Journal says editorially of a popular patent medicine: "We know from experienee that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is all that is claimed for it, as on two occasions it stopped excruciating pains and possibly saved us from an untimely grave. We would not rest easy over night without it in the house." This remedy undoubtably saves more pain and suffering than any other medicine in the world. Every family should keep it it in the house, for it is sure to be needed sooner or later. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

MAYOR BEN ELOQUENT.

SPEAKS OF MR. REED AS A TRUE AMERICAN AND STAUNCH REPUBLICAN.

Says That North Plainfield Will Give a Republican Plurality of 400 This Year—The New County Executive Committee

All the politicans at the Somerset County Republican Convention, held at Somerville on Saturday, were completely surprised, for it was generally understood that there would be a hard fight for Senatorial honors, and while the Reed delegation knew their strength they were wholly unaware of how the opposition would act. When the crucical moment arrived and N. B. Smalley moved that the convention proceed to the nomination of a Senator and Assemblyman there was a death like stillness, as though a prisoner was on trial for his life. Then as the townships were called the names of Reed, Suydam and Schenck were placed in nomination. When North Plainfield was called Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., arose and in his most impressive manner spoke somewhat as follows:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: "North Plainfield comes here with a candidate who needs no introduction, but I would like to say a few words. It has been truly said that Somerset county is a rural county. Is our candidate fitted to represent the county? He was born and lived on a farm until he reached his majority, when he branched out into a broader field. Plainfield claims that her candidate is better fitted, owing to his early training. He knows the farmers needs and how to get at them. He made a grand record in the Assembly last year and we take great pride in the 'Tall Sycamore from Somerset.'

"In 1842 a lawyer was elected to the Senate and there has been none since then. Candidates have come to North Plainfield beaten and we have elected them. This year we will make the majority 400. I take great pleasure in presenting for your consideration Charles A. Reed, a true American and a staunch Republican."

Loud and continued applause then followed. After the vote was taken and it was known that Mr. Reed had received the nomination there was a general outburst of applause. Later, Mr. Reed, Mr. Van Doren, the Assembly nominee, and Congressman Howell were escorted to the convention and each made a speech.

The vacancies on the county executive committee were filled as follows: Bernards, C. McMichael; Branchburg, A. Baird; Bridgewater, L. A. Thompson, J. D. Hornby, Jr., G. W. Hope; Franklin, T. E. Laird, R. A. Ross, C. V. N. Suydam; Hillsborough, A. Baird, J. V. D. VanDoren; North Plainfield, H. N. Spencer, G. W. Bullman.

At the close of the convention a resolution was adopted that hereafter each township be allowed five delegates.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—There will be Danish services in the German Lutheran church tonight at 8 o'clock.

—The Young Men's Republican Club will hold a meeting this evening after the Republican primaries.

—On Thursday and Friday afternoon and evening there will be a parlor sale at 325 West Second street, (Rev. E. Kionka's), for the benefit of the German Lutheran church.

—Muhlenberg Hospital is very much in need of sheets three yards long and two-and-a-half yard wide. A quick responce to this appeal will be appreciated by those present.

—Railroad Detective John Blackford is hustling out the depot loungers, hackmen and all. Last night he ordered a delegation of drivers out of the smoking room, and declared in emphatic terms that they'd go before the City Judge if they didn't stay out doors.

—As the frosty nights are at hand Woodcock will be migrating. So hunters look out for them, as Cliffton & Campbell, the commission merchants, of 230 Park avenue, have a standing order for fresh killed birds, and will pay the highest market price for them.

—Two drivers of vehicles passing each other in front of the Presbyterian church on East Front street at 9 o'clock last evening, came together with a crash. No serious damage was done to either rig, but the drivers should have been arrested for using the language they did.

—Mrs. Katherine D. Lawrence, of this city, who contributed an article to the New York Evening Post, January 4, 1896, on the story of the writing of the Star Spangled Banner, has had it reproduced in pamphlet form, which can be purchased at Estil's book store. It is very interesting.

The Fact That Doctors

frequently advise change of air and climate to those suffering from catarrh is proof that catarrh is a local and climatic disease. Therefore, unless you can leave home and buisness, you should use Ely's Cream Balm. Applied directly to the seat of the disease, it effects instant relief and a satisfactory cure after short continuance. No mercury nor injurious drug is contained in the Balm.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Joseph Wadsworth, of Yale College, spent Sunday at his home on West Eighth street.

Major Morris, of Newark, was the guest yesterday of M. C. Dobbins, of Elmwood place.

Miss Libby Joseph, of Manning avenue, is spending a week in New York with relatives.

Ernest Mallard, of North avenue, enters today upon the duties of his new position with Ricksecker, of New York.

W. S. Chase, of West Front street, was able to go to business on Saturday after being nearly blind for two weeks, caused by poison contracted in hanging green colored wall paper.

Readers of The Press will be pained to learn of the critical condition of Miss Nellie, only child of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Merschutt, of East Front street. A consultation of Drs. Ziglio and Long was held yesterday.

Prof. Rush Rhees, of Newton Theological Seminary, delivered a powerful sermon at the First Baptist church yesterday morning from the text "Come unto Me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest."

Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, has accepted an invitation of the Westfield Christian Endeavor Local Union to deliver an address at the annual meeting of the Union in the Baptist church, Westfield, October 26.

Miss Harriet Halloway, of LaGrande avenue, served as bridesmaid, last Wednesday, at the marriage of her cousin, Miss Harriet W. Halloway, of Dover, N. J., to Ira J. Coe of the same place. The wedding took place in the Presbyterian church, whose pastor, the Rev. W. W. Halloway, is the father of the bride and performed the ceremony.

Pleasant Surprise.

A pleasant surprise was arranged and given in honor of J. E. McClintock, of West Front street, by Mrs. McClintock, on Friday evening last. It was the anniversay of Mr. McClintock's birthday and when he returned that evening from Philadelphia he was most agreeably surprised to find about forty of his friends present. He accepted the situation in his usual happy manner. The evening was passed in playing progressive whist and at a late hour refreshments were served. When the guests departed they wished their host many happy returns of the day.

Two Rigs Collided.

Saturday evening there was a collision between two rigs under the Park avenue railroad bridge. One wagon belonging to a resident of South Plainfield ran into a wagon owned by a man named Lambertson of Scotch Plains. The latters horse, frightened by a passing train, began to balk. Finally he fell down and broke the shafts and traces. The horse tried to run away but was bravely caught by Frank Meeker, an employe of Marsh Ayers & Co. The other rig was not damaged.

Wants His Dog Back.

Judge Newcorn issued a search warrant Saturday in the case of Carl Lovenklau against James Frisbie. The plaintiff alleged that the defendant stole a dog from his premises recently, as told exclusively in Friday's Press. The warrant was given to Constable Mattox, who searched the premises, and learned that Frisbie had the dog. He promised to deliver the dog at Judge Newcorn's office this afternoon.

Needn't Marry Her.

Judge Mosher gave his decision this morning in the case of Williams against Carvell as no cause for action. The defendant was accordingly discharged.

—A slight error was made last week in reporting the meeting of the Town Improvement Association. That part which referred to grocers sweeping rubbish into the streets was meant to include all tradesmen and not grocers alone.

—The fifth anniversary of Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., will be celebrated next Monday evening in an auspicious manner.

Many lives of usefulness have been cut short by neglect to break up an ordinary cold. Pneumonia, bronchitis and even consumption can be averted by the prompt use of One Minute Cough Cure. L. W. Randolph, 144 West Fron street.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

SCOTCH PLAINS.

A gang of Plainfield hoodlums invaded the waiting rooms at the Fanwood station, Saturday evening, late, and made themselves obnoxious by their cat-calls and obscene language. Night Agent Dean tried to reason with them, but it had no effect and their disgraceful actions were continued until they boarded the train for home.

The facilities for the reception and output of freight in the Central Railroad yard at Fanwood are said to be altogether too small to meet the demand, and the company will be asked to arrange better accommodations.

The Engineering, Construction and Supply Company, with stone crushers on the mountains, have received a consignment of horses from Woodbridge, so as to enable the company to cart stones fast enough to fill orders.

The Democratic primary to select delegates to the county convention to be held at Elizabeth, tomorrow, was held in the parlors of Bucket and Engine Company's house, Saturday evening, and the attendance was fair. The delegates were authorized to fill their own vacancies. Charles H. French was elected a member of the Democratic county executive committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Paff, Sr., entertained Plainfield relatives at dinner, yesterday.

To use a youthful expression, W. S. Emery's poll-parrot "is a dandy." It sounds so odd to see the knowing bird crane its neck and plainly utter the words, "Ah, there!". The parrot furnishes much amusement for the boarders and patrons of the hotel.

Tonight will bring to a close the Indian show in Excelsior Hall. To morrow the Indians will leave for Milburn, after which they will go to Plainfield for an indefinite stay.

THE SONG OF THE CAMP.

Camping out; what rarest pleasure of the sportsman's golden leisure
When he bids adieu to worldly care,
And is lost amid the glory of creation's primal story
In the woodland, miles away from anywhere.

When the morning sunlight gleaming o'er the hills with all the seeming
Of the light that warms Arcadia's verdant shore,
Marks a vision to inspire in the heart the native fire
Of the free-born race that ruled these realms of yore.

Here, in perfect peace and quiet, nurtured on the frugal diet
All dependent upon skill with rod and gun,
Flow the richest founts of reason, where no hint of mortal treason
Ever dawns between the courses of the sun.

Draw the fire and turn the spittle, stir the coffee (just a little),
Sink the oven in this bed of mossy loam;
While the bonfire, brightly burning, starts, perchance, an instant's yearning
For the scenes that light the glowing hearth at home.

Reminiscent songs and stories, oft rehearsed with added glories,
Greet the ears of night with melody and jest;
Till the final, crowning number, yields to nature's touch of slumber,
And the forest sings its lullaby of rest.

—Frank C. Riehl, in Outing.

A WONDERFUL INSTRUMENT.

The sun shone delightfully on the wedding day of Miriam Brooks. The friends who offered congratulations on the auspicious occasion had less need than usual to reconcile truth and good manners; for that she was pretty and as good as she was beautiful was a fact generally conceded, even on days when she was not necessarily the objective point of all compliments; and that the character of Tom, her husband, both financially and morally, was such as is supposed to form a firm basis for the construction of a prosperous life, was equally evident.

As if this were not enough, the happy pair had been fitted out for their new career by the bride's parents with every reasonable material contrivance for comfort and pleasure which a good, but not extravagant architect could devise and a first-class furnishing warehouse could further.

The first suggestion of the imperfection which characterizes every mortal state and puts its mark on every human endeavor, came into this new joint life when Aunt Cecilia—Tom's aunt, or his fairy godmother, as he called her—made her first morning visit to the bride and tour of inspection of the house.

"Look at my beautiful new piano, Mrs.—I mean Aunt Cecilia," said Miriam, as she led the way into a pleasant room with wide outlook towards the south, supposed to be devoted more intimately to family purposes than the general reception-room. "I'm afraid it was extravagant to buy it just now, but you know I want to do all I can to make home attractive to Tom—and a little music now and then adds so much." And Miriam looked to the older woman for the approval which perhaps her own conscience did not wholly give. She was a little disappointed.

"Yes," said Aunt Cecilia, quietly; "a home without music is worse than a flower without fragrance; but I have not been accustomed to look upon a piano as an essential to that end. In my old home there was another instrument which was thought much more important to a well-ordered house, and each little girl was carefully taught the use of it, so that when she carried it with her into her husband's home it was a very important part of her outfit. The spell its music exercised was a powerful one, little understood here, but quite as useful in driving away the blues and other family pests as was the famous pipe which freed the town of Hamlin from rats."

Miriam was not yet sufficiently posted in her husband's family history to know where the "old home" was which Aunt Cecilia referred to, though it was evident, from the inflection and quality of her voice, if from nothing else, that she was a native-born American. But before the bride could satisfy her curiosity on this point, or as to the strangely seductive fiddle or horn which was in vogue there, other callers interrupted the conversation which was not destined to be taken up again for many a long day.

And some of the days which followed were all too long for the mistress of Crow's Nest, as the pretty home was called. Not that things went wrong; a tragedy would not have been so dully tiresome. Tom did not take to drink; he came home punctiliously to dinner every day, and showed his wife that deference and courtesy which a self-respecting man never omits except because he does not understand its significance.

It was after dinner that the rub came—at the hour when her youthful imagination had depicted the cheerful glow of lamp and firelight falling upon a sheet of music they two should be scanning together, or on the book which she should read aloud to her weary but contented lord. These pictures had remained fancy sketches for the most part through the accumulating years of married life.

Tom grew more and more inclined to excuse himself for a quiet hour in his den. The children seemed to find nurse's crooning voice a better preparation for the bed-time hush than anything mamma could say or sing to them, and the young men from the neighboring institution of learning, who were always dropping into Mrs. Heard's parlor for a bit of advice or encouragement, seemed never to find out that Mrs. Brooks would be glad to serve her day and generation as gracefully as that plain little woman in the next house evidently had a knack of doing.

Miriam being, as I have hinted, a sensible woman, began to look the situation in the face, hoping by dint of self-criticism to find out what she lacked which Mrs. Heard had and gave to everyone who came within her reach. The looking-glass told her that the pink and white prettiness which had been praised in the bride had vanished with her youth. But she was always nicely, even stylishly, dressed, and could not make herself believe that her personal appearance was a negative factor in the attractive influence she would like to exercise. She tried to get some enlightenment from her husband and other men she met as to Mrs. Heard's power to fascinate, for the town being a small one social lines had to be very strictly drawn, or not at all, and they happened to separate the two good ladies of this tale, so that were it not for the greater freedom from convention allowed to men, they might never have known of each other's existence. All that Miriam could learn, however, was that there was "a touch," "an atmosphere" about that other house which she was left to infer was absent from her own. A touch of brightness, she reasoned, must be supplied by household decorations which should be striking enough to attract attention, yet tasteful enough to disarm criticism. She gave herself up to the embroidery craze—that snare of those who think they cannot afford to buy works of art, therefore prefer not to know how much they are spending—and often plied her needle until her muscles were stiff, her eyes dull, and her voice sharp with the tension of worn nerves. And yet her beautiful centerpieces did not supply the charm which she had felt to be lacking to her dinner-table; her artistic sofa pillows did not invite to that repose of mind and body for which she had hoped.

That wonderful instrument, hinted at years ago by Aunt Cecilia, sometimes recurred to the dissatisfied wife, and at last, one day, she put on her hat, resolved to see that dear old lady, expressly to find out more about the subject which had never again come uppermost in the general conversation between these two good friends and relatives.

Aunt Cecilia was about starting for church when her caller arrived at her door, it being the season of Lent, and therefore of extra week-day privileges for worshipers. She invited Miriam to accompany her, promising, when she heard the object of the visit, to tell what she could about the instrument on the way thither.

What she said would perhaps not have struck Miriam forcibly but for an accidental circumstance which brought back and emphasized her discourse during the church service. They went into a pew occupied by a little woman in black, in no way specially noticeable, who moved up to make room for them without turning her face. But when the congregation began to take its part in the repetition of prayers and psalms Miriam became aware that the phrases which she had known and loved all her life were sounding on her ears with a fresh beauty and meaning. Could it be the voice of the inconspicuous little woman which was so full of tears and yet so full of joy, whose unaffected earnestness did not raise its pitch or strain its quality, and yet compelled listeners as no oratorical display of lung power could have done? Miriam could not avoid the rudeness of staring at her neighbor, whom she found she had often seen before, but only at a distance.

"I see you realize at last Mrs. Heard's power to charm," said Aunt Cecilia, on rejoining her companion at the church gate after a greeting to the little woman in black.

"Do you mean to tell me," Miriam answered, "that such a voice can be acquired, is anything but a gift of God?"

"It is that, of course, my dear child; but her mother, whom I knew well in the old country, understood the importance of learning to use God's gifts. She taught her children by precept and example that tones marred by muscular contraction or by slovenly enunciation constitute not only a remediable physical defect, but a danger to the moral character upon which the harsh sounds react to produce irritant or sullen thoughts and feelings. It is largely due to her training that the good thoughts of the sweet little woman whom we have just seen have free course through her throat and lips. It is the unimpeded beauty of her spirit which you admire."

"Thank you so much, Aunt Cecilia," —Miriam was holding the old lady's hand at parting—"you have made me see without resorting to blunt speech that my uncontrolled voice has often slashed my husband's peace of mind to bits, gashed my children's good temper and nipped some of my own best impulses in the bud. I'm afraid it's too late, now, to get the best music out of my much-abused organ, and you admit that there is not so much danger that boys will convert their voices into instruments of torture; but my best efforts shall go to the training of Baby Miriam, so that her father may praise her some day in the words which express all of King Lear's passionate but too tardy appreciation of Cordelia—'Her voice was ever soft, gentle and low; an excellent thing in woman.'"—Good Housekeeping.

A Confused Conductor.

Popular belief is that millionaires go around with at least a thousand dollars of loose change in their pockets, but they do not. Baron Rothschild was once caught in a Paris bus without a sou in his pocket. The driver was very angry, and threatened to put him out. "I am Baron Rothschild," explained the capitalist, "and there is my card." The driver scornfully tossed away the card. "Cards don't go here," said he. "I want your fare." "Very well," said the baron "Here is an order for a million francs Give me the change." The driver stared and the passengers laughed. Just then a friend of the baron entered the bus and paid the fare. Then the driver realized his mistake, and, feeling remorseful, said to the baron: "If you want ten francs, I don't mind lending them to you on my own account."—Golden Days.

STONED THE CAR.

Passengers' Lives Endangered by a Mob Who Wanted To Lynch a Negro.

West Chester, Pa., Oct. 19.—Edward Brown, the negro who attacked Mrs. Thomas Johnson in a suburb of Coatesville Friday night, was landed in jail at this place yesterday. Constable Umstead, who had him in charge, had an exciting experience. When the officer took the culprit from the lock-up in Coatesville to the railroad station a mob of 600 men surrounded him, and it was with the greatest difficulty that he succeeded in placing the frightened negro safely on board the car. Shouts of "Hang him" rent the air, and several movements were made by the mob as if to wrest the prisoner from the officer's clutches, but it was after the officer and his prisoner were seated in the car that the most exciting time occurred. Stones were hurled through the windows thick and fast, and for a time it looked as if some lives would be sacrificed, while passengers in the car became terror-stricken and rushed in all directions to escape the flying missiles. One man, a passenger from the west, was struck on the head by a stone and the whole side of his head was laid open, while a number of others received slight cuts and bruises about the head and body. The county authorities and the Pennsylvania railroad detectives are working diligently on the case, and there are likely to be wholesale arrests shortly.

ENGLAND'S NAVY.

Talk of Subsidizing More Merchant Vessels to Act as Cruisers.

London, Oct. 18.—Since the czar complimented the "very fine escort" which the Channel squadron afforded him in his crossing from Portsmouth to Cherbourgh, increased interest has been taken in the condition of the British navy. Mr. Goschen, first lord of the admiralty, has been devoting much thought during the recess to the whole question of naval defense, and he is credited with the intention, in next year's naval estimates, of considerably increasing the sum at present provided for substituting merchant vessels to act as armed cruisers in time of war. The present amount set apart for this purpose is £48,7000, and rumor has it that it will be increased to at least £80,000, in order to allow of nine more vessels participating in the sum annually set aside. Among the new conditions imposed will be not merely an increase in the number of ships, but greater efficiency in their manning and equipment. It is reported that the price to be paid for the new first-class cruisers is £446,000 each. The highest tender was Messrs. Armstrong's, their price being about £300,000, evidently showing that they did not want the work.

REGISTRATION IN NEW YORK.

A Large Increase Reporetd from All over the State.

New York, Oct. 19.—The total registration in this city is 331,177, against 309.691 in 1892. The heaviest gains are in the uptown, or residence, districts. In Brooklyn 207,333 voters registered, about 13,000 in excess of any previous record. Buffalo reports a total registration of 66,700, an increase over last year of 9,700. The average increase in the twenty-five wards is about 350. Ithaca's total registration is 3,418, an increase of over 300 since 1894. Watertown has 4,779 voters registered, against 4,318 in 1894. The registration at Ogdensburg was the largest in the history of the city, 2,946 names having been entered in the books. Corning's registration reached 2,716; in 1894 it was 2,507. The total registration at Troy is 15,425, the largest in her history. At Amsterdam 4,531 citizens signified their intention of voting, 362 more than in 1895. Hudson's registration shows a gain of six since 1894, her registration this year reaching 2,516. Nine towns in Washington county report a combined total registration of 8,449, as against 7,334 two years ago.

120,000 Quarts of Champagne at Auction.

Washington, Oct. 19.—A great stir has been created in the European wine trade by the throwing upon the market at action, in one sale, of 10,000 dozen quart bottles of champagne. At retail in the United States this wine would bring from $250,000 to $350,000, but the British and French experts predict that it will not realize more than $75,000.

Negro White Caps.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 19.—Word reached here to-day from Brinkley, Monroe county, that a negro white cap organization had developed in Jackson township, and that the negroes are confining their operations to their own race. One negro was killed by the band last week, and Saturday night another was taken from his home and flogged almost to death.

Sensational Arrest in Italy.

$52,875,638 REQUIRED

Estimated Appropriations Needed for the Army Next Year.

WAR OFFICE EXPENSES REDUCED

Pay of the Army, as Fixed by Law, $12,522,880—Great Progress Made in the Construction of Sea Coast Fortifications.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Secretary Lamont to-day transmitted to the secretary of the treasury his estimate of appropriations required by the war department for the next fiscal year. The aggregate is $52,875,638. The estimate for the running expenses of the war office in Washington is $1,464,236, showing a reduction in the annual expenses for salaries and contingencies in that office of $621,942 from the estimates of four years ago. The other estimates in detail are as follows: Pay of the army, as fixed by law, $13,522,880.15; subsistence of the army, $1,659,837.50; quartermaster's supplies, $2,200,000; incidental expenses of the army, $600,000; barracks and quarters, including hospital construction, $836,000; shooting ranges, $25,000; cavalry and artillery horses, $130,000; army transportation, $2,500,000; clothing, $1,100,000; medical supplies, $140,200; ordnance department, $1,131,000; military academy, $521,812; arsenals, $139,796; military posts, national cemeteries, and national parks, $1,558,380; national soldiers' homes, $3,443,214; artificial limbs for soldiers of the late war, $191,000; public buildings and grounds in Washington, $139,992; miscellaneous items, $402,000; rivers and harbors, $5,349,000, to meet payments on existing contracts, the department at this time being unable to say what sum will be required by future contracts for which authority exists.

Sea Coast Defense.

The estimate for fortifications and sea coast defense has been increased to $15,324,298. In connection with his estimate Secretary Lamont has made public the following statement of the condition of his work: On the first of July, 1893, but one modern gun had been placed in position. On the first of July, 1897, we shall have completed defenses with armament as follows: Thirteen 12-inch, thirty-seven 10-inch, eight 8-inch and four rapid-fire guns and eighty 12-inch mortars. For the the fifteen years preceding 1890 no appropriations had been made for engineering work on our permanent coast defenses, except the small and steadily decreasing sum annually allowed for the "protection, preservation and repair" of existing work which, though obsolete as a main reliance, had been so incorporated in the modern defensive projects as to play an important auxiliary part. In 1890 was made the first appropriation ($1,221,000) for modern gun and mortar batteries, followed by one of $750,000 in 1891 and by another of $500,000 in 1892.

What the Guns Can Do.

The guns and mortars are of American design and American manufacture, then and now more powerful, caliber for caliber, than any carried on shipboard. The extreme range of an 8-inch gun is 9½ miles, of a 10-inch gun 11½ miles and of a 12-inch gun 13 miles. The 12-inch breech-loading mortar fires a projectile weighing 1,000 pounds, and attains a range of 5 miles for the cast iron mortar and of 6 miles for the all-steel mortar. From the earliest model of the 8-inch breech-loading rifle 10 shots were fired at a target 3,000 yards, or nearly 1¾ miles distant. The centres of all the shot holes struck within a circle of 6½ feet diameter, while the energy developed by the projectile was greater than that ever before attained by any gun of the same calibre. Subsequently, with a gun of the same calibre manufactured at the government gun factory, four out of five shots fired at a range of one mile struck within a rectangle of 20 inches by 21 inches. Of eight shots fired at a range of 3,000 yards six struck within an area of 18 inches by 46 inches.

Favorable Showing.

Seventeen out of 21 12-inch emplacements, 55 out of 60 10-inch emplacements, 20 out of 25 8-inch emplacements, 14 out of 16 rapid-fire gun emplacements and 92 out of 156 12-inch mortar emplacements have been entirely provided for during the last four years, and that during the same time a large part of those previously provided for have been prepared to receive their armament. For this favorable showing much is due to the liberality of congress at its recent session. The number of emplacements provided by the act of June 6, 1896, is just 50 in excess of the total provided by all preceding appropriations. The progress in armament has been equally satisfactory. During the calendar year 1893, there had been completed at the army gun factory, the West Point foundry, and the Bethlehem Iron works a total of 34 8-inch, 20 10-inch and 9 12-inch guns and 43 12-inch mortars. Subsequently, but prior to the fortifications act of June 6, 1896, these totals were raised to 61 8-inch, 56 10-inch and 21 12-inch guns and 80 12-inch mortars completed, while there were 27 8-inch, 35 10-inch and 29 12-inch guns in process of construction.

CAUGHT UP ON GRIDIRON

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

There was one unpleasant feature of Saturday's game, and that was the slugging of Rahway's tackle, Brigham. Twice the referee threatened to disqualify him and the crowd hissed him repeatedly. The other Rahway boys showed a gentlemenly spirit, and tried to restrain their comrade. There was quite a little kicking, but as victory was then assured, Captain Freeman gave up every point so that the game might proceed without delay.

Among the visitors at the game Saturday was Marion S. Ackerman, who was at one time Plainfield's star football player. Fletcher Hallock, the only man who could stop him, will again appear on the gridiron next Saturday, when he will play tackle against Westfield.

Coach Waring was greatly pleased Saturday with the playing of the Plainfield boys, and is confident that Westfield cannot put any team on the field that will be able to outplay them. The Rahway eleven was a strong one, and their players averaged several pounds more in weight than did the Plainfield boys; even the captain of the Rahways admitted that. He accounted for Plainfield's gains through centre to their quickness in starting and Cathcart's wonderful abilities at bucking the line. The Rahway team was mainly composed of college graduates.

W. J. Mooney, one of the crack bicycle riders of the Union County Roadsters, played left gurrd on the Rahway Athletic Club's eleven Saturday. He is a quiet player of considerable ability.

Among the representatives of the gentler sex on the grandstand Saturday afternoon were a party of eleven young ladies, including several members of that popular club, "The Seven Wonders." They were gowned in black and wore large red dallias, thus combining the colors of the team. There were also present quite a number of young ladies from Rahway and New Brunswick.

"Comparisons are odious," it has been said, and they certainly are for the Westfield team at present. The San Remo eleven, which the Y. M. C. A. defeated three weeks ago by a score of 4 to 2, went to Westfield Satday afternoon and defeated the home team by a score of 12 to 4. The San Remo boys scored twice in the first half. In the second half, Westfield braced up and carried the ball across the San Remo's goal line. They made an effort to score again but lost the ball a few yards from San Remo's goal. Westfield will have a stronger team for next Saturday than last week, but Plainfield's team is much stronger than it was at the San Remo game, and it will be even more powerful next Saturday. From present indications, Plainfield's chances for next Saturday's game are very bright, and the spirits of the team have risen considerably.

Arthur Maurice, of Rahway, made an excellent referee Saturday. He showed no favoritism to his team and impressed all as filling that difficult position to the satisfaction of all.

The Alis football team did not play Saturday as a game with Metuchen could not be arranged. They expect to play the Roselle team, which belongs in the Elizabeth Journal league, on Tuesday afternoon, unless the Rosellians refuse at the last moment. Saturday they play at Scotch Plains and a game is now being arranged with the Paterson High School. The Alis team is playing a great game this year and good judges say that their teamplay and interference is as good as that of the first team.

A practice game between the Y. M. C. A. scrubs and the Alis eleven will probably be played this week. The "scrubs" are also anxious to play the Westfield Y. M. C. A. team. A challenge from the latter would probably be accepted very quickly.

It is really too bad that the Alis team is not in the Journal League for the junior championship of Union county. The young Plainfielders would have a good show. Two more matches were played in the league Saturday, Cranford defeating Roselle at Roselle by a score of 8 to 0, while the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. swamped the Westfield Y. M. C. A. by a score of 34 to 0, on the latter's grounds. Cranford is now in the lead with two games won and none lost; Roselle and the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. have each won one game and lost one, while the Westfield Y. M. C. A. brings up the rear with no victories and two defeats.

All of the leading college elevens played on Saturday and there were many exciting games played by the leading athletic clubs. In some of the principal games Saturday the results were as follows: Princeton defeated West Point at West Point, 11 to 0; Harvard defeated Brown at Cambridge, 12 to 0; Pennsylvania defeated Lehigh at Philadelphia, 30 to 0; Yale defeated Dartmouth, at New Haven, 42 to 0; Cornell defeated Tufts, at Ithaca, 18 to 0; Orange Y. M. C. A. defeated Bayonne Field Club at Bayonne, 12 to 0; Orange Athletic Club defeated the Montclair Athletic Club at Orange, 18 to 0; New York University defeated the New Jersey Athletic Club at New York, 22 to 0; Rutgers defeated Haverford College at New Brunswick, 6 to 2; Elizabeth Athletic Club defeated Pennington Seminary, at Elizabeth, 44 to 0.

The second eleven of the Elizabeth Athletic Club played an exciting game with the South Orange Field Club, at South Orange. Neither side scored.

George Snediker, at one time end on the Pennington Seminary eleven, went to Elizabeth Saturday to see his old team play.

Everybody was glad to welcome George Cathcart back to the gridiron Saturday when he played behind the line on the Y. M. C. A. team. He is one of the best players in city or borough. Cathcart is one of the hardest men to tackle and buts the line like a cannon ball. He will play against Westfield Saturday.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Although the business men's gymnasium class at the Y. M. C. A. has only just been started for the fall, the attendance has been much larger than last year. Friday afternoon the class met and nineteen were present. After the usual gymnastic exercises an exciting game of basket ball was played.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

J. Howard Leggett, the druggist, has broken the record. Friday evening, while fishing in Tier's pond he caught an eel measuring almost fifteen inches. Mr. Leggett is being congratulated for his success.

THE KINDERGARTEN.

Its Idea Originated with Friedrich Froebel.

Why did Friedrich Froebel attain to such clear insight regarding true education—his system spreading over the entire civilized world? It was because he had, to an exceptional degree, the clear brain united to the true heart; a self-sacrificing love for others with the homely German everyday common sense, yet with the highly imaginative mystical temperament so characteristic of some other great Germans. These qualities, with a physique hardy, active, self-controlled, self-disciplined — what an equipment for one who loved his work as did this great man!

Froebel found that real education should begin at the cradle, and that the gospel of the new education is good tidings for all mothers. His own early childhood had been so saddened by neglect and his affections so blighted by an unsympathetic stepmother, that there had grown in his heart a great and overwhelming sympathy for childhood.

Froebel did not find this comblex being of the child, with its broadly defined three-fold nature of physical, mental and moral being, an easy matter to bring into the harmonious balance necessary for right growth and development of its latent faculties. It was not until Froebel was 55 years old that the kindergarten took objective form; but step by step, each stage of his educational progress had been the outgrowth of the preceding one. As the kindergarten idea gradually unfolded in his mind, Froebel resolved to devote his whole remaining life to its realization. His logical and beautiful educational system, with its orderly and well-appointed periods of block-building, mat weaving, etc., merging into the more free physical activity of the game time, commends itself now to all progressive educators.

But Froebel met with much misunderstanding in his work. He demanded that the kindergartner's attitude toward the child should be one of perfect simplicity and genuine sympathy. It is this that characterizes Froebel's "Mother Play," which, as he says, contains his inmost thought. He was misunderstood by the conventional schoolmen from whom he had cut loose, for they called him childish and an amuser of children. He was called sentimental, when, being so poor, he was not certain of his next meal, he would take a band of children, often homeless and friendless orphans, whom he had taken into his humble home to educate, out into the woods where they would search for wild flowers, listen to the birds' voices, and lovingly study the habits of the little wild creatures of the forest. His ideas were called obscure and mystic when they were given to the world in "The Education of Man," but time has vindicated him, and now Froebel stands high on the roll of true pedagogues.

THE BABY'S FIRST SMILE.

There's many a pleasure we meet with in life,
Of joy there is many a thrill;
There are transports that come in the midst of the strife,
When the noise of the conflict is still.
But there's naught in this world so wond'rously sweet,
From Greenland's white snows to the Nile,
There's nothing so heavenly, pure and complete
As a dear little baby's first smile.

The lover's first kiss—we know it is fine;
Its memory will haunt us for aye;
Though the flowers may fade and the stars may decline,
Its rapture will never decay.
Yet not for a moment can we compare
What may have a tincture of guile,
In an Eden of blossoms so fragrant and fair,
With an innocent baby's first smile.

An angel, perhaps, is a beautiful sight,
But an angel we never have seen,
And far, far away on the regions of light,
With their daisy-starred meadows so green;
But we are content when here we behold,
Encumbered with burdens the while,
A gleam from the city whose streets are of gold,
In a sweet little baby's first smile.

Delicate Dress Goods.
Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable. NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redying. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

Bryan Flag, Flanked by McKinley Emblems, Raised.

FARMER ORATOR JABS REPUBLICANS.

Says the Democrats Haven't Got Any Money for Pomp and Display, But Devotion to Their Principles Will be Shown—S. W. Reese, of Westfield, a Speaker.

"For once in my life I can say that I truly see a rose between two thorns," is the way Charles Lyman called the crowd to order in East Front street last night who gathered to witness the unfurling of the Bryan and Sewell banner and the accompanying speeches, and as he spoke he gazed upward where the free silver emblem was seen to be flanked on both sides by McKinley and Hobart banners. It happened this way: The Republicans strung a flag across the street in front of the club rooms some weeks ago, and up till Saturday it was, like Robson Crusoe, emperor of all it surveyed. Then the Democrats got permission to throw their flag across the street forty feet from the Republican one, and the result was almost a total eclipse of the latter from the direction of West Front street. The Democrats claimed that this position was the only real desirable one they could find in town, but the Republicans not to be outdone hung a still larger flag on the other side of the one bearing the names of McKinley & Hobart, and now the Democratic one is obscured except at a close view.

Mr. Lyman had the happy faculty of turning the joke to the Democrat's favor and the crowd howled with delight. Then with a few preliminary remarks he introduced James E. Martine.

The Farmer Orator was greeted with great applause, and doffing his hat and coat he started in to spare not his flow of criticism of the G. O. P. In opening he also made reference to the banners and said that it would take more than two to one to beat sixteen to one. The sentiment caught the crowd and they applauded.

Mr. Martine spoke partly as follows:

"My Friends—The Republican party outdo us in pomp and music, but they cannot outdo us in earnestness and devotion to our cause and principles. For months the Republicans have feared to even hear the name of Bryan, but tonight they fear to see his name, and make this effort to shut it from view with another McKinley banner. Two to one does not deter us; it will take 16 to 1 to defeat us.

"My fellows, we come to teach no new theme or doctrine. Ours is for 'free coinage of silver and gold'—that which prevailed from 1792 to 1873, and under which our nation prospered. Our platform today is but the position taken by President Harrison, who, in his message in December, 1890, declared 'that the increased circulation of silver would promote business activity and general prosperity.' We oppose the demonitizing of silver because it has robbed the toiling millions; and was done by stealth. In this we stand with that brilliant statesman, James G. Blaine, who said that Congress had no right to demonitize silver any more than gold, and it had no right to demonitize either. The arguments of our opponents that free coinage was a conspiracy to benefit the mine owners, we say is false, but if the Democratic plan would benefit the mine owner, how much more would the Republican plan benefit them, when all the nations of the earth joined in bi-metalism.

"Friends, prosperity cannot be made selfish; make one in our community prosperous and all will feel its pleasant touch—the mine owner, the citizen, the mechanic and the farmer. For advancing and urging this thought we are charged with being law breakers and Anarchists! No, we are not revolutionary nor Anarchists; we will abide the fiat of the people, honestly expressed—Mr. Republican, will you?

"I know that the chairman of the Republican committee, Mr. Lauterbach, has already declared that they will not. I ask, who now is the Anarchist? And even today, a prominent citizen—a Republican—declared to me that the election of Bryan would bring a revolution, riot will come, and the torch will fire houses in this land. Who will riot and burn? I ask. It will not be the Democrats, with victory gained. Will the Republicans do the rioting and firing? Republicans, understand us, this is not a campaign of 1876, but of 1896. If we win, no electoral commission shall decide the result, but the people. Our leader and standard-bearer, Mr. Bryan, is brave, and the Democratic party will see him seated. (A voice—'Who was the man

STILL ANOTHER BANNER.

Young Republicans to Throw One to the Breeze on Park Avenue.

Although only recently formed, the Young Men's Republican Club is rapidly pushing to the front in this campaign and on Wednesday night will swing another McKinley and Hobart banner to the breeze. So it was decided at a meeting of the club last evening, held in the Republican Association rooms.

Permission was obtained to swing the banner across Park avenue at the corner of Fourth street, and arrangements for it will be made at once.

The Republican campaign Club will hold a mass-meeting at Music Hall on Wednesday evening and Senator Voorhees and Congressman Fowler are expected to be present. The members of the Young Men's Republican Club will meet at the rooms at 7:30 o'clock, march to the scene of the banner raising, accompanied by the band, and there raise the banner amid fireworks and colored fire. The speakers of the evening are expected to be there and address a few words words to the young men.

Plainfield Club Cars.

The columns of Saturday's Mail and Express are devoted to an interesting account of "Clubs for Commuters," and details of the origin of club cars under Louis E. Howard in 1888. The article says: "Mr. Howard took up his residence in Plainfield, N. J. He set to work to formulate his ideas of a special car for the exclusive benefit of those commuters who were willing to pay for the privilege of privacy. He had a task before him, but in Plainfield he found an encouragement that was quite surprising. A club was formed of the regular commuters." Then follow the rules and regulations of the club, the cost of the enterprise, the names of some of the commuters, the success of the Howard car, that led to the incorporation of two other club cars on the New Jersey Central road, and the organization of the special car club on the New Haven road.

A Young Life Cut Short.

The sympathy of the whole community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Meschutt, of 326 East Front street, in the loss of their daughter, Nellie M. Meschutt, who died last night after a painful illness lasting several months. Miss Meschutt was fourteen years old and was exceedingly popular among her schoolmates and friends. Her attractive and winning manner won her the highest admiration and love. The funeral services will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock from the home of the parents.

Funeral of Robert Anderson.

The funeral of the late Robert Anderson took place from the house on East Second street yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Richards officiated, assisted by Rev. Charles E. Herring. A quartette composed of Miss Bessie Blair, Miss Carrie Dewey, A. J. Gavett and E. E. Runyon, rendered beautiful and appropriate music. Interment was made in the family plot in the Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield.

Investigating Its Safety.

Robert L. Patterson, of Elizabeth, and W. D. W. Miller, of Plainfield, members of the Grand Jury were sent as a committee to Plainfield today to examine the entrance to the Jersey Cycle Academy on Watchung avence. The matter was called to the attention of the Grand Jury by Plainfield citizens. The committee will report to the Grand Jury today when some action will probably be taken.

To be a Simple Ceremony.

The marriage of Miss Mary H. Peggie, of New York, and Roland Long, an employee of Rushmore and Co., of Watchung avenue, will take place Saturday afternoon next at 4 o'clock. Judge DeMeza will perform the ceremony. The groom is a member of the Plymouth Brethren, who are averse to any social display or church organization, and for this reason the affair will be very simple.

Relative of Assembly Codington Dead.

Mrs. George Codington, of Millington, died at her home Sunday night from typhoid fever. She was the wife of a brother of Assemblyman W. R. Codington, of Sandford avenue. She was about thirty-five years of age and leaves her husband and two girls, of six years and four years of age. The funeral will take place tomorrow.

Desirable Residence Sold.

The sale was made yesterday of the residence of E. R. Taylor, at 69 Rockview avenue, to John Harrison, of New York, through J. T. Vail's real estate agency. Mr. Harrison will take possession Nov. 10th.

KIRK GETS ALMOST ALL BUT ELIZABETH

The Plainfield Man Quite Sure of Shrievalty Nomination.

THE PRIMARIES LARGELY ATTENDED.

It is Expected That the Kirk Delegates Will Stand by Voorhees for a Renomination for Senator—Fanwood Has a Candidate for Both Sheriff and Senator.

There was no lack of interest in the Republican primaries last night and though it was positively known that William T. Kirk would get the delegates for the Shrievalty nomination, the members turned out just as though the battle was to be decided in the primaries right at home. The result was a very large attendance. While no instructions were given it is generally conceded that Foster Voorhees will receive the support of the Plainfield delegates for the Senatorial nomination, as told of exclusively in the Daily Press last week. Rahway, Westfield and most of the townships in the county elected delegations favorable to Kirk. In Elizabeth, with the exception of the Tenth and the Eleventh wards, which went for Kirk, the delegates will stand by Robert Houston for the Shrievalty nomination. Mr. Kirk now feels confident of capturing the nomination. The results in this city and Fanwood were as follows:

FIRST WARD.

The First ward primary held in the Republican Association rooms was called to order by Assemblyman W. R. Codington, and he was made chairman, and J. B. Coward, secretary, after which the call was read. The following were named as delegates, and as there was no opposition, the secretary was authorized to cast the ballot: J. T. MacMurray, J. S. Hope, George VanBlake, M. Turton, A. G. Barber, Harry McDonald and T. B. Gardiner. The two county committeemen from the ward selected were; C. J. Newman and J. Fred MacDonald.

SECOND WARD.

About two hundred voters living in the Second ward were present at the primary meeting held in the Bryant School building which was called to order by George D. Patton. S. A. Ginna was chosen chairman, H. C. Durar, secretary, L. L. Croon and H. E. Bowen, inspectors, with W. H. Drayton as judge. The first business transacted was the reading of the call, after which the following delegates were unanimously elected to attend the county convention to be held at Elizabeth: M. S. Ackerman, Charles H. Hand, Charles W. Smith, Clifton Wharton, Jr., Robert Guttridge, W. N. Runyon, L. L. Croon and W. H. Drayton. George D. Patton and Armstrong Mulford were chosen as the County Executive Committee.

THIRD WARD.

It did not take long for the Republicans of the Third ward to transact their business last evening. The primary was held in the Casino of the Union County Country Club and was largely attended. The meeting was called together promptly at 8 o'clock by Roger F. Murray, of the county committee. Francis E. Marsh was made chairman and Harry C. Runyon, secretary. The chairman appointed Charles F. Abbott as judge of election, and A. I. Littell and J. W. Murray, Jr., as inspectors. The following delegates were then nominated: William C. Bacon, Charles VanWinkle, John W. Murray, Sr., Frank W. Runyon, Charles J. Fisk, William Mahew, E. T. Barrows and O. T. Waring. Mr. Waring delined, and as the ward was entitled to seven delegates, it was moved and carried that the secretary cast the ballot for the remaining seven. The delegates were empowered to fill all vacancies. Although the delegates were not instructed, it was understood that they would all support Kirk for the nomination for Sheriff and Voorhees for the State Senatorial nomination. Roger F. Murray and William T. Kirk were unanimously re-elected as members of the county committee. The meeting then adjourned.

FOURTH WARD.

The Fourth ward primary held in the basement of Reform Hall, was very largely attended, there being fully two hundred voters present. Councilman William A. Westphal called the meeting to order and was made chairman. William Newcorn was chosen secretary and read the call for the primary. For two members of the county committee there were three nominations made: A. P. Miller, James Stewart and Alonzo Ayers. The last two were elected. The delegates elected to attend the county convention were George E. Greenleaf, Arthur Leland, William Newcorn, William A. Westphal,

BATTERED HER DOOR WITH TIN CANS.

Seems to Be No Love Between John Ritter and His Mother.

SON MAD BECAUSE OF A MARRIAGE.

The Mother Favored the Matrimonial Affair and All Filial Love Seems to Have Been Lost in the Dispute That Arose—John Held for Trial on Saturday.

Tin cans have been flying in the vicinity of the trolley termus on West Front street; tomato, corn and other cans of various sizes have rattled against the front door of Mrs. Adelaide Ritter's house in the Eight Row, until she refused to stand it any longer, and applied to the police for redress. The individual that she charges with hurling these strange missles against her house, is her son, John Ritter, who lives next door.

According to her story, John's sister was recently married, and John was not at all pleased with the match and protested against it. Mrs. Ritter favored the match and allowed it to take place. This, according to Mrs. Ritter's story, greatly angered her son, and since then he has been doing his best to annoy her. One of his favorite ways has been that of throwing tin cans at her front door during the evening.

Mrs. Ritter appeared before City Judge DeMeza and made a complaint against her son for throwing the missles at the house and being otherwise disorderly. Acting Roundsman Totten arrested the alleged tin can thrower and he was arraigned before the City Judge this morning. He pleaded not guilty, and Judge DeMeza held him in $100 bail for his appearance for trial Saturday morning.

Land for Manufacturing Purposes.

Wm. Kelly, of Oak Tree, is looking after the real estate interests here. On Tuesday last he sold a tract of ten acres of land to a New York party, who will in the spring erect one or more cottages on the place. He has also had a customer from New York who wants to purchase for a syndicate 400 acres of land at or near Oak Tree. The object of the intended purchase is said to be for manufacturing purposes, the erection of buildings, cottages, and in fact everything connected with a first class plant. Negotiations are about closed for the purchase of the property.

Y. M. C. A. Educational Work.

The Y. M. C. A. classes in Spanish and advanced mathematics will meet this evening at 8 o'clock. The class in mathematics in connection with the first year's work of the mechanical course will meet on Thursday evening and the German class on Friday evening. Soto Sunetaro, the Japanese wonder worker, assisted by Miss Edith M. Norton, reader, will give the second of the Y. M. C. A. Star Course on Thursday, Oct. 29th. Sunetaro had the largest audience in the Y. M.C A. course last year,

New District Deputy.

The district meeting of the Odd Fellows, held in Queen City Lodge rooms last evening, was attended by three delegates from White House, Somerville, Elizabeth, Westfield and Plainfield. The principal and only business transacted was the election of a district deputy to succeed L. S. Pocock. The members were anxious to have the latter continue in office, but he declined. Wm. Stamets, of Westfield, was elected to the office by acclamation.

Sued for Breach of Promise.

Miss Mary McNamara, thirty-two years old, yesterday began a suit against Capt. James Cox, of the steamer Advance, for $10,000 for breach of promise of marriage. The case came up in the Union County Court before Judge McCormick and a jury. Miss McNamara says in her allegation that the defendant engaged himself to be married to her in 1891, three days after his first wife died.

Girl's Gymnasium Class.

Will all women and girls desiring to join a gymnasium class, kindly leave their names in the Y. M. C. A. before Thursday noon. If a sufficiently large class can be formed, the same instructor who was here in the spring will come out again this winter. Terms $15, for twenty-five lessons.

Broke Her Right Arm.

Mrs. M. Sweeney, of West Fourth street, while at work about the wash tub Saturday night, accidentally fell and broke her right arm. She was a laundress at Muhlenberg Hospital. Dr. Tomlinson is attending the patient and the kind hearted nurses at the hospital are caring for her.

—A new boiler has been placed in the basement of Reform Hall and before long the building will be heated by steam.

ENDEAVOR WORKERS.

Young People Appointed to Help the Trinity Reformed Society.

A very spiritual and helpful meeting was held by the Christian Endeavor society of the Trinity Reformed church last evening. The subject was "The convention, what did you hear that most deeply impressed you?" It was led by William A. Crawford and the time was well taken by the many Endeavorers present. President A. K. Willet announced the standing committees for the year and they were unanimously elected by the society. They were as follows:

Lookout—Chairman, Miss Sadie Searing, Miss Corina K. Young, Miss E. Conover, Miss Olive Wychoff, E. Weaver. Prayer meeting—Chairman, W. A. Crawford, Miss Lydia Remson, Miss Nellie Fenner, John H. A Lively Time For a Few Minutes.

A lively scene was witnessed in the vacant space adjoining French's carriage factory on Somerset street, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. An employe of J. A. Smith, the grocer, was driving in the lane when the horse became frantic from some unknown cause. The grocery wagon was upset and all the groceries were scattered about the place. In the meantime the horse got away and it was with difficulty that the animal was caught. The wagon was wrecked and the harness was broken in several places. No injury resulted to the driver.

Miss Frances E. Willard Coming.

Miss Willard and Miss Anna A Gordon, who have been in England since last spring, will return next week, and the Women's Christian Temperance Union of New Jersey will tender them a reception on Tuesday evening, Oct. 27th, in Dr. Scudder's Tabernacle, Jersey City, which will be tastefully arranged to receive this well known and distinguished leader, which all countries delight to honor. And it is desired that as many of the Plainfield Udion as possible be present to add to the joyousness of the occasiod.

Teachers' Annual Institute.

The ladies of the Primary Teachers' Union are busy making preparations for their annual institute, which is to be held next Tuesday, October 27th, in Vincent chapel. Interesting programmes have been arranged for the afternoon and evening sessions and a supper is to be given to the teachers of the union and a few invited friends.

Indianapolis Ticket Ratified.

About twenty-five members of the National Democratic Club met at the Revere House last evening, and ratified the nomination of Palmer and Buckner. A report of the club's finances was rendered and the members have cause to feel enconraged. Other business transacted was of a routine nature.

Look Like Real Soldiers.

The members of the Plainfield High School cadet corps have received their new military caps. Instead of the usual crossed rifles made made of metal, they have an eagle embroidered in gold on the front and the letters P. H. S. embroidered in silver.

Borough Republican Mass Meeting.

On Friday evening of this week the Borough Republicans will hold a mass meeting in Gesang and Turn Verein Hall. There will be good speaking and plenty of music by the Plainfield Cornet Band.

TEACHING THE HEATHEN CHINEE.

A Novel Sunday-School Held in This City Every Week.

PUPILS OBEDIENT AND TRY TO LEARN.

It is Impossible to Teach the Word of God So The Instructors Try to Exercise a Good Influence by Imparting Good English to the Celestials in This Vinicity.

Unbeknown but to a few, a Sunday-school has boen established for the almond-eyed natives of China who are now struggling in their own queer way for a livelihood in Plainfield and the surrounding towns. Four years ago, a similar school flourished here under the supervision of Mrs. Letitia Myers. Eleven ques passed through the hall into the Republican Association rooms every Sunday and eleven teachers instructed these foreigners in the principles of their A, B, C's. Then Mrs. Myers went to live in Princeton while her son attended college there and the Celestials went to school no more.

This summer, Mrs. Myers returned to her residence on East Front street. She was requested to take charge of the school and reopen it and finally she consented, although she was not at all desirous of doing so. Word was sent to some of her old pupils and to the new Chinamen who had ventured into this quiet city that the Sunday-school would open on the afternoon of Sunday, October 11th, at the Y. M. C. A. building.

The afternoon came and five wondering, obedient Chinamen appeared, apparently eager to learn anything that might help them in gathering in the American's gold and silver, for unfortunately the almond-eyed Celestial don't go to Sunday-school for any religious motives, but only to learn English, which is likely to help him in his business. The teachers are only too glad to get hold of him for any reason and depend on their influence and teachings to persuade him to give up his heathen gods and become a follower of the true God.

Last Sunday the school met for the second time and one new face was with the others. One of the other boys, as they call them, was absent, however. Mrs. Myers was in charge and she was assisted by five ladies and one gentleman.

The school is held on Sunday afternoons and the pupils assemble some time before. They are all employed in the Chinee's principal occupation, laundry work, but only one has any education. He is from Westfield and is a naturalized citizen of the United States, dressed in civilized garb and speaks English quite fluently. The rest are very ignorant, and dress in the usual style of the uncivilized Chinaman. They all preserve their ques with great care. Before the school begins the boys chatter to each other in their native gibberish, but the moment the school opens they are quiet.

The school opens with two hymns. The boys love to sing, although their ear for music is far from the best, and they usually sing an entire hymn on one note. They have learned a few hymns and sing them completely unconscious of the meaning of the words. Then Charles Noble, the only gentlemen teacher in the school, reads a selection of the Scripture. The other teachers say each word slowly and their pupils repeat them. Each pupil is given to the charge of one teacher.

After the Lord's Prayer is repeated by pupils and teachers in concert, two more hymns are sung and then comes the lesson. The uneducated Celestials are instructed from an English and Chinese illustrated primer, while those that can read are given the Bible. The session closes with two more hymns.

Sawed His Finger as Well as Wood.

A. M. Vanderbeek, of Duer street, while sawing wood last evening, sawed not only the wood but his finger. He sought relief at Randolph's pharmacy where Dudley Miller gave the proper treatment. The flesh was lacerated to the bone and a considerable amount of blood was lost. The injury will not prove serious.

—In Justice Mosher's court the case of White against Bouche has been settled and the case of Noel against Lamberteon has been adjourned for one week.

If your children are subject to croup watch for the first symptom of the disease — hoarseness. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse it will prevent the attack. Even after the croupy cough has appeared the attack can always be prevented by giving this remedy. It is also invaluable for colds and whooping cough. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

FLURRY IN WHEAT

Excitement on the New York and Chicago Exchanges Continues.

SIGNS OF A SPEEDY COLLAPSE

The Remarkable Advance Caused by a Sudden Big Upward Jump in England---Corn and Oats Are Also Affected.

New York, Oct. 20.—The big jump in wheat and the consequent excitement on the exchange drew crowds of interested spectators to the visitors' gallery yesterday and they are again on hand to-day. Apparently the outside public are being tempted into the speculation in wheat but generally a more conservative feeling is evident among the professionals. The small "scalping" traders have practically withdrawn, the pace of fluctuations being too rapid for them. The remarkable advance was started yesterday on advices from England of a rise there in the market of 8 to 10 cents per bushel, and the bull movement was at once intensified with force and vigor, developing cyclonic tendencies to which previous activities were comparatively summer breezes. During the first hour great activity and excitement dominated all the grain markets (except oats), but was tempered with moderation. Prices started with the hurdle leap of 3¾ to 4⅝ cents per bushel advance over Saturday's noon regular closing prices, December at 85⅛@85⅞ and 82⅜@83⅛ on the later "curb," was checked back hesitatingly to 85⅜, then made a wild runaway to 86⅛. These changes occurred in less than ten minutes. Thereafter the trading quieted somewhat, but continued very nervous and uncertain, with occasional spurts of buying and selling, sending prices in upward flights or downwards but on the whole closed with an easier tendency. Early in the day there was considerable realizing selling, but the offerings were more freely absorbed in a mysterious way and more wanted and rapid bids and sales followed on a quick upward sliding scale. There was no resisting the urgent and vigorous advance. Prices rose easily and without effort, different prices being paid at one and the same time. On the whole, the total business in wheat, while intensely nervous and active, was not of large volume.

Excitement on the Chicago Exchange.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—The grain market is still excited to-day over the record-breaking jump made by wheat yesterday caused by advices from Liverpool of a big advance in wheat there. December option which closed on Saturday at 75⅝, opened yesterday at 78⅛@79⅛, steadying at the latter figure, an advance of 3¼ cents. The wildest excitement characterized the trading. After a monetary reaction to 79 December wheat soon went beyond the top figures at the opening, touching as high as 79¼ several times within the first fifteen minutes of business. Just before 10 a. m., the market took a sudden drop downward to 78½, reacting later to 78¾. Just after 10 a. m., the price receded to 78¼, but at that point the market moved sharply upward again, and within a few minutes advanced a full cent to 79¼. During the excitement at the opening some trades were made as high as 79½, while sales at the same moment in other parts of the pit were at figures, ranging all the way to 78½. At 10 a. m. the price was 78¾ December, but at this point another one-cent per bushel advance was recorded. Almost before the tickers could place the figures on the tape in the brokers' offices, the quotation had leaped to 79¾. This was within one-eighth cent of four cents a bushel added to the value of the cereal within a single hour. Just before 11 o'clock the market fell from 79¾c. as rapidly as it had risen, dropping a cent almost in a straight line to 78¾. The ruling price at 11 a. m. was 79 cents for December. At 1 p. m., fifteen minutes before the close, wheat was quoted at 77¾. The decline continued during the final quarter of an hour. Just before the bell struck December was 77¼, and the last quotation for May was 77⅝ bid, 1⅛ higher than the close of Saturday. Corn and oats were affected by the wheat excitement.

Scenes Resembling War Times.

London, Oct. 20.—The Times commenting to-day upon the state of the London market says that the rise in the price of wheat in America caused something resembling consternation, and when the American opening cables were received there was a scene such as is not usually seen except in time of war. The paper adds that the advance appears to be chiefly due to the sale of American wheat for India, which frightened the speculators a great deal.

Shot Himself Through the Heart.

New London, Conn., Oct. 20.—Alexander F. Maison, 60 years old, committed suicide yesterday afternoon in Pembleton's undertaking rooms by shooting himself through the heart. He had resided at Quaintance cottage in Pequot colony in a fashionable section of the city all summer. He was married, his wife having been Miss Mary Ward. They lived in easy circumstances, his wife having inherited money and he had some means. The doctors declare his affliction was melancholia.

National Floral Congress.

Boston, Oct. 20.—At the request of the governor of North Carolina to name two representatives, Acting-Governor Wolcott has requested Prof. Fred L. Sargent of Harvard university and Miss Dora Williams of the Boston Normal school to act as delegates from Massachusetts at a national floral congress to be held in Asheville, N. C., October 21, 22 and 23.

REVOLUTIONARY MONUMENTS.

Two Records to Historic Memories Unveiled at Springfield, N. J.

Orange, N. J., Oct. 20.—The old town of Springfield was the scene of a great demonstration yesterday when two monuments were unveiled by the New Jersey society of the Sons of the American Revolution. One was a monument in the old Revolutionary burying ground in the center of the village, and the other a huge bowlder on the higest point of Hobart hill, in the rear of Short Hills, where it is claimed the minute gun "Old Sow" was fired. An immense crowd gathered, including the various chapters of the Sons of the American Revolution, Daughters of the American Revolution, Society of Colonial Wars, and members of the New Jersey Historical society. The crowd assembled first in the old cemetery, where a granite monument, eight feet high, had been erected. On its face is the inscription "To the Memory of the Patriots Who Fell at Springfield, June 23, 1780." After the ceremonies of the unveiling of the monument the assembly then adjourned to the old Presbyterian church, erected in 1791, on the site of the old church burned by the British in 1780. The church was handsomely decorated. A large portrait of Gen. Washington, surrounded with flags, hung over the pulpit, and old army muskets were stacked on either side of the pulpit. After prayer, an organ on and singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," the invited guests were driven to Hobart Hill, near Summit. On the site where "Old Sow" stood a huge bowlder weighing three tons had been placed. It was taken from Battle hill, where Washington camped in 1777. On the side of the bowlder is a bronze tablet bearing the inscription "1776.—Here, in the time of the American revolution stood the signal beacon and by its side the cannon known as the 'Old Sow,' which in time of danger and invasion summoned the patriots Minute Men of this vicinity to the defence of the country and the repulse of the invader This monument is erected by the New Jersey Society of the Sons of the American Revolution and dedicated to the memory of the patriots of New Jersey—1896."

POSTMASTERS TO BE REMOVED.

The Dominion Government Against Offensive Partisanship.

Montreal, Oct. 20.—The Dominion government has decreed that "every citizen has the right of the free use of the postoffices and of all departments; the postoffice must be kept exceptionally free from all political partisanship." This, it is learned, will be lived up to, and within a few days the dismissal of twenty Quebec postmasters for having shown offensive partisanship will be announced. In no case, it is stated, has action been taken except upon clear proof. One postmaster was chairman of a committee, another allowed matter passing through the mail to be opened and conservative campaign sheets to be inserted, when it was sealed up and again forwarded. One postmaster refused shelter to a liberal candidate during a storm, and told him "You can sleep with the pigs;" while another, noticing a letter from the liberal candidate to the liberal committeemen, retained it for five days, finally delivering it on the day of election, unfortunately for himself forgetting that the dating stamp would cause his detection. These are some of the cases to which the axe will be applied.

Railroads Boycotted.

New York, Oct. 20.—The board of managers of the Joint Traffic association has instituted a boycott against the Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City railway, commonly called the "Clover Leaf Route." Orders have been issued to all lines in the association not to issue tickets nor check baggage over the Clover Leaf, and also not to accept tickets issued or baggage checked by the Clover Leaf. The boycott covers only passenger business at present. It is alleged that positive evidence of cutting of passenger rates by the Clover Leaf has been obtained.

New Turkish Minister at Washington.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The new Turkish minister, Mustapha Tahsin Bey arrived in Washington yesterday afternoon. Mavroyeni Bey, his predecessor, who has been here since March, 1887, is exceedingly anxious to leave for home at the earliest opportunity and he has arranged to present his successor to Secretary Olney to-day before the cabinet meeting. If possible the formal presentation to the president will be made to-morrow.

A DOG'S BIG EXTERNAL JAG.

Washed with Whisky to Kill Fleas He Forgets His Troubles.

There is an uptown family which boasts the ownership of a royally bred shepherd dog. The royally bred shepherd dog, in his turn, boasts the possession of a colony of fleas of appalling number, and, to judge from the dog's behavior, surprising industry, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

At the beginning of the summer Mr. Dog was clipped, partially as a concession to the heat, but more particularly as a concession to the fleas, which were making things interesting, not only for the dog, but for the occupants of the household. The clipping process did not, however, have any effect at all on them, and it was determined by the lady of the house to resort to heroic measures.

Accordingly the dog was well rubbed with whisky and afterwards washed with carbolic soap. Before the soap stage was reached, however, the canine didn't care what became of him, for the whisky, soaking in through his hide, had made him the proud possessor of a large and well developed jag.

From the frisky stage he passed to the wabbly stage, and from the wabbly to the comatose, and when it was all over, his washing at least, he was totally indifferent as to whether school kept or not.

For several hours after his whisky shampoo he was very much in his cups, and, even after he had slept off his drunk, he held to the ethics of alcoholism by exhibiting an unusual fondness for ice water. How he managed to sport a brown taste when he had derived the jag from spirits externally applied passeth the understanding, but to all appearances he did.

The Panama Canal.

Colon, Colombia, Oct. 20.—Gen. Belin, the Panama canal director, has returned here from Paris on the French steamer Germain. He brought with him from the West Indies 150 laborers to work upon the canal. The Panama railroad steamer Finance, which was due here on Saturday, has not yet arrived.

Fire on the Taylor Still Burning.

London, Oct. 20.—The fire on the British steamer J. W. Taylor, from New York for Buenos Ayres, before reported at Montevideo with bunker coal on fire, is still burning and much damage has been done to her cargo by both fire and water.

Providence, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Charles J. Wheeler, who died here last week, left $65,000 to charity out of an estate valued at $86,000.

My
Nerves are weak, many people say, and yet they do not seem to know that they are literally starving their nerves. Weak, pale, thin blood cannot give proper sustenance—that is why you are nervous, tired, exhausted. The cure for this condition is to purify, vitalize and enrich your blood. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla fairly and faithfully, and the rich, red blood, which it makes, will soon feed the nerves the elements of true strength they require; they will cease their agitation and will resume their proper place—being under the control instead of controlling the brain and body. Read Miss Bartley's letter:

I did so and in a short time I began to notice a change in my condition. Things began to appear brighter, my eyes improved and

No kitchen is kept cleaner than the premises devoted to the manufacture of NONE SUCH Mince Meat. No housewife can be more fastidious in the matter of preparing food than we are in the selection and preparation of the materials of which it is made. The cleaning of the currants (for one thing) is more thoroughly done by means of perfected appliances, than it would be possible to do it by hand.

Its cleanliness, purity, wholesomeness and deliciousness are good reasons for using NONE SUCH Mince Meat. The best reason is its saving—of time, of hard work, of money. A ten cent package affords you two large pies, without trouble to you beyond the making of the crust. Makes just as good fruit cake and fruit pudding as it does mince pie. Sold everywhere. Is As Clean As Yours

ONE DISEASE AND ONE REMEDY

"The art of painting," said Millais "consists in selecting the right colors and putting them in the right place,"—"The way to win a battle," said Napoleon," is to mass your troops at the critical moment against the weakest spot in the enemy's line."—"The way to cure many ailments," said the great Dr. Abercrombie, "is to purify the poisoned spring in which they arise, generally the torpid and inflamed digestive system."

Thus wisdom and experience simplify and condence. Thus the Shakers of Mount Lebannon reasoned when they sought, and finally found, a remedy for indigestion and dyspepsia. Where one person has something else they argued, a thousand have this. To cure this alone will almost rid the world of sickness. Why should we vex ourselves with confusing definitions? A good digestion is life and health; a bad one disease and death. Hence, from the healing and stimulating mountain herbs, they extracted the principles which make the Shaker Digestive Cordial the rarest and most effective of medicines for one disease, and one only—indigestion and dyspepsia.

Do you suffer from any of these miserable feeling?—depression of spirits, heaviness and pain in the stomach after meals, bad taste in the mouth, wind in the bowels, irritable disposition, nervous weakness and alarm, worry and weariness, cositiveness or irregularity of the bowels, nause, palpitation, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite and sleep, dry skin, etc.—?

Don't indulge in fifty foolish fancies. You have indigestion and dyspepsia and nothing else. Set the disordered stomach right with the one medicine which will surely do it. Shaker Digestive Cordial, and these symptoms will vanish with their cause. A good effect will follow the first doses. Even chronic cases soon yield.

Test the cordial, at practically no cost, by taking a ten-cent trial bottle. For sale by nearly all druggists.

For Weak Men With Nervous Debility This is Certainly the Chance of a Lifetime.

Weak men suffering from nervous debility, weakened powers and exhausted vigor, can now take new hope. Here is something which will powerfully interest them. It is a fact that until now sufferers have been debarred from seeking a cure by the great specialists in these complaints owing to the cost of travel to the large city and the high fees charged by these eminent physicians.

Here, therefore, is a chance for weak men in our community which should not be lost. Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who has the largest practice in the world, and who is without doubt the most successful specialist in curing this class of diseases offers to give free consultations by mail to all weakened, vigorless and nerve exhausted men. You have the privilege of consulting Dr. Greene by letter describing your complaint and he will, after carefully considering your condition, send you a letter fully explaining all your symptoms, telling you everything about your complaint so plainly that you will understand exactly what ails you. He will also give you his advice, based upon his vast experience and wonderful success in treating and curing such cases, as to just what to do to get cured. All this will cost you nothing and you can thus have consultation with the best known physician and acknowledge most successful specialist in the world, without leaving home and at no expense whatever. The doctor is the discoverer of that greatest of medicines, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and he has discovered many other most valuable remedies. Write to him now, for this is the chance of a lifetime to get cured which you may never have again.

THE CHINESE SCHOOLBOY.

He Must Study Long Hours Every Day in the Year.

The Chinese school children have instilled into them at an early age habits of hard, steady study, says an exchange. At the age of five a boy begins his schooling. At daylight he rises and, after dressing as quickly as possible, he starts breakfastless to school. He is given a task and after it is completed he is allowed an hour for breakfast. Again, later, he has an hour for luncheon, but he is at his study nearly 12 hours a day, seven days in the week.

All this time when he is not receiving his lessons he is studying aloud at the top of his voice. He is under the eye of his master both in school and on his way to and from school. The lad is taught rudimentary astronomy, physics and natural history, but greater stress is put upon writing and his literary studies.

"A Thousand Letters," a poem, is the study that forms the backbone of his literary education. In it are taught the duties of children to parents and all such matters. Whatever the study may be—history, classics or science—every lesson is learned and repeated word for word.

MR. AUGUSTIN DALY.

Looks Like the Ideal Poet Rather Than a Theatrical Manager.

A writer in Donahoe's Magazine has a pleasant character sketch of Mr. Augustin Daly. To meet Mr. Daly for the first time after forming a mental picture of him from his profession and his achievements means, says this writer, a rather pleasant surprise. He looks like the ideal poet rather than the successful manager; tall, slender, well-proportioned, graceful and nervous in movement, self-possessed in repose; face delicate in outline, thoughtful and serious in expression; hard as a flint in business moments, dreamy and sad in repose; indicating the rare combination of business ability and poetic power. Almost 60, he looks no older than a scholarly man of 40, and the average acute observer would take him for a college professor of the most intellectual sort.

Mr. Daly is further characterized as undoubtedly ambitious; his energy has been proved, and he is probably impatient in the immediate labor of reaching a goal, as one mostly finds the brain and energetic. His love of retirement is as much the result of his methods of work as of his temperament, but the latter is largely a determining cause. In his early days, when a large display of his personality might have been advantageous, he remained steadily in the background; and at this moment he finds it quite difficult to control his nerves when called upon to address an audience from his own stage in response to enthusiastic greetings.

Very Large Screw Propeller.

The new steamer John Englis, which is now being built at the Delaware River works, Chester, Pa., will have the largest solid screw propeller ever made in this country. It is of open-hearth cast steel, and measures 16 feet from tip of blade to tip of blade. The propeller is intended to make 90 revolutions per minute, driven by a triple expansion engine of 4,000 horse power. The steamer will ply between New York and Portland, Me. It is expected to make the trip in the new boat in 20 hours.

Not Picking 'Em.

Judge—You are accused of picking pockets.

Criminal—I plead not guilty.

Judge—Not guilty? Why, you were discovered in the act.

Criminal—Your honor, I was not picking pockets. I just took them as they came.—Washington Times.

FILLING TEETH.

Reasons Why the Dentist Uses Gold for the Best.

It is the custom with many persons to grumble a little at what they consider the dentist's extraordinary charges. It is also frequently said that the dentist finds gold more profitable, and that this is the reason why he prefers to use it.

It is not generally understood that there is a scientific reason for the employment of this metal. Gold can be welded into a solid mass while cold. It is also susceptible of being pressed into the smallest cavities and depressions.

When once the cavity is properly cleaned and the gold carefully put in, care being taken that it fills every particle of space from the beginning, the union of teeth and filling is nearly as perfect as possible without the action of heat.

A gold filling may be built up to almost any size or shape required. None of the acid secretions of the mouth or stomach have any effect upon it.

Hindoo Traps for Bedbugs.

An ingenious plan is employed in hospitals in India. It is to place a piece of wood freely perforated with gimlet holes under the mattress. The insects find their way into these holes, where they may afterwards be destroyed by dipping the piece of wood in hot water.

NO DANGER OF WAR.

Gladstone on England's Duty To Stop the Armenian Massacres.

London, Oct. 20.—A meeting called for the purpose of protesting against the Turkish atrocities was held in St. James hall, London, last evening, under the chairmanship of the Right Rev. Edward Stuart Talbert, D. D., bishop of Rochester. The hall was crowded to its fullest capacity. A letter from Mr. Gladstone was read, in which the ex-prime minister declared that it would be a wild paradox to say that the enforcement of British rights to stop the systematic massacres in Turkey would provoke hostilities from the powers. He added that it would be abandoning duty and prudence to advertise beforehand for the ears of the great assassin that British action was limited to what the most backward of the six powers deemed sufficient. If the fundamental distrust of Great Britain, and the belief that she is pursuing a selfish policy in the eastern Mediterranean caused some of the powers to be backward, that was a matter that deserved to be gravely considered.

STORM WARNINGS.

Praise for the Weather Bureau's Service During the Recent Coast Hurricane.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Reports received at the department of agriculture testify very strongly to the high appreciation of the weather bureau service in connection with the recent hurricane warnings. The local forecast official in Boston reports that all interests requiring protection were amply warned of the anticipated storm, so that all shipping was suspended from Saturday afternoon, October 10, until the close of the storm. The few arrivals during Sunday, the 11th inst., reported a tremendous storm outside the harbor. One shipper supplies testimony from the leading shippers as to the enormous value of property saved by these warnings, to say nothing of the probable saving of life.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Baron Fava, the Italian ambassador, visited the White House yesterday afternoon by appointment for the purpose of presenting to the president, by direction of the King of Italy, a set of volumes of the greatest historical value touching the early history of America. The work is in fourteen volumes, being a collection of papers relative to the discovery of America and the enterprise of Christopher Columbus as well as of the Italian explorers who preceded the great navigator. It was compiled by a special committee appointed by the king of Italy and printed by the Italian government.

THE GUAYAQUIL FIRE.

Contents of the Vaults of the Bank of Ecuador Uninjured.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Oct. 20.—The officials of the bank of Ecuador succeeded yesterday in opening, for the first time since the great fire, the vaults of that institution. To their great satisfaction, they found the paper money, documents and books, as well as the coin, contained in the vaults to be in perfect condition. This will tend to restore confidence, and will lead to an earlier resumption of business than was anticipated.

Delighted with Our Railroad System.

New York, Oct. 20.—Prince Hilkoff and party arrived here from Buffalo over the New York Central railroad early this morning. The prince expresses himself as delighted with the many results of recent scientific discoveries in this country which he saw. "The hardest part of my return home," he said, "will be the work of convincing our railroad men of the superiority of your transportation system." The prince will sail to-morrow for Southampton, and from that place go as directly as possible to St. Petersburg.

COMPETITOR CREW

Second Trial of the Filibusters Begun at Havana.

CONSUL-GENERAL LEE NOT NOTIFIED

The Proceedings Conducted Before an Ordinary Court Martial—Lacordo and Milton's Evidence Not Different From That First Given.

Havana, Oct. 20.—The new trial of the men captured on the filibustering schooner Competitor began yesterday before an ordinary naval court martial. Alfredo Labordo of New Orleans, the leader of the party, and Owen Milton of Kansas were examined. Their evidence did not materially differ from that given at the previous trial, which resulted in the death sentence being imposed on the five prisoners, who, in addition to Labardo and Milton, are William Kinlea, an Englishman, and Elias Bedia and Theodore Maza, both Cubans. Consul General Lee was not present, he not having been advised that the trial would begin. The case of Leavett and Barnett was not called. They having been captured on shore it is believed that they will be tried by a military court.

HUNT FOR FILIBUSTERS.

Warship Looking for the Enterprise, Suspected of Carrying Recruits to Cuba.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 20.—The steamer Enterprise of Perth Amboy, N. J., left St. Augustine several days ago, presumably for Carrabelle, Fla. She was searched by the collector of customs and United States marshal. The mission of the United States warship Newark, which arrived off St. Augustine Sunday, is now said to be an endeavor to head off the Enterprise. W. A. Bisbee, owner of the steam tug Dauntless, says he has heard nothing of the boat since it was reported to have left the eastern coast of Florida with an expedition for the Cuban insurgents. He says the boat is on a wrecking trip.

SWEPT BY A GREAT FIRE.

The Entire Business Portion of Enfield, Mass., Wiped Out.

Athol, Mass., Oct. 20.—The town of Enfield was visited by a fire yesterday which wiped out the whole business portion. The fire started in a bakery, presumably from an overheated oven, and made rapid headway, spreading from the bakery to Gould's tinshop, then to the Masonic block, on the corner of the two main streets. Thence it leaped the street to the opposite corner, burning out the long block of stores there and a dwelling beyond. While this was in progress the strong wind carried sparks across the river, igniting the lumber yard of Gillette & Flint, containing about 100,000 feet. This was entirely burned out. The lumber of the Boston & Albany Railroad company, across the track from this, was also burned. There were no means whatever for fighting the fire, not even a hand engine, and late in the afternoon word was sent to Athol for aid. A steamer and hose company responded. When they arrived the fire had exhausted nearly all the combustible material in reach and was soon under control. The loss will be very heavy.

Armenian Refugees Admitted.

New York, Oct. 20.—Commissioner Senner allowed twenty of the Armenian refugees who arrived yesterday to land last night as they had money and also relatives in this country who would prevent them becoming charges upon the community. The rest of the Armenians were classed with the other immigrants who had been detained for examination by the special board of inquiry. It began work at once. A good many of them said they had twenty-five francs, but all declared that they had paid their own passage. This morning ten more were released and were taken to the Salvation Army house of refuge in Avenue D. One of the Armenians had $100.

Three Injured at a Crossing.

Lebanon, N. H., Oct. 20.—The Montreal express train north over the Concord division yesterday afternoon struck a buggy at Bakers crossing, two miles east of here, injuring Mrs. Peter Bill of Canaan and two small children. Mrs. Bill was whipping up her horse to clear the track.

Boston, Oct. 20.—Capt. Weiss of the British steamer Belgian Queen, from Antwerp, reports that on Oct. 10 the steamer passed a portion of the wreck of a vessel standing well out of the water. NEW AND NOVEL PROFESSION.

Backyard landscape artists, as subsidized and encouraged with cash prizes by the Woman's Town Improvement Association of this city, are a novelty and somewhat of a success. If this profession is fostered for a few summers we may expect that the desolate waste of grassless ground, strewn and desecrated with tin cans, cast off footwear and wide varieties of obnoxious weeds, that ordinarily greets the vision of tourists in the Blue Line transit, will become blooming floral beds of sweetly-scented rosy-posies—things of life and a joy forever. And it is not beyond the possibilities that tourists in transit will demand to be put off at Plainfield so that they may play in our backyards and holler down our rain barrels.

THE BANNER RAISING.

who said this ?") C. W. Opdyke, my neighbor.

"Fellow citizens, do not be dismayed or threatened through fears of disaster—nations have decayed through aristocracy, through aggregation of wealth, plutocracy, but never from too much good money.

"Workmen, should you doubt where to stand in this fight, I say when all the wealth in both parties combine, your only safeguard is to stand on the other side. The wealth at Mark Hanna's command, contributed to and dispensed through the liberal and generous hand of my friend, Charlie Fisk, can make a show, but it cannot control freemen. This is your fight. We have no money; we cannot send conveyances to carry you to the polls. We alone rely on your manhood to vote for Bryan and Sewall."

The next speaker, Mr. Reese, of Westfield, was then introduced. Mr. Reese is a veteran of the late war and has always been a staunch Republican, until this year. He has figured prominently in political affairs and is well known in this locality. Mr. Reese, in his speech, mentioned more especially the principal items on the money question. He advanced ideas which seemed to make the free silver side of the question a strong one. One point made was that one fourth of the United States business is transacted in England and that the Republican party was anxious to run this country on that per centage. He said Portugal had maintained a parity alone by herself and there was no reason why this country should not do the same. The point of having both the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver was strongly impressed. Mr. Reese said that if all the silver in the country was coined into money, leaving nothing for the arts, there would only be about $3 per capita and that he did not think was too much. While Mr. Reese was talking he was interrupted several times by men in the audience who asked questions relative to gold and silver. Mr. Reese answered the questions in a satisfactory manner and invariably his answers brought forth hearty applause of commendation from the crowd. Three loud cheers for Bryan and Sewell were given at the close.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

SCOTCH PLAINS.

William Lee's valuable grey hound dog run away from home, yesterday afternoon, and the hostler chased him nearly to Plainfield before the animal was captured.

The town pump at Emery's corner has been stoned in about it, so that man and beast can now quench their thirst from nature's flow without getting their feet wet.

Yesterday the work of swinging the new iron girders for the Terril road bridge was begun in earnest. A drill engine was brought into requisition to hoist the heavy iron work and thus far there have been no accidents.

Mrs. William Lee and her hostler, Watson, were driving from Plainfield yesterday afternoon, and at the corner of Front street and Watchung avenue, the animal became frightened at a piece of paper and attempted to run away. During the excitement one point on the shafts struck a tree and the shafts were considerably broken. Mrs. Lee suffered somewhat from shock.

DUNELLEN.

Edward Milligan has purchased the pony and cart formerly owned by Justice Luckey.

Conductor M. L. Rarick and wife spent Sunday with Mr. Rarick's parents at Chester.

The pay car stopped here yesterday and gladdened the hearts of employes and merchants—the latter to a noticeable extend.

A regular meeting of the officers and teachers of the M. E. Sunday-school will be held this evening in the Sunday-school room.

The members of the Dunellen Athletic Association will have a "husking bee" at the Rider homestead on the evening of October 29th.

The M. E. church members held an autumnal service Sunday evening which included singing by the children and an address by the pastor.

On Thursday evening of this week the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church will hold an oyster supper and entertainment in the basement of the church.

Arrangements are making for hoisting a Bryan and Sewall flag, probably on Wednesday evening of this week, or as soon as suitable speakers can be obtained.

Wm. Carmon, the butcher, has purchased T. W. Sisty's pointer dog "Lark," and intends to run him this fall. This makes three dogs "Billy" owns now.

Messrs. Randolph, Terry, Dealaman and Gray start away next Saturday on a hunting trip. Wm. Carmon and Edward Teel also start away the same day, but go to the wilds of Pennsylvania.

On Friday evening of this week there will probably be some tall checker playing in this "city." It will take place in W. H. Cole's office, and, although no prizes are offered, there will no doubt be a good audience to see the experts.

The Schubert Musical Club will hold a reception this evening at the home of Miss Emma Nelson. The reception is given in honor of and to those who took part in the recent play "The Last Loaf." A delegation of Plainfield people will come down in a body.

Rev. Mr. Custard preached a forcible sermon in the M. E. church Sunday morning and a collection was taken up for conference claimants. The amount realized was nearly equal to the apportionment. At the evening service the collection was for the benefit of the Sunday-school Union and Tract Society.

Three well-known young men from Plainfield got their just deserts at the Front street terminus of the street railway Sunday night. They were standing there "chewing the rag" when a gentleman and his wife came along on a tandem, when some insulting remarks were made about bloomers, etc. The gentleman on the wheel only stopped long enough to strike one of the fellows and knock him just clear from the trolley track.

Dunellen is going right ahead, especially in the building line. Alvah Gray, one dealer alone, has within the past week agreed to furnish material for new houses as follows: One for Eugene Runyon, on Church street; another for R. J. Swackhamer, on Church street; one for Sandford Staples, on the New Market road. Other buildings have been planned and the specifications drawn and before spring Dunellen may expect to witness a building boom such as it has never known before. One firm alone has contracted to furnish 50,000 feet of lumber.

The Presbyterian church of Dunellen was well filled Sunday night, when the service was given under the auspices of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. Miss Titsworth and others told of the work they had seen accomplished at the Christian Endeavor convention in Plainfield, and W. R. Hamilton, of Newark, also delivered an address. A collection was taken for the benefit of the local C. E. society.

The hoodlums are still on the rampage at Dunellen, and it's only a matter of a very short time, it is thought, when they will be stopped in their nefarious actions. It was only last Saturday night that depredations were committed in the unfinished cellar of the borough lockup, which should have sent the guilty ones to the county jail for three months at least. But the evildoers here seem to have no fear of the law, for on Saturday night some miscreants stole four gates from dooryards in various parts of the town and carried them to the Emoryside station. Two of the gates were thrown on the roof of the building and the other two were left standing in front of the place. Mr. Emory left his place about 12:15 o'clock and everything was quiet and serene about there then. But next morning it looked as though some woodyard had been located there. Two of the gate owners have called and recovered their property and the other two can have them by applying to Mr. Emory.

WASHINGTONVILLE.

A special praise service was held at the Wilson Memorial chapel last Sunday evening. Rev. Dr. Gibbs, of Millington, preached the sermon, while H. C. Newman, of this city, acted as leader of the meeting. He was assisted in the musical portion of the service by a chorus choir from Plainfield and North Plainfield. It was composed of the following: Sopranos, Mrs. Nelson Runyon, Miss Marie Newman and Miss Boice; altoes, Miss Julia J. Ketcham and Miss Carrie Dewey; tenors, Nelson Runyon and L. A. Hummer; basses, Fred Bristol and Charles Noble. Charles Davis accompanied them on his violin.

OAK TREE.

Paul Zobles, of New York, is the guest of Gen. Schwenck.

The "Feast of Seasons" at the Marconnier chapel this evening promises to be a pleasant affair. Booths representing the different seasons will be arranged and seasonable refreshments served. The bright moonlight night is expected to attract parties of cyclers from Plainfield, and special accommodations will be provided for wheels. A delightful programme will be given.

THEATRICAL.

There are comedians and comedians, but Teddy Simonds, who appears with the new spectacular production of the "Spider and Fly" at Music Hall on next Friday evening, is one of the drollest comedy characters of the present age. Strange to say he is a comedian with a good singing voice and has ample opportunities to display the same in his character of "Pickle." The role just fits him and his make-up is as eccentric as one could desire. Sparrow, the grotesque juggler, with the new spectacular production of the "Spider and Fly," is the greatest of all in his line performing miraculous tricks, seemingly impossible and doing the same with an ease and grace that is really remarkable.

PHILIPPINE REVOLT

Spanish Troops Afraid To Venture into the Interior.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY

Rebels Hold the Province of Cavite and Are Well Armed---Fifty Captives Imprisoned in the "Black Hole" Died in One Night.

San Francisco, Oct. 20.—The steamer Peru which arrived from the Orient last night brought some news of the revolution in the Philippine islands. The rebels now hold the province of Cavite, are well armed and have 8,000 Mauser rifles. The Sanish troops are afraid to venture into the interior until reinforcements arrive, lest the native troops should rebel. Chinese immigrants have suffered heavy loss both of life and property. Some 100 captives were imprisoned by the Spaniards in a "black hole" and fifty died in one night. Already the natural instinct of the native soldiers has been sufficiently shown. One day a regiment of the natives was parading. They were asked if they would fight for the Spanish government, and they readily replied that they would, but that they certainly would not kill one of their fellow-countrymen. On another occasion a Spanish captain and a half dozen of the native soldiers were turned out to quell a disturbance. Five of the natives were killed and the sixth then turned round, stabbed his officer to death and joined the rebel forces. The timidity of the Spanish officers to enter Cavite under these circumstances gave the rebel forces a splendid opportunity to gather in very large numbers in the province and to get formidably armed and thoroughly organized. When all was in readiness for an attack they swooped down upon the convent at Imus, a few miles from the town of Cavite, and murdered all the friars who could not manage to escape, but how many were put to death is not known. The government still refrained from sending troops into the province, but four Spanish men-of-war bombarded Imus and other places where the movement of the rebel forces could be detected for several days, and the bombardment was still going on at the date of last advices. It does not appear to have done very much damage as the shells fell short and the rebels continued to hold their position. It is believed that the whole of the province is in the hands of the rebels. They are said to have already slain hundreds in the interior. In the immediate neighborhood of Manila, but not in Manila itself, there has been much fighting.

TO FREE DR. JAMESON.

Leader of the Transvaal Raiders and Sir John Willoughby May Be Released.

London, Oct. 20.—The immediate release of Dr. L. S. Jameson and Major Sir John Willoughby, the Transvaal raiders, is probable. With Maj. R. Gray, Col. H. F. White and the Hon. Henry F. Coventry, they were convicted of violating the foreign enlistment act and were sentenced to fifteen and seven months' imprisonment respectively. Their release will be granted, it is said, upon a medical report declaring that the state of their health is such that further imprisonment would be dangerous to them.

Assessment in Connecticut.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 20.—The Connecticut state comptroller and treasurer, acting as a board of equalization of taxes, have sent out an order to all assessors to obey the law providing for assessments at full market value. The board says that the assessors fail to do their duty, town assessments will be raised by the state and that the end must be put to the present outrageous inequalities of the town tax lists as a basis for state and county taxation.

Methodist American University.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The programme of the exercises at the laying of the corner stone of the Hall of History, the first building of the American university (Methodist) in this city to-morrow afternoon has been completed. Owing to a previous engagement to attend the sesqui-centennial celebration of Princeton, President Cleveland will not be present.

Appointment for Daniel Magone.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Attorney General Harmon has appointed Daniel Magone of Ogdensburg, N. Y., formerly collector of customs of New York, special assistant United States district attorney for the northern district of New York.

New Jersey Legislative Nominees.

Planfield, N. J., Oct. 20.—At the democratic convention of Somerset county, held at Somerville, George Cramer of Brenchburg was nominated for senator, and William P. Logan of Bridgewater for assemblyman.

Treasury Gold Declines.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The treasury gold reserve at the opening of business to-day had declined to $121,787,261. Yesterday's withdrawals at New York were $285,500.

SCHOOL TO TRAIN SERVANTS.

One Writer Thinks This the Only Remedy for the Present Situation

Such a school should be well organized and equipped for the thorough training of servants in all branches of household work. In the first place it should have facilities for teaching pupils how to bathe properly, to care for their own bodies and their own clothes. It should have different departments of training, one for laundresses, another for chambermaids, another for waitresses, another for cooks and another for general housework servants, the last, of course, requiring a special condensed course. On entrance young women or girls should be classified as far as possible, according to their general intelligence and ability as well as the employment for which they wish to be fitted. The first work given should be the washing of the kitchen-ware, the sweeping of the kitchen, and the scrubbing of the floor and tables—in short, every pupil should be taught the work of a kitchen maid. After that, even though she intends to fit herself for a special department, she should be taught to sweep and dust carpeted rooms, and next to do plain washing and ironing, these being among the things which every domestic should know how to do well.

An ordinary dwelling-house might be utilized for the school. The basement, which should be well lighted, could be fitted up as a laundry, capable of accommodating a large number of women, to be classified as they advance in skill in the department. There must be a head laundress to look after those under her, and inspectors to decide when a woman is capable of promotion.

In a city of 5,000 inhabitants such a laundry might easily be made self-supporting.

The first floor of the training school should be devoted to the cooking department. It should have several kitchens where women in different stages of advancement could work, under an expert leader. The different departments in cookery could be made self-supporting by having lunch counters where men could go in with their dinner-pails and have served to them from the kitchens of the less skilled pupils hot soup, tea, coffee, and other plain food, while a restaurant of a better class might be sustained from the work of those who were more thoroughly trained. Another source of income might be secured by filling orders for special dishes, or for whole meals. Setting a table, washing fine china, and glass, and polishing silver could be taught in connection with the restaurant.

The upper floors should consist of a parlor and various apartments, where servants could be trained in cleaning, dusting, window-washing, care of lamps and all kinds of second work. From this department servants could be sent out by the hour or day to sweep, dust or act as housemaids.

With the training given in this way a thoroughly competent laundress, if she were a fairly industrious and intelligent worker, should be graduated in perhaps six months. After the first month she might be paid a small sum for her services. The cooks might also begin to have small wages after the first month. At least two years would probably be required for a cook to be thoroughly trained in every branch of her work, from caring for her range to doing fine cookery. Those who show special capacity should be trained to take the whole responsibility of planning and cooking elaborate luncheons and dinners, as well as in the mastery of economical and healthful cookery for everyday life. Wages should increase with gain in skill. The cook would find compensation for the longer course in the high wages which her certificate would enable her to demand. The time required for training in any department would depend upon intelligence and adaptability.

The certificates given by the training school should be proof of skill, competence and integrity; they should state exactly what the servant is fitted to do and they should be so conscientiously given that a housekeeper might rest assured that she knew exactly the capabilities of the servant. Throughout the course earnest effort should be made to impress upon the pupils the idea of moral obligation. Servants should be made to realize the dignity of their work, and the important part its faithful performance plays in the happiness and health of the home, and so of the nation. They should be taught that their work is as essential to the moral and physical well-being of humanity as that of the teacher, the doctor or the minister, and that it demands just as much unselfishness and conscientiousness. In this connection it might be well to establish a training school for mistresses and other members of the family, that the idea of moral obligation might not be all on one side.—Carrie Niles Whitcomb, in Century.

The Duke and Duchess of Bedford Injured.

Edinburgh, Oct. 20.—A dispatch from Cairnsmore, Kirkcudbrigtshire, says that the Duke and Duchess of Bedford, while driving, were thrown out of their carriage and seriously injured. The duke was aide-de-camp to Lord Dufferin while the latter was viceroy of India. The duchess is a daughter of the Ven. W. H. Tribe, formerly archdeacon of Lahore

BE OF GOOD CHEER.

Victory Over Exhausted Vitality and Impaired Health.

An Assurance to Sufferers That Health and Happiness May Again Be Theirs.

There are many causes that combine to leave men and women in a shattered condition of health—nervous, listless languid, vitality and vigor at a low ebb and the tide still going out; full of gloomy forebodings and almost without hope of any change for the better. These causes need not be particularized. The condition only need be considered. Is it possible that this drifting away from health and vigor can be arrested? that a turn in the tide can be accomplished and an inflowing created toward vitality, vigor, health and happiness? It is.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, the well-known specialist in nervous and chronic diseases, is the discoverer of the greatest and most efficient nerve and blood remedy that has ever blessed the weak and suffering. Dr. Greene's Nervura is a medicine recommended and prescribed by the most eminent physicians. No remedy has ever been known which cures disease like it, and weak, tired, run-down, nervous and debilitated people are amazed at its almost magical power to make the sick well. This is the opportunity of a lifetime; seize it while it is yours. Get back your health, your strength and vigor, by using immediately this remarkable medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will surely make you well. So positive is its discoverer, Dr. Greene, of its grand effects, that he invites all who desire, to consult him free of charge, in person or by letter.

AN EXPENSIVE POST.

Its Salary Will Not Support the Dignity of the Job.

It was recently reported that the post of military attache to the American embassy was vacant, and had been offered to three officers, all of whom have declined it on the ground that their salaries could not support the dignity of the job, says Harper's Weekly. It is a very pretty place, and one that has not been used to go begging. It calls for an officer of the rank of major, and gives him little to do except to look handsome and to adorn London society with his presence. He is entitled to wear the most decorative clothes of anyone connected with the ambassy. When he rides out with the ambassador he goes on the front seat inside, and not on the box-seat with the coachman, as ill-informed persons have erroneously supposed. Opportunities to meet folks that really are folks come to him daily. He dines out nearly every night, and seldom is at loss for a hearty meal of nourishing food. His chief expenses are for lodgings and for cab hire, but the hesitation of worthy officers to accept the place indicates that even those expenses may be too considerable. The real trouble must be that the majors in Uncle Sam's army are middle aged men with families, and a salary that might maintain the attache himself well enough in London will not also maintain his family, either at home in his absence or with him abroad. If lieutenants had rank enough for the place, it would probably be easy to keep it filled with young unmarried officers of the requisite stature and comeliness.

AN UNFORTUNATE SPEECH.

It Embarrassed the Young Lady and Amused the Onlookers.

It was on a Delmar avenue car. The car had stopped, and everybody knows how, in the stillness of a stopped car, a voice as soft as a cooing dove smites the general ear as clearly as the strident voice of the professional orator at a ward meeting, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The young man fumbled in his pockets in vain. He was moneyless. In a stage whisper, intended for his companion's ears alone, but which went to the ears of all the passengers, without discrimination, he said:

"Have you any change with you; I exchanged my pants and left my money behind?"

Of course the passengers were all attention. They always are on such occasions. The young lady looked in her purse and felt in her pockets. The search was vain. She stage whispered: "I've done the same thing."

She meant she had left her money at home, but she framed it unhappily. And when one or two heartless young men laughed mildly she blushed and made things worse by explaining audibly that she had left her money in her other dress. A fellow passenger paid both fares, and the episode and the car passed on.

MR. BRYAN CONTINUES HIS TOUR

Only Two Delegations To Call on Major McKinley To-day, But To-morrow Promises To Be Another Big Event of the Campaign at Canton.

Canton, O., Oct. 20.—The political pilgrims due here to-day to deliver to Major McKinley the assurances of their loyalty and earnestness in support of the republican ticket include the East End McKinley club of Cleveland, Sixth district, Maryland, and Second West Virginia district republicans. The weather is not all that could be desired and it is now feared that rain may mar the programme arranged for to-morrow which is expected to be another of the big days for Canton. Should the weather prove favorable probably 25,000 strangers will come to the city. It is "Illinois Day" and besides several train loads of dwellers in the Prarie state, big delegations are to come from Warren and Massillon, O. The Illinois clubs will bring several car loads of horses for their own use, and a monster parade has been arranged. Even should the weather prove inclement, Major McKinley will receive and address as many of the visiters as can be crowded into the Tabernacle, the hall where he has already addressed several of the pilgrimages. The mail and telegraph are still beinging requests from leaders of delegations asking Major McKinley if he can receive them. Among the delegations from a distance booked to-day is one from Trenton and Newark, N. J.

MR. BRYAN IN OHIO.

The Nominee Introduced to the Audience at Hamilton by Ex-Gov. Campbell.

Washington Court House, O., Oct. 20.—It was raining hard when the Bryan party reached here last night at 9 o'clock. The democratic nominee addressed a big crowd, nevertheless, and left twenty minutes after his arrival. Dayton gave Mr. Bryan the most enthusiastic reception of the day. In fact two greetings were accorded him there. The first was not on the programme. In the run over from Xenia to Hamilton the train passed through Dayton and a big crowd surrounded the train in the railway station during its short wait there and cheered the nominee for several minutes. On the return to Dayton from Hamilton the principal exercises of the day took place. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan were conveyed to the fair grounds, two miles distant. People filled the grand stand to its capacity and a great crowd was drawn up in front of the platform upon which Mr. Bryan spoke. Mr. Bryan had lost so much time at Hamilton and was so far behind his schedule that his speech was cut short. At Hamilton he was introduced to a big gathering by ex-Gov. Campbell. As this was the ex-governor's first appearance in the campaign additional interest was manifested in the Hamilton meeting. Gov. Campbell made only a few remarks in introducing the nominee, and said that Butler county would give the usual democratic majority in November.

BUFFETED BY THE STORM.

Rough Experience of the Brig Hussey Off the Hatteras.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 20.—The brig H. B. Hussey, Captain Warr, was towed into this harbor yesterday from Hampton roads, having been in the storm from the 10th to the 14th instant, in a continuous gale. She lost her foremast and everything forward, and also her main topmast. Her cabin was flooded and her decks and bulwarks damaged, and her boats all lost. Her home port is Richmond, Me., and she was bound from Boston to Charleston, S. C. The worst of her experience was on the 11th instant when she was in the latitude about Hatteras. After the gale she rigged a jury mast, bent spare sails and headed for the capes of Virginia. When picked up she was about sixty miles southeast of Cape Henry. Captain Warr reports that every day since the storm he has passed quantities of wreckage. He says he never saw so much before in his life.

New York Militia Rifle Case.

Albany, Oct. 20.—It is reported that Gov. Morton not only will refuse to accept the report of the commission which investigated the working of the Savage gun, but will order a new test before a new commission. It is said that if this is done, counsel for the Savage Gun company will prefer charges against Deputy Attorney-General Davies, charging him with collusion with the Winchester Arms company to defeat the award.

Storm Damage at Halifax.

Halifax, Oct. 20.—The city engineer says that $10,000 will not place the city in the condition it was previous to the storm. If the water in Long lake rises much higher there will be fears for the breaking of the water works dam and the village of Herring Cove would be wiped out. The Herring Cove road bridges have already been washed away.

Pope Leo in American Politics.

Rome, Oct. 20.—It is learned at the Vatican that the pope is sending special instructions to Archbishop Martinelli, the newly appointrd apostolic delegate to the United States, in regard to the attitude of the Catholic clergy in America in the present political campaign and coming presidential election.

CAUGHT UP ON GRIDIRON

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

The Alis football team will meet the Roselle eleven this afternoon at four o'clock on the Martine field.

Fred A. Wenck, manager of the San Remo football team, will act as referee at the Westfield-Plainfield game on Saturday.

Wesley Abbott, of this city, has been playing tackle on the Yale 'varsity eleven in the place of Captain Murphy who was laid up for a few days.

The Y. M. C. A. team will meet tonight on the field for night practice. It is very necessary that all who expect to play in the game against Westfield next Saturday should be present to practice the new signals.

Assistant Manager Thos. U. Smith is anxious to arrange a game for the Y. M. C. A. team for the 31st, Hallowe'en, on some out-of-town grounds. Several clubs have tried to secure the date but they were too weak, for Smith wants to try the club's strength against some formidable rival.

Roy T. Phillips, captain and full back on the Alias team, attended the Rahway game Saturday as substitute end for the Y. M. C. A. team. Phillips is putting up such a good game on his team that Captain Freeman and Coach Waring decided to play him on the big team if necessary.

A new reason for the excellent playing of the Plainfield boys has been suggested. It is supposed that the presence of so Plainfield's fair daughters encouraged the young men on to renewed efforts. Hoping that to be the case, the management will at next Saturday's game, admit, free, members of the gentle sex.

Manager R. I. Townley has arranged the following games for the Westfield Football Association team: Oct. 24, Plainfield Y. M. C. A. at Plainfield; Oct. 31, Passaic High School, at Westfield; Nov. 3, Hamilton A. C., of Brooklyn, at Westfield; Nov. 7, Hoboken High School, at Westfield; and Nov. 14, Plainfield Y. M. C. A., at Westfield.

The Y. M. C. A. team will be minus their field in a few weeks. A new road is now being laid out that crosses almost through the center of the gridiron and will, of course, prevent any more playing there. A new gridiron will be laid out, if possible in the rest of the field. The builders of the new road have consented to wait until after the first of the month so the team will be able to have the use of their present grounds until after the election day game at least.

Plainfield will have no cinch in her game with Westfield, says Fred A. Wenck, manager of the San Remo eleven of New York, which has played both teams. He thinks that the Westfield men average 160 pounds, at least, and are the equals in weight of the Plainfield team. It is his opinion that Plainfield will have to put up a very strong game to defeat her antagonists from down the road. But then Mr. Wenck has not seen the Plainfield team since its improvement of the last two weeks.

Every body commented on the great game Edgar I. Serrell put up as end on the Y. M. C. A. team Saturday. He started quickly, broke up Rahway's interference in excellent shape, and was always to be found in the thickest of the fray. Both he and Peck went down the field very quickly on a kick and Rahway's full back had his kicks blocked almost every time. Milne did excellent work in that direction for he upset his opponent and stretched his long form before the kicker and managed to pull the ball down when it was far beyond the reach of any ordinary player.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The bowling season is at hand and as yet the bowlers of this city and borough are remaining inactive. The alleys of the Park Club are frequented every evening by the young people of the club, but as yet the veterans, "Doc" Thiers, Peter Matthews and the rest are infrequent visitors. There seems to be no movement toward organized team bowling among the Park enthusiasts. Early in the fall it was suggested that a league be formed of the Park Club, Union County Country Club, and the Roselle Casino. The three were to meet at the alleys of the different clubs and three games were to be rolled, each team meeting the other two. No action toward the formation of such a triple alliance has been taken, however. The Standard League has not been heard from as yet. The Amateur Bowling League and the Foresters' League of Bowlers are arranging their schedule for the season, but Plainfield is not represented in either.

The Crescent Wheelmen are in a quandary. Their new club house has no alleys, and the members like to bowl. They are hoping that some one will open the old bowling alleys on East Second street, and then the club would probably arrange to have the use of the alleys for several nights. In that case a team will be formed, but it is doubtful whether the team would join any league.

The alleys of the Plainfield Catholic Club are being put in order for the winter, but the club has not yet decided to take part in any regular tournament.

Last year Plainfield was represented in three leagues, but from present appearances she will not be represented in any unless the Parks, Union Counties and Roselle should form a triple alliance.

FANWOOD.

The Republican primary at Fanwood was the largest attended for many years, fifty-five votes being cast. John Robison was made chairman, and W. B. Noel secretary. Six nominations for delegates were made as follows: John Robison, E. L. Hand, W. H. Terry, Geo. Kyte, F. R. Allen and Joseph Clark, the first four being successful.

BASKET BALL.

The business mens class had a full attendance Monday afternoon at the gymnasium class and organized the basket ball section for the season. J. H. Doane was unanimously elected captain for the season and will go to work at once to select a team to play the regular association team at an early date.

DANGER IN ROENTGEN RAYS.

Penalties for One Who Looks at His Skeleton.

A warning has been voiced by one of the leading English medical journals in regard to the too frequent use of the Roentgen ray apparatus.

It is interesting, no doubt, says the Philadelphia Ledger, to obtain a series of photographs of one's own skeleton, but if this is to be at the expense of such trifles as one hair and one's finger nails, it hardly seems worth the cost. One electrical engineer, who has often demonstrated the beauty of his own finger bones by placing one of his hands within the radius of the searching rays, has lost all the nails from the finger of that hand, while Sidney Rowland, who is one of the leading experimenters in this direction, mentions several cases of similar character in the structural changes that occur in the hair, and so forth, of those who have been frequently shadowgraphed by this method. Thus, in the case of patients whose heads have been subjected to the influence of the rays, the hair has either turned white or has fallen out entirely. It is suggested that these results are due to the electrical potency of what are called ultra violet rays of the spectrum, though their precise action is at present by no menas thoroughly understood.

One curious suggestion has already been made. It is a well-known superstition, and one which has existed for generations, that people who sleep in the direction of the moon have their reason more or less seriously affected. Now it is said that these ultra violet rays exist in the moonlight, and hence a popular superstition may be founded upon scientific fact.

ENCOURAGE GARDENING.

English Railway Companies Offer Prizes for the Purpose.

In England the Great Western and the Midland offer sums of money annually to encourage platform gardens. In the case of the former company, says the Quarterly Review, a regular system has been in operation for 19 years, £50 being voted annually for the purpose. The line is divided into 12 sections. To each a special prize of five pounds is awarded, and there are 163 ordinary prizes, ranging from three pounds to ten shillings, a list of the successful stations being published each year. A circular is also sent round furnishing a complete list of plants suitable for various purposes—for permeant borders, for summer bedding, for mixed borders of hardy plants, for spring bedding, as well as a list of evergreens and creepers, together with particulars as to height, color, dates for sowing, and many other necessary hints.

The Midway railway devotes £200 in the same way, the prizes ranging from seven pounds ten shillings to five shillings. A fully qualified inspector, whose duties take him to every part of the line, is deputed to deal with the matter, and the whole scheme is pronounced a success. The Great Northern and the London & Northwestern companies let allotments to their men where possible, the number of allotments in the case of the former company reaching very nearly 2,500.

RAILWAYS IN CHINA.

After Decades of Endeavor the Empire Is at Last to Be Open.

Several railways are at last about to be built in China, according to a recent Peking Gazette. One line is to connect Peking with Tien-Tsin. It will be about 80 miles long, and constructed entirely with government funds.

Another road is to run across central China from Peking to Hankow. The emperor has decided that the railroad will stimulate trade in China, besides giving employment to the masses of the people, and so will give it all the support in his power.

A third line is to be built from Shanghai to Soochow. This road, although it will only be about 65 miles long, is expected to accomplish a great deal by opening up the province of Kiangsu. The viceroy of Nanking has always strongly opposed all railroad projects in China, but is now enthusiastic over the enterprise, and offers to provide half the cost out of the official treasury, and urges his people to subscribe for shares for the remainder.

Surveys are now being made, and the work will probably soon be under way

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redying. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? HOW THE BACKDOOR CONTEST BEGAN

Idea Was Suggested Mrs. to D. W. Pond When She Was Viewing Plainfield Landscape From a Car Window of the New Jersey Central Railroad.

The New York Sun yesterday published the following rather amusing report of the backyard contest of the Woman's Town Improvement Association:

For months the women of Plainfield, N. J., have been wrestling with the problem of clean back yards, one in the eastern and one in the western part of the city, which are the cleanest back yards to be found for miles around. On Friday a procession of carriages, filled with Plainfield's best society, will go to these back yards, and will present to the owner of each a brand-new bill.

Plainfield is blessed with a Town Improvement Association, made up largely of wealthy women, whose ambition is to make the town a veritable garden. As it is now, there is not much wanting to make it one, but the women want to get it into such a condition that Morristown, the Oranges, Englewood and all the rest of the Jersey commutersville will hide their faces in shame at their own shortcomings. It is a good town to look at now, with its wide, macadamized streets, lined on either side with tall, beautiful trees, its pleasant homes, each with its bit of lawn and garden, its good horses, and good bicycles, and its pretty girls. But it has its faults, too. The streets are not always as clean as they might be, the grocers insist upon lumbering up the sidewalks with their wares, and in the fall the town is suffocated with the smoke of burning leaves. But, above all, in the poorer parts the people haven't seemed to appreciate what it means to live in Plainfield, and have neglected to keep their back yards in that state of cleanliness that a town of that kind should demand.

So the Town Improvement Association was formed about a year ago, and since then it has wrestled with these various problems.

The back yard problem came up in this way: Mrs. David W. Pond was going home from New York one day, and as the train approached the Plainfield station she happened to look out of the car window, and she saw the back yards of some of the houses along the track. What she saw made her think. It was really distressing to see them, unkempt, uncared for littered up as they were and when the Town Improvement Association had its next meeting, she made a speech, the result of her thinking. That speech made a great impression on her hearers. The very idea of dirty back yards became abhorrent to them at once, and one or two of them flushed a bit guilty while the discussion was going on.

Then came the problem. How was the trouble to be remedied? It was decided to begin a campaign of education that the people might learn the evils of dirty back yards from an æsthetic point of view, of course, for Plainfield as yet has little need of sanitary science, and so a few devoted members went out to reason with the erring ones. They painted to them in glowing colors the future glories of Plainfield if the back yards were clean. They told how Plainfield would surpass in health, wealth and happiness, not to speak of beauty, her sister Jersey towns if the back yards were clean.

The reception they got was a bit discouraging. Mrs. Pond, Miss Stewart, and the rest came back to the association and said that Plainfield's submerged tenth was incorrigible, and it is related on varacious authority that some of them wept. Finally the husbands were appealed to, and one of them sagely remarked that money can buy anything.

This opened a new prospect. A special meeting was held and as a result the next day's papers had a notice in great black type that the Town Improvement Association would award $5 to the owners of the cleanest back yards in town. Again it was shown that it's money that makes the mare go. What eloquence didn't do that offer of $10 did. There sprang up an unprecedented demand for rakes and hoes. Small boys no longer loitered on the streets idly browning their skins in the hot summer sun. They browned them in the back yards hoeing and raking and weeding, sowing grass seed and planting flowers, sweating and toiling when the sun fish in the river were just

ALL AGAINST THEIR FATHER'S BROTHER.

Court of Chancery Have a Mixed-up Dispute to Settle.

FAULT OF NOT HAVING LEGAL PAPERS

Brothers Buy Land and Houses Adjoining Each Other—A Son of One Them Gets a Piece of Land and Builds, the Mother Dies—Trouble Then Commences For All.

North Plainfield seems to have more than its share of court fights. The latest case is between Herman Keller and his father and brothers and sisters, and his uncle, Christian Keller. The trial was begun before Vice-Chancellor Reed, in Newark, on Monday, and the story as told by Christian Keller's witnesses was interesting, not to say sensational. Herman Keller and his witnesses are yet to be heard from when the case is brought up again tomorrow at Trenton. Christian Keller's version as given to the Vice-Chancellor was as follows:

He, and his brother, Jacob, bought a lot two hundred feet square at the corner of Harrison and Cedar streets, in North Plainfield, in 1869, and together erected a large double house on seventy six feet measured off from the westerly corner. Each brother contributed half the expense of the purchase of the lot and the erection of the building, and the two brothers moved their families respectively into the double house, each occupying a separate half. They lived this way until 1878, when Jacob Keller deeded his half interest in the whole property to his wife. Not long after that Geo. Bremmer married a daughter of Jacob Keller, and Jacob and his wife desiring to give their son-in-law a lot on which to build a house, agreed with Christian Keller to divide the unfenced portion of their joint property, so that Bremmer should take sixty-two feet and build a house on it, and Christian Keller should take the other sixty-two feet for himself. All sides agreed to this, but no deeds passed and nothing was put in writing. Bremmer built his house on the sixty-two feet marked off for him, and Christian, at the same time, built his own house on the sixty-two feet marked off for him. When these houses were built, Christian moved his family into his house, and George Bremmer occupied the other. For the next sixteen years or more, the families lived in this way in peace. At the end of that time, Jacob Keller's wife died, and one of the questions in the case is whether she left a will or did not. Herman Keller claimed that she left no will, and that accordingly her share in the whole property vested in her children, subject to her husband's life estate. Mr. Bremmer having no deed for the lot on which he erected his house, thought it would be prudent to get his house off that lot, which he accordingly did without further ceremony. He moved the house to an adjoining lot which he had purchased for himself. Then Herman Keller, perhaps fearing that Christian might move his house off too, brought a suit in Chancery, claiming that the whole property should be divided equally between Christian Keller on the one side, and the heirs of Jacob Keller's wife on the other. In this way Herman Keller and his brothers and sisters would take half the value of the house which Christian Keller had built at his own expense. William R. Codington is the counsel for Herman Keller and Jacob Keller and others, and his clients deny that the property was divided by word of mouth or otherwise.

Christian Keller put himself in the hands of Craig A. Marsh, and was advised that while Herman Keller was correct about the record title, yet that a court of equity would, if a proper cross suit was brought by Christian, prevent the other side from taking any part of the house and lot occupied by Christian Keller, and would compel them to take the vacant lot as equivalent to Christian Keller's house and lot, and would direct the corner house and lot to be sold, and the money equally divided. Christian Keller directed the cross suit to be brought to secure him those rights, and it was brought accordingly. Christian Keller's friends, at first, thought he was in a hopeless position, because of the popular impression that no title to land will pass without a deed or at least something in writing signed by the parties. Mr. Marsh says this is true in a court of law, but that a court of equity is not always bound by the strict rules applied in courts of law, and very often by injunction or similar relief will compel parties to do what equity and good conscience dictate.

The trial will proceed at the State House tomorrow, and the outcome will be watched with much interest.

JAMES P. POWERS NAMED FOR SENATOR

Democrats Nominate a Former Plainfield Lawyer.

AN ELIZABETH MAN FOR SHERIFF.

A Rahway Justice Called an Assembly Nominee a Gold Bug, and the Remark Made a Great Tumult—It Was a Very Lively Convention Throughout.

The Union County Democrats, at their convention in Elizabeth yesterday afternoon, nominated James P. Powers, a lawyer, formerly of this city, for State Senator, ex Alderman Jacob W. Sheppard, of Elizabeth, for Sheriff, and Freeholder Noah Woodruff, of Roselle, School Commissioner.

William D. Wolfeskiel and John J. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, were named for Assemblymen, and Dr E. B. Silvers, of Rahway, for Coroner.

William J. Lansley, of Elizabeth, was chosen chairman, and Alford B. Cook, of Rahway, secretary. Former Senator Fred C. Marsh, of Elizabeth, refused to accept the nomination for Senator, and then Mr. Powers, who now lives in Elizabeth, was the only availiable candidate.

For Sheriff there was a hot fight between Mr. Sheppard and W. H. Reynolds, a former deputy sheriff. The roll was a tie between the two men, each getting 70, although the reporters made it Reynolds 61 and Sheppard 69.

There was an uproar over a missing vote from Fanwood Township, and finally the committee on credentials filled the vacancy, which gave Sheppard one vote more. At this time Mr. Reynolds, who was not aware he was going to be placed in nomination, entered the hall and withdrew in favor of his friend, Mr. Sheppard.

This quelled the tumult, but it broke out afresh when Justice Trussler, of Rahway, got up and charged Freeholder Woodruff, named for Assembly, with being a gold bug and with having said he would not support Bryan.

Mr. Woodruff hurled back at the Rahway man his charges, and said he had never bolted a Democratic nomination. It was then the Rahway man's turn to take water, which he admitted he seldom did. He acknowledged he had made a mistake and that he had meant that former Freeholder George W. Doty, of Union, and not Mr. Woodruff, was a gold bug and a backslider. Doty was not at the convention.

Freeholder Woodruff accepted the apology and the convention roared with laughter.

There was more turmoil over the selection of a coroner. No one could say Dr. Silvers would not accept and he was nominated, although some men declared he was a gold bug.

James E. Martine addressed the convention.

Resolutions favoring the Chicago platform were adopted.

Sons to Help Fathers.

John Hand Camp, No. 28, S. of V., met last evening and considered the coming G. A. R. fair. The members all felt as though they should give their assistance as much as possible in making the fair a success. Captain Sutton appointed Second Lieutenant H. C. McVoy, First Sergeant H. S. Thatcher and Sergeant of Guard Louis Eaton, as a committee, to assist at the fair and co-operate with the other committees. The next meeting of the camp will be held Tuesday evening, November 3d, and as it is election night the meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock, so that an early adjournment may be made.

The following is the programme for the service at the Congregational church this evening: The Bible: 1, Its books, divisions and languages; 2, How the canon was settled; 3, How the Bible was preserved and transmitted; 4, Efforts to destroy the Bible; 5, The number of Bibles now printed; 6, Higher criticism; 7, Inspiration; 8, The power of the Bible. University Extension Lectures.

The University Extension lectures will commence on November 10th. The committee announces that subscribers can obtain their tickets at Harper's store on Park avenue. The price is $1.50, and subscribers should call for them at once, as the number of tickets is limited to 400, and those not called for will be resold.

To Hear Election Returns.

The Board of Governors of the Park Club met last evening and heard the treasurer's report, which was most encouraging. The Board stated that arrangements had been made to have a wire run into the clubhouse on election night and that an operator would be present to receive the returns. Committees were selected and will be made known later.

A CHRISTENING AND A NUPTIAL EVENT.

Happy Double Service at Home of Roundsman Frederickson.

BRIDE AND GROOM POPULAR PEOPLE

But Few Knew That the Genial Officer Had an Heir But Two Weeks Old and the Christening Was Quite a Surprise—The House Was Prettily Decorated.

The home of Roundsman and Mrs. Christian Frederickson, 871 Leland avenue, was the scene last evening of a double celebration. The first event was the christening of their youngest son, who is two weeks old. Rev. P. S. Simpson, pastor of St. Stephens P. E. church, Netherwood, officiated, and the sponsors were Miss Elizabeth Burrows, Alfred Liewald and Richard Kissam. The given name was Walter.

The second celebration was the marriage of Bendix Frederickson and Miss Elizabeth Burrows, of Washington street. This ceremony was also performed by Dr. Simpson. The double parlors were prettily decorated with autumn leaves and roses. In the center, beneath an arch, the bridal party stood while the marriage service according to the Episcopal church was performed. The wedding was a beautiful one from the fact that simplicity was a marked feature.

The bride was charming in a gown of white swiss trimmed with white satin ribbon and lace. The bridemaid, Miss Isabelle Roberts, of Bayonne, was attractively gowned in white, trimmed with white lace and ribbon, while the maid of honor, Miss Dora Frederickson, sister of the groom, was becoming in a gown of pink swiss, trimmed with white lace and ribbon. The bride and bridemaid carried bouquets of white roses, while the maid of honor carried a bouquet of pink roses. The best man was Alfred Liewald, of Netherwood.

Miss Frances Skimming, of England, a cousin of the bride, was also in the bridal party. The bride was given away in marriage by Mr. Frederickson, father of the groom. After the ceremony, congratulations were offered. Supper was served a little later and it was complete in every particular. While supper was being served, the noise of tin horns and drums outside gave unmistable evidence that the happy couple were being serenaded by their young friends. The demonstration was continued until the groom appeared and satisfied their wishes.

Although the wedding was only witnessed by just the nearest relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Frederickson received a costly collection of useful and handsome presents, as tokens of the highest esteem. The groom secured a home on East Second street, which was handsomely furnished and ready for occupancy last evening. During the evening they went to their future home. Mr. Frederickson is a valued employe of the Walter Scott Printing Machine Works, and his wife is an accomplished and highly esteemed young woman who has resided in this city for some time past. Both have the hearty congratulations of their many friends for a successful and prosperous journey through life. Before leaving for home the guests enjoyed some excellent vocal and instrumental music.

A Union Meeting.

A union meeting of the Epworth Leagues of Plainfield will be held tomorrow evening at the Monroe Avenue chapel. Louis Potter, president of the Elizabeth District Epworth League, will be present and speak. He will also sing a solo. The presidents of the local Leagues, the pastors of the M. E. churches and a representative of the Local Christian Endeavor Union, will make short addresses. The meeting will be a religious one and no sociable will follow.

Democratic Mass Meeting.

The Bryan and Sewall Democrats will hold a mass meeting in Music Hall on Thursday evening of next week, at which Dr. Beckworth, of Ohio, who spoke in T. A. B. hall sometime ago, Freeman O. Willey, candidate for Congress in this district, and several others, will deliver speeches.

The ladies of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will be remembered. F. A. Barnaby he offered a cup for a ladies' handicap tournament, and the preliminaries for it will be started in a few days.

TWO PISTOL SHOTS ENDED NINE LIVES

Horrible Fatality Enacted Today on North Avenue.

U. S. EXPRESS OFFICE THE SCENE

A Homeless Waif Entered the Office and When She Refused to Leave Manager Mills Pulled Out His Popper and Snuffed Out Nine Lives at Once

Two pistol shots rang out on the clear morning air in the vicinity of the North Avenue station this morning at about 9 o'clock, and nine lives were ended by those two shots. The man who fired them calmly replaced his revolver in his desk while his victims lay at his feet struggling in the last throes of death. No vigilant policeman placed him under arrest, for his victims were friendless, homeless and alone. There was no one to take their part, and even now the corpse of the victim is on its way to Scranton in a coal car.

Manager Mills, of the local U. S. Express Company, was seated this morning at his desk talking with a lady when a black and white cat crept in at the back door. It differed from the sleek, well-fed tabby of history, for there was a wild light in the creature's eyes and it kept snapping and scratching, and froth issued from its mouth. After the visitor departed, rather hastily, perhaps, Mr. Mills tried to drive the feline out, but pussy would not go, and scratched and spat and ran about the room until it became evident the creature was mad.

Finally pussy retreated under the desk of Frank Bowman. The cat jumped at Mr. Mills when he tried to get her out, and so he at last shot her. Six of the lives, it is supposed, were extinguished, but the other three kicked hard. Another shot ended all, and the remains were tossed on a coal car. Mr. Mills returned to his desk and to work and smiled at patrons of the company passing in and out.

Lively Runaway.

While the Misses Coward, of East Front street, were driving through Washington avenue near the bridge yesterday afternoon, the horse was suddenly frightened and upset the wagon, throwing the occupants out. A footman on the wagon jumped off in time to catch the horse before he got very far. The two woman escaped with a few slight scratches. Another attempted runaway occurred in North Plainfield yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Bond, of East Front street, and a lady friend were out driving, in some manner the the horse fell down. The women were thrown out and Mrs. Pond sustained a slight sprain to her ankle. Her friend was not injured and there was no damage to the wagon.

Must Not Encumber the Sidewalk.

The Woman's Town Improvement Association are determined that sidewalk encumbrances shall be a thing of the past in this city. Some of the members have been delving into the city ordinances and in section 7, on page 29, they find an ordinance that provides for the punishment of all merchants who blockade the sidewalk and street with goods in any form. They are now having copies of the ordinance printed and they will be distributed among the merchants who will be notified that a violation of its provision will be met with prosecution. A fine of $20 is attached to a conviction.

A Wrong Accusation.

Mrs. Samuel Dreier called at The Press office today and denounced in emphatic terms the article in yesterday's News reflecting upon the integrity of her husband as a business man, and his alleged connection with the purchase of a stolen gun. Mrs. Dreier says her husband had nothing to do with the matter, but instead it was her son, who is engaged in the legitimate sporting goods business.

New Fall and Winter Coats.

J. Linn Edsall opened today the second installment of ladies' and misses' fall and winter coats and capes which comprises the largest assortment of these garments ever offered in this section, and, being sold under the new method price, are much lower than ever offered before.

A Marriage This Afternoon.

The marriage of Miss Ida Amy Fletcher and Robert Giddis, of Dunellen, was solemnized this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the New Market Baptist church. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher, at 3:30 o'clock.

CLOSING APPEAL IN THE WEST END.

Carl Pfeiffer Urges Support for Palmer and Buckner.

FREE SILVER IS NOT THE ONLY ISSUE

But The Speaker Said That Commodities Would Rise in Price After Free Silver Legislation, and Wages Would Remain Stationary and be Virtually Cut in Half.

These are exciting times; these days preceding the Presidential election, but there are but few Plainfielders who have had a glimpse of the struggle that is attracting the attention of all the country. Plainfield is too surely a Republican city for much active campaigning. There is a party of men in this city who believe it their duty to tell their fellow-citizens their side of the situation and so it is that twice a week the members of the National Democratic Club conduct meetings in the heart of the West End, in a vacant store at the corner of Muhlenberg place and South Second street. Last evening another of those meetings was held and the room was crowded. During the first meetings this fall, the visitors, workmen from the neighboring factories and railroad men, most of them, were backward in asking questions, but last evening it was very different.

Carl Pfeiffer, Jr., was the speaker of the evening and after his remarks, questions on the currency were asked for from the audience. Mr. Pfeiffers remarks were well chosen and some of his references, especially those to Cleveland, were loudly applauded.

"As you probably know," he began, "this is next to the last meeting that we shall have in this place before election in favor of sound money. For a month or more speakers have endeavored to show you the serious effects that would follow a declaration in favor of the free coinage of silver by the United States. From this it is possible that you may have come to be of the opinion that the only plank in the Chicago platform that the Palmer and Buckner Democrats are opposed to is that relating to the money question. This, however, is a great mistake. The Chicago platform on which Mr. Bryan stands, and also the Populists' platform—which I would ask you to remember Mr. Bryan has also accepted—contain demands which, if they were granted, would in the opinion of many thinking men be fraught with more danger to the Republic even than the free coinage of silver. When foreigners come to this country as a usual thing thing the part of our machinery of government that at once commands their admiration is our Supreme Court, composed of men appointed for life and rendering decisions according to their honest interpretation of the law. Yet what do the Popocrats propose to substitute for this? A court of timid men dependent for their office on political parties, who when they they are obliged to render an important decision will first consider which party is the strongest and what decision will be best for their continuance in office. I am sure that the great majority of our fellow-citizens are so much opposed to this proposition as they are to the one denying to the United States Government the power of enforcing its laws in the various States. Then again we have an attack on civil service reform—a reform which has been, and is now, of the great value in elevating our politics and causing them to be less and less a scramble for office. And you must admit that the government to be economically and rightly carried on must have in its employ persons who feel that they will not be disturbed as long as they perform their work faithfully and well.

"But to return to our old enemy, the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. Such a change in our money system would have one of two results, either the 16 ounces of silver would be raised in value to 1 ounce of gold—and therefore would be as hard to get as the present dollar—or the value of the dollar would fall to its bullion or real value, some 50 cents."

He then went on to explain how even if the first were possible, the result would be the same as at present and how if the latter were true, a debt of today would be worth half as much under a free silver law. He then spoke of its effect on the wage earner and said:

"He would be even worse off than he was before. I will guarantee that if a free coinage bill was passed on a Friday that on Saturday even when you went to make your purchases at the butcher shop, grocery store—you would find that prices had risen. When you went back to work Monday morning you might naturally say to

APPEAL FOR M'KANE

Justice Gaynor Makes a Touching Plea for His Pardon.

WANTS POLITICAL RIGHTS WITHHELD

Already Leveled To Nothing by Law and Order, Against Which He Presumed---Broken in Health and His Fortune Disappearing

New York, Oct. 21.—A morning paper says that it was discovered yesterday that justice William J. Gaynor of Brooklyn, who was the first to take steps against John Y. McKane, sent to Gov. Morton about Oct. 1 the following letter: "To the Governor—I beg to recommend the pardon of John Y. McKane, but without restoration to forfeited political rights. I do not think I have been moved to this mainly by the distressing appeals of himself and his wife and children to me, though I cannot say I have not been affected by them. There are other considerations. In the case of professional criminals, such as burglars, for instance, the state may well have the policy of confining them in prison permanently or as much as possible for the protection of life and property. But in the case of criminal offenses in respect of which the imprisonment is for punishment principally, as a warning to others, and in order to preserve the political and social order, the term of imprisonment should not be longer than is necessary to that end. It seems to me that that end has been attained in the case of McKane by imprisonment for now more than two years and six months. His fall and disgrace, coupled with almost any term of imprisonment, would have been at once woeful punishment to him and a salutory warning to others. The broken health of McKane is to me also a relevant consideration as well as the fact that the remnants of his private fortune are being diverted from him by betrayal of trust, which has been or will be explained to you. While McKane's crimes and defiance of law have been great, his punishment has been crushing. Law and order, against which he presumed, have leveled him to nothing. I remain, respectfully, etc.,

"W. J. GAYNOR."

McKane, it will be remembered, was political boss at Gravesend, and was sentenced to six years' imprisonment for election irregularities and for defying an order of the supreme court.

JUMPED HIS BAIL.

The Laurada's Captain Fails To Appear for Trial at Kingston.

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 21.—The case against Captain Murphy of the American steamer Laurada, who was arrested at Port Antonio and held in $300 bail on the charge of having contraband of war on his vessel, has gone against the defendant, he not appearing when the case was called in court. A writ of execution against his body has been issued. The Laurada is very strongly suspected of having been engaged in conveying arms, ammunition and men to the Cuban insurgents, and on the recent arrival of the steamer at Port Antonio a number of rifles were found secreted on board of her. Her captain was arrested and gave cash bail to appear for trial, which he has not done. He will be taken into custody should he return to Jamaica.

Newspaper Libel Case.

New York, Oct. 21.—The trial of the suit of Annie C. Raymond against the World, to recover $50,000 for alleged libel is now on before Justice McAdams and a jury in the supreme court. In her complaint the plaintiff avers that the defendant in an article in that paper, under the caption: "The Raymond Shooting Recalled" did maliciously libel her. The defendants in their answer say that they copied the alleged libel from Brooklyn papers in good faith on the belief that the facts as presented were true.

U. S. Senator Morrill Re-elected.

Morrill as United States senator to succeed himself for the full term of six years, beginning March 4, 1897. The vote in the house was Morrill, 217; Herbert F. Brigham, dem., 17. There being no democrats in the senate Morrill's election by that branch was unanimous. The joint session to-day to complete the election will simply be a formal proceeding.

Y., Oct. 21.—Michael Devaney, 68 years of age, an old resident of this city, was felled to the floor by blow of a chair in hands of his drunken son, John Devany, last night in the old man's home. A crowd of over 100 citizens surrounded the house and lynching was threatened. The fellow, however, managed to escape in the darkness. It is feared Mr. Devaney will die.

MOVEMENT OF GOLD

Reasons Assigned for the Big Engagements in London Yesterday.

SOME ATTRIBUTE IT TO WHEAT FLURRY

Bankers Say It Is for Hoarding, and That the Financial Situation at Present Is Far from Alarming.

New York, Oct. 21.—The large engagements of gold in London yesterday, amounting to $5,025,000, for shipment to the United States, is attributed in some quarters to the extraordinary rise in wheat, but bankers who were questioned said most of it was going into hoarding. They said that the financial situation was all right now, and that the treasury gold reserve was also safe. The gold engaged yesterday was for the following firms in this city: Lazard Freres $1,500,000, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. $1,000,000, Bank of British North America $500,000, Muller, Schall & Co. $275,000, L. Von Hoffmann Co. $500,000; W. H. Crossman & Bro. $500,000 and Kid-Peabody & Co., of Boston, $750,000. August Belmont & Co. received $21,000 in gold by the steamship Yucatan from Havana, and Lazard Freres received $330,000 in gold on the same ship. Yesterday afternoon it was announced that the Bank of France had stopped selling gold for export, which accounted for the large engagements at the Bank of England. The opinion was generally expressed, however, that the Bank of France would have to part with some more of its gold. Of the gold engaged in London by Kidder, Peabody & Co. of Boston, $100,000 is for the Third National bank of that city. The gold will go to Boston direct. Further engagements of gold are expected. The money market is firm, call money being 6 to 7 per cent., while some loans have been made as high as 8 per cent.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The treasury gold reserve at the opening of business to-day stood at $121,550,073. Yesterday's withdrawals at New York were $233,700.

MORRISON DEFALCATION.

Criminal Warrant Now Asked for a Former Officer of the Troy National Bank.

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Hon. L. E. Griffith, attorney for the finance committee of the Rensselaer county supervisors which is engaged in investigating the affairs of ex-county treasurer George H. Morrison, has sent a letter to United States district attorney W. A. Poucher of Oswego, directing Mr. Poucher's attention to information obtained from the books of the National bank of Troy, which, it is alleged, shows a criminal violation of United States statutes by a former officer of that bank. In the letter a request is also made that Mr. Poucher send one of his assistants to Troy to formulate information upon which to base a criminal warrant. Morrison was formerly cashier of the National bank and is now under indictment on a charge of defrauding Rensselaer county out of the sum of $359,006.

Latest Accession to the Red Cross.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The South African republic is the latest accession to the Red Cross. In a note of the 19th inst. the Swiss charge d'affaires at Washington informed the department of state that the act of adhesion of the South African republic to the convention concluded at Geneva, Aug. 22, 1864, for the amelioration of the wounded soldiers in the field, was delivered Sept. 30 last to the Swiss federal council by the envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the South African republic at Hague.

Internal Revenue Receipts.

Washington, Oct. 21.—For the three months of this fiscal year the receipts from internal revenue have been $37,794,887, against $37,744,479 for the corresponding three months of 1895. The principal items of revenue are: Spirits, $19,944,645, an increase of $1,092,617; tobacco, $7,370,407, a decrease of $705,137; fermented liquors, $10,133,571, a decrease of $955,529; oleomargarine, $269,091, a decrease of $69,242; miscellaneous, $77,170, a decrease of $12,299.

Caught in the Storm at Sea.

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—The schooner Eva A. Danenhower, from Jacksonville, in port here, reports that she had a deck load washed away and had two feet of water in the hold, which the crew were compelled to bail out. She passed two disabled barks and one three-masted schooner with main and mizzen masts gone.

JAPAN'S MONOPOLY.

All the World Must Now Go to Her for Camphor.

One of the unconsidered trifles that the mikado has picked up as the result of the Chinese war is the monopoly of camphor, says the Indian Agriculturist. That drug is produced only in Japan and Formosa, and, though a variety known as Borneo camphor is obtained from Borneo and Sumatra, it cannot compete with the product of the evergreen laurel of the eastern Asiatic islands. Inasmuch as camphor, apart from its many and varied therapeutic uses, is an essential ingredient in the composition of nearly all the new explosives, the demand for it is very large.

The Japanese are well aware of the valuable monopoly they have blundered upon rather than sought and have already begun to limit the export by imposing duties. As a natural consequence, the price of the drug has risen rapidly since the war came to an end and bids fair to rise higher. Happily, the commercial instinct of the Japanese statesmen is as sound as their political instinct, and they are not likely to abuse the monopoly they have acquired by forcing the price up to prohibitive rates.

The chief concern of the Japanese government will, for some time to come, be the finding of money to pay for the ships and munitions of war which will secure the mikado in the possession of the spoils he has already won. Properly handled and wisely administered, camphor should prove a valuable source of revenue and contribute a handsome quota toward the cost of the military preparations which pertain to the peace of the dragon kingdom.

PORTABLE HOUSES.

Made for a Great Variety of Uses and Exported to Other Lands.

Portable houses are made of almost any size and for a great variety of uses, says the New York Sun. There are portable dwelling-houses and portable boat-houses, and portable barracks, and portable clubhouses, lawn pavillions, engineers', miners', contractors' and other offices, bathing-houses, stables, bowling alleys, billiard-rooms, hospitals and so on. There have lately been made two-story portable houses. A two-story portable house of ten rooms costs $1,800. A house of one room, 8x11, with one door and one window, can be bought for $50; with two cots, two tables and two stools, for $60.

Sometimes a man who owns a portable house hires land on the seashore or in the mountains and sets his house up there for a season, takes it down and stores it in the fall, and next season hires land in another place and sets his house up there.

Portable houses are set on stones or blocks, and on posts, and sometimes they are set on permanent foundations. People sometimes have chimneys built where they set up their houses. The portable house manufacturers sell terra cotta chimneys in sections to be stacked up, and it is not unusual for the house-owner simply to run out a stovepipe for a chimney.

We export portable houses to Cuba, South America and South Africa.

CHINESE GIRL DOCTORS.

Young Orientals Graduated with Honor from Ann Arbor.

Two young Chinese girl physicians arrived in Oakland recently en route to their native land from Ann Arbor, Mich., where they have just completed a four years' course in medicine and surgery. They graduated with distinguished honors, and they are the first Chinese women to graduate from this celebrated university of Michigan. They will be the pioneer Chinese women physicians of central China. Only one of their nativity and their sex has preceded them. She has been practicing in the missionary and government hospitals of southern China for a year past.

These distinguished young students are wards of the Women's Foreign Missionary society, of the United States. The elder of the couple is only 23 years old. In her native land she is Meiyu Shie, which in Anglo Saxon is plain Mary Stone. Miss Stone is the daughter of Christian Chinese. Early in life her father was a Christian preacher. She lived in the missionary sphere and was educated by private tutors. Miss Stone's companion is Miss Ida Kahn, a year younger. She was adopted when a child into a Christian missionary's family and received a training in her youth which fitted her for the path she has chosen.

NEW TRIAL FOR M'LAUGHLIN.

New York's Former Police Inspector May Be Reinstated and Retired.

New York, Oct. 21.—The decision of the court of appeals yesterday in reversing the judgment of conviction in the case of former Inspector of Police McLaughlin, the court holding that the jury that convicted the inspector of extortion was biased and that improper evidence was admitted, it is believed will result in his reinstatement and restitution of back pay. Speaking of the matter, Police Commissioner Andrews said: "I don't know what we can do. It looks as if we shall have to reinstate the former inspector. Yet, as I understand, the reversal is based on the technical ground of error, and a retrial may be possible. Without having looked up the law, I should say he is like a man under indictment. When he applies for restoration to his position, the board will have to accede and then all we can do is to suspend him on full pay pending an inquiry as to the expediency of a retrial." It was stated positively by friends of McLaughlin today that he meant to retire as soon as his honor was clear and the stain of felony was removed from his character. They said he had repeatedly declared he would fight till he could once more put on his uniform and that he then would take it off with a pension for life.

TOMBS WARDEN REINSTATED.

His Contentions Under the Veteran Act Sustained by the Court of Appeals.

New York, Oct. 21.—John J. Fallon, who was ordered yesterday by the court of appeals to be reinstated as warden of the Tombs prison, was suspended from duty on January 6, pending an investigation upon charges preferred by deputy warden Edward O'Shea. The charges alleged cruel and malicious treatment of the prisoners confined in the Tombs, an ungovernable temper, and conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline. Fallon was removed by the commissioner on the charges, but brought certiorari proceedings, and the appellate division of the supreme court handed down a decision reinstating him on June 29. Fallon's contentions were that under the veteran act he could not be removed without cause, and no cause had been proved. The court of appeals sustained this contention. Fallon will receive his salary for the time of his suspension.

LADY SCOTT CONVICTED.

Guilty of Criminally Libeling Her Son-in-Law, Earl Russell.

London, Oct. 21.—The Old Bailey grand jury last evening returned a true bill against Lady Tina Scott, the mother of Countess Russell, who was arrested on October 9 at the instance of her son-in-law, Earl Russell, upon a charge of having criminally libeled him. Lady Scott was arraigned on October 10 and again on October 12 and committed for trial under bonds of £2,000. True bills were also found against Frederick Kast and John Cockerton, a marine engineer, who were also arrested and held for trial in connection with the case in the sum of £500 each.

WHEAT IS STILL UP

No Signs Yet of a Big Break at New York or Chicago.

MARKET FEVERISH AND EXCITED

Closing Prices at Chicago Yesterday the Highest Reached This Year---Bradstreet's Report, Due To-day May Change the Situation.

New York, Oct. 21.—The excitement in wheat has considerably abated although there are no signs yet of a big break in prices. Plenty of noise greeted the crowd of spectators which filled the gallery of the produce exchange when the market opened this morning. Quotations, however, did not fluctuate with the same rapidity as they did yesterday, and they failed to make any new sensational record. Liverpool cable advices indicated that the bullish edge was off the grain market in that city, at least for the moment. Bradstreet's usual weekly statement of available stock which was due yesterday, but was delayed on account of tardy returns, will be issued to-day and may have the effect of checking the bull movement. December wheat closed yesterday at 85⅝ against 84⅝ Monday, and May 88⅝ against 88⅝ Monday. Local flour men said to-day that while flour quotations had been marked up following the advance in wheat, the advanced prices appeared to have shut out business to a great extent, with only a hand to mouth trade doing at present.

High Water Mark in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The wheat market continues feverish to-day and prices are up and down. The closing price yesterday was the highest reached this year. Indications early in the day gave no intimation whatever of the boom which was seen in the closing half hour. Some indifference abroad was disclosed by the cables and especially those from Liverpool. America looks to Europe for direction in the present instance, and when a decline at the place mentioned was reported the enthusiasm here underwent modification. Bradstreet's was expected to announce a big increase in the world's stocks, and on the prospect thereof a few were tempted to sell a little wheat short. When it was learned that the report would not be made public during the day there was a change of front, no one caring to remain short over night. Then when sales of 300,000 bushels at New York to Lisbon for export were reported, together with heavy gold importation, the sentiment rapidly assumed a bullish appearance, and from that time until the close it was only a question of how high prices would go. Berlin, Paris and Antwerp all quoted advances corresponding with ours of Monday. Receipts in the northwest were heavy, at 1,537 cars against 1,433 Tuesday of last week, and 1,436 a year ago Chicago had 277 cars and inspected out 10,000 bushels. Export clearances amounted to 495,725. December wheat opened 77⅞ to 77⅛, sold between 77¾ and 75⅝, closing at 78⅝, one cent higher than Monday. Cash wheat was irregular, closing firm at one cent advance. Receipts at principal western points 1,303,262 bushels; shipments, 619,456 bushels. Corn and oats are not affected to-day by the wheat excitement.

May Be Deported.

New York, Oct. 21.—At the conclusion of the inquiry last evening, Dr. Senner of Ellis island immigration bureau stated that only thirteen of the remaining 147 Armenians had been admitted and this number with the twenty admitted on Monday make a total of only thirty-three out of the original party of 167 who have been able to convince the immigration authorities that they would not become a charge on the country. One hundred and thirty-four will therefore be deported unless bonds are filed by their friends guaranteeing their maintenance for one year.

Armenians May Enter Under Bond.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The treasury department has informed parties in Boston, who are interested in 100 Armenians who have arrived in New York and who are detained, that bonds of $500 each will be taken for the Armenians. The bonds are exacted so that they may not become a public charge.

American Yacht Xarafa at Cowes.

Cowes, Oct. 21.—The American auxiliary screw yacht Xarafa, owned by Franklin M. Singer of New York, has arrived here. She reports having experienced heavy weather at sea, during which her headgear and bulwarks were damaged.

ANOTHER BANNER TO GO UP.

And With It Republican Speeches Will Be Given.

In connection with the Republican demonstration this evening the Plainfield Cornet Band will make a tour of the town in a trolley car, starting at 6 o'clock. The Independent Fife and Drum Corps will meet at 7 o'clock at Republican headquarters and will, together with the band, march to the corner of Fourth street and Park avenue, where a flag will be raised under the direction of the Young Men's Republican Club. At the same time Foster M. Voorhees will make a five-minute speech. Afterward a mass-meeting will be held in Music Hall, at which time all of the county Republican nominees will be present and have something to say. After the meeting a reception will be held at the Republican headquarters, where those who wish can meet the candidates.

UNIT RULE TO CONTROL.

Republican Delegates to the County Convention Hold a Caucus.

The thirty-two delegates from the various wards in this city to the Republican county convention being held in Elizabeth this afternoon, met last evening at headquarters and organized by selecting Charles J. Fisk, chairman, and William Newcorn, secretary.

A motion was offered and adopted that the chairman be instructed to cast the thirty-two votes unanimously for William T. Kirk for Sheriff; Foster M. Voorhees for Senator, and W. R. Codington for Assemblyman; also to support Martin Roll and Harry Clauss, for the Assembly, if nominated.

THEATRICAL.

The new spectacular extravaganza "Spider and Fly," which will be seen at Music Hall on Friday, has gained fame by reason of its excellence as an appetizer for the eye and the ear. For the former there is the pretty chorus, handsome ballet, pleasing march with electric effects, magnificent costumes, gorgeous scenery, the antics of the funny clowns and pantomimists, and the bewitching dancers; and for the ear is the sweet voices of principals and chorus, the funny sayings of the comedians, and general plot of the play, which in fact is prolific in causing continuous laughter because the scenes and situations have been so constructed as to provoke laughter at all hazards, at the same time being refined and palatable to all tastes.

Slaves of Gold, a scenic production, will be the attraction at Music Hall, Saturday, Oct. 24th. The play is one of human interest and depicts the passions, frailties and follies of human nature. It tells a beautiful, pathetic story, and abounds in thrilling situations and startling climaxes. The great flood scene is said to be one of the most novel and startling mechanical effects ever placed upon the stage. A matinee will be given at 2 p. m. Twenty-five cents to all parts of the house; children, fifteen cents.

THEIR CLOSING APPEAL.

your employer, 'my wages should be doubled, as the prices for everything that I must buy have been made twice as much.' He might give you an increase, and then again he might not—Mr. Bryan said in one of his speeches the other day that an employer never gave more than he had to. However true that is it would be many a long and weary day before you would find that your wages would buy as much as they did before." He next referred to the effect of free silver in other countries.

"One of the great arguments of the other side," he remarked, "is that money is scarce; that by the demonetization of silver the supply of money has been so decreased as to render it possible for a few rich men to get control of practically the entire supply. If the supply of money has been so decreased the few men who the silver people claim control it will charge more for its use. If all the horses in Plainfield with the exception of ten were to die suddenly surely those who owned the surviving horses would feel that they could charge more for the use of the horses than they could under ordinary conditions. Yet, how is it with money? The rate of interest charged for the use of money—good one hundred cent dollars—has steadily decreased during the past few years, and investors do not get nearly as large a return for their money as formerly."

Some of Bryan's remarks were criticised by Mr. Pfeiffer, and the question of the fall in railroad tariffs. He closed by saying that many expected to vote for Bryan because they thought they must be regular.

"If you are in favor of free silver," he exclaimed, "I shall be sorry, but I shall respect you if you have honestly arrived at this decision by study, but I honor no man who on an all-important question of this kind will give as an excuse for his voting for free silver that he must be regular. Let no one endeavor to shake his responsibility by saying that Bryan is the regular candidate of the Democrats and that he must therefore vote for him. I maintain that Palmer is fully as regular as Bryan, and is standing on the platform and advocating the principles which have always been considered as belonging to the Democratic party. Let each man consider the arguments presented by the two sides, and after consideration let him vote for the side whose victory he considers would be best for the country and for him, but let him not attempt to avoid such consideration by any claim of the superior regularity of Bryan."

The discussion that followed was lively but many of the questioners wandered from the subject. Messrs. Harding and Gould were the principal speakers from the audience. The crowd did not seem to be for Bryan, but for the Socialist Labor party candidates, and a representative of that party challenged Mr. Atterbury, president of the club, to a joint debate on the co-operative ownership of all property, which was, he said, one of the leading issues of the day. Mr. Atterbury did not agree with him, and declined with thanks.

They also manufacture at the same low price "The Mothers' Friend" Royal Borated Talcum, the best toilet powder on the market for infants and adults. It is indispensable, and to the bicyclist and pedestrain its action is marvelous in cases of moist, sore and blistered feet, chafed skin, scarlatina, nettle-rash, prickly heat, chicken pox and kindred skin ailments. It also relieves the pain of soft corns, allays irritation of the skin after shaving. We cordially recommend the use of these superior and pleasant articles.

Tetter, eczema and all similar skin troubles are cured by the use of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It soothes at once, and restores the tissues to their natural condition, and never fails to cure piles. L. W. Randolph 143 West Front street.

TO FIGHT FOR DELAY

First Move of the Defense in the Case of the Castles.

WILL SECURE EVIDENCE IN AMERICA

Mrs. Castle Almost Hysterical When She and Her Husband Were Remanded for a Full Trial---Belief in His Innocence.

London, Oct. 21.—Charles Matthews, counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Castle of San Francisco, who were yesterday fully committed at the Great Marlborough street police court for trial at the Clerkenwell sessions on November 2, on the charge of shoplifting, and were released upon renewing their bail, $200,000, furnished by them when their hearing was adjourned last week, said this morning that his clients could not have witnesses necessary for their defense present by November 2 and that he would direct his efforts for an adjournment when the case was called. When Magistrate Newton announced that the prisoners' trial would be held at Clerkenwell sessions, Mr. Matthews asked that the defendants be committed for trial in the central criminal court, Old Bailey, instead of the ordinary sessions. His grounds for making this request, he said, were that the anxiety of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Castle in San Francisco that they should receive the benefit of all available testimony in their favor was very great, and the committal of the prisoners for trial in the Old Bailey court would allow them time to come to England, bringing with them medical evidence of the mental irresponsibility of Mrs. Castle. Magistrate Newton said that he was unable to comply with the request, as he was acting under directions to send all cases of shoplifting to the sessions. Mrs. Castle, when arraigned yesterday and during the hearing, was almost hysterical and sobbed bitterly throughout the proceedings. Mr. Castle was calm and not at all nervous, but it could plainly be seen that he was laboring under deep mental strain. The testimony left no doubt of the guilt of Mrs. Castle. Sympathy is with Mr. Castle, however, as it is the belief that if he had knowledge of his wife's wrongdoings he kept the matter quiet to shield her and avoid scandal. Some there are, too, who believe that Mrs. Castle's mind is affected and that this will be fully shown when the trial is begun.

NOT TO LEAVE HIS POST.

Report That Consul-General Lee Intends Returning Home Is Incorrect.

Havana, Oct. 21.—The report that Consul-General Lee would return for a time to the United States on account of ill health is incorrect. He has not been sick since his arrival in Havana, and he has no intention of leaving his post at present. It is officially reported that there are 11,718 sick soldiers in the various military hospitals. Four yawls having the name Three Friends painted upon them have been found on the beach at Juragua, province of Santa Clara. They undoubtedly belonged to the filibustering vessel of that name and had been employed in landing arms, etc. Arcadio Sanabria, a prisoner of war who had been convicted of incendiarism, was shot yesterday at Matanzas.

BRYAN IN M'KINLEY'S DISTRICT.

Some of His Over-enthusiastic Opponents Display Yellow Badges and Designs.

Sandusky, O., Oct. 21.—A sortie into Major McKinley's old congresssional district was the most important feature of Candidate Bryan's last day in Ohio, which ended with a speech at Sandusky last night, several hours behind the time called for by the programme. The loyalty of the republican candidate's former congressional district was manifested at several places by demonstrations to counteract enthusiasm for the democratic nominee. At Wellsville attempts to offset any influence Mr. Bryan's appearance and speech might have were particularly marked. Yellow badges, yellow hat bands, yellow streamers tied to brooms and yellow flags were numerous. Cheers for McKinley were heard frequently, and Mr. Bryan's address was interrupted so often that he finally turned on his annoyers and addressed some very vigorous remarks intended for their benefit. Outside of this incident the day was devoid of any new feature.

TO FOLLOW BRYAN.

An Opposition Speaker Will Keep Close to His Heels in Illinois and Iowa.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The Illinois committee of the republican party has decided to send ex-congressman William E. Mason of this city in a special train after Candidate Bryan in his final tour of Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska, ending at Omaha on the night before election day, in addition to having Mr. Mason speak close to the Bryan meeting place in Chicago. The plan is for Mr. Mason's train to follow Mr. Bryan's special as closely as the railway companies will allow for safety, stop at all the places where Mr. Bryan stops, and, if possible, speak to the crowds which will gather to hear the democratic nominee.

ILLINOIS DAY AT CANTON.

Maj. McKinley's Home City Crowded with Visiting Delegations.

Canton, O., Oct. 21.—To-day is Illinois day at Canton, and it is believed that by to-night fully 25,000 persons will have paid their respects to Major McKinley. The delegations began to come in early this morning, and others are arriving on every regular and special train. Many of the Illinois visitors are mounted, and some of the horses arrived here last night. Major McKinley spent some time last evening in preparing to-day's speeches and did not retire until late.

Tour of the Union Generals.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 21.—Gen. Alger's special car, bearing Generals Howard, Sickles, Marsden, Stewart and Corporal Tanner, arrived in the city last night with the booming of cannon. CHAPTER I

THE new road from Prescott to the mining settlements along the Santa Anita followed the Sandy for two or three miles above Apache canyon, then, turning abruptly, dove under the turbid waters and reappeared, dripping and bedraggled, on the opposite bank, where it was speedily lost in the thick underbrush as it wound away eastward. Time was when the trail followed the canyon itself—a mere mule path—but ever since the night of the big cloudburst that swelled the stream to the force and fury of a Niagara and drowned old Sanchez and his whole party of prospectors, packers and pack mules, even the Indians seemed to shun it. The only survivor of the tragedy was a lad of twelve, the son of a Yankee miner, and his Mexican wife—a lad whose name was Leon MacNutt (MacNutt being the patronymic and Leon the Christian name given him by his dark-eyed, dark-haired, dark-skinned mother); and Leon, swept away in the flood, was fished out at dawn several miles below by a squad of troopers from old Fort Retribution. The little fellow was more dead than alive, half drowned and sadly battered and bruised by the flotsam and jetsam of the wreck whirled along with him by the raging waters, and for a time all effort to revive him failed. When at last he was able to speak and tell his name he was lying in a dainty little bed in a cool room, with such a gentle, pitying, motherly face bending over him and such soft hands caressing his heavy crop of coal black hair, and beside the sweet womanly face was that of a sturdy Saxon boy of about Leon's own age, whose blue eyes were full of anxiety and sympathetic interest. The first handclasp the little orphan seemed to recognize was this other boy's. It was in answer to his questioning that the bewildered patient feebly murmured his name, Leon MacNutt, and could not at all understand the merriment in the room when his questioner turned with grave, perplexed, incredulous face to the two gentlemen in uniform standing by and wonderingly announced: "He says his name's Lay on MacDuff."

And that was how the first boy of our story came to be hailed thereafter by his trooper friends as MacDuff instead of the patronymic to which he was entitled; even officers and ladies seemed to find the title more whimsically attractive than the pretty Spanish-Mexican name of Leon, by which Mrs. Cullen, the captain's wife and Randall's mother, always addressed him. One of the soldiers once referred to him as the Waif of Apache Canyon, but the big tears that arose to the boy's dark eyes at any reference to the tragedy that left him alone in the world crushed that would-be witticism in the bud. Without adoption, either formal or informal, Leon had become an inmate of Capt. Cullen's household from the moment of his arrival in Sergt. Kelly's arms, and there he lived as Randall's friend, fellow-scholar and playmate for sixteen months, by which time he had forgotten his sorrows and had transferred to his protectors about all the measure of love and gratitude he had ever felt for his own parents.

And then came changes. For nearly a year the boys had roamed together over the neighborhood, hunting and fishing, riding their ponies, living a healthy, active, out-door life except when at their lessons or asleep, and the bond between them had grown stronger and stronger as the days went by. But old Fort Retribution, which was one of the relics of the great war of the rebellion, and had been "located" by the volunteers for temporary occupancy only, was ordered moved from the flats at the southern side of the range over to a plateau several miles to the east. At the same time the regiment to which Leon's kind friends and protectors belonged was ordered eastward after several years of exile, and a new and strange command was to take its place. Captain and Mrs. Cullen had done what they could for their foundling. They fed and clothed, taught and cared for him as they did for their own, because "Randy" had been pining for a playmate and his little fellow came opportunely into his life. They had furthermore done all that lay in their power to secure for the orphan such property as might have been his father's, but this proved a difficult task. MacNutt had had a partner in his mining ventures, but the partner swore stoutly that Mac hadn't a cent in the world that wasn't swept away in the flood of Apache canyon; he even went so far as to declare that Mac owed him money, and more than once appeared at Retribution when times were hard at the mines saying he thought the officers or somebody ought to pay it because they now had Mac's boy as security. He generally compromised, as he called it, when, with requests to be supplied with bacon, flour, coffee and sugar at commissary prices, which were far less than those at the mines. The soldiers found out that this man, Muncey, by name, was in bad repute among his fellow miners, and openly flouted him when he came among them, but the officers, unable to prove anything, continued to show courtesy to him even though they disliked him.

Capt. Cullen's troop marched away from Retribution in April, '72, just as soon as Capt. Raymond's of the —th cavalry arrived, Mrs. Cullen and Randy in the meantime having been sent away by stage to the Colorado and thence by steamer around to San Francisco. This was long before railroads were known in Arizona. But weeks before the departure of the troop there arrived at the old post a swarty little fellow from Tucson, who announced himself as a brother of the late Mrs. MacNutt and as Leon's uncle. He had come, he said, to take Leon back to his mother's people in Sonora. He brought letters from officials in Tucson which established his claim and was fortified in his statements by MacNutt's former partner, the malodorous Muncey, who came with him. The officers and the men had no claim upon the boy other than those of friendship and affection. They were his rescuers and supporters—that was all—but Leon was by this time far more American than Mexican, "far more Yank than Greaser," as the men expressed it—and he not only begged and prayed not to be taken from them, but he kicked and scratched and fought like a young bear cub when finally forced away.

Mrs. Cullen and Randy were spared that scene. She had been ailing a little as a result of too long a stay on the flats of old Retribution and had been taken up to the mountain perch of Prescott for change of air while the packing for the move was going on, Randall going with his mother, sorely aggrieved because Leon was not included in the invitation sent by the colonel's wife. Capt. Cullen, probably, was party to the arrangement. He knew they could not keep Leon always, and the longer the stay the harder the parting. Less than a week after Leon's friend and playmate had gone his uncle and partner appeared; less than a fortnight and the poor little fellow was pulled off the buckboard in the dusty streets of Tucson and turned over to a Mexican packer for transportation to Sonora, and less than a month after the Cullens and "C" troop had left the post, haggard, half starved, footsore and in rags, little Leon reappeared at old Retribution almost as utter a stranger as when, half drowned, he was borne thither in Sergt. Kelly's arms eighteen months before.

If you had lived a year or more in a certain village and knew every member of every household within four blocks of your home and were to be taken away for a month or so, and returning faint, footsore, hungry and in rags, yet thrilling with hope and joy at the thought of being restored to kind friends and hospitable firesides, only to find everything but the houses changed, you can fancy little Leon's dumb misery as he dragged from door to door along "Officers' Row," meeting only total strangers. He reached the old post just about two o'clock of a scorching May afternoon, when everybody was seeking shelter within doors, and the servants who came to answer his timid knock looked askance at the little black-eyed ragamuffin, and could only say that the people he sought were gone. He had turned away with a choking sob from the third door, the big house where the major of the Eleventh cavalry used to live, not knowing whither now to go, and had sunk down upon the steps in utter desolation when he heard through the screen of the open window a childish voice pleading: "It must be Leon, mamma. Do let me call him back." And the next minute a flaxen-haired girl of ten was at his side. Leon never could tell just how it all came about. He remembered trying hard to keep a stiff upper lip and be brave and self-controlled and tell his story calmly and coherently, but he was weak, starved, crushed with the bitterness of his disappointments, and he broke down entirely and sobbed in utter abandonment, and there was no more thought of siesta at Capt. Foster's quarters that afternoon. A pitying, sympathetic group surrounded the boy, Mrs. Foster and her daughter Nellie vying with one another in ministering to his wants, and other kind women coming in from adjoining quarters as the story swiftly went the rounds. It was all over the post in a few hours how little Leon, who used to live here with the Cullens as Randall's playmate and friend, had escaped from the packers in southern Arizona and made his way at these weary, blistering, desert miles, begging a ride in freight wagons, herding mules, trotting along behind the mail buckboard, sometimes tramping all alone, until he reached, at last, the familiar scenes, only to find that his friends were fled.

No hospitality was ever warmer than that of the soldier in those old frontier days. Tramp or vagabond, gypsy, greaser or Indian, it made no difference, even vagrant dogs never knew what it was to be turned away uncheered. The Fosters took the little stranger for the time being, at least, because they knew the Cullens well, and meeting them in San Francisco, had heard Leon's story from their own lips, though never dreaming they were to see him soon. They and the other new families were kind to him as people well could be, and yet, though grateful, it was plain the boy could not be consoled. They were tearing down the frame barracks, and in the midst of the move to the new site—some of the troops being already there encamped—when Leon reappeared, and he watched the process of dismantling with leaden heart. The only real home he had ever known was being ripped to pieces before his very eyes, and he could not bear it. While the new officers and men were strangers to him, there was still at the post his first protector, old Sergt. Kelly, newly appointed ordnance sergeant, and retained there after the departure of his old regiment. There were the hospital steward and his family, and the clerks and employes about the trader's store, as well as the men at the quartermaster's corral they knew him well, but they, too, were in the midst of preparation for the move. They were full of sympathy for him and of distrust of Muncey, the ex-partner, and of Manuel Cardoza, the maternal uncle. They believed implicitly Leon's story of his transportation. The boy said that Uncle Manuel had treated him fairly well until they were south of the Gila river, Muncey had left them and gone back to the Santa Anita after signing and exchanging some papers with Manuel at a ranch on the Agua Fria. Leon could tell little about his journey southward. The driver of the buckboard had made a place for him among the mail sacks, and there he cried himself to sleep at night. But instead of taking him back to Aunt Carmen, of whom his mother had often told him, Uncle Manuel had turned him over to this boss packer at Tucson, and Leon soon found there was something wrong. Instead of taking the southward trail, the pack train was traveling eastward day after day, and he learned presently that they were going to old Fort Crittenden—far over where the Chiricahua Apaches, under Cochise, their famous leader, were then in the height of their bloody work. Mrs. Cullen had taught Randall and him the beautiful constellations in the cloudless Arizona skies, and from the pole star by night and the sun by day he knew they were never going toward Hermosillo—his mother's far Sonora home. Then he overheard talk among the packers that boded ill for him. Manuel had reasons for wanting to "get him out of the way" was all he could make of it, and if he wasn't "lost" as they expressed it, before they reached the Sierra Bonita, he must be "lost" there where it could be laid to Cochise and the Chiricahuas. Terrified, the boy still kept his wits. They passed a wagon train, a quartermaster's "outfit," westward bound, one day, and that evening, soon after dark, he slipped out of camp, and all alone and afoot, took the back track across the desert, and after an all night tramp, caught the train with its soldier escort just as it was starting on the next stage. The troopers gave him food and a place to sleep under the canvas cover of one of the wagons. Leon was carried back to Tucson safely, but from there home to the old post far up to the north was a matter of days and weeks. He had got there at last, worn and weary, but something told him it wouldn't be long before Uncle Manuel and Muncey were after him again, speedily learning that he had returned to his friends instead of being "lost," as the packers might say, among their foes, the Chiricahuas. He warned his soldier friends, old and new, that he would not and dare not return to his uncle's control. The problem, therefore, was what to do with him until Capt. and Mrs. Cullen could be heard from, and the solution came quicker than might have been expected. Senior captain of his regiment when it left Arizona, Cullen was looking forward to promotion to the grade of major within the year, and probably in his own old regiment. But one of those sudden and unlooked for opportunities occurred that are so characteristic of army life. Maj. Wharton of the —th cavalry, the new regiment just reaching Arizona, concluded that he would rather retire with the three-quarters' pay of that grade after thirty years of hard service than go out to the desert and desolate land of Arizona for four years more. Capt. Cullen, promoted major of the —th cavalry, vice Wharton, retired, would soon return to the very station he had so recently left. Leon's best friends were coming back, and Randy wrote in eager delight to tell the news.

This was about mid-June. Blazing hot and dry were the days and breezeless the nights, a most unfavorable time for travel to and fro across the Arizona deserts, but Maj. Cullen was losing not an hour. He was a man who had seen much service among the Apache Indians, knew their haunts and habits, and was both feared and trusted by them. No sooner was the old regiment fairly out of Arizona, and before the new one was fairly in, there flew a hurried dispatch to San Francisco that was flashed on across the Sierras and Rockies and caught the new major at Omaha. In brief words it told him that there was universal uprising among the Apaches and asked how soon he could return, as the general commanding held open for him an important command. In twenty-four hours the reply was at Drum barracks. "Start this morning. Expect me by 25th."

One week later a courier from Prescott, riding post haste with dispatches to the new commander at Retribution, warned him that he must guard his working parties and the road between the old and new post. The Tontos had "jumped." Now, Tonto in the Mexican dialect means fool or idiot, but the Tonto Apache was no fool. The craftiest, cunningest of Indians he, and well had the chiefs and young men reasoned that a good time to strike would be just as the old and seasoned regiment left the territory, and before the new one, utterly untutored in Apache stratagem and mountain scouting, could begin to get down to their work. And so all through the wild hunting grounds in the Sierras their war fires and signals blazed by night and puffed in smoke cloud by day. All across the rocky chasms and among the pine-crested ranges from the haunts of the Hualpais in northern Arizona down through the valleys of the Verde and the Hassayampa, the home of Apache Mohave and Apache Yuma; across the broad basin between the Mazatlan and the Black Mesa and southward to the Sierra Ancha, the Tonto Apaches had sent their messengers urging instant and united action, and down from the mountains, on stage road, trail and mining camp, swooped the savage foemen, and all Arizona waked to a new reign of terror.

Among the first mines abandoned as the result of this sudden raid were those on the Santa Anita. The first refugee to claim the protection of the commander of new Fort Retribution was Muncey, speedily followed by half a dozen others—all with fearful tales of massacre and pillage. It was a hot June evening, when they gathered at the edge of the bluff looking westward from the adjutant's office over the southern foothills of the range, to where, faint and dim, the guard lights of the old post could just be distinguished through the rare Arizona atmosphere, twinkling feebly in the lowlands of the Sandy, ten long miles away.

"How many of our people are left down there under care of the guard?" asked Capt. Raymond of the stern-faced old soldier in command.

"Only the ordnance sergeant's family and the workmen dismantling what's left of the post."

"No women or children besides Kelly's?"

"None. The last were moved over to-day—unless we count MacDuff. Leon said he wanted to stay with old Kelly to the last."

"Leon!" exclaimed the miner Muncey, in apparent amaze. "Why, I thought that boy was—was safe in Sonora with his mother's people." Whereat two of his fellow miners looked keenly into his face and then exchanged quick and expressive glances.

"That boy," said Capt. Foster, "is like a cat. He found his way back from Tucson to the old post, and sticks to it so long as there's a shingle left. Look here," he continued, pointing to a jagged, conical shaped height clearly defined against the soft hues of the lingering twilight. "Yonder's Signal Butte, overhanging the old rookeries, and Kelly's ranch is a mile beyond that. Now suppose the Apaches did work around to the west of us and were to swoop down on the Sandy, suppose our people were able to get up there and signal, how long would it take us to turn out fifty horsemen and gallop over those ten miles, and how much would be left by the time we got there?"

The commanding officer stood in deep thought for a moment without replying. He had sent to the old site only a lieutenant and twenty men. This would be sufficient to protect the property still unshipped and the lives of those still detained there on duty, but there were two ranches in the valley within a couple of miles of the posts; there was the camp of Jose's bull train, there was Sergt. Kelly's little farm on the slopes of the south gate of Apache canyon, all beyond rifle shot of the guard. Kelly was an old First Dragoon man, a veteran who had fought Apaches a quarter of a century before, and declared that he despised them. His wife and two daughters lived at the ranch, and, though bitterly disappointed at the removal of the post, were by no means afraid. But no such outbreak as this had occurred before. The Apaches were more daring and better armed, and down in the bottom of his heart Maj. Thornton wished he had left a bigger force of cavalry at the post, but it was now too late to change.

Darkness had settled down on the garrison. The last hues of the twilight faded out of the western sky. The guard lights at the distant valley twinkled faintly, but steadfast, through the warm, pulseless air. Over at the half-finished quarters the drums and fifes of the infantry were sounding tattoo, and still the party lingered at the westward bluff, Wharton, Raymond and Foster chatting in low tones apart, the civilians talking to some younger officers, eagerly and excitedly recounting the circumstances of their morning's flight. Munsey was of these the most voluble. He was just saying "I tell you the whole Tonto tribe is out of the hills and down here in the basin this very night," when another cried: "Hush!"

Somewhere over on the north side the call of a sentry rang out sharp, clear and full upon the night air:

"Corporal of the guard, No. 5!"

"That's old Hennicke," said Raymond, promptly. "When he has anything to report it's no boy's story. I'll go, sir."

The cry went echoing back toward the guard-house, sharply passed along by Nos. 6 and 7 on the eastern flank. The corporal came out on the run, and the guardsmen, sitting or sprawling around the stacked rifles, scrambled, many of them, to their feet. Before even a fleet corporal could reach the distant post Thornton and two captains bore down upon it, others at respectful distance following.

"What's up, Hennicke?" hailed his troop commander, scorning preliminaries.

"Firing, sir. Out on the Prescott road to the northwest. I could see the flashes."

"Who on earth can it be?" asked the major. "Capt. Foster, let your troop saddle at once."

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

Interest in the game with Westfield is running high, not only in Plainfield but in Westfield, as the following letter will show:

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

It has lately come to my notice that there is a football team in Plainfield and upon consulting dates find we have two games with them. Now, it seems that several denizens of your bumtious town have seen fit to crow lustily, since the opening games of their team, about what they would do to the Westfield team when they got at them. The Westfield team do not want anyone to know how badly frightened they at of this, but at the same time they all express confidence in their ability to chew all that Plainfield may bite off and have some left for the dog. The proud and glorious bird of victory is always wont to carol sweetly to all hands, before bursting into its grand pean of triumph as it alights upon the banner of the conquering host, and the careless Plainfield citizens may have mistaken this exquisitely warbled prelude as a "sure thing" and wagered their shekels and kopecks up to the limit. Now, out of pure kindness I beg leave to inform these same parties that the Westfield team are "onto" the tricks of this peculiar game, and that they have a hard, unrelenting grip on the tail-feathers of that elusive bird, which they are in nowise minded to relax. Plainfielders hereby take notice that the Westfield bird of victory is burglar-proof and flies high—that he has fire-proof lungs and his voice is copyrighted—that he has swallowed the championship, bones and all, and after the games he will roost in Westfield, on the same old perch and in the same old place. Westfielder.

Westfield, October 19th, '96.

The enthusiasm of the writer of the above evidently ran away with him when he talks about the "bird of victory roosting on the same old perch and in the same old place," for during the last two years neither Westfield nor Plainfield has defeated the other, the result each year being a tie.

GOLF.

The contest for the George H. Chapman cup for the individual championship of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, will be played on Election Day. This cup will be played for semi-annually.

There sems to be no lack of interest in golf among the members of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club as the cold weather approaches. Several cups have recently been offered that have made the game more popular than ever. On Saturday the preliminaries in the handicap members tournament for the J. W. Reinhart cup will be started and finished as soon as possible. This cup becomes the property of any member winning it three times. It will be played for in the spring and fall.

A FESTIVAL OF SEASONS.

Pleasant Autumn Event Held at Marconnier Chapel.

Very successful was the "Festival of Seasons" at Marconnier chapel last evening. The entertainment was excellent while a large number of visitors well filled the chapel.

There were four booths, one for each of the seasons. At the "Spring" booth, Miss Jennie Kyle presided and here candy and fruit were sold. Miss Emily Johnson was in charge of the "Summer" booth and there, ice cream was very appropriately sold. "Autumn" booth was looked after by Miss Edith Wyckoff, and there other refreshments were on sale. A box of cotton snow balls made up "Winter's" share. Each contained some article concealed in the cotton. Mrs. Effie Stover and Mrs. William Randolph were in charge.

The entertainment consisted of a little dramatized fairy tale. Miss Emma Teeple was the fairy. Steven Stover, clad in very kingly garments, made a real looking king while Miss Mattie Kyle was his charming bride. The festival produced for the occasion of the wedding by the fairy introduced "Spring," Miss Churchill; "Summer," Miss Edith Wyckoff; "Autumn," Miss Emily Johnson; "Winter," Mrs. Swenck. Each season brought her fruits and flowers and crowned the king with them. There was also a recitation by Paul Zoble. The programme was very enthusiasticly received.

A NOTABLE WEDDING.

Miss Daisy Shepard One of the Bridal Party at the Fabbri-Shepard Event.

Much interest attaches to the wedding of Miss Edith Shepard, daughter of Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, of New York, to Ernesto G. Fabbri, also of New York. They not only represent two of the wealthy families of this country, but Elliott F. Shepard was known for many generous benefactions during his life, and Mrs. Shepard continues many good works calling for large outlay of her wealth. The beautiful church at Scarborough, where the marriage took place, was built by Mrs. Shepard as a memorial to her husband, Elliott F. Shepard One of the bridemaids was Miss Daisy Shepard, of "The Gables," at Fanwood. Augustue D. Shepard, Jr., was one of the ushers. Following the marriage and wedding breakfast at "Woodlea," the country residence of Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, was a large family dinner party last night at which were present, besides the bride maids and ushers, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard, Burritt H. Shepard, Rutherford M. Shepard and Frederick Shepard, of "The Gables," and Mr. and Mrs. J. Doull Miller, of Plainfield.

aching to be caught. Dear desert wastes became flowering gardens.

This was all last Summer. As autumn came those who had sneered were silent and all awaited the momentous day when the Town Improvement Association was to meet and name the winners. This was last Friday, and the place of meeting was the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association. A breathless silence greeted Miss Stewart when she arose to make her report. She told of the progress that had been made and of the wonderful change that had taken place in the town, and then she read the names of the owners of the best cared for back yards. They were Mrs. Maltilda Workman, who lives in Cottage place, in the east end of town, and Daniel Webster, of West Second street, in the west end of the town, both colored. A storm of applause greeted the decision in which even the disappointed joined. Then Mrs. Pierre Malli, the acting President, suggested that the presentation of the prizes be made in state. Therefore on Nov. 6 the Town Improvement Society will get into its carriages and be driven to the two yards, and Mrs. Workman and Daniel Webster will get complimentary speeches and $5 each.

Quite a Different Appearance.

The appearance of the old freight yard opposite the depot presents an altogether different appearance today. A gang of sixteen men were at work during the day, yesterday, removing the foundation piers and rubbish and before nightfall, crushed stone and cinders had been spread over the old sight so this morning it presented quite a different appearance.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable. NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redying. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? REPUBLICANS HAVE A BIG PUBLIC DEMONSTRATION

Two Drum Corps, a Band of Music, Fireworks and Shouting Make Up the Enthusiasm.

A Banner Raised On Park Avenue With a Speech By Senator Voorhees—Music Hall Crowded With People Who Give Billy Kirk a Big Ovation—Congressman Fowler Talks of the Issues of the Present Campaign From a Republican Standpoint.

Fair Luna shone brightly down on the city of Plainfield last night and beheld an unusual sight. Bands were playing, a long column of men marched up the street and soon the Stars and Stripes were flung to the cool evening breeze and waved triumphantly above the heads of the crowd, amid resounding cheers and the glare of colored fire and fireworks. Back again went the long procession and soon there gathered a great assemblage at Music Hall, and the streets were quiet save when the sounds of the wild cheering inside penetrated the brick walls and were held only to be lost in the quietness of this peaceful city.

It was a political demonstration by the Republicans, and the largest and most enthusiastic that Plainfield has seen this campaign. It was the first touch of the real campaign spirit, and Plainfield was given a suggestion of the fight that is being so bitterly fought throughout most of the country. The lethargic Plainfield citizen was aroused and he awoke to join in the grand shout for "McKinley and Hobart" and for "Billy Kirk." The Presidential nominees are visions of a far-off, but the popular young Plainfielder, who was nominated for Sheriff by the Union County Republicans yesterday afternoon, is real and is among them, and so they united to show their appreciation and friendship for Kirk.

Heretofore the Republicans seemed to have a hoodoo at work for the mere suggestion of a mass meeting brought on rain. Perhaps, Kirk carried the charm to break the spell, for if President Charles J. Fisk had gone into the business himself the night could not have been better for the banner raising and grand ratification meeting of last evening. A beautiful moon and mild weather, with a slight breeze from the north, all assisted in making the affair successful.

The first event of the evening was the raising of a banner at the corner of Park avenue and Fourth street by the Young Men's Republican Club. The members met at the Republican Association rooms at 7:30 o'clock and afterward fell in behind the Independent Fife and Drum Corps and marched to the scene of the banner raising. A truck stood at the corner and on this William N. Runyon president of the club, took his stand. First, the handsome American flag, with the inscription "McKinley and Hobart" below and "The Young Men's Republican Club" above was swung to the breeze amid loud and prolonged cheers. Then President Runyon introduced Hon. Foster M. Voorhees, who was renominated yesterday afternoon as State Senator from Union county. The Senator was received with loud cheers. His remarks were short. He asked his audience if they realized the significance of the banner and spoke of what it and the Republican candidates stood for. It floated, he said, over a Nation that knows no north, that knows no south. All the people born beneath it are free and equal. He was sure, he said, that the people of the country would set the seal of their disapproval on the candidates of the Chicago platform and would show their wise selection by choosing William McKinley and Garret A. Hobart.

While the Senator was talking several of the crowd, bubbling over with enthusiasm, took advantage of a short pause to recite the following lines, evidently arranged for the occasion. They were:

"Elizabeth has the Senator
And Rahway has the Clerk,
But Plainfield has the Sheriff
And his name is Billy Kirk."

Three cheers for Voorhees followed his speech, and then the club with the Independent Fife and Drum Corps at the head of the van, marched down to the mass meeting at Music Hall.

The Plainfield Cornet Band had in the meantime made a tour of the city on a trolley car, and a steady stream of people seemed heading for the hall. The band was stationed at the entrance and continued their lively strains. At last the band retired to the interior of the hall and in marched the drum corps, presenting a fine appearance in their neat overcoats, and the Young Republican Club. The young men were seated in half of the orchestra chairs which had been reserved for them. They had scarcely settled themselves when in marched the delegation of colored Republicans, headed by a colored fife and drum corps and a transparency bearing the words "Our next Sheriff, Billy Kirk," while two little colored boys brought up the rear of the column. This delegation was seated in the gallery. The officers of the meeting filed out and took possession of the seats on the stage. All the candidates on the Republican county ticket were there except Kirk and Assemblyman Wm. R. Codington, the latter being kept away by a bereavement in his family. The strains of the drums and fifes could be heard in the distance, also distant cheering. The band started up softly at first, but increased in volume as the blue-coated boys entered the hall. Then there arose a mighty shout for William Kirk, Republican nominee for sheriff of Union county, as he was escorted down the aisle by Roger F. Murray, followed by other staunch supporters of the ticket. The nomination voiced popular feeling, that was evident.

When order was restored, Chas. J. Fisk, president of the Republican Club, stepped to the table at the front of the stage and formally called the meeting to order. He then introduced the chairman of the meeting, Hon. Chas. M. Codding, chairman of the county committee. The other officers were: Vice-presidents, Thomas B. Greery, C. E. Bond, John H. Tier, Sr, George Ball, Charles H. Herring, H. H. Baker, Dr. J. H. Carman, George S. Clay, A. B. Beers, Nelson Runyon, Joel R. Walley, Harry Runyon, Alex Gilbert, J. B. Coward, J. W. Murray, Sr. W. A. Westphal, J. Fred MacDonald, Dr. F. C. Ard, John Bushnell, J. M. Whiton, Geo. A. Chapman, Andrew J. Gavett, William B. Ayers, E. S. Ryder, C. H. Schemerhorn, Geo. W. DeMeza, B. A. Hegeman, Sr, Dr. H. K. Carroll, James McGee; secretaries, J. H. Case, J. E. Keely, A. I. Little, J. C. Abbott.

After the usual introductory remarks, he commented on the large attendence and great enthusiasum and said that he had already chalked up a big majority against Plainfield but that now he had added 250 votes to that. He then introduced Congressman Charles N. Fowler, who is a candidate for re-election.

By this time every seat in the hall on ground floor and gallery, was filled while many were standing.

Congressman Fowler is a powerful looking man and his remarks were well received.

"Two years ago" he began "I was practically a stranger to you and yet you gave me the largest majority of any precinct in this congressional district."

"Louder," shouted some one in the rear of the hall.

"Can't be too loud to begin with," was the quick response of the speaker and he then went on to tell that he expected a majority even larger this year, not on account of his own merit but on account of the important question which is, this year, to be decided at the polls. It was not, he declared, a question of party, of Republican duty, for a party had challenged the American people to forget party lines and see nothing but patriotism and true American principles. He then referred to the west and said that the states there challenged New Jersey and the other eastern states to do as much for personal integrity as they will do on election day.

The Chicago platform is, he said, not a Democratic platform at all. It is a child of passion, the birth of an hour. All the true Democratic party met at Indianapolis and laid down a real Democratic platform. Almost all of the leading newspapers, he stated, have taken the side of McKinley and Hobart or Palmer and Buckner, and the ministers through the land are teaching the principles of true honor.

You all remember, he continued, that two years ago, you were approached and told that you are paying too much for what we bought. Many listened to this and decided to try free trade. They said you wanted a change.

"You have had a change, "he exclaimed 'and how do you like it? They came into power and you didn't hear of new factories being started. Now and then, they kept the spindles running to keep the machinery in order for the return of Republican days! He then quoted such statistics that showed the loss in wheat, corn and cotton used in United States during the last two years. He spoke of the appeal to voters for cheap clothing and how, when the laws were passed, the clothing laid on the shelves

STRANGER AND $65 GONE

EXPRESSMAN ELMER BARRETT LOSES MONEY BY A DISHONEST PERSON.

While His Brother Was Waiting for the New Man to Make R turns the Latter Went Out of a Back Door

Elmer Barrett, of Cranford, has learned that it pays to be careful in hiring men, and his experience has cost him $65 clean, cold cash. Mr. Barrett conducts a package express business for New York houses in the towns along the Central Railroad between Elizabeth and Plainfield. He was in search of a man to help him, in addition to the services of his brother, and preferred to get a man living in the vicinity of Plainfield. He came to this city on Monday and called on Mrs. Day, who keeps an intelligence office on East Front street. She recommended a man to Mr. Barrett and the two men returned to Cranford. The new man did not give his name, and as he was going to work with Mr. Barrett's brother on the wagon his employer never thought to ask it. The stranger and Mr. Barrett's brother started together on Tuesday morning making deliveries. Before leaving, Mr. Barrett told them to call at Hoff's livery stable in North Plainfield, after they had delivered their goods, and get a new team of horses which he had purchased for his business. During the day $65 was collected, the new man being allowed to collect the money. When they reached Hoff's livery Barrett asked his helper for the money, but the latter said that it would be better to wait until they returned home before making a settlement.

The stranger then went into the stable for the horses, leaving Barrett in the wagon. The latter waited patiently but his man did not appear. Finally, getting anxious, he went to the stable and learned that the stranger was not there, but had skipped over the back fence and disappeared, and for all that anyone knows he is running yet. Barrett went back to Cranford with the horses and told his brother of the circumstances and the two came to Plainfield in search of their missing friend, but as yet he has not been found.

SET IN CHISELED ROCK.

The Farmer Orator Seals Documents to be Opened in Ages to Come.

In the ages to come when this and probably several other generations have come and gone, the great stone pillars which James E. Martine is erecting at the entrance to his Cedar brook farm on Watchung avenue, will stand as a monument to the Farmer Orator's belief that when you build it pays to build well. And in a receptacle chiseled out in the centre of one of these rocks which will stand for centuries the beatings of Jersey's famous storms in summer and its icy blasts of winter can be found three papers and two photographs that will bring to the mind of the then living a thing that will be but history to them.

The first and most important object that will doubtless greet their vision will be a paper, indited in the handwriting of the Farmer Orator, as follows:

Plainfield, N. J., October 22d, 1896.
Cedar Brook Farm.
J. E. Martine, a Democrat, is the builder and owner.
James Kingston, mason.
Alex. Brown, (colored,) attendant.
This is in the midst of an earnest political campaign, the contest being between the masses on the one side, under the Democratic platform, and on the other the Republican party with all the wealth and aristocracy with them. May Heaven advance the people's cause and the broad thoughts and aims of the Democratic party. William Jennings Bryan is the people's candidate in this our fight. In this fight the issue is on the side of the Democratic party for the free coinage of gold and silver; an the Republican side for gold monometalism.

With this document will be encased a picture of Mr. Bryan and Mr. Sewall, a copy of The Daily Press of Monday, and a copy of the Democratic platform enunciated at Chicaao.

Mrs. Martin Returns.

The sudden and unexpected disappearance of Mrs. Martin from her home on Fairview avenue, yesterday morning, as was related in The Press, caused her friends much anxiety, and the police were asked to assist in finding the demented woman. It appears that the woman while temporarily deranged, managed to reach a friend's house in Bayonne, and the latter accompanied Mrs. Martin back to this city last night before any harm should befall her. The case is a particularly sad one.

On a Solid Foundation.

To a Press reporter Farmer James E. Martine said recently that the gate posts at the entrance of the Cedar brook farm are on a solid foundation, as there is a bright silver dollar in each.

Dr. D. C. Adams and George Voehl, who have been hunting in the upper part of New York State, are expected home today.

W. T. KIRK FOR SHERIFF.

THE PLAINFIELDER CAPTURED THE NOMINATION ON FIRST BALLOT.

Charles J. Fisk Made the Nominating Speech—Senator Voorhees Renominated by Acclamation—Codington for Assembly.

For once, at least, Plainfield got what she wanted at the Union county Republican convention, yesterday, when William T. Kirk captured the Shrievalty nomination after a hot contest, and William R. Codington was renominated for Assemblyman by acclamation.

Charles C. McBride, of the Elizabeth Journal, was elected chairman of the convention, with C. H. Denman, of Westfield, as secretary, and Henry R. Anderson, of Rahway, and G. W. Littell, of Cranford, as assistant secretaries.

Chairman McBride made a stirring speech. He referred to the big Republican triumphs in Vermont, Maine and Connecticut as presaging the sweeping manner in which the rest of the Union would crush Anarchy and repudiation. He predicted that New Jersey would go anywhere from 50,000 to 100,000 for McKinley and Hobart, and that Union County would give from 2,000 to 5,000 for Congressman Fowler and the rest of the ticket.

The usual committees on credentials, rules and resolutions were appointed, and the convention took a recess. On reassembling Colonel James W. Ferguson, of Cranford, chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, read the platform, which was adopted with great cheering.

Every ward and township in the county presented the name of Foster M. Voorhees for Senator, and the nomination was made by acclamation amid enthusiastic cheers.

Nominations were then called for Sheriff, and John D. Barr, of Elizabeth, presented the name of Robert G. Houston, of that city, in a neat speech. When Plainfield was reached, Charles J. Fisk made a sturdy speech, in which he laid stress on the fact that Plainfield was the Republican banner section of the county, and had no important county office. He was proud to say that Plainfield presented a solid front and would cast its thirty-two votes for William T. Kirk, a man of business ability and unblemished character. Every township outside of Elizabeth, with one exception, cast its vote for Kirk, as also did the city of Rahway. The ballot gave Kirk ninety eight votes Houston, seventy-two, and the nomination of Mr. Kirk was made unanimous.

Assemblymen J. Martin Roll, of Springfield; Henry Clauss, of Elizabeth, and William B. Coddington, of Plainfield, were renominated by acclamation. Dr. R. R Sinclair, of Westfield, was nominated for Coroner. Congressman Fowler, Senator Voorhees, Mr. Kirk, and the Assembly nominees made brief addresses.

Bad Effects of Jersey Lightning.

Patrolman McCue met a visitor from Syracuse yesterday afternoon. The New York State man had just made the acquaintance of "Jersey Lightning" and the effect was not promising as far as steadiness was concerned. As the visitor seemed unable to take care of himself the officer performed that duty and landed the stranger in jail. This morning, the prisoner gave his name as Frank Smith and pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly. City Judge DeMeza fined him $10 for his racket.

Fell Under a Carriage.

Just as the Republican banner was raised last evening Bradley Smalley was driving down Park avenue and his horse became frightened at the noise. The crowd separated to allow the horse to pass and in the excitement little Louis Moledezky, of Somerset street, fell under the hind wheel of the carriage. He was quickly released from his precarious position and escaped with a cut on his chin and a bruised ankle. He was badly frightened, however.

Building Costly Residences.

Clum and Lancaster have just completed the plans for a $5,5000 residence soon to be erected in West End Park for Mrs. M. Kuenleu. The house consists of two stories and an attic, the first floor will be finished in hard wood and the house is to be eqipped with all the modern conveniences. Plans have been completed for a $5,000 residence to be erected by John MacIntyre in West End Park. Clum and Lancaster are the architects.

Friends Have a Social Session.

The regular meeting of the Young Friends Association was held last evening, when Mrs. Andrew J. Gavett read extracts from "Quaker Stroughold." The current topics were read by Mrs. Edward Rushmore. Both readings were thoroughly interesting and the members felt as though they had spent a most profitable evening.

EVENTS OF JOY IN THE MATRIMONIAL WORLD!

One Couple Just Joined at Hymen's Altar---Another Celebrating Their Golden Wedding.

Surrounded by Friends and Relatives, and Amid Sweet Scented Flowers, a New Market Belle Becomes the Wife of a Dunellen Beau—Congratulating Friends Attend Mr. and Mrs. Theophilus Smith's Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary.

The marriage of Robert Giddes and Miss Ida Amy Fletcher was consummated in the Baptist Church, at New Market, yesterday afternoon, at three, in the presence of a large number of the relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The officiating clergymen was the Rev. F. Fletcher, father of the bride and pastor of the church in which the nuptial knot was tied. Miss Jessie Haines was the bridemaid and Bert Fletcher performed the duties as best man. The ushers were George Richardson and Robert Carpenter.

The church wore a resplendent hue from the variagated cut flowers and autumn leaves, most artistically arranged about the altar and organ loft, and as the bridal party advanced to the pulpit to the wedding march by Miss Emma Nelson, the scene was a pretty one, indeed. Arrived at the altar, Augustus Samson transferred the bride to the groom in waiting.

The bride was most charmingly attired in white satin, with trailing veil and she carried the traditional bouquet of white flowers. The bridesmaid's dress was of pink and her bouquet was red roses.

After the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride on the New Market road, at which there were guests present to wish the newly wedded couple Godspeed on their journey through life, and to wish them long life and prosperity. The wedding breakfast was served by DeHart, of New York, and it was elaborate in every detail. The gifts cousisted principally of silverwas and cut glass. Mr. and Mrs. Giddes were driven to a nearby station early in the evening and took a train for Washington, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Among the guests present at the house were: Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Giles, Miss Giles, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lowrie, Mr, and Mrs. G. Elston Lowrie, Mr. and Mrs. George Giles, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Samson, Miss S. Louise Giles, Miss Annie A. Abbott, Miss S. Louise Gray, Miss Churchill, Miss Emma Nelson, Dr. and Mrs. Nelson, Mr and Mrs. S. R Dayton, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Walker, Mr and Mrs. Nelson Blackford, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Runyon, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Runyon, Charles Dayton, Mahlon Dayton and sister, Mrs. H. A. Reed, of New York, Mrs. Slape, Mrs. Bullock, Mrs. Hull, of New York State, Fred B. Hart, of the Auditing department of the passenger traffic of the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, and others

CHILD'S LEG BROKEN IN TWO PLACES.

The Little Fellow Was Playing on a Pile of Lumber Which Collapsed.

The seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Perrin, of 87 Grandview avenue, met with an accident yesterday which might have cost him his life and as it is he is confined to his home with two bones broken in the right leg, several bruises and the possibility of losing several teeth. With some playmates he was playing at the corner of Fairview and Verdon avenues, where several houses are being erected. Close by stood a pile of lumber several feet high. The boys had been playing about the lumber, but no one except young Perrin cared to venture to the top. He made the attempt at a great risk. When about half way up, the pile of lumber toppled over on the boy. It threw him to the ground and the heavy plank fell on top of him. His young friends were terribly frightened but managed to remove the wood sufficiently so that the little fellow could be rescued. He was then taken home, but his mother had gone out, and his father was in New York. The neighbors were soon acquainted with the circumstances and they secured the services of Dr. Marc Clawson, who examined the boy and found that two bones were broken in the right leg, and that his body was bruised considerably. It is thought that at least four teeth, which were loosened, will have to be extracted. Under the careful treatment of Dr. Clawson the boy is now doing nicely and will no doubt be confined but a short time.

If your children are subject to croup watch for the first symptom of the disease — hoarseness. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse it will prevent the attack. Even after the croupy cough has appeared the attack can always be prevented by giving this remedy. It is also invaluable for colds and whooping cough. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

One of the pleasant events in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Theophilus Smith, of Park avenue, was honored last evening, when they celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. Their wedding day a half century ago could scarcely have been more delightful. The many years of married life has brought to them much happiness and joy, and among those present last evening none enjoyed the event more than the bride and groom who have been journeying through life together. The anniversary was marked by the absence of formality and each one sought to make it all that it should be. The house was prettily trimmed with carnation pinks, smilax, roses and chrysanthemums, while in the parlor a large and handsome basket of yellow chrysanthemums was placed in a prominent position. Suspended from the basket were two white satin ribbons bearing the numbers "1846" and "1896." Mr. and Mrs. Smith, with every appearance of being hale and hearty, stood in the parlor while Rev. Cornelius Schenck made a short address appropriate to the occasion. He congratulated the bride and groom for having lived to celebrate the notable event, and he wished them many more years of joy and happiness.

During the evening the guests present extended their hearty congratulations. A feature was the pleasing rendition of "The Golden Wedding" by Miss Mertie Randolph. The sociability of the guests was marked and everybody had a thoroughly enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith received many presents, including several gold coins, and several useful and ornamental articles of gold. Supper was served during the evening and this was not the least of the celebration. The table presented an attractive appearance in the prevailing colors of yellow and white.

After supper Asa F. Randolph and Robert F. Randolph took flash-light pictures of those present in a group, also a picture of Mr. and Mrs. Smith and family.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Theophilus Smith, bride and groom; Mr. and Mrs. Roland Smith, Miss Alice Smith, Mrs. Scott, of New York; Mrs. E. F. Tibbalis, of Pine Hill, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Marshall, Miss Grace Smith, Miss Minnie Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. N.H. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. David Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Randolph, Miss Bessie Fitz Randolph, Miss Mertie Randolph, Asa F. Randolph, Robert F. Randolph, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. George Reighton, of Plainfield.

Fell on His Head.

John Smith a painter and decorator employed by Marsh, Ayers and Co., was at work painting Charles Fisk's green houses on West Seventh street, yesterday afternoon and falling came within an ace of breaking his neck. He was at work on a fifteen foot ladder when the ladder swayed and fell, throwing him headforemost into a flower bed. His head struck on a sharp stone or a piece of glass, inflicting a deep scalp wound. The unfortunate man was taken to Dr. Clawson's office, where it became necessary to take some eight or nine stitches to sew up the wound.

Lawyers on the Money Question.

Very interesting lectures are being given in the rooms of the Plainfield Business College in the Babcock building, which many besides the students might be glad to hear. This evening, at 8 o'clock, Lawyer Harry C. Runyon will present the strongest argument he can in favor of the gold standard. Next week Lawyer Swackhamer will give the silver argument.

Along Legal Lines.

The landlord and tenant case of Hand against Coddington has been discontinued in Justice Newcorn's court and the following summons have been issued: Seabury & Johnson against Richards; Mellick against Richards; Jackson against Richards; returnable October 26th, and Sternberg against Dickerson, returnable October 30th.

PRINCETON'S JUBILEE

Student Day at the Sesqui-Centennial Ends in a Blaze of Glory.

CLEVELAND REVIEWS THE PARADE

Even the Elements Combine To Render the Occasion Memorable---Magnificent Pyrotechnic Display---A Joke at the Expense of the President.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 22.—All that goes to make up a pleasant fall evening conspired last evening to give the closing exercises of the alumni and student day of the Princeton sesquicentennial a glorious send-off. All the elements which appeal to the poetic fancy more than the full-orbed moon smiled through the elms; soft breezes played among the leaves, and the air was not cool enough to make it unpleasant. All day long the crowds had been coming in from all directions, and at 7 o'clock it was estimated that there were between 12,000 and 15,000 visitors in the town. They swarmed the streets and the campus so that one could scarcely get through. The great event of the evening was the procession of alumni and under-graduates, with representatives of other universities, and the illumination of the campus and Nassau hall.

Reviewed by President Cleveland.

At 7:45 o'clock President Cleveland, accompanied by his wife, arrived at the station and was escorted to the reviewing stand in front of Nassau hall by the Philadelphia city troop of cavalry. On the platform with the president were Gov. Griggs, Dr. Patton, Henry M. Alexander, Dr. Charles E. Green and Prof. Andrew West, with their parties. While an informal reception was going on the procession was passing along Nassau street, and thence it came back through the campus, passing in review before the president. Such a parade Princeton had never before witnessed. It took just thirty-seven minutes for it to pass the stand. And such banners, transparencies, floats and costumes were exhibited as only college men with the memory of their undergraduate pranks fresh in their minds could get up. The parade was headed by the 71st regiment band of New York, and following this was the company of undergraduates known as the "Mercer Blues," wearing cocked hats and the buff and blue uniforms of colonial days. As these passed by the band struck up the tune: "Just Tell That You Saw Me."

"Grover, Send Your Boys to Princeton."

Following then came a company of Yale men in caps and gowns followed by the undergraduates of Princeton. The "Old Guard," comprised of classes from 1823 to 1859, passed by next, commanded by Adj.-Gen. W. S. Stryker, '58, and marching to the time of "Auld Lang Syne." The class of '81 provided one of the most interesting features of the occasion. An advance guard of men dressed in short breeches and long coats of George Washington style, preceded the coach in which Rev. R. D. Harlan of Rochester was seated, taking the part of George himself. The coach was drawn by four gray horses and two darkies were perched upon the high seat in front. The motto on one of the transparencies carried by one of the class of '95 excited considerable merriment. It was addressed to the president and read: "Grover, send your boys to Princeton," at which his excellency smiled as if he would take the matter into consideration at a later day.

Cheers for All the Guests.

After the procession had passed by the band struck up "Old Nassau," and thousands of voices took up the refrain, led by Henry M. Alexander from the steps of Nassau hall. Other college songs followed, after which Mr. Alexander proposed three cheers for President Cleveland, Mrs. Cleveland, the guests from foreign universities, Dr. Patton, Nassau hall, Gov. Griggs and Prof. West, all of which were given with a rousing good will. A fine pyrotechnic display, containing several appropriate set pieces, completed the evening's programme, and the people were compelled to go away disappointed at not being able to hear the president.

Acquitted of the Charge of Murder.

New York, Oct. 22.—The jury in the trial of John Shanley for the murder of Edward Donigan brought in a verdict last night of acquittal after being out two and a half hours. Shanley shot Donigan after the latter had been ordered out of the former's saloon. The defense was that Donigan was a disturber and a dangerous character and that Shanley was afraid of bodily harm at his hands.

Many Fees in the American Consular Service Abolished.

LUCRATIVE ATTRACTIONS VANISH

A Far-reaching Order Just Issued by Secretary of State Olney---Loss to Consular Officials in Fees Hitherto Retained About $200,000.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Secretary Olney has issued an order of far-reaching effect upon the American consular service, which abolishes many of the fees against which foreign shippers and domestic importers have so long protested, and at the same time sweeps away the lucrative attractions of many consulates abroad, particularly in Great Britain, where the loss to consular officials in the shape of fees which they have hitherto retained will aggregate $200,000. The new amendments to the consular regulations are as follows: 1—No oath shall be required for the verification of invoices of merchandise on the free list, or subject to specific duty only. 2—The verification by oath of invoices of merchandise subject expressly or in effect to advalorem duty may be required when the consular officer to whom the invoices are presented has reasonable ground to suspect fraudulent undervaluation or other wilful misstatement therein, but shall not be required in any other case. (Under this section any oath may be taken by a commissioner or such other officers as are permitted by law.) 3—Consular officers are prohibited from receiving the whole or any part of the fees charged by a commissioner or other officer for administering oaths on invoices—from receiving anything as a gratuity or otherwise on account of the administration of such oaths—and from being in any way either directly or indirectly pecuniarily interested in such fees. These regulations are expected to take effect at once. The third paragraph of the new regulations is designed to destroy the incentive to the excessive fee system that has grown up and to do away with a system which was never contemplated under the law governing the compensation of government officials.

TO FALLEN HEROES.

Dedication of a Monument to Second Connecticut Heavy Artillery's Dead.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The monument erected at Arlington cemetery in honor of the fallen heroes of the Second Connecticut Heavy artillery was dedicated yesterday with appropriate exercises. The monument is a beautiful polished and granite column. It bears the inscription: "Second Connecticut Heavy artillery. Originally Nineteenth Connecticut infantry. Erected A. D., 1896, by the state of Connecticut. Defenses of Washington, 1862-1865." The formal presentation of the monument was made on behalf of the state of Connecticut by W. E. Disbrow, quartermaster-general of the state. He stated in his address that Connecticut had passed thirty acts for the benefit of her soldiers and sailors and had dedicated eight previous monuments—four at Antietam, three at Winchester and one at Newbern, N. C. Captain Edward Marsh of Company M accepted the monument on behalf of the veterans. In the course of his remarks Captain Marsh alluded to the peculiar fitness of the chosen site for the monument, inasmuch as it is close to the tomb of their favorite, General Sheridan. More than this, there are nineteen of their own dead buried in Arlington.

JOHN Y. M'KANE'S CASE.

An Expectation That the Governor Will Commute the Sentence.

Albany, Oct. 22.—Gov. Morton this morning admitted receiving a letter from Judge Gaynor in favor of the commutation of the sentence of John Y. McKane. He declined to discuss the question, but this statement was made by one closely connected with the matter. "Gov. Morton will grant a commutation to McKane before the expiration of his term of office, and possibly within the next few days. The governor is of the opinion that he has been sufficiently punished."

For Connection with Duelling.

Dusseldorf, Oct. 22.—On a charge of insulting a military court of honor in connection with certain challenges for a duel, Baron Ehrhardt, Lieut. Rhein and others have been sentenced to fines and terms of a few months' imprisonment in a fortress. The case has excited much interest here.

MRS. JOHN M. PALMER.

The Talented Wife of the Leader of the Gold Democracy.

Mrs. John M. Palmer is 59 years of age. Her maiden name was Hannah Mather Lamb. Her father was James L. Lamb, an early settler of Springfield, Ill., and for many years one of the leading business men of the city. He acquired considerable wealth, and his family enjoyed such advantages as wealth can bestow. She was graduated at Monticello seminary, and is a lady of superior education and refinement. When quite young she was united in marriage to Leigh Kimball, a railroad man, who died a few years afterward. She remained a widow for 30 years, and about nine years ago was married to Gen. Palmer, to whom she has been a most devoted wife. She always accompanies him on his "stumping" tours, acts as his amanuensis and has rendered him invaluable assistance in the preparation of his autobiography, on which he has been engaged for several years. She is petite and a brunette, is cordial, vivacious and unassuming. She has never cared for the frivolties of society, and her life has been an active and useful one. For ten or twelve years prior to her marriage to Gen. Palmer she was city librarian, and as such enjoyed a fine opportunity to gratify her taste for reading. Since her marriage she has found plenty to do in assisting her distinguished husband. She was reared in the Presbyterian church, and was for years a teacher in the Sabbath school. After her marriage she united with the Baptist church, in which her husband held membership. Her character is a lovely one, and it may truthfully be said of her that "none know her but to love her; none name her but to praise." Mrs. Palmer was with her husband at the state convention at Chicago, and at Indianapolis. She accompanies him on all of his political missions.

Some persons are always taking iron. If weak and easily exhausted; pale and without appetite; if the nervous system is weak, and sleep difficult, what do you take? Iron? But iron cannot supply food to the tissues; nor does it have any power to change the activity of unhealthy organs and bring them back to health. Cod-liver oil is what you need. The oil feeds the poorly-nourished tissues, and makes rich blood. Iodine, bromine, and other ingredients, which form part of the oil, have special power to alter unhealthy action.

No kitchen is kept cleaner than the premises devoted to the manufacture of NONE SUCH Mince Meat. No housewife can be more fastidious in the matter of preparing food than we are in the selection and preparation of the materials of which it is made. The cleaning of the currants (for one thing) is more thoroughly done by means of perfected appliances, than it would be possible to do it by hand.

Its cleanliness, purity, wholesomeness and deliciousness are good reasons for using NONE SUCH Mince Meat. The best reason is its saving—of time, of hard work, of money. A ten cent package affords you two large pies, without trouble to you beyond the making of the crust. Makes just as good fruit cake and fruit pudding as it does mince pie. Sold everywhere. DYNAMITE OR CHEMICALS?

Opinion at Yonkers Differs Regarding the Cause of President Andrews' Death.

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 22.—While the police and many others are still convinced that it was a dynamite bomb that killed H. J. Andrews, president of the Arlington Chemical works, and wrecked his office yesterday, there are a few who believe the explosion may have been caused by some chemicals which might have been left in the office. No motive for murder, if murder it was, is known, as Mr. Andrews was popular and well liked by all who knew him. The suspicion which was attached to a number of employes recently discharged is now given no weight, as the men were merely laid off because there was no work for them. There was nobody in the office at the time of the explosion except Mr. Andrews, and he had just arrived. The building in which the works are is occupied, besides the chemical works, by the New York Pharmaceutical association and the Palisade Manufacturing company. It is a one-story building, recently put up for office purposes. The office occupied by Mr. Andrews was on the ground floor, and as he sat at his desk he was in plain view of all persons passing along the street. It is surmised that a person wishing to commit murder would be likely to throw the bomb through the window, but there is nothing to show that the bomb, if, indeed, there was a bomb, was not placed under the desk in such way that it would explode when accidentally kicked, or that it was not put into the safe so that it would explode when the safe was opened. When the employes of the factory, startled by the explosion, rushed to the office they saw Mr. Andrews lying on the floor almost decapitated and dreadfully mangled. The office was full of smoke, the furniture was shattered and all the windows in the building were broken. The police and the coroner, who were summoned, say that when they arrived on the scene the odor in the room was that of burned dynamite. The coroner gathered up fragments of what he believes was a bomb. He put the fragments together and decided that the bomb was cylindrical in shape, about two inches in diameter and about a foot long. The police and coroner are making a rigid examination in the affair.

BISHOP OF DULUTH.

Election of Rev. John D. Morrison of Ogdensburg, N. Y.

New York, Oct. 22.—Rev. John D. Morrison, D. D., LL. D., archdeacon of Ogdensburg in the diocese of Albany, and rector of St. John's church, Ogdensburg, who was yesterday elected bishop of the newly created missionary district of Duluth by the house of bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States, is under 50 years of age and was born in Canada. His racial extraction is Scotch. He was graduated from McGill university, Montreal, and was ordained a priest of the Church of England in Canada. He became a member of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States upon being called to be rector of Christ church, Herkimer, in the diocese of Albany. There his work was so strong and successful that he was called some fifteen years ago to the rectorate of St. John's church, Ogdensburg, in the same district, where his qualities developed and won for him a wide recognition in the community. For the last six or seven years he has been regularly nominated each year by the clergy of the archdeaconry of Ogdensburg to the office of archdeacon and has been appointed by Bishop Doane, the head of the see. He has twice been elected a deputy from the Albany diocese to the general triennial convention of the church. His fine qualities have for some time marked him out for elevation to the episcopate. He has particular qualifications for the administration of a missionary jurisdiction. His rugged Scotch ancestry transmitted to him a physical constitution of great vigor and force, capable of untiring energy. Unremitting activity is one of his chief characteristics, yet to this active side he adds a thorough and accurate scholarship. He is an accomplished philologist and is one of the profoundest Hebrew and Greek scholars in the American church. As a speaker, he is forcible, direct and exceedingly effective.

DAUNTLESS CAUGHT

The R. L. Mabey Also Captured by the Cruiser Raleigh.

WARSHIP HAD TO USE HER GUNS

Both of the Filibustering Steamers Endeavored to Escape to Sea, and the Dauntless, It Is Said, Came Near Being Sunk.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 22.—Off New Smyrna bar yesterday the United States cruiser Raleigh captured the filibustering steamer Dauntless and her tender, the R. L. Mabey. The latter steamer was putting out to sea with coal and supplies for the Dauntless, when the Raleigh fired a blank cartridge for her to stop. The Mabey turned about and tried to escape, whereupon the Raleigh fired a solid shot across her bows, and the tug heaved to. An officer was put in charge of the Mabey. The Dauntless was brought to St. Johns bar and now lies inside in charge of officers from the Raleigh. Cubans here are greatly excited over the news, but claim that the Dauntless had no arms nor men on board. In chasing and capturing the Dauntless, the Raleigh used her guns several times, and the alleged filibuster came near being sunk.

Rebel Column Forced To Retreat.

Havana, Oct. 22.—A report has been received from Col. Pintos stating that the force under his command encountered a band of insurgents under Aguirre and other rebel leaders near Jaruco, in the Havana province. The rebels were strongly entrenched and made a good defense, but were finally obliged to retire by a bayonet charge by the Spaniards, made in the face of a heavy fire of artillery. The insurgents retreated to the Bonilla and Peru hills. The Spaniards lost two killed, two captains and fourteen privates wounded seriously and nineteen privates slightly. The loss of the rebels is not definitely known. Angel Cowley Hurtado was shot at Matanzas yesterday for the crime of rebellion.

WEYLER'S TOBACCO EMBARGO.

Spanish Cabinet Considers Without Action Claims of the United States for Damages.

Madrid, Oct. 22.—At a meeting of the cabinet yesterday afternoon the claim of the United States government for damages for losses sustained by Americans in consequence of the enforcement of Captain General Weyler's decree prohibiting the export of tobacco from Cuba was considered, but no decision in the matter was reached. The cabinet adopted a resolution to send General Polavieja, who some time ago was mentioned as General Weyler's possible successor in the captain generalship of Cuba, and Brigadier General Zappino to the Philippine islands to assist Captain General Blanco in the work of suppressing the revolution there. It was also resolved to remodel the frigates Numancia and Vitoria so they may be put in commission as cruisers.

PRAISES CLEVELAND.

Nothing Could Exceed His Loyal Conduct Toward Spain, Says Canovas.

London, Oct. 22.—A dispatch from Madrid says that Senor Canovas, the premier, asserts that the statement that Spain will abandon Cuba unles the war is concluded in March is false and rediculous. He added that nothing could exceed the loyal conduct of President Cleveland and his cabinet towards Spain.

THEN HE TRIED TO DIE.

Foxhound Trials.

Barre, Mass., Oct. 22.—The all-age class of the Brunswick club foxhound trials was started yesterday. In the field were twenty-two hounds, among the very best in the country. A fox was started early in the morning, and a lively race followed, in which the lot ran admirably packed to the finish. The fox was forced to earth at 11 o'clock. After the run the judges decided to order out all the dogs for the second day's race, as none showed noticeably poorly yesterday. The class promises to be the most interesting in the history of the club trials.

The matter of establishing a Pythian home was postponed until the next meeting of the grand lodge.

KIRK FOR SHERIFF.

To Plainfield Republicans the nomination of William T. Kirk for Sheriff by the county convention at Elizabeth yesterday afternoon is especially pleasing. Nearly always recording large Republican pluralities that have frequently been the means of party victory in the county, the Plainfield leaders went into the preliminary skirmish for delegates with their hearts set on making Mr. Kirk the recipient of Shrievalty honors. Aided by his own personal popularity they had little difficulty in capturing the support of nearly every delegate outside of Elizabeth, in which city they had a candidate of their own. The ratification of their favorite by the votes of a majority of the delegates was, therefore, in their estimation, a recognition of the fitness of their candidate and an appreciation of their work for the party in times past. Here in this city Mr. Kirk will probably receive the largest plurality ever recorded for a Republican candidate.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy McAdoo, a well known Democrat of Jersey City, who has been elected to Congress several times, has declared in a public letter for Palmer and Buckner.

THEATRICAL.

For seven years the spectacular extravaganza, "Spider and Fly," has been presented to the public, and this season the management produces it with all its glory in a new version with everything brand new, special scenery, costumes, electric effects, choruses and ballet. A large company of forty-two American and European artists have been engaged and it will be seen in its entirety at Music Hall on Friday evening. An elaborate gold and silver march, given with marvelous electric effects by sixteen shapely girls, will please both Republicans, Democrats and Populists; it has been a pronounced success everywhere. The rustic ballet is one of the prettiest of all ballets. The poster ballet is a decided novelty, while the Nautch ballet is a profound sensation.

"Slaves of Gold," one of the most successful melo-dramas before the public, will be the attraction at Stillman Music Hall, Saturday afternoon and night, October 24th. The play is one of great heart-interest and has been a success in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and all the leading cities of the country. While it is a play of great literary merit it has many startling situations and thrilling climaxes. The great flood scene is a revelation in stage mechanism. The heroine saves her father's life by breaking through a solid glass bow-window, springs to the branch of a tree and jumps thirty feet through space to the stage; the explosion; the battle for life, and many other startling features are promised. Matinee Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Somerset Republican Nominees to Talk.

Chas. A. Reed, J. V. D. VanDoren and Benjamin Howell, nominees for Senator, Assemblyman and Congressman from Somerset county, will address the borough Republican mass-meeting to be held in Saengerbund Hall tomorrow evening.

Trees With a History.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The wonderful large walnut reported in your Monday's issue from a tree on the old homestead of Brazilla D. Randolph on Sixth and New streets has a history worthy of note. The nut that said tree sprang from was brought from Fort Scott, Kansas, by Edwin A. Clarke, son of my wife, in the fall of 1870. He soon thereafter died. I planted them in my garden that fall. Two of them came up the following spring and grew finely. I gave one to said Randolph, and he set it in his back yard. The other I planted in my own yard near the south end of my lot and shop, and the same is to be seen now a large and tall tree and has been bearing the same large walnuts for several years. My tree is much the larger tree, but bears the same kind of nuts, so they are not natives of New Jersey but of the State of Kansas.

Ethan Lanphear.

The Grand Lodge officers will be present and an elaborate programme will be prepared for the occasion.

Many lives of usefulness have been cut short by neglect to break up an ordinary cold. Pneumonia, bronchitis and even consumption can be averted by the prompt use of One Minute Cough Cure. L. W. Randolph, 144 West Fron street.

THE REPUBLICAN RALLY

bringing ruin to the owner. He spoke of the shoddy that is sent here from abroad and declared that the American people should be wearing goods made by American hands from wool grown on American sheep. Bryan voted for the Wilson bill only after protesting that it was but one step in the right direction.

"In the name of God and suffering humanity," exclaimed the Congressman, "where would we be if he took a morning walk?"

Business and commerce, he said, will be broken down but the silver men think the after effects will be good. America would be, under free silver, sixteen times as worse off as she is today.

He then discussed the so called crime of '73. France, he said, tried to keep them together for seventy years, but who kept them together before that and why has not France kept them at one ratio since? The reason of the recent fall in the price of silver, he continued, was caused by the enormous production during late years. They tell you that gold and silver are linked firmly together, the money of the constitution. If they were the money of the constitution, it would not be necessary to put them in the political platforms.

He then told, in an interesting manner, something of the relation of of gold and silver in the history of the United States. If the act of '73 was a crime, he said, then Thomas Jefferson was the original sinner, for he stopped the coining of silver in 1806, and no more was coined until 1834.

The bill making pensions payable in gold passed several years ago, was referred to and he read selections of the speeches of two of the prominent silver men, Senators Jones and Stewart, in which they advanced arguments quite contractory to their present standing.

"You are told about this being a crime," he said. "Any jury of ladies, after hearing this evidence, would bring in a verdict of 'not guilty' without leaving their seats. So would a jury of men, unless they were officeholders; then they would want to go out and consider it. That is why the politicians have been doing it. Hill is still considering it."

If it is a crime, he went on, nearly all the countries in the world committed it as have all the inventors of the country when they introduced some improvement that took away work from something else. It was not a crime, it was a benefaction, an upward step in the long march of civilization.

"They tell us," he remarked, "that because we dropped the silver dollar, that things have been falling in price. Is that a crime? Did you ever hear of their complaining of anything being too cheap? They always rush to the bargain counter. Everything should be cheaper but labor, and that should be higher! Nothing can be too cheap unless it's labor or the manufactured products of the poorly paid foreign labor!"

The policy of the silver campaigners, he continued, is to assume and declare, and they have not advanced a single real argument well backed up by true facts and statistics.

He then selected some of the arguments of the silver men and answered them and made numerous comparisons between the times before '73 and the present time. Then, he said, statistics showed that when silver was a standard a certain amount of labor earned $1, now that same amount of labor brought $2.08; what could then be bought for $1 could now be secured for 98 cents. Free coinage, he went on to say, would not give more money, it would give less. The gold, one-third of the money in the country, would be hoarded at once and the paper money, another third, would have to be redeemed.

He replied to Bryan's statements to the western farmer and eastern laborer. He remarked on the fact that three big silver men, Sewall, Stewart and Altgeld, are now making their contracts payable in gold. He didn't believe, he said, that Bryan knows what free silver is. He quoted a portion of the latter's New York speech in which he said that anyone could keep up the price of a commodity by buying all that was offered. That was not, he said, a like comparison, as the silver would be merely brought to the Government to be coined and then carried away.

He then appealed to the patriotism and next to the practical knowledge of his hearers. After speaking on the dangers of the other planks of the Chicago platform, he ended with a fine burst of eloquence in which he reviewed some of the great men and achievements of the Republican party. The applause was deafening. Assemblyman J. Martin Roll, of Springfield, a candidate for re-election, was introduced and spoke a few appropriate words.

Then, amid loud cheers and thunderous applause, William T. Kirk came to the front. "Billy" Kirk is not much of a talker, he's a better worker, but he thanked the people for their kindly reception and promised to do his best should he be elected. More applause followed and then Senator Foster M. Voorhees came to the front. The hour was so late that his remarks were very brief. He referred to Bryan's attempt to array the masses against the classes and said it was really a question of honesty and National honor. An inspiring march was played by the band and the meeting was over.

The candidates and many of the visitors then adjourned to the Republican Association rooms where an informal reception was held.

Cleveland's, Pure and Sure.

Agreeably Surprised.

A surprise party was tendered to Mr. Barry at his home on Berckman street last evening, that was attended by some twenty-five couples of young people, ten couples coming here from Springdale in a stage. Prof. S. D. Frazee furnished the music for dancing, which continued until about 2 o'clock this morning.

—The members of the Midmer Glee Club had their picture taken in a group at the Camera Club rooms recently.

—Miss Catherine R Webster is building a small brick addition to her home, 228 East Second street, to be used as a bath room. City water has also been introduced. A. M. Griffen has the contract for plumbing.

—Groups of people have been noticed at the entrance to the Business College the past few days, gazing at the specimen of penwork executed by Prof. R. M. Wade. Prof. Wade has the reputation of being the most skillful penman in Plainfield, and his work is hard to criticise.

—The new advertisement of J. Linn Edsall in today's Press tells an interesting story about misses' and children's new fall and winter coats and capes. It is just in season and claims a great saving to those who are about to buy such garments. They are sold under the "new method" prices, which this house has recently made such a big hit on.

Chronic constipation is a painful, disagreeable and life-shortening difficulty. It deranges the system, causes sick headache, bad breath, and poisons the blood. It can be readily overcome by DeWitts' Little Early Risers. These little pills are great regulators. L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

Mrs. John Flannery, together with her granddaughter and child, have gone to Brooklyn for a visit with friends. They left yesterday.

A six months-old son of Thomas O'Donnell, of Terrill road, died yesterday. The remains were interred in St. Mary's Cemetery yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Richards, of New are stopping at Blimm Bros' Hotel for a few days, while Mr. Richards is making some necessary repairs to his stone crusher.

The iron work on the new Terrill road bridge will all be in position, it is thought, by Monday next, and all that will then remain to be done is to plank over the bridge and open it again for traffic.

The Italian laborer who was so seriously injured while at work at the stone crusher, yesterday afternoon, is improving slowly. One of his colaborers has been detailed to stay in the shanty with him and administer to his wants.

FANWOOD.

The railroad authorities complain that coal trains are systematically robbed every night on the grade between the Fanwood bridge and Westfield. They charge Italians with the stealing and say that the men board the trains while running at a lively rate and the brakemen are engaged handling the train, and shove off the coal. The current price for coal in the Italian quarter is twenty-five cents per barrel.

NEW MARKET.

A very pleasant dance was given Tuesday evening at Mr. Lorton's barn at New Market. The barn was very prettily decorated with Chinese lanterns, flags, etc. The forty or fifty guests from Bound Brook, New Brunswick, Metuchen and Plainfield danced to Prof. Naylor's music until a late hour. Will Lorton was chairman of the committee of arrangements.

PASSING OF LITTLE NELL

TOUCHING SERVICES OVER THE REMAINS OF MISS MESCHUTT.

Rev. C. E. Herring Preached a Sympathetic and Condoling Sermon for the Parents—Very Beautiful Floral Tributes.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Meschutt, of East Front street, which has been deeply saddened by the death of their only daughter, Miss Nellie J. Meschutt, was filled last evening with sorrowing friends and relatives when the funeral services were held. The bright-faced, happy little girl who had so many friends, lay peacefully in a white plush casket, around which was entwined the ever-beautiful smilax and a profusion of nature's rarest flowers.

Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, conducted the services. He read appropriate Scripture selections, which were followed with a touching vocal selection, "Asleep in Jesus," by the Misses Bessie Blair, Lottie Messersmith and Willard M. and Ralph K. Miner. A few more selections from the Scriptures were read after which Mr. Herring spoke very tenderly and affectionately. A portion of his remarks follows: "The flower fadeth. This week has been one of death. There has been three funerals, two aged persons and the one which calls us here this evening.

"It is like the fading leaves. I picked np a leaf today and was reminded that it had finished its work. We are mindful that the flower fadeth. The blossom fades, and we look at this little one and wonder why she should be taken so early. But the flower has left its fruit. Little Nell has gone, but she has left something. This life faded gradually. A year ago she was taken with a disease and the light has gradually been going out. Like the lily her life faded beautifully, and it became more so as it passed away.

"The room she had seemed to fill with life, even while her own was waning fast; the eyes she had gladdened can know her never more. It is not on earth that Heaven's justice ends. Think what earth is compared with that world to which her young spirit has winged its early flight, and say if one deliberate wish expressed in solemn terms above this bed could call her back to life, which of us would attain it. With little Nell there is no more sorrow or trouble. Who would call her back from where she beckons us on? We will meet her; yes, we will meet her."

Mr. Herring offered a most fervent petition to the Throne of Grace, in which he invoked the blessing of God on the bereaved ones. The quartette then sang very impressively "Abide With Me." An opportunity was given those present to view for the last time the loving form of the dear one whose life had gone out to the One who had given it. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes. A pillow bearing the name "Nellie" came from an uncle, and another pillow from the parents bore the inscription "Our Darling." There was a cross from a near friend, and a pretty wreath, with the word "Schoolmates" inscribed. The Junior Christian Endeavor Society, of which she was a member, gave a choice bunch of roses, while there were a number of other tributes, consisting of chrysanthemums and roses, given by loving friends. The remains were taken to Arlington this morning on the 10:04 train for interment.

Those who served as bearers were Frank Dunn, of Elizabeth, Phillip Meschutt, of Jersey City, uncles; Frank Harris, of Philadelphia, and W. F. Dunn, of this city, cousins. They accompanied the remains to Arlington this morning.

TWENTY-SEVEN BILLS.

Found by the Grand Jury and Reported to Court.

The grand jury came in court yesterday morning with 27 bills. There was only a small attendance of spectators, as the jurors were not expected to report today. They entered the court room about 10:30. Foreman George P. Matthews carried the batch of bills and handed them to the clerk.

Judge VanSyckle asked the jurors if they had finished their deliberations, and on being told that they had not, he directed that they be sent back.

The bills, it is reported, are all for minor offences. The jurymen are expected to finish their work this week.

The work of grading the drives around the Hillside Tennis and Golf clubhouse is now going on and will be completed shortly. Some minor changes are now being made in the course at the fifth and ninth holes.

MORE GOLD ENGAGED

$5,525,000 So Far Ordered in London This Week.

OTHER SHIPMENTS ON SATURDAY

Expected That the Bank of England Will Raise the Discount Rate To-day—Not a Check to the Flow of Gold—to This Country.

New York, Oct. 22.—The $250,000 gold engagement in London yesterday for shipment to this country swells the total withdrawals in London this week for export to America to $5,525,000, and it is understood that more gold will be withdrawn to-morrow for shipment by Saturday's steamers. The discount rate in the open market in London yesterday was 3⅛ to 5¼, and the belief is generally expressed that the bank of England will raise its minimum discount rate to-day from 3 per cent. to 3½, or perhaps 4 per cent. The effect, however, of such an increase will not be the stopping of exports of gold to this country; such is not believed to be desire of the London finciers, but rather to influence and adjust the continental money markets, particularly that of Paris in its relation to the London market. Gold will continue to come here from Europe as long as there is a legitimate demand for it, that is, so long as conditions warrant its importation, the only question being whether it shall come from London or Paris, or how much from both.

SUICIDE OF W. T. RAMBUSCH.

The Deed Probably Hastened by the Fear of His Speedy Arrest.

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 22.—It is evident from papers found on the persons of W. T. Rambusch, the Juneau, Wis., banker, who fled from his home several weeks ago a defaulter to the extent of nearly half a million dollars, his stealings wrecking many business men of that locality, that he had contemplated suicide, but was hastened in committing the deed as soon as he did by the appearance in the evening papers of a cut of himself and a detailed account of his crime. Rambusch came here a week ago and registered at the hotel as C. T. Anderson. He had been visiting the battlefields since, and shot himself while in the National cemetery. Sometime Tuesday night or Wednesday morning Rambusch left a note saying he wished to die among his old comrades. One hundred and twenty-five dollars was found on the body. Rambusch addressed a letter Tuesday evening to the Presbyterian minister asking that he offer a prayer over his grave and beg heaven's protection to his wife and daughter. He requested that his remains be buried here and that parties named by him be wired to come here and identify his body, that his family would have no trouble in securing the insurance money. He claimed when he came here that he was in ill health and had been ordered by his physician to seek rest and recreation, and as he had not visited the battlefields of this section since he participated in the stormy scenes of the war he had come to this place. He had no effects with him save a small hand satchel in which were a change of underwear and a few other small belongings and the $125 found on his person. This he requested be used in settling his unpaid hotel bills and funeral expenses. He was very methodical in all he did, and went to his death with a deliberation and calmness that only a man of iron nerve could command. Those who came in contact with him were impressed with his intelligence and dignified manner. The verdict of the coroner's jury was "murdered by his own hand." Telegrams have been received from friends in Wisconsin and New York, but as they were somewhat conflicting the senders have been summoned here in person. The letters to his wife and John Curtis of Centreville, his cousin, were at his request, forwarded unopened. In neither of his communications to parties here did he refer to the grave charges made against himself in the papers, doubtless thinking that the disclosure of his identity would be sufficient to publish his wrong doing far and wide.

The St. Paul's New Purser.

New York, Oct. 22.—Richard Jones, purser of the American line steamship St. Paul, has resigned to enter the employ of a large London banking house, and is to be succeeded by R. D. Williams, who comes from the Philadelphia line of the International Navigation company. He went out on the St. Paul yesterday, not as purser, but as assistant to John T. Kavanagh, who goes to coach Williams.

Rough Weather at Sea.

Belfast, Oct. 22.—The British steamship Teelin Head, Captain Phillips, from Quebec on October 7 for this port, has arrived. She reports having experienced terrific weather on the Atlantic. CIVIL SERVICE ASSOCIATIONS.

Delegates Adopt a Constitution, Elect Officers and Issue a Declaration.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Delegates representing the various civil service associations in all the large cities of the country, including customs officials and employes of the internal revenue department, held their first annual meeting yesterday, adopted a constitution, elected officers and issued a declaration that is a matter of some importance, owing to its interpretation of the civil service law from the standpoint of men who live under it. First—Employes of the classified service are in law and in fact employes of the government, and they do not, by reason of their employment, owe duty to any political party nor to any political leaders; they are in no sense the private employes of any officer of the government, and have not surrendered their citizenship. Second—That the beneficial effect of the law is found in the limitation of the executive power of appointment. Third—That the provisions of the law which affect removals are those which require removals for interference with or attempting to control elections, or for coercing an employe in his religious or political action, and those other provisions which prohibit removals because of the religious or political opinions of employes. It is especially declared that this association is aware of no affirmative provision of law which permits the removal of employes without cause. This association does not seek to impose upon the government, nor retain in office an unsuitable employe, but it insists that when a citizen has complied with all the requirements of law as to examinations and other modes of qualification and has been appointed there should be a further provision to retain him in his position, not only in fairness to himself, but in justice to the government which has been at so much expense to procure him.

QUIET DAY AT CANTON.

Only Two Delegations Expected To Call on Major McKinley To-day.

Canton, O., Oct. 22.—To-day is one of the few comparatively easy days which Major McKinley has been able to enjoy almost since the day of his nomination. Only two delegations are expected this afternoon, both from his own state, and the republican nominee is taking advantage of his rest to prepare speeches and otherwise make ready to receive the thousands who are scheduled to arrive Saturdsy. He is also putting forth great efforts to make headway against his vast and constantly accumulating correspondence. Despite the fatigue and the strain upon his voice consequent upon delivering so many addresses, he shows no signs of exhaustion, and notwithstanding his trying time of yesterday, when he addressed fully 10,000 visitors, he was as cheerful and bright as ever this morning. For the first time in the campaign here, glee clubs yesterday made a distinct impression upon the throngs of visitors and campaign songs were potent enough to sway the audience. A quartette from Chicago was loudly and repeatedly encored when it sang the Ohio and Illinois state songs.

IN EXTRAORDINARY SESSION.

Appellate Division of the Supreme Court Called for an Election Case.

Albany, Oct. 22.—Late yesterday afternoon Gov. Morton acceded to the request of congressman Benjamin L. Fairchild's counsel and called an extraordinary term of the appellate division of the supreme court, to be held Oct. 29, in the court house in Albany. The extraordinary term is called for the specific purpose of hearing arguments on the appeal from the decision of Justice Edwards directing the secretary of state to certify the name of William L. Ward as the regular republican nominee in the Sixteenth congressional district instead of that of Benjamin L. Fairchild, in whose favor a ruling had been given by the secretary. This is the first time the appellate division has been called to convene in extraordinary session.

Chairman Jones' Estimates.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Chairman Jones of the democratic national campaign committee gives out the following figures as the pluralities which he estimates Bryan will have in the middle west states: Illinois, 75,193; Missouri, 93,032; Iowa, 23,838; Indiana, 65,145; Nebraska, 42,467; Michigan, 31,441; Wisconsin, 10,092; Kansas, 36,645; Kentucky, 24,952; Minnesota, 26,856; South Dakota, 7,543; North Dakota, 2,988.

Reorganizing the Mexican Army.

City of Mexico, Oct. 22.—Great concern is noticed in military and private circles over the proposed reorganization of the Mexican army. One of the reforms under contemplation by the secretary of war is compulsory service, such as is in vogue in many European countries. The idea meets with the approval of all the leading generals of the republic.

Ohio Miners To Return to Work.

Columbus, O., Oct. 22.—The miners employed in several of the larger mines of the Hocking valley voted yesterday to return to work at the reduced wages of forty-five cents per ton. There will not be more than 2,000 idle miners in the state after to-day.

TERROR OF CHILDREN.

The One Disease Which Every Intelligent Mother Dreads.

If Your Child Is Not Well, You Should Cure It Before the Dread Disease Sets In. Do Not Ignore First Symptoms.

There is no more dreaded disease by parents than fits, epilepsy and St. Vitus' dance.

If there is one word of advice we would give to parents it is not to allow children who become indisposed, nervous or a little out of order, to drift into these terrible diseases. Neglect of the first symptoms is nearly always accountable for the termination in fits, epilepsy or St. Vitus' dance.

Cure the child when the first symptoms appear. Watch the infant or child and see if it manifests any nervous symptoms, if it is nervous, restless, wakeful, cries out, grits its teeth or tosses about in sleep, has twitching of muscles, limbs or eyelids, if its tongue is coated, breath bad with irregular appetite and bowels. See if it is pale, puny and does not grow and develop well, if it tires easily and does not play with usual energy. If so, you must look out for your child or these most dreaded complaints will follow.

Give it at once Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, which, from its perfectly wonderful record in curing children, is the household remedy in nearly every home in the land. This greatest of children's remedies is perfectly harmless, being made of pure vegetable medicines, and may be given to infants or children of any age. It will always bring health and strength to the little ones.

LITTLE MARY M'BAY.

Charles L. McBay, a highly esteemed police officer, who resides at 14 Myrtle St., New Bedford, Mass., says:

"About two years ago my little daughter became run down in health and suffered from St. Vitus' dance. Soon after she was prostrated by rheumatism, which severely affected her lower limbs.

"After trying various remedies without obtaining relief, she began taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and experienced immediate benefit. She continued its use, and after taking five bottles her rheumatism was practically cured. Her appetite returned, her pains disappeared, she was again able to walk without lameness, her general health was restored, and she was able to attend school and to play like other children."

Remember that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is not a patent medicine, but is a physician's prescription prepared by the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City. The Doctor can be consulted without charge in any case, personally or by letter.

CHAPTER II.

That there should be repeated alarms from the northeast, east and south, where were the pine covered crests of the Black Mesa and the Sierra Ancha—where were the haunts of the Tonto and the White Mountain Apaches—every one expected. There were still among the foothills some parties of miners and prospectors over whose fate there was good reason for alarm. The Santa Anita placers had been promptly abandoned, as we have seen. There was eager watch for danger signals from the site of the old Retribution, down in the Sandy valley to the west, but from the site of the new post to the crossing of the Sandy above Apache canyon the road turned and twisted among the foothills of the mountains for twenty-three miles and there wasn't a human habitation for nearly forty. Then, deep in a cleft of the range, a stage station with corrals and well and lunchroom and bar had been built by some daring spirits, eager to accumulate money at whatever risk. Beyond them for another thirty miles the road lay through desolation itself and reached the outskirts of even frontier civilization again among the newly finished ranches in the broad and sunny valley of Willow creek.

In view of the sudden and simultaneous swoop of the Apaches upon the roads east of Prescott everybody had been warned. Even the mail riders held back for mounted escorts. No stage for Wickenberg and the south, no buckboard for the Santa Anita had left the territorial capital for three days. No mail had been received at Retribution for forty-eight hours. The daring troopers who rode in with the dispatches early that June morning had come through the Sandy valley, as they frankly admitted, with revolvers in hand, their hearts in their mouths and the reins in their teeth. They had passed no party eastward bound. Who, then, could it be, who, striving now to reach the post by way of the new road, should have fallen foul of the Apaches only a mile or so out? Thornton's first impulse was to say the sentry must be dreaming. Raymond, who had known the old trooper nearly a decade, as promptly declared the sentry's report reliable. "I not only saw the flashes," said Hennicke, "but I could faintly hear the shots, sir—fifteen or twenty. It was still as death out here."

Meantime, sending an eager boy lieutenant on the jump to order out

"WHAT'S UP, HENNECKE?"

"G" troop, Capt. Foster had hastened to his temporary quarters—half canvas, half adobe—to make his hurried preparations. Already the rumor was running from mouth to mouth. Only three of the officers had their families with them at the time. Mrs. Foster was one of those women who insisted on accompanying her husband on the move to Arizona, even though the rudest of camp life was to be her portion, and she and Nellie with anxiously beating hearts were standing on the unfinished porch of the new quarters listening for further sound, as the captain hastened up the slope.

"It can't be anything very serious, dear," he said reassuringly. "Probably some belated miners, whose mules the Indians are trying to run off. We'll know in half an hour and I'll send word in at once." Silent and anxious she followed within the doorway, where hung a Navajo blanket as the only barrier between their army nest and the warm outer air, Nellie clinging to her mother's side.

"We've been watching all the evening for signals from the Butte," murmured Mrs. Foster, as the captain rapidly exchanged his regulation coat for a scouting jacket. "We were so anxious about Leon and everybody who had to remain there seems so exposed now. We never thought of hearing of trouble thereaway," and Mrs. Foster glanced out through the open casement to where the Prescott road, winding away down the slope, disappeared among the dark mountain shapes lying black and silent under the twinkling pointers of the Great Bear.

"Leon is safe enough if he'll only stay where he is with Kelly," answered the captain, buckling on his pistol belt. "Apaches won't attack the post—even the remains of one—at night. But I wish old Kelly and his girls were nearer the guard. I don't like their being so far from help and so close to those overhanging cliffs. Now, don't borrow trouble to-night, dear," he concluded, taking his devoted wife in his arms and kissing away the brimming tears. "You and Nell must be brave. These beggarly Apaches probably think we won't know how to fight them and are simply starting in for a little fun. I'm only too glad of a chance to deal them a lesson—so is G troop."

Ten minutes later, in perfect silence, a double file of horsemen rode briskly away into the darkness to the north, Foster leading, every trooper armed with carbine and revolver. The night was breathless. Not a puff of breeze stirred the pines along the mountain side or ruffled the foliage of the willows at the springs. For two miles the road lay through open country, dipping from the plateau on which stood the new post into a mile wide depression, then winding up the gradual ascent among the foothills of the range. Somewhere along that ascent the firing had been seen and heard. Hennicke's story had already been corroborated. Two quartermaster's men, enjoying a quiet smoke outside the adobe walls of the new corral, had seen and heard just what he did, and Maj. Thornton was already in possession of their story. So, too, had the sentry on No. 4 heard what sounded like distant shots, but had seen nothing. Now, as Foster and his fifty horsemen disappeared in the night, the major stood at the edge of the bluff looking out to the north, with an eager group around him. Capts. Raymond and Turner, whose companies had silently assembled under arms, were waiting for orders within the quadrangle of the garrison, as well as the adjutant and quartermaster and a lieutenant or two. There was little talking going on among them—all were listening intently for sounds from the north or of further firing. One or two of the Santa Anita prospectors had mounted and gone out after Foster, but the mass of the refugees still clustered along the bluff, chatting in low, eager tones. If any one voice was especially prominent it was Muncey's, and, like most men given to chatter, he found only an impatient audience. "I tell you," said he for the third time, "there can't be less than a hundred of them Tontos out there now. They just want a single troop, or even two, to come and tackle 'em in the dark." And now he had raised his voice still higher and was talking for the benefit of the major, who had been persistent in avoiding him and had twice pointedly begged him not to intrude upon the council of the officers. "They've just lined the rocks and the roadside out there, and are simply laying for a chance to ambush the whole crowd. What I'd a done would be to send two hundred men out, deployed as skirmishers and swept the hull bottom, north and west, too."

These remarks were rewarded by his companions with a contemptuous sniff or a nervous half jeering titter. "You ought to have been a general, Muncey—that's what's the matter with you. There ain't Apaches enough in all Arizona to dare a fight in the open, day or night, with fifty white men, soldiers or 'cits.' No Apache plans a fight that's going to get him liable to be shot. The kind of fighting he likes is from behind rocks and trees, and there ain't rocks and trees enough out there to cover a dozen of 'em. I'm betting the firing was done by some party as badly scared as you were yis'day morning. I'm betting they just thought some skulking lynx was an Apache and let drive a volley into the dark. The sentry says the shots were all bunched. You know and I know the Apaches don't own a breech loader (this was early in the seventies), so most of it must have been done by white men or greasers, like that gang you trained with last year, instead of herding with your own kind."

Evidently this allusion was a stinger. There was a burst of laughter, more or less jeering and unsympathetic, under shower of which Muncey turned angrily away. He went over toward the group of officers, but at sight of him the major lifted a warning hand and lowered his voice. "Here's that fellow Muncey again," said he, "and I distrust him somehow." Everybody seemed to turn an unsociable back on the newcomer, and presently, after a moment's hesitation, he pulled his old felt hat lower over his eyes, thrust his hands in his pockets and slouched away down the slope in the direction of the corral, within whose adobe walls the horses and mules of the refugees were sheltered.

And now came on a night of no little excitement, even for Arizona, in the heart of the Apache country. For three-quarters of an hour after Foster and his men rode away there was a strange silence and eager waiting at the post. Taps had sounded just before they left. Half-past ten o'clock, called by the sentries, had gone echoing away across the still and starlit mesa; and not a sound or sign came from the front. Then suddenly, far out through the darkness, there was faintly audible the thud of hoofs, and a minute or so brought the rider, full canter, into their midst. He could barely rein in his horse at the hail of the major's party. Everybody—officers, civilians and even soldiers—seem to swarm about the courier in an instant. It was Corporal Foley, of Foster's troop. Recognizing the major, he threw himself from the saddle and stood respectfully before the commander, handing him a penciled note, which the major eagerly opened and read, all eyes upon him.

"We found two Mexicans," it said, "with a camp outfit. They were badly frightened, but unhurt. They declare they were attacked by Apaches, who succeeded in running off two mules. They say the Indians drew away northwest toward the Sandy, and that there was a party of prospectors and packers camped at Raton Springs eight miles out, who were warned of the outbreak, but who wouldn't believe it. The Mexican said they were trying to reach the post when headed off, and that there were enough Apaches to wipe out that party. They themselves only escaped by hiding among the rocks down in the deep ravine. Their story is told with such earnestness that I have deemed it best to push on in search of the prospectors referred to. We should reach the springs soon after midnight. The Mexicans go with us in hopes of recovering their mules.

(Signed) "FOSTER,
"Commanding Troop."

"Come with me, gentlemen," said the major, after a moment's thought. "This is something I'll have to talk over with you. No," he continued, as many of the frontiersmen, too, showed evident inclination to consider themselves included in the invitation. "Excuse me, now, if I have to talk with my officers a moment. There is no news except that Capt. Foster has found a couple of Mexicans who claimed to have been jumped by Apaches, and who say the Indians have gone to attack a small camp of prospectors at Raton Springs. Do you know any miners or prospectors who could be there?"

A general shaking of heads followed. No one knew. One or two went so far as to say they didn't believe it. "What sort of looking fellows were the Mexicans, corporal?" asked Ferguson, the brainiest, apparently, of the civilians.

"Oh, insignificant little runts, both of them," replied Foley. "One of them spoke English enough to make himself understood; the other could only jabber some lingo I didn't know no more of than I do of Apache. So far as I could make out, they had all been traveling together, but when the bigger part of the crowd stopped to camp at the springs, these two fellows came ahead—said they were afraid to stay there after what they had heard of the outbreak."

"Well, what did they hear, and how?" asked Ferguson.

"They said that they met some of the couriers from Prescott, and some prospectors who were driven back from the Clear creek country—who were skipping for the settlements. They told the couriers that they were going in, but despite that they came down to the Springs."

"Queer," said Ferguson, reflectively. "The only Mexicans in the Santa Anita country were those half dozen that Muncey was mixed up with—Manuel's lot—and a scrubby lot they were; but they went off to Tucson over two months ago, seems to me."

"What! The same Manuel that says he was a brother-in-law to MacNutt, Muncey's partner?"

"The same. I heard he took Mac's boy back to Sonora with him, and that the kid didn't want to go at all."

"Indeed, he didn't," answered Foley, stoutly, "for he's worked his way back to the old post inside of a month. He's down there now with the ordnance sergeant."

"Yes, and Muncey was pretending to be surprised when he heard of it to-night, and there was two letters came to him from Tucson last week that prob'ly told him all about it, though I don't suppose Manuel could write. Where'd Muncey go to, anyhow?" broke off Ferguson, suddenly. "I reckon he knows where those fellows are if anybody does."

"Gone to get a bracer," laughed one of the miners. "Muncey's nerve ain't what it used to be, and he's rattled to-night. He's been shaky ever since that cloudburst swept his partner into eternity two years ago. I never understood what drew them together. Mac was a square man and a hard worker, and what's more, everything they had in the way of an outfit was bought with money—wagons, mules, burros, grub, tools and tools—it was all Mac's, and he had some coin and gold dust besides. Yet when Capt. Cullen tried to get hold of it for the boy, nothing could be found that Muncey hadn't a lien on—him and that damn little greaser brother-in-law of Mac's — what's his name, Manuel Cardoza."

"Cardoza?" exclaimed Corporal Foley. "Manuel Cardoza? Why, that's the name of the boss of this party up near Raton Springs, where G troop's gone. I heard it given to Capt. Foster twice."

Ferguson turned quickly around. He had been standing facing the north, keeping intent watch in the direction taken by the troopers. Now he whirled on the corporal. "Are you sure of that?" he said. "By the great jumping Jehosaphat, that means something I hadn't thought of. Muncey swore to me that they had gone to Sonora, and wouldn't return until October. But the boy got away and came back? And he's over there at the old post now—to-night?"

"That's just where he is, or was yesterday morning," said Foley. "We haven't heard from them since."

"And Manuel Cardoza had a pack of Mexicans at Raton Springs at sunset, did he? And wouldn't run for shelter here, even when he knew the whole Tonto tribe was on the warpath?" He turned again northward, and gazed out over the intervening silence and space to where the huge bulk of the Socorro loomed up against the polar sky. Cassiopeia's Chair, traced by clear, twinkling stars, was resting along the black backbone of the range. "The old Tonto trail from the Springs to the foot of Apache canyon burrows right through those hills," said he. "The Springs lie not more'n six miles to the left around that point. The miserable greasers didn't dare go through Apache canyon, and they didn't want to be seen over here. I'll bet what you like they're bound for the old post—and another attempt to nab Leon. Now, boys, I want just a minute's talk with two men—one of 'em Maj. Thornton. The other's Muncey."

Maj. Thornton was found in less than a minute, but not so Muncey. When midnight came it was definitely settled that Muncey was gone; so was Ferguson's pet roan, the fleetest horse of the Santa Anita mines.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? CAUGHT UP ON GRIDIRON

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

The Alis football eleven has received a challenge from a Somerville team for a game about the first of next month.

Somerville has caught the football fever and is going to have what the Somervillians think will be a very strong team. They don't want to run against Plainfield the first game but expect to meet the Y. M. C. A. boys later if a game can be arranged.

One of the best players in Plainfield is Albert P. Simmonds. So far this year he has been playing with the eleven of the New Jersey Athletic Club, but on Saturday he will remain in Plainfield and play with the Y. M. C. A. team. He has had lots of experience and is a quick and strong player.

Dunellen has decided to make her football team a permanent organization and Edward Hardingham is hustling to get the team together. They will play the team from Bound Brook on Saturday and lots of excitement is expected. It has not yet been decided where the game will be played, in Dunellen or in Bound Brook.

The Alis football club has arranged a number of games for the next few weeks. The schedule is as follows: Saturday, Oct. 24th, Scotch Plains at Scotch Plains; Oct. 31st, Scotch Plains at Plainfield; Tuesday morning, Nov. 3d, F. U. C. at New Brunswick; Saturday, Nov. 7th, Somerville at Plainfield; Saturday, Nov. 14th, Paterson High School at Paterson.

What promised to be an unpleasant incident for the Y. M.C. A. eleven was settled amicably and all trouble thus averted. They have a lease of the football field until Nov. 1st, and until that time the work of opening up Sycamore avenue was supposed to be blocked, that is, so far as the field was concerned. Contractor Uhdal is not a football expert, and so he thought that as long as he didn't interfere with the players when on the field, it would be all right, so he began to dump the dirt on the gridiron to the great consternation of the players. An interview yesterday afternoon set matters right. The dirt will be removed and the field left undisturbed until after Nov. 1st. Everything is now ready for a great game Saturday afternoon with the Westfields.

Although greatly outweighed, the Alis football team of this city had no trouble in defeating the Roselle eleven, now second in the Journal League, by a score of 14 to 0. The game was played at Roselle yesterday afternoon. The Plainfield boys outplayed their opponents, and won on superior interference and tackling added by several pretty tricks. Their famous quarter back trick gave Dwight a run of seventy yards and a touchdown. The teams lined up as follows:

ALIS.		ROSELLE.
Woolston	right end	Bruce
Finch	right tackle	Terwiliger
Stewart	right guard	Bogart
Taylor	centre	Bull
Long	left guard	Pierson
Dwight	quarter back	Shangle
Peck	right half back	DeForest
Cuming	left half back	Herrick
Phillips, capt.	full back	Chilvers

Touchdowns, Dwight, 2; Cuming, 1. Goals, Phillips, 1. Referee, Thomas U. Smith.

Everything points to an exciting game Saturday with the Westfield Athletic Club. Conflicting rumors regarding the strength of the Westfields are being told so much that the Plainfield boys are worked up to the highest pitch of excitement. The very strongest team possible is being gotten together, and the members are constantly drilling in the new system of signals. Everyone is anxious, and if vows count for anything each man on the team will make at least three touchdowns. Lovell has returned and his accurate kicking will count should a touchdown be made. Cathcart will be seen behind the line, and Westfield's line will need to be very strong to withstand his well-directed and powerful efforts. It is hoped that the Plainfield people will turn out well to see the game, for surely they can be promised an exciting and interesting contest. Ladies will be admitted free as usual.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Roselle Casino bowling team will be in the Journal League this year and not in the Standard League as heretofore. The Standard League will probably be reorganized shortly but the Park Club bowlers have not decided whether to go in or not.

There will be a Y. M. C. A. bowling team in the field, or rather on the alleys, this winter. Games with neighboring teams will be arranged and a lively season is expected. A meeting of those interested will be held on Friday night of next week when a captain will be elected.

BASKET BALL.

The opening basket ball game of the season will be played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on the evening of Saturday, October 31, at least, so it has been arranged. The game will be between the "Regulars" and the team from the business men's class of which John H. Doane is captain.

On Monday afternoon, the members of the business men's gymnasium class at the Y. M. C. A. will give an exhibition drill of class work, to which their friends are all invited. The visitors will be shown the regular work of the class which will be followed, as usual, by a game of basket ball between two picked teams.

With the approach of cold weather comes the exciting game of basket ball which has attracted so much attention among the new men at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium during the past two years. This year, Physical Director Heywood promises that the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. shall have a very strong team to sustain its reputation. Candidates for the team are now practicing almost nightly. The new rules of '96 and '97 will be used and Mr. Heywood, who is an expert at the game, is coaching them in the new points. The time, this year, will be composed of five men and there is considerable rivalry as to see who will make the team. Among the principal candidates are M. Moraller, I. Moraller, James A. Stafford, George Proctor Smith, Henry Jessup, Berry Egan, and F. E. Richards.

The team will hold an election tonight when a captain and assistant manager will be elected. Mr. Heywood will act as manager. The captain will then pick the team.

WHIST.

The next game for the State whist trophy will probably be played some day next week. It will between the famous Park Club four and the team from the New Jersey Athletic Club. The Parks need only one more victory to obtain permanent possession of the cup.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

George M. Macintyre and Phillip B Macintyre, of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company, have gone fishing in Barnegat Bay today. Hand's van will meet them on their return to carry the fish.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The grading exercises at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, when the members will be divided into regular classes, will be held next Thursday night.

Assemblyman W. R. Codington is in Trenton today on business.

Mrs. Edward VanWinkle, of Elm street, has purchased a handsome new wheel.

—A regular meeting of Jerusalem Chapter will be held tonight.

—A union meeting of the local Epworth Leaguers will be held this evening at Monroe Avenue chapel.

—The last meeting of the National Democratic Club in the West End will be held this evening at the corner of Muhlenberg place and South Second street.

—Wallace Coriell, of West Fourth street, was arrested this morning on the charge of beating his mother-in-law, Mrs. Lillian Wooley, by Officer Totten. He will be arraigned this afternoon.

—Christian Gerlach, of East Second street, who fractured his leg some time ago and who was obliged to return to the hospital a second time for further treatment, was discharged that institution today.

—The advanced class in mathematics in connection with the mechanical course of the Y. M. C. A. will meet this evening at 8 o'clock. The German class taught by Rev. E. Kionka will meet tomorrow evening at the same hour.

—The Young Ladies Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold its regular meeting tomorrow from 2 to 5 in one of the Bible class rooms. It will be noticed that the day of meeting has been changed from Tuesday to Friday.

—The funeral of Mrs. George Codington took place yesterday from the house at Millington. She was the wife of Assemblyman Codington's brother, and was ill only a short time with typhoid fever. She was highly esteemed in the community where she lived.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

Complaints have frequently been made to Judge Clark of the conduct of some of the young men of the place, who are in the habit of casting insulting remarks at women on the street, and especially at night. Only last night, soon after dark, one unprotected woman was passing along Front street on her way home when some brute, as yet unknown, approached her and made indecent proposals. It would be well, and the cost would be trivial to have an officer patrol the streets for a few hours each night. Judge Clark will make a lasting example of the first female insulter brought before him.

—A social will be held in the Seventh-day Baptist church next Tuesday evening.

—Unity Lodge, No 102 Knights of Pythias, met last night and completed the adoption of the bylaws by sections. Routine business was transacted.

—A regular meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association will be held in their rooms tomorrow evening.

—The Epworth Leagve of the First M. E. church will hold a sociable tomorrow evening in Vincent chapel. A pleasing programme has been prepared.

—John Richards, of Clinton avenue, was arrested this morning by Acting-Roundsman Totten for disorderly conduct. He was held in bail for trial Saturday.

ENDEAVORERS HAVE AN ECHO; EPWORTHS RALLY

Meetings Calculated to Keep Up the Interest of Young Christian Workers Hereabouts.

Several Reminders of the Recent Big Convention, Among Which Was a Portion of the Big Choir—Edworth League Members Hear Some Very Inspiring Prayers and Listen to a Number of Worthy Testimonials.

The Christian Endeavor state convention of '96 has come and gone but its memory remains. The same spirit that so pervaded that vast assemblage of Christian workers was echoed last evening at the rally, held in the Trinity Reformed church.

There were several reminders of that great event, the convention. Many of the choir, that rendered such inspiring music during these three days, were seated on the platform with the same leader, Horace J. Martin, in charge. A railing, formed of orange and black bunting the state colors, was arranged along the edge of the platform while two large C. E. monograms, one in orange and black and the other in green and white, were placed on the front of the organ.

The meeting opened with the usual rousing service of song led by Mr. Martin, A. L. Titsworth presiding at the organ. Then came an earnest prayer by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph D., and E. E. Anthony, president of the Local Union, read the fifty-first Psalm. Mr. Anthony next announced that the Evangelistic department of the Local Union had determined to do something and that as soon as the plans were perfected, it would be announced. While the ushers were taking up the collection, Mrs. John Manley sung the beautiful selection "Consider the Lillies" in her clear powerful voice.

A short talk by Mr Anthony followed. He dwelt on the three verses in the fifty-first Psalm beginning with the tenth verse. He spoke of the qualities needed by a Christian, told how necessary a clean heart and right spirit were. A gloomy Christian repells people from the church. An invitation to come to Jesus Christ must be backed up by a spirit of Jesus Christ within us, he said. It is failing to fulfill our duty to Him not to have it so, he declared. People are not saved just for themselves, but they are saved to be useful to serve Him.

Another hymn was followed by ten minutes of earnest testimony. The speeches followed each other quickly with a few words on the all important question of saving souls, teliing of their own experiences or the experiences of others. Then Mr. Anthony asked all who had ever experienced the joy of bringing any one to Christ to rise and quite a number responded to the invitation. Requests for prayer were made and then, one after another the Christian Endeavors joined in short heart felt prayers. A particularly earnest one by Mr. Anthony closed the season of prayer and then Rev. Cornelius Schenck dismissed the congregation with the benediction.

Very helpful and interesting was the union meeting of the local Epworth Leagues held in the Monroe Avenue chapel, last evening, and quite large was the gathering of members despite the many other events happening in the same night.

Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, pastor of the chapel, presided, and after stating the object of the meeting asked James McGee to lead in opening prayer. After the prayer Rev. Mr. O'Donnell read a letter from E. E. Anthony, president of the Local Christian Endeavor Union, who on behalf of the Christian Endeavorers of Plainfield expressed their appreciation of the hearty and cordial co-operation in the work of caring for the recent convention. Then Fred Smith, as representative of the local union, expressed pleasure in the harmonious relations of the two grand organizations, and hoped for a further spiritual awakening of the people.

Lewis E. Potter of Woodbridge, president of the Elizabeth District League, then took charge of the meeting and conducted a song service, singing several solos. He also spoke a few words regarding the approaching Epworth League convention at Perth Amboy next week.

Short addresses then followed by Rev. H. K. Carroll, D. D., Rev. H. J. Johnston, Chas. Hummer, and Elder B. W. Hand, who spoke words of encouragement and exhortation for more activity in Christian work. The meeting then closed with singing and prayer.

BID FAREWELL.

City Missionary Herndon Goes From Plainfield to Trenton.

The Plainfield branch of the Christian Alliance last night said farewell to Miss Noah Mildred Herndon, who for the past six months has been their city missionary. In a few days she will leave for Trenton, to continue her work. The farewell meeting was held as usual in the W. C. T. U. rooms, and was well attended. The opening exercises were conducted by F. W. Morse, president of the Plainfield branch, and consisted of a short song service, a Scripture lesson, prayer by Mrs. Winter, and a song, "There'll be no dark valley when Jesus comes," by a quartette from the First Presbyterian and Congregational churches. Miss Herndon was then introduced and after a very earnest, heartfelt prayer, said a few farewell words. She told how much help and happiness her summer in Plainfield had given her, and of her earnest desire to accomplish more in her new field of work than ever before. She gave as her farewell message to her Plainfield friends, Ephesians 1: 2-3, and closed by singing a very sweet song entitled "Consecration," the words of which expressed her wish to go wherever her Master should send her, and to be and do only what He would have her.

Resolutions telling of the appreciation of the work done by Miss Herndon were introduced by Mrs. J. M. Middledith and unanimously passed. Then followed a number of testimonies regarding the help and assistance the city missionary had given, and the meeting closed with singing.

FAILED TO FILE AN ANSWER.

Winkler Arrested for Not Paying a Fine or Saying Why He Should't.

On October 12th, Game and Fish Warden Sebring, of Somerset county, arrested Theodore Roantree and Joseph Winkler, of New Market, for illegally taking fish from the mill pond with a spear after the water had been drawn off. The men were taken before Justice Storms and fined $20 a piece. Winkler filed a bond to the Middlesex County Court, appealing from the decision of the justice, and claiming that he was not guilty of the charge.

Awaiting the disposition of the matter by the county court, Winkler's fine was not paid. After the appeal had been made, it is said that Winkler disappeared, and did not file an answer to the appeal. Yesterday the ten days were up and Warden Sebring found Winkler staying at a farm house near Chimney Rock. He was arrested and taken to the Middlesex county jail at New Brunswick, where he will be incarcerated till the fine is paid.

CHURCH PEOPLE DUPED.

FAKIRS WITH A MINISTERIAL BEARING PLY THEIR TRADE.

Claimed to Have Been Recommended by Two Local Pastors, and in This Way Imposed on the Charitableness of People.

One of the many things to which Plainfielders are sujected is a class of men who come here and obtain money under false pretenses. The Daily Press has occasion to record these deceptions from time to time, but people will be deceived just the same.

The latest scheme in this line occurred last Tuesday afternoon. Two strange men, bearing a ministerial appearance, came to town with a number of pictures illustrating Bible stories. The pictures are said to be worth about fifteen cents at the most. They learned the names of Rev. Edward Kionka, pastor of St. Peter's German Luthern church, and Rev. W. H. Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, and then obtained the names of several persons who are members of either of the churches. They called on the different families and said that they had come from Ohio where they claimed to have charge of churches that were in need of help. They said that Pastors Kionka and Hauser had recommended them to their parishioners, and they felt quite sure they would be willing to help a poor church.

In most cases they entered the house where they exhibited the pictures. No picture was sold for less than $1.50 and for some they received as high as $4. The people called upon were willing to help the strangers. They were only in town about four hours but during that time they collected about $20. Rev. Mr. Kionka was the first to learn of the deceptive practice, when he met his parishioners and the latter inquired about the men he had sent to them.

Mr. Kionka says that he has heard of these same men who worked their nefarious scheme in Philadelphia. Both pastors feel highly incensed that the members of their churches should have been deceived in such a way and have warned them not to give to anyone for church purposes unless they have an authorized letter from them.

KELLER SUIT SETTLED.

THE DEMANDS OF CHRISTIAN KELLER CONCEDED BY RELATIONS.

Heirs of Madeline Keller to Give a Deed for the Property Claimed by Christian, the Latter Doing the Same With the Lot

The Chancery case of Keller against Keller, begun at Newark on Monday last, the details of which have already appeared in The Press, was concluded at the State House in Trenton yesterday. At the close of the testimony offered by Christian Keller, counsel for the other side arose and said that he was satisfied that the relief prayed for by Christian Keller in his cross-bill, ought to be granted by the Court, and he had concluded to make no further opposition, but to consent to such a decree. Vice-Chancellor Reed replied that he thought that course was a wise one. Craig A. Marsh, counsel for Christian Keller, then drew up a final decree requiring the husband and heirs of Madeline Keller to give Christian Keller a deed for the house and lot claimed by the latter, Christian at the same time to give the other side a deed for the vacant lot, as he tendered his willingness to do in his answer and cross-bill. The decree also provides for the sale of the corner property and the equal divisision of the proceeds between Christian Keller on the one side, and the husband and heirs of Madeline Keller on the other.

A Reckless Pig.

A pig that runs at large on the streets at Garwood was run into four times by wheelmen yesterday, and each time the wheelman got a fall, but the pig was apparently uninjured. The animal has caused many wheelmen to fall, and is apparently afraid of a wheel, but somehow manages to get in the way every time a wheelman or wheelwoman gets near it.

Wearing Their New Union.

A meeting of the cadet corps of the North Plainfield High School was held yesterday afternoon and Captain C. M. Dolliver distributed the new uniforms to the cadets. The uniforms are similar to those of the Plainfield High School cadets except that they have a light blue shoulder piece to hold the cross belt.

DON'T FAVOR BAG SYSTEM

STREET COMMISSIONER MEEKER ON THE DISPOSAL OF LEAVES.

He Fails to See the Practicability of the Methods Proposed by the Town Improvement Association—Street Work.

The Plainfield streets are receiving another cleaning and the residents thereof are exceeding glad. It has heretofore been Street Commissioner Meeker's custom to have several men continually at work, picking up scraps of paper, cleaning up the mud and keeping the streets in good order but the appropriation for that department has now run low and he has been unable to continue the good work.

A Daily Press reporter saw Mr. Meeker yesterday afternoon and questioned him regarding his opinion of the plan of the Town Improvement Association to burn the leaves. If the Association could raise a fund to pay for the gathering and carting away of the leaves, that was all right, he said, but otherwise he was very frank to say that he did not favor it at all People, he declared, would not cart away the leaves themselves and they would be left on the ground and in the gutters to rot which would be very unhealthy to all residing in the neighborhood. As to the smoke from the burning leaves injuring those who are afflicted with asthma, Mr. Meeker said that was a mistake. He cited several instances of Plainfield firemen, suffering from asthma, who have been able to go in rooms so filled with smoke that others could not enter.

A PARLOR SALE.

Ladies' Aid Society of the German Lutheran Church Conducting it.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Peter's German Lutheran Church, have taken possession of the pleasant home of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Kionka, on West Second street. They are holding a parlor sale for the benefit of their church and judging from the attendance yesterday afternoon and evening, the affair will be a great success. The parlor presents a very attractive appearance, and the ladies have certainly won credit for the arrangement of the various articles. There is a complete line of useful fancy articles which were made by the ladies' themselves and the demand for them has been phenomenal. Mrs. Ebel and Mrs. Kuntz are in charge of this department. Miss Bartels and Mr. Ebel preside at the dry goods table and found many purchasers for the articles on sale. Those who like sweets can find a choice assortment of candies in charge of Mrs. Ruppert and Mrs. Zeisz. A full line of groceries are to be found under the care of Mrs. Yaeger In another room refreshments are served by Miss Seipel and Miss Miller. Here one can find coffee, cake, ice cream and soda water, and especially commendable is the old fashioned German cake. In the same room there is a supply of various kind of vegetables such as squash, pumpkin, potatoes, apples, etc. Miss Mamie Mehl has charge of the grab-bag and secures many coins from those present who are anxious to help. Miss Lizzie Scheidecker very carefully guards the door and receives the admission fee, while Mrs Scheidecker is the efficient treasurer. Rev. Mr. Kionka has general supervision of the affair and looks after every detail in his usual careful manner. The handsome sign placed outside to attract passers by was kindly made by Mr. Henzen. The sale is being continued this afternoon and evening and those who visit the house will have no cause for regret, for they will be pleased.

A Bit Sarcastic.

Now that Mr. So-and-So, the druggist, of Plainfield, has announced to an awe-struck world his confident belief that his favorite for the Presidency will carry twenty-nine different States (naming them atthe length of ten lines of Daily Press space) it is in order for Mr. Timothy Whatsisname, of Elderberry Corners, to express his opinion also. After him should follow Mr Reuben Smith, town clerk, of Frogville Center. Speak up, gentlemen. America awaits breathlessly. This is a campaign of education. Stop the press!—New Brunswick Home News.

Changes on the Police Force.

Several changes were made this morning in the arrangement of the police force. Roundsman Mattox returned to duty while Patrolman Totten who has been acting-Roundsman returned to his regular position on the day squad. Patrolman Hartpence has been suffering a little from malaria and was transferred from night to day duty. Patrolman Freleigh was changed from the day squad to the night squad.

MANY REASONS ADVACED FOR THE YELLOW METAL

Gold Standard Democrats to Workingmen and Lawyer Runyon to Business College Students.

In the West End Questions Are Asked by Those Who Are Seeking for Enlightenment or Else for the Purpose of Perplexing President Atterbury—Lawyer Runyon Has Seven Reasons Why He Upholds the Gold Standard.

The last meeting to be held in the West End under the auspices of the Nation Democratic Club was held last evening, and was a success in more ways than one. There was an extraordinary large crowd present, and there was people standing out side who were not able to get in the room. The speaker of the evening was C. P. Bull, and he received the undivided attention of all present. He said in part as follows:

"Mr. Bryan in his speech at Madison Square Garden, New York, declared that the free and unlimited coinage of silver would raise the price of a silver dollar to $1.29 throughout the world, and his reason for so saying was that it would be regulated by supply and demand. That the greater the demand for a cheaper metal, the greater the supply. Mr. Bryan also stated that if you reduce the supply of silver you reduce the value and purchasing power. Now, the question presents itself, how are you going to obtain a ratio? We will go to a bullion dealer, and he will tell us that a grain of gold is worth four plus. But how about silver? He will tell us that one cent will buy seven or eight grains of silver. At that rate the market value of a silver dollar would be about fifty-three cents. Bryan's idea is that if you take sixty-five cents worth of silver, give it unlimited coinage and the price will raise to $1.29 to an ounce of gold the world over. You cannot destroy value and have it remain, for value is settled by the law of demand and value has got to have its equivalent. If Bryan was elected the whole world would feel it in an instant and prices would go up most surely. At the same time we would have a currency, half of which would be true and half false. You cannot legislate on the question of value. As soon as you do you would create a a universal bankruptcy. Up would go prices and down would go wages. I believe that our representatives have not been true to their convictions and it is now time they exhibited political consistency. The law that United States bonds should be payable in silver is an unreasonable one. Today there is no country of any strenghth on a silver basis. There is a circulating medium, however, and that is silver. The intrinsic value of it is good the world over. Bryan has said that we shall not make any arrangement to demonatize silver. In Elizabeth a few years ago the officials attempted to create a demand for property by paving the streets into the suburbs. They thought that the people would be induced to locate along those streets, and thousands of dollars was spent. If I am not mistaken Elizabeth became bankrupt through the scheme. The rate of interest governs the value of money always, and it shows confidence. A depreciated currency is a dangerous thing and the Supreme Court should not be discredited."

Mr. Atterbury then spoke somewhat as follows: "I am confident that public men have steered clear of this important question of the currency, because they were too much afraid. If they had given it due consideration we would not today be fighting the question. Men in congress ever since 1878 have voted to sustain free silver, knowing it was wrong. The present campaign is bringing out the truth in the great question,"

John James, the Socialist, then entered into a discussion with Mr. Atterbury in regard to the government making 47 cents on every silver dollar coined. Mr. Atterbury replied that if Bryan's scheme is adopted the individual would receive the profit where the government would ordinarily under the coinage of silver would receive the profit.

Michael Higgins could not understand why the government would be foolish enough to coin silver free without a profit, but Mr. Atterbury said that the principle for which Bryan was fighting was just that same foolish idea.

After a short discussion pro and con Mr. Pfeiffer offered the following resolutions which was adopted unanimously: "Resolved, That we extend Mr. Atterbury our hearty thanks for his untiring efforts to make these meetings a success and for his fairness in conducting them." A similar resolution was adopted regarding Mr. Pfeiffer.

Mr. Atterbury then made a few remarks in closing. He urged all to vote the right ticket. Continuing he said in part: "Our programme may seem tame to our Socialist friends, but this is a wicked world, containing fraud and misery. The gold standard will not change it altogether, nor will it make us all rich. It is essential however, in order that we get along well, that we have the honest dollar. I urge you to vote against Bryan and a debasing currency. Stamp both of them out at the polls in November. To my Democratic friends I would say that our party has been captured by the Populists. The Democrats have for one hundred years sustained honest money and this is the first time that a departure has been made. Bryan has said that he was not a Democrat and for several years he has fought against the party on the side of Populism, which will ruin this country if given its way. Palmer and Buckner, our candidates, are real sound Democrats and I urge you to throw one side your support of party and vote for Palmer and Buckner and the Indianapolis platform." The announcement was then made of the mass meeting to be held in Music Hall next Friday evening when Edgar M. Sheppard, of Brooklyn and R. V. Lindabury, of Elizabeth, will speak. The meeting then came to a close.

Harry C. Runyon spoke in the Plainfield Business College last night to a large audience, in favor of a gold standard. S. S. Swackhamer will speak next Thursday night in the college in favor of silver. Beside the students there were a number of outsiders. Everyone is welcome to these lectures, and it is needless to say that they are highly instructive, as both Mr. Runyon and Mr. Swackhamer are good talkers. Mr. Runyon handled his subject last evening in a masterly way, holding the closest attention of his audience for over an hour. His delivery is good, his points are concise and well taken, and there is a grain of humor underlying all that never fails to please. Mr. Runyon, in conclusion, said he was opposed to the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. First, because it would alter prices and values, defeating the wage earner and those living under fixed incomes; second, because it would make dishonest silver dollars; third, because it would place in the hands of the rich an unequal advantage over the poor; fourth, because it would drive gold out of circulation and thus reduce our currency by one-third; fifth, because it would enable dishonest debtors to defraud their creditors; sixth, because it would benefit a few at the expense of the many; seventh, because it would dispel confidence and thus continue the hard times.

TUMBLE IN WHEAT

Millions of Bushels Poured on the Market at Chicago.

PRICES CUT NO FIGURE AT ALL

No One Anxious To Undertake the Responsibility of Carrying the Cereal Under Present Conditions---Veritable Panic on 'Change.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—There have been exciting days in the wheat market, but the closing hours yesterday outranked anything of recent date and probably in many years. A veritable panic existed at the close and millions of bushels were poured on the market, prices cutting no figure in the matter. The cash wheat situation has become the all-important factor. Money rates are higher and no one wishes to undertake the responsibility of carrying wheat under these conditions. The early market was weak, cables coming lower and foreigners selling. A period of comparative steadiness prevailed for two hours, but in the last half hour confusion of the most extreme kind had possession of the pit and December dropped to five cents under Wednesday's close. San Francisco was said to be in a panic, which served to augment the disturbed feeling here. Closing English and continental quotations were all lower. The Cincinnati Price Current reported a favorable week for the crop. Receipts at Chicago were 238 cars and 123,064 bushels were taken from store. The Northwest had 1,090 cars against 1,087 a year ago. December wheat opened from 74¼c. to 73⅝c, sold between 74¼c. to 70⅛c., closing at 70½c. —4⅝c. under Wednesday. Corn and oats yielded unresistingly to the depressing influence of the weak wheat market.

Break in the Market at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 23.—A sensational break in wheat prices added to the perplexities of an unfavorable money market. This market kept in close touch with Chicago, December wheat closing 4⅝c. under Wednesday's closing. May closed 4⅝c. lower.

TO DEFEND THE CASTLES.

Sir Edward Clarke Engaged---Mental Expert Says Mrs. Castle's Mind Is Diseased.

London, Oct. 23.—Sir Edward Clarke, Q. C., formerly solicitor-general, has been retained for the defense of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Castle of San Francisco, who are awaiting trial here for alleged shoplifting. Lewis Weill, a watch manufacturer of Hatton garden, who is one of the sureties of the Castles, said to a representative of the United Associated Presses this morning: "Dr. George Henry Savage, one of the leading English experts in mental diseases, who examined Mrs. Castle for four hours, is prepared to swear that she is not responsible. In the course of Dr. Savage's conversation with her Mrs. Castle confessed that she had taken the things she is accused of having stolen, but she could not tell why she had done so."

Bay State Gas Case.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 23. — The charges of contempt of court in concealing the books of the Bay State Gas Co. against J. Edward Addicks, Parker C. Chandler and Charles H. Kittinger, made by counsel for William Buchanan, was practically dismissed in the United States court yesterday afternoon, as counsel failed to convince the court of any attempt to commit contempt. Mr. Addicks declared under oath that there was no such intent. No decision was rendered by the court on the motion to dismiss the order granting temporary receivers for the Bay State Gas Co. in Delaware.

Live Bird Shooting Match.

Asbury Park, N. J., Oct. 23.—Some of the best pigeon shots in the country saw the live bird match at Elkwood park yesterday between Phil Daly, jr., of Long Branch and J. S. Winston of Washington, Ind. Each man shot at 100 birds for a purse, $200 of which was put up by Mr. Daly and $147 by Mr. Winston, The match was won by Daly, who killed 87 birds to Winston's 86. To-morrow Ivins of Red Bank and Winston will shoot at 100 birds for $147 a side.

Editor Bok Married.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—Edward W. Bok, editor and part owner of the Ladie's Home Journal, was married at high noon to Miss Mary Louise Curtis, daughter of Cyrus Curtis, chief proprietor of the publication. The ceremony was quietly performed at Mr. Curtis' country seat, Jenkintown, by Rev. Mr. McClure, rector of the Wynoote P. E. church, in the presence of a dozen relatives and friends.

New Navy Magazine Rifles.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The first instalment of new navy magazine rifles has been completed, and 500 of them have been ordered to the New York navy yard, 300 of them for the new cruiser Brooklyn and the others for the Puritan. All the other ships will be provided with this small bore, flat trajectory arm as soon as possible.

Condition of Workingwomen.

Albany, Oct. 23.—Commissioner of Labor statistics McDonough announces that he will begin his investigation on Nov. 9 in New York city into the condition of workingwomen and the system of importing females into this country for immoral purposes. He is gathering his witnesses and has about sixty in view to begin with.

Fight Among Sultan's Guards.

Paris, Oct. 23.—The Temps publishes a dispatch from Constantinople saying that a conflict has occured at the sultan's palace between the Turkish and Albanian guards, during which several men on both sides were killed.

PROBABLY MURDER

Inquiry into the Yonkers Tragedy Strengthens That Theory.

WIRES AND BATTERY IN THE CELLAR

Local Police Give Way To Pinkerton Detectives and a Sensational Arrest Is Hinted At---If Murder, the Assassin Was Ingenious.

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 23.—The latest developments in the ghastly tragedy at the Arlington Chemical works prove almost beyoud doubt that Hamlin J. Andrus met his horrible death at the hands of an incarnate assassin. Chief of Police Mangin has maintained from the outset that the unfortunate man had come to his end accidentally. Coroner Miles, on the other hand, stoutly proclaimed that murder had been done and pushed forward a rigid investigation. As a result of this the chief of police last night confessed that there is something in the murder theory, while the coroner states that he is absolutely certain that one of the most diabolical murders on record in this vicinity had been committed. The case has been taken out of the hands of the local police and Pinkerton detectives have been called in. They are zealously at work to-day endeavoring to clear up the mystery. Three clues have been discovered—a piece of cord, some new wire, four electric batteries—all of which are believed to have played an important part in the killing of Mr. Andrus. From what can be learned, if the clues the detectives are working upon are correct, and they have all the evidence of so being, a sensational arrest will shortly be made.

Deeply Laid Plot.

The plot that resulted in the murder of Mr. Andrus was unquestionably deeply laid. The plotter was evidently an ingenious rascal. In searching the building yesterday for evidence this was made manifest. Near the window where the bomb was exploded was found a coil of wire. Tracing it it was found that wires ran down through a hole in the floor, used for the gas pipe, into the cellar. Upon going down there the searchers found, directly under the office where Mr. Andrus was killed four small dry batteries to which the wires were attached. The batteries rested on a plank connected with a large icebox near by. Both the wires and batteries were new and showed evidence of having been placed in position within a few days. The searchers at once began a thorough investigation of this contrivance, the result of which proved beyond doubt that Mr. Andrus was murdered deliberately. The wires were conducted to the wall at the rear end of the cellar and down to an old fashioned furnace. Here was where the assassin's ingenuity displayed itself. These wires were so arranged by running one over a protruding bolt on the furnace with a weight attached, that by pulling a string which was attached to one of the wire and ran outside the building the uninsulated ends of the wires came in contact and a circuit was created. As the wires led up to the office and connected with the bomb, it was easy for the assassin to explode it at his will. As Mr. Andrus could not be seen from the window where this cord was worked it is believed that the murderer was familiar with his routine duties and was well aware that Mr. Andrus was in the room when the bomb was set off.

Knew the Premises Well.

It has been declared that if murder were done the murderer was in some way connected with the institution. This would seem to be borne out by the fact that the cord attached to this wire was identical with that used in the various parts of the works. And, further, that the frame of the bomb was similar to material used about the factory. It is pretty clearly established that whoever devised the electrical contrivance knew a great deal about explosives and something about electricity.

Local Police Leave the Case.

The coroner has taken possession of all the stuff and he believes it will lead to the capture of the assassin. The very latest developments dispute the theory that the bomb was intended for John E. Andrus, brother of the murdered man. The Pinkerton men are working on a clue which shows a motive for the taking of Hamlin J. Andrus' life. Chief Mangin said to a reporter that Coroner Miles had kept from him all information concerning the tragedy and as a result he had been forced to withdraw his men from the case. The Pinkertons, he understood, were now at work on it and he would leave the whole matter to them.

Purcell's Sentence Commuted.

Albany, Oct. 23.—Gov. Morton has commuted to six years and six months the sentence of William Pursell, who is serving a term of eleven years and one month in Sing Sing prison for manslaughter. Purcell kept a saloon in New York city and shot and killed a man of the name of Farrell on January 1, 1893, while a disturbing crowd was about the saloon. With good behavior Purcell's term will expire next fall.

Tax on Mussulmans and Sheep.

Constantinople, Oct. 23.—An irade has been issued levying a poll tax of five piasters (twenty-two cents) per head on all Mussulmans, and increasing the taxes on sheep, public works and education from 1 to 1½ per cent. These taxes, with the revenue from the five projected monopolies, will, it is estimated, produce £1,200,000, which will be used for military purposes.

American Cattle Barred.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Jamaica has prohibited the importation of American cattle. The order will not affect cattle in transit up to October 7.

PRINCE OF DIPLOMATS.

Such Was Prince Lobanoff, the Recently Deceased Russian Premier.

The young czar of Russia, almost at the outset of his career, meets a serious setback in the death of Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky, his minister of foreign affairs. In the Russian government, with its absolute despotism, personality counts for more than in any other nation, and Prince Lobanoff was the strongest of the counselors upon whom the czar has leaned. Succeeding M. de Giers in 1895, Lobanoff assumed control of the brilliant tacticians of Russian diplomacy and guided the government to successful issues in almost every one of the momentous questions which have confronted the nation. It has been the subject of mournful remark among the other foreign ministers of Europe that the diplomatists of the czar were uncomfortably clever. The leader of the group and the master hand in conducting foreign negotiations was Lobanoff.

One needs but to recall the success of the various efforts recently put forth by the Russian government to appreciate the skill and address with which the czar has been represented. The victories, says the Chicago Record, have been Russia's throughout. Alliances were perfected east and west, the powerful friendship of France being secured as though by hypnotism. In the settlement of the Chino-Japanese affairs and in the negotiations looking to a strong foothold in the Ottoman empire the Russians have played the winning cards. They have worked steadily toward their long-coveted aim—the control of the Bosphorus or a pathway through India and an outlet to the sea. The most remarkable feature of this adroit diplomacy is that its ends have been gained without undue friction and with no present danger to the peace of Europe.

It is because he was favorable to peace and because he carried his aims without involving his government in conflict that Lobanoff's death will be regretted abroad. He did much to strengthen the empire, but he avoided the clash of arms which Europe regards as inevitable. It remains to be seen whether among the other diplomats of the empire there are those who can take up his work and carry it on so brilliantly as he has done.

ONE DISEASE AND ONE REMEDY

"The art of painting," said Millais "consists in selecting the right colors and putting them in the right place,"—"The way to win a battle," said Napoleon," is to mass your troops at the critical moment against the weakest spot in the enemy's line."—"The way to cure many ailments," said the great Dr. Abercrombie, "is to purify the poisoned spring in which they arise, generally the torpid and inflamed digestive system."

Thus wisdom and experience simplify and condence Thus the Shakers of Mount Lebannon reasoned when they sought, and finally found, a remedy for indigestion and dyspepsia. Where one person has something else they argued, a thousand have this. To cure this alone will almost rid the world of sickness. Why should we vex ourselves with confusing definitions? A good digestion is life and health; a bad one disease and death. Hence, from the healing and stimulating mountain herbs, they extracted the principles which make the Shaker Digestive Cordial the rarest and most effective of medicines for one disease, and one only—indigestion and dyspepsia.

Do you suffer from any of these miserable feeling?—depression of spirits, heaviness and pain in the stomach after meals, bad taste in the mouth, wind in the bowels, irritable disposition, nervous weakness and alarm, worry and weariness, cositiveness or irregularity of the bowels, nause, palpitation, sick headache heartburn, loss of appetite and sleep, dry skin, etc.—?

Don't indulge in fifty foolish fancies. You have indigestion and dyspepsia and nothing else. Set the disordered stomach right with the one medicine which will surely do it. Shaker Digestive Cordial, and these symptoms will vanish with their cause. A good effect will follow the first doses. Even chronic cases soon yield.

Test the cordial, at practically no cost, by taking a ten-cent trial bottle. For sale by nearly all druggists.

MISS WILLARD EXPLAINS.

Tells Why She Sent Armenians To Seek Homes in the United States.

London, Oct. 23.—Miss Frances Willard has issued a statement regarding the Armenian refugees who have been sent by Lady Henry Somerset from Marseilles to New York, some of whom have been refused admission to the United States by the immigration authorities. Miss Willard says that she and Lady Henry Somerset carefully studied the immigration laws of the United States and in response to a cablegram sent to the United States treasury department were informed that it was not necessary that the refugees have a specific sum of money as a prerequisite to their admission into the country, and that security against emigrants becoming public charges was accepted in special cases. Miss Willard therefore cabled to members of the Women's Christian Temperance union living in and adjacent to New York, asking them to provide homes for from twenty-five to thirty Armenians until they found work. She received replies promising places for 120. She was assured aid in the finding of homes for the remainder of the refugees in Marseilles who desired to go to America by the National Armenian committee of New York and the Salvation army. She therefore believed that the Armenians were secure of a safe landing. They specially sought to be sent to America, saying that the missionaries had always told them that it was the Lord's home for the oppressed. Miss Willard concludes by saying that she cannot find words to express the anxiety she feels lest the refugees be not admitted to her own native land.

VENEZUELAN DISPUTE.

A Friendly Settlement of the Trouble Now Speedily Expected.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The report from London that Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador to the United States, now on his way to his post at Washington, is the bearer of instructions which is intended to effect a friendly settlement of the Venezuelan differences between Great Britain and the United States is given much credence in official circles here, but of course those who might be able to speak definitely in the matter will say nothing. One official did say, however, that the present negotiations between Great Britain and the United States were of the most amicable nature. It is understood here that the basis of settlement of the Venezuelan dispute was determined by Mr. Chamberlain after a conversation with Secretary Olney during his recent visit to the United States. It has since been revised by Lord Salisbury.

Court Chamber Resembled a Car Shop.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Just before the supreme court of the United States adjourned yesterday afternoon the chamber took on the appearance of a car shop, with that part of it where air brakes are put in full operation. This was due to the exhibits made by counsel in the case of the Westinghouse Airbrake company and George Westinghouse, jr., vs the Boyden Power Brake company et al. The litigation rose over the manufacture of an airbrake for freight trains by the Boyden company, which the Westinghouse company claimed was an infringment of their patent. The case is still on.

More Armenians Reach New York.

New York, Oct. 23.—There were about 180 Armenian steerage passengers on the Hamburg-American line steamer California which arrived here yesterday afternoon from Hamburg and Havre. They were shipped in Havre and are booked for various destinations. The captain states that all have some small means and some have as much as $50. He does not anticipate any difficulty about landing them, as he says they are not likely to become a public charge. There are only a few women and children among them.

WILL BUY NO GUNS

New York Militia Not To Be Rearmed at Present.

PROPOSED EXPENDITURE DROPPED

The Report in Favor of the Savage Gun Not Approved by Gov. Morton, But Commission Acquitted of the Charge of Discrimination.

Albany, Oct. 23.—The Savage gun is not to be selected as the weapon with which to rearm the national guard. A committee was appointed last year by the governor to test guns of American manufacture and invention and select one to be adopted for the national guard. This commission comprised A. D. Shaw of Watertown, E. W. Bliss of Brooklyn and Robert H. Thurston of Ithaca. They unanimously recommended the selection of the Savage military magazine rifle and so reported to Gov. Morton. David Welch, as attorney for the Winchester Arms company of New Haven, Conn., and other competitors in the test asked the governor not to approve the report. They alleged collusion in favor of the Savage gun and held that Arthur W. Savage, the inventor, was a subject of Great Britain at the time the gun was patented in this country and that he had only become a citizen of the United States about a year ago. The Savage gun is controlled by a state corporation. If the governor had approved the commission's report, the adjutant-general would have had authority to expend $300,000 in buying Savage rifles.

No Unfair Discrimination.

The governor has declined to approve the report of the commission in favor of the Savage gun, and in a lengthy memorandum says: "It is intimated that the examiners were predisposed in favor of the Savage gun, and gave its representatives unusual and unfair opportunities to successfully compete with other guns really possessing superior merit; but the evidence submitted to me does not, I think, warrant the suggestion. So far as appears, the examiners undertook to afford the representatives of all guns submitted to the test an opportunity to show the merits, value and capacities of the weapons, and did not unfairly discriminate against any of them. The Savage gun was invented by an actual inhabitant of the United States, who has since become a citizen. It was manufactured here wholly of American material, and I think it is a gun of 'American invention and manufacture' within the fair meaning of the statute."

The governor then says that while the adjutant-general's department seems to be committed to the policy of arming the militia with the gun used in the regular army, he is informed that the opinion among military men differs as to the wisdom and advantage of such a change. Agitation which was going on in military circles upon the subject, and because action of the examiners could not become effective without the governor's approval, he gives as his reason for signing the bill for the proposed change of guns. Then he says:

Guns Now in Use the Best.

"The whole subject of proper arms for infantry, not only in this country but among other nations, seems to be at present in an unsettled condition. During the interval since the passage of this law I have given the subject attention, and have been favored with the opinions of many persons of high authority in military affairs, and I am advised that even the Remington rifle now in use by our national guard, and particularly the Springfield rifle in use by the national guard of other states, is much better for the use of the guard when called into active service in the state in maintaing peace or suppressing disorders than a magazine gun, such as is, perhaps, contemplated by the statute, and the report of the examiners. It is further suggested that a high grade magazine gun is not desirable for the national guard in time of peace, and that if the militia were called into service by the national government, new arms would probably be at once supplied. The suggestion is also made that even if a magazine arm should be placed in the hands of the militia, they should still retain the arms they now have for use when called out in support of the civil authorities. I am also advised that the United States government has on hand about 240,000 Springfield rifles; that they are available for use by the militia, and that a movement has been initiated to furnish them to the several states as desired." The governor then refers to the bill pending in congress providing for the arming of the national guard of the different states with Springfield rifles, thus securing uniformity in the arms used by the militia, and says he does not think the bill can properly be ignored and an expenditure of $300,000 made by the state, especially at a time of great business depression.

Bogus Canadian Half-Dollars.

Montreal, Oct. 23.—Advices from Vancouver, B. C., report that bogus half-dollars, made in China, as pure as the genuine and almost a perfect imitation, are in circulation there. The banks first discovered the fraud. About $2,000 worth of these coins were shipped from China, and more are coming. The coins bear the date of 1894. They are whiter than the original, and a shade larger and heavier.

A JOINT DEBATE.

A joint debate on the silver and gold question was held last night at Montclair between Freeman O. Willey, the free silver Congressional candidate and Alexander Noyes, the gold standard Congressional candidate in the Eighth district. The audience was a representative one and each debater made points that were favorably received by supporters.

ALL BUT ONE NATIVE JERSEYMEN.

Seven of the eight Republican candidates for Congress in New Jersey are native Jerseymen, and only one, Charles Newell Fowler of the Eighth district, was born outside of the State, his birthplace being Lena, Ill. All are comparatively young men. Two candidates, Parker and Pitney, were born in Morristown, and two, Stewart and McEwan, were born in Paterson. The oldest man in the delegation is Benjamin F. Howell, who was born in 1844, and the youngest is Mahlon Pitney, who was born in 1858.

AN ELABORATE DISPLAY.

G. Q. Packer Makes an Exhibit of Furniture to Good Advantage.

One of the features of the recent growth of Plainfield is the store occupied by Garret Q. Packer, the enterprising furniture dealer, and J. W. Gavett, dealer in china and glassware. A more complete and artistic store in those lines cannot be found, not even in New York. Mr. Packer is now exhibiting a series of rooms in his basement, completely furnished. The dining-room complete, with its handsome oak sideboard, china cabinet, tables, six chairs, a dinner set and banquet lamp, is priced at $60. A full parlor set, in damask with mahogany finish, with table to match, is rated at $50. They have, of course, cheaper sets. A bedroom suite, with mahogany finish, not an ordinary common suite, is on exhibition for $42.50. Good suites are sold from $23 up.

Mr. Packer is now making a specialty of white iron beds with brass trimmings at $4.89 and up.

Mr. Gavett's exhibit of lamps is an excellent one. There is a specially handsome vase with rockwood finish.

THEATRICAL.

For seven years the spectacular extravaganza, "Spider and Fly," has been presented to the public, and this season the management produces it with all its glory in a new version with everything brand new, special scenery, costumes, electric effects, choruses and ballet. A large company of forty-two American and European artists have been engaged and it will be seen in its entirety at Music Hall on Friday evening. An elaborate gold and silver march, given with marvelous electric effects by sixteen shapely girls, will please both Republicans, Democrats and Populists; it has been a pronounced success everywhere. The rustic ballet is one of the prettiest of all ballets. The poster ballet is a decided novelty, while the Nautch ballet is a profound sensation.

"Slaves of Gold," one of the most successful melo-dramas before the public, will be the attraction at Stillman Music Hall, Saturday afternoon and night, October 24th. The play is one of great heart-interest and has been a success in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and all the leading cities of the country. While it is a play of great literary merit it has many startling situations and thrilling climaxes. The great flood scene is a revelation in stage mechanism. The heroine saves her father's life by breaking through a solid glass bow-window, springs to the branch of a tree and jumps thirty feet through space to the stage; the explosion; the battle for life, and many other startling features are promised. Matinee Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Samuel Terry, of East Third street, has entirely recovered from the severe injury to his head.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.

"Mystic Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits; 75 cents. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, druggist, Plainfield, corner Park and North ave.

WELL-KNOWN CITIZEN DEAD.

Ex-Councilman George H. Neal Succumbs to an Extended Illness.

There is scarcely a person who will not learn with deep regret of the death of ex-Councilman George H. Neal, of 76 Fairview avenue, which occurred this morning about 7 o'clock, from heart failure. Mr. Neal had not been well since last February when he was taken ill with the grip, and since that time a complication of diseases set in and his health gradually grew worse.

Mr. Neal was born at Salem, Washington county, N. Y., in 1863. His boyhood days were passed in the vicinity of Troy. He graduated from the State Normal College at Albany. On June 1st, 1893, he was graduated from the New York Law School, and on June 8th, 1893, he was admitted to the Bar of New Jersey. He has been a resident of the borough for several years and during the years 1892, 1893 and 1894 he served the borough as a councilman. Politically he was a staunch Democrat, but he never sacrificed the interests of the borough for his party. His record in the Council speaks for itself, for he served his constituents faithful and well.

Mr. Neal was Custom House broker for the large drug firm of Merck & Co., doing business at the corner of University place and Clinton street, New York. He leaves a wife and two children. The funeral will be held from the house Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

A PASTOR SURPRISED.

Parishioners of Rev. James Groves Give Him a Pleasant Time.

Rev. James E. Groves, pastor of Mt. Zion A. M. E. church on West Fourth street, was agreeably surprised last evening by members of his congregation. After the minister had recovered his equilibrium, and the donors had deposited their various donations, the evening was pleasantly spent in singing, speeches, etc.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Hooper, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Downs, Mrs. S. Randolph, Mrs. A. White, Mrs. R. Vorhees, Mrs. H. Grobes, Mrs. J. Till, Mrs. A. Peters, Mrs. G. Daniels, M. Walley and S. Curtis.

Cut Below the Grade.

Exclusive announcement was made by The Daily Press recently that the grade of the Watchung avenue extension was about fifteen inches lower than it should be. At that time there seemed to be some doubt as to who was responsible for the mistake. Engineer F. A. Dunham gave the proper grade, but the fact has now come to light that the man left in charge by Contractor Bowden paid no attention to the grade stakes and cut down regardless of the set lines. An investigation was made and the above state of affairs was disclosed. Now Contractor Bowden's men are carting dirt back to fill in to secure the proper grade. The mistake which is a costly one will have to be borne by Mr. Bowden as it can neither be charged to Mr. Dunham or the borough.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

Mrs. Emory, of Front street, is visiting out-of-town friends.

Bernard Sirinsky has been in Raritan for a day or two on business.

Miss Mamie Schuyler, of New Germantown, is visiting Mrs. J. C. Apgar, of Front street.

Miss Martha Sirinsky, of Raritan, has been visiting her brother, Bernard, of North avenue.

Postmaster C. Staats was able to leave his room and go down stairs yesterday, for the first time in a week.

Miss Mary I. Smith, formerly of this place and latterly of Newport, R. I., has been visiting friends here.

Sandford Staples has leased his house on North avenue to a Jersey City family, whose household goods arrived yesterday.

The new town hall has been enclosed and the windows and doorways boarded up. The boys will now have to find some other place for their nightly exhibitions.

Dunellen needs an oyster saloon. Yesterday three commercial travelers were looking about for a plac to get some of the appetizing bivalves. But alas, no such place could be found.

The regular monthly meeting of the Dunellen Building and Loan Association was held at Alvah Gray's office, last evening. Monthly dues were paid in and other routine business transacted.

W. B. Vanderbeek, of North Branch, was in town yesterday disposing of a load of his choice vegetables. He also went to Plainfield and called on his brother, Andrew Vanderbeek.

Charles Dunham, of Front street, has a monster St. Bernard dog, which weighs 190 pounds. The animal is nearly as big as a Shetland pony and is a great favorite, especially with the children in the neighborhood.

The oyster supper given in the M. E. church last evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, was a pronounced success. The proceeds were very flattering and they will be devoted to church work.

The late Fred Enander's shoe business has again changed hands. J. T. Todd bought the building, stock and business from the heirs a week or so ago. Yesterday he sold the whole concern to John Wilson, who takes possession immediately.

A middle-aged woman was ejected from a passenger train at the station yesterday morning for nonpayment of fare. The woman had been sent out by a New York intelligence agency the night before to work for a well-to-do family in Bound Brook. She was given explicit instructions concerning her work, and the first morning she never showed herself in the kitchen until after 9 o'clock and breakfast had been cleared away. The woman was summarily bounced, so she took a train back for New York with the above result. At Dunellen she left her "grip" and a half dozen other packages in the depot and started to walk back to Bound Brook, declaring that she would get even with the one who had so unceremoniously discharged her.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

Charles Kendall, a New York contractor, will be in town Saturday, and he and Bob Walpole will go hunting for woodcock, of which there is said to be a good supply.

The members of the Scotch Plains football team are practicing daily on the vacant lot adjoining the school property, and some of the players are becoming quite proficient in the knack of manipulating the wind bag.

Thomas Paff, Sr., Edward D. Wright and George Lyons drove over to Murray Hill station yesterday and met a gentleman friend from New York. The quartette spent the day fishing in the Passaic, and the total catch was four bass and a catfish.

A young son of Philip Jahn went into the barn last night to water and feed the horse, when he came upon a strange looking animal. The young man ran out of the barn, closing the door behind him, and notified his father and some of the neighbors. A searching party was at once instituted and the searchers came upon a full-grown opossum. The animal was dispatched without ceremony.

Mrs. Charles S. Beardsley, the wife of a New York lawyer, and her daughter, who are stopping at the William Reilly residence on the mountain, drove into town yesterday to a wheelwright shop, ostensibly to have a wagon wheel repaired. After the repairs had been made Mrs. Beardsley and her daughter started home about 3 o'clock and were driving on Park avenue when the left hind wheel came off, throwing the occupants out in the roadway. Mrs. Beardsley held pluckily to the reins and was dragged a considerable distance, but she managed to guide the frightened horse into a fence near John Marsh's residence, where the animal was captured. Both mother and daughter were badly shaked up and bruised.

A WESTFIELD WEDDING.

A Pretty Nuptial Event Solemnized in a Westfield Home.

Last night was most beautiful, the full October moon at its best, and everything fitting for the performance of a nuptial ceremony. And in keeping with the outside surroundings was the event that took place at the handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. John M. C. Marsh, Lawrence avenue and Walnut street, Westfield, the marriage of their daughter, Jennie Prentiss Marsh, to John S. Burhans, Jr., also of Westfield. The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Ruth, pastor of the M. E. church, officiating. The bride was charmingly attired in white bengaline silk, pearl and lace trimming. She was attended by Miss Lillie Hacey, of New York, as bridemaid, and Miss Mildred Marsh, sister of the bride, as maid-of-honor, the latter two dressed in white silk. The groom's best man was Bert Pearsall, of Westfield. Fred Hacey, of New York, acted in the capacity of usher. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Ferris, of Westfield. Guests to the number of two hundred were present, and an elaborate supper was served. The bride and groom left about 10 o'clock for Washington on a wedding trip. This article would not be complete without making mention of one particular guest—little Miss Ethel Searing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Searing, of New street, this city. She was dressed in white silk and white kid slippers, and was the pet of the evening, sharing honors with the bride.

Talmadge, some books on the Middle Ages, also finely illustrated, presented by J. Evarts Tracy, and many other volumes of great interest to book-lovers.

CUBANS INDIGNANT

Dauntless and Mabey Had No Contraband Stores on Board.

THEIR SEIZURE PROBABLY A MISTAKE

The Cruiser Raleigh Starts on a Hunt for the "Mysterious" Island---Weyler Sends Troops To Surround Maceo.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 23.—No official report has been received by collector of customs C. R. Bisbee of the firing on and the capture of the alleged Cuban filibustering tugs Dauntless and R. L. Maby off Jupiter inlet Wednesday by the United States cruiser Raleigh. The revenue cutter Boutwell left Jacksonville for the St. Johns bar yesterday to take charge of the Dauntless and escort her to the quarantine station at Fernandina, where she is now been fumigated. She will afterwards be brought to this port and delieved to the United States authorities. The tug R. L. Mabey, which was also captured, arrived at the bar yesterday in charge of a prize crew and will be brought to Jacksonville and delivered to the United States authorities. The cauiser Raleigh left for the south yesterday. It is said she is going to Turtle harbor to discover if possible the island on which it is said the Cubans have stored quantities of arms and ammunition. The firing on and seizure of the Dauntless and Mabey has caused indignation here and is regarded as high-handed on the part of Captain Miller of the Raleigh. Neither the Dauntless nor the Maybe had arms on board. The Dauntless had only her regular crew and the Maybe had on board a cargo of coal. The coal was possibly intended for the Dauntless, but she had a right to take on board fuel. It is not believed that the government can do anything with either vessel. Col. Emilio Nunez, who has managed many filibustering expeditions, and thirty Cubans returned to this city last night from New Smyrna. It was off New Smyrna that the Raleigh fired on and captured the Dauntless and Mabey.

Another Decree Issued by Weyler.

Havana, Oct. 23.—Captain-General Weyler has issued a decree ordering the inhabitants of the country outside the fortifications of the towns in the province of Pinar del Rio to concentrate within the limits of the fortifications within eight days. Transportation of goods to or from the country towns by land or sea without permission is prohibited. At the expiration of the eight days all persons found outside the limits will be considered rebels, and tried as such.

Spain Still Negotiating for a Loan.

Madrid, Oct. 23.—The semi-official Nacional says that the negotiations for a big Spanish loan continue. In the meantime, it adds, the smaller credit operations suffice and assure the resources "necessary to maintain the national honor and defend the integrity of the country." The Nacional says in conclusion: "Spain possesses all the soldiers she needs and will prove she has the money necessary."

To Surround Maceo.

Madrid, Oct. 23.—A dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that five columns of Spanish troops have been dispatched to surround the forces of Maceo in the province of Pinar del Rio. The columns are marching separately, but are acting in concert.

Florida's Separate School Law Illegal.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 23.—The law passed by the last legislature, making it criminal to teach negroes and whites together, popularly known as the "anti-miscegenation law," has been held to be unconstitutional by Judge Rhydon M. Call of the judicial district. The decision was really on the title of the law and States Attorney Hartridge says the defect in the title of the bill may be remedied by the next legislature. The passage of the law caused great indignation on the part of the northern missionary societies which have schools in Florida, and they announced their intention of fighting it in the United States courts.

Dr. Lee's Trial Soon To Be Called.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 23.—The state authorities say that the trial of the much-tried Dr. E. Edward Lee is to begin at once on the conclusion of the Morse arson case. It is said that Lee has been in constant correspondence with Miss Palmer since his imprisonment began and some believe that the doctor's hypnotic influence has resumed its sway over the girl. In support of this it is stated that Miss Palmer called upon the state attorney and told him it was her intention to leave the state in order to avoid testifying against the doctor.

John Y. McKane's Case.

Albany, Oct. 23.—The announcement is made from the executive chamber that there is no foundation for the report that Gov. Morton has intimated to anyone what his action will be or whether he will take any action regarding the application for pardon or commutation of the sentence of John Y. McKane.

Yellow Fever at New York.

Quarantine, S. I., Oct. 23. — The autopsy held yesterday afternoon at Swinburne island by Dr. George Biggs upon the body of the Russian, Thomas Andrew Saweckoe, who died Wednesday, fully confirmed the diagnosis of yellow fever. The body was cremated last night at the Swinburne island crematory.

The Jameson Raid.

London, Oct. 23.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Pretoria denies rumors that the Transvaal republic will make immediate demand for indemnity for the Jameson raid.

CARLISLE AT COVINGTON.

A Disorderly Element at the Meeting Interrupts the Speaker with Hisses.

Covington, Ky., Oct. 23.—John G. Carlisle, secretary of the treasury, spoke last evening at Odd Fellows hall in the interest of the gold standard. There was a disorderly element present in the rear of the hall who hissed loudly as Mr. Carlisle appeared on the stage. The majority of the audience however were in sympathy with the speaker. A counter demonstration was held by the silverites in the street in front of the building, but it in no way interfered with the meeting inside the hall. During the interruption in the earlier part of the meeting the secretary requested those who did not care to hear him speak to leave the hall.

Reflection on Postal Department.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Regarding the Watson letter of acceptance which has "turned up missing" Mr. Washburn, chairman of the populist national convention, said last night he had no reason to doubt either the word of Mr. Watson or of Senator Butler. He understood that Mr. Watson would make the letter public in a few days, if Senator Butler did not find the original copy to give to the press. Its non-receipt was a reflection on the post-office department, he said.

CHAPTER III.

The summer night was still young. The sentries had passed the call of "twelve o'clock and all's well" despite the fact that Trooper Casey, on post at the corral, felt vaguely assured that all wasn't well with him at least. "My orders are to take charge of this post and all government property in view," he had begun when questioned by the officer of the day, and as Ferguson's horse wasn't government property he might have wriggled out of his predicament under that head were not other clauses in his orders which he knew as well as did the officer of the day. One of these read: "Allow no horse to be taken out of the corral between tattoo and reveille except in presence of a commissioned officer, the quartermaster sergeant or the corporal of the guard," and as Ferguson's horse could neither have climbed nor jumped a nine-foot high adobe wall, the conclusion was irresistible that he had been led or ridden out through the gateway, and it was the sentry's business to see and stop him. There were still other orders bearing on the case. The man Muncey must have crossed the sentry's post both when he entered and when he left the corral, and the sentry's orders forbade his allowing any person to pass without the countersign — the password for the night, with which only certain few of the officers and guard were intrusted. The post commander had permitted the refugee prospectors to turn their horses and mules into the big new corral, a privilege of which they had eagerly availed themselves, but the quartermaster sergeant and his men who slept ordinarily in a tent pitched just within the gateway had not slept at all this night, but in common with those members of the garrison who were not actually in ranks awaiting orders were out somewhere along that northward bluff watching eagerly for further sign from the front. The plain truth of the matter was that Casey, too, instead of watching the corral, kept as much as possible at the northward end of his post, where he could see or hear what might be going on in that quarter. And so it happened that the corral was left practically unguarded, and Muncey had been able to enter and quit at his own sweet will.

It wouldn't help Casey to say he didn't see or didn't hear. Schoolboy excuses are not accepted in the army. A sentry must see and must hear even in nights dark as Erebus and blustering as a boiler shop, which this summer night was not. On the contrary, it was soft and still and starlit. There was no moon, but the sky was cloudless, and had Casey used even ordinary vigilance, no one without his knowledge could have trespassed on his guarded land. At twelve-thirty, when the third relief was started around, Private Meisner took Casey's post. The latter was in no sense surprised, though woefully disturbed, to find that the moment the old relief was inspected and dismissed at the guardhouse, the sergeant of the guard had ordered his belt taken off—and that is the soldier way of saying that the ex-sentry was to be relieved for good as untrustworthy—his arms and equipments turned over to his first sergeant and he himself turned over to the charge of his fellow members of the guard, a prisoner awaiting trial by court-martial for neglect of duty as sentry. Everybody felt sorry for Casey, who had lost a good reputation, but sorrier for Ferguson, who had lost what was considered of even greater worth in the old frontier days—a fine horse. Even as Casey was ruefully slipping out of his carbine sling and waist belt Ferguson and others, with lanterns, were tracing the hoof prints of the beautiful roan. Out from the corral gate, around to the south wall, they followed them in the soft, dusty soil; but they were soon lost along the slope. No one believed for a moment Muncey had ridden eastward any distance, however. That was the quarter from which the Apaches had come. Westward, along the south face of the Socorro, was his probable course; for if Cardoza had slipped through from the Springs toward the old post, as now seemed possible, they could meet at the fords of the Sandy, not a mile from where the dim lights were twinkling there at old Retribution earlier in the evening—not half a mile from the base of Signal Butte and barely short rifle shot from old Sergt. Kelly's ranch.

And now the question arose: Where were the Apaches? The miners and prospectors who had fled from the Santa Anita said they fairly swarmed in that valley, fifty miles to the east. The dispatches from department headquarters represented them as having already, at three different points, swooped down upon the Prescott road, both east and west of the Sandy; but, so far as heard from, they had not ventured into the valley south of the Socorro range, a cluster of rough, rocky, pine crested upheavals that bulged out eastward from the main range, jutting like some huge promontory into the Tonto basin. It was through a rift in this clump from the Raton Springs to the site of old Retribution that ran the Tonto train of past generations, and through another, still further to the west, a deep jagged fissure in the bed rock, that the Sandy foamed and chafed and tore—the ill-favored Apache canyon. Fifty miles north of the Socorro, on the banks of the same stream and in the very heart of the Apache country was a military post somewhat larger than Retribution—old Camp Sandy—and there were stationed the headquarters and four strong troops of the new regiment that had replaced the Eleventh cavalry, all commanded by Col. Pelham. Thornton, at Retribution, felt well assured that by this time Pelham would be pushing out his scouting parties after the Tonto raiders, and that between Sandy and Retribution they could make it very lively for the Indians in a day or two, but meantime should they work around into the Sandy valley, south of the old post, just as Capt. Raymond said: "Heaven help the scattered settlers there!"

"If they reach the lower Sandy by night or day," were the major's orders to Lieut. Crane, who commanded the guard at the old site, "don't wait an instant. Fire the beacon on Signal Butte."

And now, one o'clock of the hot June night had come. There had been skirmishing to the north, a chase to the northwest, signal fires ablaze to the east, across the broad basin. Couriers had been pushed out northwestward after Foster with news of Muncey's bolt and information as to the Cardoza party. Ferguson and two friends—daring fellows, well armed and mounted—had just left the post determined to ride westward in the hopes of overhauling Muncey, and—well, hanging was the horse thief's penalty in those days. The troops of the garrison—arms and equipments close at hand—were sprawled about the veranda of the new quarters, eager for the order to saddle, and the major had just dispatched a messenger to say to the captain that the men might as well turn in for the night, when once again there came the clear and ringing summons for the corporal of the guard—this time from the westward bluff. Those who happened to be nearest that side of the garrison had already before the cry heard the sharp, stern challenge: "Who comes there?"

Even before the major's little party could reach the north side the trim figure of Corporal Lynch came bounding back up the slope. "What was the matter, corporal?" hailed the post commander, and Lynch, halting short, brought his carbine to the carry and his gloved left hand to the salute, replying with soldierly brevity:

"It's MacDuff, sir."

"MacDuff? You mean little Leon?"

"Yes, sir, with a note for the doctor. He stopped to water Sergt. Kelly's broncho at the spring."

Another minute and riding briskly up from the dark, low ground to the west of the mesa came the lithe, young courier himself. He reined in the instant he heard the major's voice, and threw himself from the saddle.

"What on earth brought you here at this time, Leon?"

"Mrs. Downey, sir, was very sick. The women folks from Downey's ranch

"WHAT ON EARTH BROUGHT YOU HERE?"

all came up to the post at dark, said they didn't dare stay—the Apaches were surely coming into the valley, and they got word somehow they were everywhere along the north face of the Socorro, and Sergt. Kelly sent the girls in to the post from his ranch, but Mrs. Kelly wouldn't leave him. She stayed there. There's really no place around the old post for women, but they've got them into a tent for the night. They daren't remain at the farmhouse up by the canyon, and the lieutenant couldn't detach any men as guard—he needs them all at the post. Mrs. Downey was in such pain that we were all worried about her, so I borrowed the pony, without saying anything to Sergt. Kelly, and came up to get some medicine."

"Well, great Scott, boy! That's taking tall chances," said the major. "Didn't you see or hear anybody?"

"A fellow passed me, riding like mad, about five or six miles out, sir. I heard him coming and slipped off the road a few yards, not knowing who it might be, and then, just a few minutes ago, I was halted by three cits—said they were looking for a horse thief, but I wasn't the one they were in search of."

Meantime the doctor had taken Downey's note and was trying by the light of the guard lantern to decipher the ill written scrawl. "She has had the same trouble before," said he, "and I can give her the medicine she needs, Leon; but you oughtn't to risk going back to-night."

"Oh, I've simply got to go, doctor," said the boy, eagerly. "Mrs. Downey has always been mighty kind to Randy and me. She always gave us lunch at her ranch when we were down there fishing, and I told her I'd fetch the medicine before daybreak or get nabbed trying. Why, the Indians themselves don't know the country around here better than Randy and I do, though I've never been out this far at night."

The major, too, interposed an objection. "I feel that we are responsible for you, Leon, until Maj. Cullen gets back and claims you. It isn't Apaches only to be avoided. They tell me your Uncle Manuel is here again, and the man you met riding full tilt was your father's old partner—Muncey—going to meet Manuel, I judge, somewhere on the old Tonto trail through the Socorro."

Then, indeed, Leon looked very grave. "I'm more afraid of them than I am of Apaches," he said. "They don't mean to take me back to mother's people. I shouldn't want to go if they did. I'm a Yankee, like father, and I want to stay here and grow up in the cavalry. Randy and I are going to enlist just as soon as we're eighteen. But all the same I promised Mrs. Downey she should have that medicine before day—and I'm going."

And so, seeing how earnest the boy was and recognizing from his description that Mrs. Downey must be in great pain, the major reluctantly assented. "I'd send a couple of men back with you, lad, but 'tisn't likely the Indians are anywhere along the road between two parties of troops. I don't think they'd risk that. At all events we'd probably have known it before if they were. We are all up here yet waiting further news from Capt Foster. Mrs. Foster is out there on her piazza now, so you might see her while you're waiting. Then come over to my house and have some coffee before you start."

It was just 1:30 by the guard house clock when once again the young courier mounted his wiry pony, and started for the ten-mile ride back. He went loping away down the starlit road the vial wrapped in his saddlebag, after a hurried good-by, his black eyes gleaming, his white teeth firmly set.

"Good grit, that boy," said the major, looking after him. "I wouldn't mind having him for my own."

"Good grit, indeed!" said Raymond. "Most boys I know would rather do anything than risk that ride in the dark in the midst of an Indian scare. What time ought he to get there?"

"Well, his pony's fresh and speedy—by three or three-fifteen at latest. Now it's time to hear from Foster."

They were walking slowly back to the porch of his unfinished quarters as they talked—he, his adjutant and his special friend, Capt. Raymond. Quiet had settled down on the post. Wearied with watching almost everybody had gone to get such sleep as was possible, but the guard and a few officers still remained wide awake. Mrs. Foster, unable to control her anxiety, was still restlessly pacing the veranda or rocking in her big chair, and the officer of the day, returning from a tour of the sentry posts, was standing on the walk and saying some reassuring words, when the post commander and his party came along.

"I feel dreadful nervous about that boy, major," said she. "Of course, it was all very brave of him to take such a risk for Mrs. Downey's sake, but when Indians have dared to come within a mile of us what's to prevent their being all along that westward road now? Couldn't you have sent a few men?"

"Could, perhaps," said the major, with an air that betrayed just a little how much he resented it that any of the ladies should question his judgment, "but there are two reasons why I didn't—more than two, in fact. In the first place, the boy had just come safely in over the road, and that shows that it is probably safe for to-night at least. Even Apaches have to sleep sometimes, you know. In the second place, Capt. Foster has driven ahead of him any Indians that might have been out here to the north — if, indeed, those Mexicans weren't shooting at spooks. We have only their word for it, you know, that there were any Tontos at all."

"They ran off two mules," interposed Mrs. Foster, impetuously.

"Wait a moment. The Mexicans say they did, but I've known these greasers to lie like Ananias already, and we've only been here a few weeks. Even if they had had two mules and a boy, what was to prevent the mules stampeding into the hills on their own account, and hiding in some ravine to the west of the road as their owners did to the east?"

"But Capt. Foster wouldn't chase spooks all night," said the lady, rocking rapidly and excitedly now. She was full of conviction that the Apaches were all around them, and there was no comfort in being argued out of the idea.

"Capt. Foster," replied the major, "knows as well as we do from official reports that the Indians have raided the mines and the Prescott road, and he is gone on, like the good soldier he is," added he, diplomatically, "to warn or rescue these other parties, if they really exist, and stir up the Indians if they get in his way. South of that curtain of mountains," he continued, pointing to the black mass of the Socorro, "and behind your husband's skirmish line we are free from danger. West of this post, which guards the descent to the Sandy valley, no Indian is going to be fool enough to venture unless he's doubly Tonto, which, I'm told, means mad. Now my advice to the wife of my good friend, Capt. Foster, is that she go to bed and sleep. That's what I mean to do."

"But, major," persisted Mrs. Foster, "suppose Leon should be cut off by—by anybody. He told me you said his Mexican uncle was again here trying to get him. Suppose he shouldn't reach the old post by three o'clock or later, how would you know?"

"Ah, I thought of all that. I told him to start a fire under what's left of that old stack of condemned hay the moment he got in. The sentries out here on Three and Four have already received orders to watch for a fire at the old post. If they don't see it by half-past three at the latest, we'll start a party in search. But that fire'll be there all right. Good night, Mrs. Foster—now don't worry."

But Mrs. Foster did worry. She worried about Leon—exposed, as she believed, to danger from two sources. She worried about her husband, even though her native common sense told her it was not likely so strong a command as his company would meet with Apaches that night. If Apaches were in the neighborhood they would be apt to keep well out of the way. She worried so that even by two o'clock when she retired to her own room she could not sleep.

But she worried even less than her friend the major, who found himself too uneasy to lie down at all. Bidding good night to the three officers, he had gone to his quarters, and as he took a final look out over the silent and shadowy prairie, thanked goodness Mrs. Thornton and the children were safe in the east. Not that they would have been in any particular danger at Retribution, but because they'd be in the way just now, and when women and children will ask questions that are hard to answer, especially of a post commander. "Confound the Apaches and Muncey and Manuel Cardoza!" said he, "and especially Mrs. Downey! What on earth did she get sick for and have that boy risking his young life to fetch her a camphor julep at three o'clock in the morning?" He wished he had sent a sergeant and ten men back with him, for, if Apaches really were in the Sandy valley, Crane might need reinforcements, anyhow, only he hated to "rout out" men and horses in that heathenish way long after midnight. If anything should go wrong with Leon, how his old friend Cullen would blame him. He looked at his watch—only a little after two—a whole hour to wait before he could hear of the boy's safe return, but surely something should be heard from Foster. It couldn't take his couriers two hours to ride back in the night from Raton Springs.

Lighting his pipe, the major once more went out into the still night air.

"THIS WAY, SERGEANT."

Over at the guardhouse the lights burned dimly and he could see the shadowy forms of the sentry on No. 1 slowly pacing his post. Stepping out upon the parade, he noted that only in one or two of the windows were the night lights still burning. Earlier in the night signal fires could be seen far over the southeast in the Sierra Ancha, but they had dwindled away. Everything about the garrison seemed to speak of calm and security, yet, along the porticos of the opposite barracks and in their bunks within, a hundred stalwart men lay drowsing with their arms close at hand. Many of them had not even kicked off their boots. "Number 1—half-past two o'clock," rang the call of the sentry at the guard house. Then No. 2 took it up over at the southwest, adding in cheery, resonant tone, "a-a-lis we-e-ll." No. 3, far out on the west front—one of the sentries warned to watch for Leon's signal—came next, and he, too, piped his soldier's lay, prompt and clear and confident. Then No. 4 at the northwest—he who had the best view of the distant valley of the Sandy and the bold outlines of Signal Butte—a big, burly German he—and his deep bass voice rolled out like the bellow of a bull; "Holluf bahst doo o'glock, unt a-a-his vell." Over at the guardhouse the men of the first relief were already turning out preparatory to being inspected and marched off to relieve the members of the third, who had gone out at half-past twelve, and as big Stromberg's resonant bellow went echoing away to the Socorro, there was an audible titter and laughing imitations of his German accent, and then, sternly, the sergeant's voice ordered: "Shut up, there! Stop that noise!"

The call had stopped short with No. 4. Not a sound had come from No. 5.

"Who's No. 5 on your relief?" asked the sergeant, sharply.

"Ruckel, the new man," replied the corporal, already picking up his carbine, but listening intently.

"Ruckel's a snoozer," laughed a boy trumpeter, nervously.

"Silence, you! Quick, corporal," said the sergeant. "The man couldn't sleep through that Dutchman's yell."

Promptly the corporal went bounding across the parade, the short cut to the north side, and Maj. Thornton, some strange fear hammering at his heart, fast as he could walk, had hurried around to the back of his quarters, where once more he could see the polar constellations shimmering over the Socorro and the dim vague, shadowy lowland stretching away from the slope at his very feet. Already big Stromberg had begun to repeat his call in Teutonic observance of the order that if the next sentry failed to pass it it should be repeated once. Already Number Six, far around at the corral, had lifted up a shout for the corporal, convinced that something must be wrong with Five. But the corporal was in rapid rush for the scene. He never pulled up as he passed the major, but hastened on down the bluff. Thornton paused at the brink.

"Where are you, Five? What's matter?" he heard the corporal's eag hail in the darkness. No answer.

"Where are you, Ruckel? Wh—" Then a stumble—a stifled exclamation—the sound of something like a carbine falling on the sandy ground, and then along the bluff trot, trot, trot, trot, trot, double time, the rapid coming of the sergeant with the patrol and a lantern.

"This way, sergeant," cried the major, as he led on down the slope.

"Come here with that light, for God's sake," rang the voice of the corporal. And fifty yards further they found him bending over an inanimate and bleeding form—that of Ruckel, the young Bavarian trooper, pierced through with Tonto arrows.

CAUGHT UP ON GRIDIRON

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

The game for election day in Plainfield will be between the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. and the Rutgers "scrubs." As the latter have been holding their own with the "'varsity" team, the Plainfield boys will be given a chance to show how they can play against a strong college team.

Cuming will remain at centre for tomorrow's game. He is too valuable a man to lose even if he is a trifle light. This is his first year in that position, and what he lacks in experience he more than makes up for by his quickness of mind and body and clear grit "Tom" will deserve watching tomorrow.

Manager Townley, of the Westfield team, says that the San Remo's greatly outweighed his team last Saturday, while Manager Wenck, of the San Remo team, is equally positive that the Westfield line was the heaviest. The Plainfield boys are wondering what kind of players they are to run up against any how.

One of the best junior teams in the county is that of Pingry's School of Elizabeth. That team has now arranged a game with the Alis football club of this city for Thursday afternoon, Nov. 5th, in this city. The Alis boys will meet worthy foemen in the young Elizabeth players, and an exciting game may be expected.

Louis Waring will be unable to play against Westfield tomorrow, and he will undoubtedly be missed at quarter. Captain "Ted" Freeman is going to play in that position, however, and those that know "Ted" are assured that the position will be well filled. Freeman has a faculty of keeping cool under the most trying situations of the game, and that will be especially valuable when he comes to direct the movements of his team

It is probable that the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team will not play on Saturday afternoon, the 31st, as several of the team expect to take part in the monster political demonstration in New York. Assistant Manager Smith has received a letter from the South Orange Field Club, in which they call off their game with Plainfield for that date. They speak of the Plainfield team as too heavy and powerful for them to play in their weakened condition.

Among the principal games scheduled for tomorrow are as follows: Harvard against Cornell, at Ithaca; Yale against Carlisle Indian School, at Manhattan Field; Plainfield Y. M. C. A against Westfield Athletic Club, at Plainfield; Princeton against Pennsylvania State College, at Princeton; Brown against Lehigh, at Providence; Montclair Athletic Club against Yonkers Field Club, at Montclair; New York University against Stevens, at Ohio Field; New Jersey Athletic Club against the Pacific Athletic Club, at Bergen Point; Rutgers against Swarthmore, at Philadelphia; West Point against Union, at West Point; Elizabeth Athletic Club against Staten Island Cricket Club, at Elizrbeth.

Plainfield is now on the eve of the most important battle to her that has been fought on the gridiron this year. Westfield and Plainfield football experts will struggle for supremacy and decide the long contested question as to which is the most powerful team. The Elizabeth Athletic Club's team stands at the head of the elevens in Union county, but at this game will be decided who is second in rank. Plainfield has defeated Rahway and the most important of the remaining teams is that of the Westfield Athletic Club. Tomorrow afternoon the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team will meet the Westfield boys in this city on the Y. M. C. A. grounds on Washington avenue, near West Front street, a few steps from the trolley line. If determination can win a game, then Westfield is sure that her team will win, but equally determined are the Plainfield boys. Westfield refuses to announce the makeup of her eleven, but the local players will probably line up as follows: right end, Serrell; right tackle, Dupee; right guard, Brown; centre, Cuming; left guard, Milne; left tackle, Lovell; left end, Peck; quarterback, Freeman; left halfback, Smith: Right halfback, Catheart; fullback, Darling. Hallock may be present and if he is a position will be found for him on the line. McClure and Pope will be on hand to fill any other vacancies in the line, while Simmonds and Dupee will be ready to go behind it when necessary. The game will begin at 4 o'clock sharp. Admission to the grounds will be 25 cents; ladies, however, will be admitted free and a cordial invitation is extended to the latter to be present.

Four colleges played Wednesday as follows: Princeton beating Virginia 18 to 0; Yale beating Wesleyan 16 to 0; Pennsylvania beating Amherst 14 to 0, and Rutgers beating Stevens 10 to 0.

Those who have seen the Westfields play say that their full back is worthy of watching. The ends are said to be a trifle weak, as are also the guards. Otherwise, say the critics, it is a strong team.

Westfield is going to send a great crowd of rooters here tomorrow to encourage their boys to victory if possible. It is to be hoped that the Plainfield people will also turn out and root as in the days of yore.

Missionary Society Entertained.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of Grace M. E. Church were pleasantly entertained last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Valiant. This society gives no entertainments and the member meet occasionall yat each others home and by taking a collection receive what money they use for home missionary purposes. Last evening there was a goodly number present, and the festivities were enjoyed by all. The evening's sociability was interspersed with recitations by Miss Lizzie Hoagland, piano solos by Miss May Conroy and Miss Bessie Valiant. Another pleasing feature was the playing of games. Refreshments consisting of cake and coffee was served in abundance. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. John Valiant, Mrs. James Lunger, Mrs. L. A. Hummer, Mrs. Anna Most and Mrs. J. C. Gary.

An Admirable Exhibit.

There was not a vacant seat in the hall of the Plainfield Camera Club, last evening, when they gave an exhibition of prize lantern slides of the American Amature Photographers. John Naegle looked after the stereopticon, and Rev. C. R. Barnes, D. D., read the descriptions of the different views. The pictures were excellent and of great variety. The cloud effects and moonlight views were particularly pleasing, while the interior views of several English abbeys were very handsome. There were one hundred and twelve views in all and the audience was delighted with the exhibit.

—Services will be held tonight in St. Mary's church at 8 o'clock.

—Street Commissioner Meeker's men did a good job this morning by scraping and carting away the surplus dirt on East Second street.

—The Ladies' Auxiliary of Division No. 4, of the A. O. H., held their meeting last evening and were delighted with the receipts of the ball held October 7th, which amounted to over $100.

—J. R. Blair, hatter and furnisher, 126 Park avenue, will have on sale commencing tomorrow, Saturday, men's underwear of medium heavy weight, suitable for fall and winter wear, in merino, balbriggan cashmere, natural wool and camel's hair. He will sell the same at great bargains. Prove this by an examination of his goods and prices. He also has bargains in gloves and all kinds of mens furnishing goods.

Rev. H. C. Hooker, who was assistant rector of Grace church during the past year, is stopping with friends at Lenox, Mass.

A City of Potato Diggers.

Rafis, Pomerania, is in the center of a great potato-raising country. In the fall the entire population of the city, between 3,000 and 4,000, shut up their houses and leave their keys with the mayor and scatter out to help with the potato harvest. Travelers who have visited the place in the fall declare that they found the town without a single inhabitant, except the mayor and the

A Child's Tribute.

Longfellow, the "poet of childhood," loved and was loved by the children and his later years were brightened by many proofs of their affection. It would be hard to recall any more characteristic and touching than a recent occurrence described by a correspondent.

Mr. A. and his family, of New York, were visiting Westminster Abbey. "Poet' Corner" attracted them, of course, and here they paused longest before the bust of the American singer.

Nellie, the eldest daughter, carried a rose. As they turned away, she laid it reverently near the gentle face.

Her sister Mable, a child of eight, was missing from the party a few minutes later. Looking backward, they saw her stand on tiptoe to place something within the marble folds of the drapery.

"What are you doing, Mable?" the father asked, when she rejoined them.

"Nellie had a rose, and I hadn't anything," the child said, bravely, "so I bit off one of my curls and gave Mr. Longfellow that." — Youth's Companion.

Cottonseed Oil and Olive Oil.

It is said that the following test will distinguish cottonseed oil from pure olive oil: Take pure colorless nitric acid of 1.40 density and mix it with half the quantity of oil in a test tube closed with an india-rubber plug. After shaking it for several seconds, allow the tube to rest in a vertical position for five or six minutes. If olive oil is present the liquid is at first pale or colorless, changing to an ashy gray, with a slight yellowish hue. A coffee-brown color will be seen if cottonseed oil is present. The reaction is delicate enough to detect an adulteration of five per cent. of cottonseed oil.—N. Y. Ledger.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

GOLD WATER TO GOLD.

A MINISTER, RECENTLY PROHIBITIONIST, TALKS REPUBLICANISM.

Rev. J. B. Cleaver Thinks the Issues are so Supreme That it is Duty to Let Temperance Go and Stand For Country.

The moisture without last evening did not dampen the enthusiasm of the large crowd that assembled in Sängerbund Hall to join in the Borough Republican demonstration. The interior of the hall presented an unusually attractive appearance. To James K. Arnold is due the credit of having decorated the hall with bunting and flags, and thus giving the room a bright and cheerful aspect. Mr. Arnold being chairman of the committee on speakers, called the meeting to order. Hon. Charles Place was made chairman, and John M. Lewis, secretary, while the following were the vice-presidents: Charles Matthews, George D. Hallock, W. C. Smith, H. N. Spencer, H. E. Needham. H. A. McGee. In accepting the position of chairman, Mr. Place said in part:

"I am glad to speak to both Republicans and Democrats. That the victory of November 3d. will be augmented by the Democrats is a settled fact. It is indeed a sad sight to see a man striving for the highest position in the land, running all over the country inciting the minds of the poor against the rich. That is what I call dastardly, whether it be the office of president or constable. At the last election the people voted for a change and they got it. Now they are going to change back to prosperity."

Mr. Place then introduced Rev. J. B. Cleaver, of Bound Brook, who spoke at length in substance as follows:

"I started in this campaign a few weeks ago with a twenty year record as a Prohibitionist. But the issues that confront us makes it impossible to close the saloons at present, so I just thought that I would winter my Prohibition vote and consider McKinley and Hobart. Since the change I have been making Democratic speeches and voters. All good citizens ought to repudiate such a spirit that insulted so good a citizen as John G. Carlisle. Altgeld should be repudiated. He is a dangerous man, and anarchy must be repudiated. Pitchfork Tillman, who proposes to take the Supreme Court Justices by the collar and pitch them out should also be repudiated. The convention at Chicago was a peculiar one, for it found the National party taking a bath and run off with its clothes. Since then it has been masquerading about in them. You may call the party what you please but their leader Mr. Bryan is not a Democrat according to his declarations. He appeared with the war cry regarding the so-called crime of 1873 for which he blames the Repulican party. His party says that the bill was passed through Congress by stealth, whereby silver was demonetized, and we had a contract which made times hard. In the first place specie payment was suspended in 1861, and there was not a dollar of silver or gold in circulation until 1873 when his terrible crime was enacted. The fact is that the crime of 1861 when Fort Sumpter was fired upon, was the reason silver was demonetized. In 1873 all the money we had gave each person $18.04 per capita while today it is $26.24. The first silver piece coined was in Philadelphia in 1793. In eighty years there were coined $8,000,000 silver dollars. We had suspended specie payment but there was about $138,000,000 dollars coined up to 1873 when silver was demonetized. Today how many silver certificates and silver have we? There is $358,000,000. This shows that there was a contraction of currency when there was a reduction ascending of about fifty per cent.

"The recent advance in wheat and decline in silver is one of the greatest arguments against the Popocrats. There are just twelve persons who control the silver mines in this country, and yet Bryan tells us that he is opposed to monopolies. Supposing that the hen should lay silver eggs, the cow should give silver milk, and that everything should assume a silver hue, who do you think would reap the benefit? Would the silver monopolists shovel silver dollars into your pockets? In China a real bright young man can earn 3 cents a day and in Mexico 19 cents a day. Both of these countries are on a silver basis. The best money is none too good for us, and a gold standard it shall be. Bryan has very considerately called our army generals wrecks, and they are. Gen. Howard is going through life with one arm; Gen. Sickles has lost one leg, and Corporal Tanner has lost both legs. The latter says, how-

DISPUTE ABOUT WATERING STREETS.

Councilman Serrell Has P. M. French, the Sprinkler Cart Man, Arrested.

The long-disputed question of watering the streets properly made its first appearance in the city court this morning, when P. M. French, owner of the licensed sprinkling carts, appeared before City Judge DeMeza on the charge of improperly sprinkling the streets. The complaint was made by Councilman Harold Serrell, the father of the new sprinkling ordinance, who claimed that one of French's employes had been deluging West Front street with water. The stated time named in the charge was sometime ago, when Mr. Serrell states that he was obliged to ride on the left-hand side of the road as the other side was completely flooded.

Mr. Lard, collector for Mr. French, testified that the people in that vicinity had been complaining that not enough water was used. The driver of the sprinkling cart said that he only visited that section twice a day, never watering the street more than once at a time. Mr. French declared that Mr. Serrell was mistaken about any previous complaints being made. The Judge reserved his decision for one week.

ARRANGING FOR A BIG TIME.

A. O. U. W. to Celebrate Over the Accession of the 103d Member.

There was a large attendance of members at the meeting of Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., held Thursday evening. One candidate was initiated and five propositions were received. A committee consisting of William Newcorn, George Gray, George Clark, David Thompson and W. H. Larrabee was appointed to arrange for an entertainment and collation at the next meeting, November 12th, when five new members will be initiated. This will make a membership of 103. The recorder was instructed to send invitations to the Grand Lodge officers of the State, and to Upchurch Lodge, of Westfield, Bernard Lodge, of Basking Ridge, and the Rahway Lodge, to assist in the celebration of passing the one hundredth mark. This will give Central Lodge two representatives in the Grand Lodge, which meets at Trenton next March. Since last April Central Lodge has received thirty-five members.

A Disgraceful Scene.

A disgraceful scene was enacted last night between 6 and 7 o'clock at the corner of Craig place and Grove street when a young man used insulting language and other improprieties toward a woman who was passing. The seene occasioned considerable excitement in that vicinity for a little time, and had there been an officer in sight the offender would have been arrested and doubtless dealt severly with in court, as he deserved to. The woman who was subject to the insults raised her umbrella in a threatening manner at the rowdy and he took to his heels and made his escape.

A Peculiar Burn.

A sad accident befell Edna, the little child of Mr and Mrs. George Stewart, of Duer street. Mrs. Stewart had just taken a pudding from the oven and put it aside to cool, when the child accidently fell and frightfully burnt her left hand in the pudding. The hand is in one mass of blisters and the little one suffers considerably.

An Event of the Season.

Always enjoyable as have been previous dances of the Twilight Social Club, the masquerade ball to be given by them in the Plainfield Cycle Academy on Thanksgiving Eve, Nov. 25th, promises to excel, if that were possible, all others heretofore given. The committee will spare no pains to make it the season's most successful event.

"To Live is Not All of Life."

That is what Shakespeare said. "What is all of life?" will be the subject at the Christian Endeavor service in the Congregational church tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. Special music, including a mezzo-soprano solo, has been prepared. Visitors are cordially welcome.

Sentence Suspended.

Sigmond Frucht appeared before City Judge DeMeza this morning for sentence on the charge of using disorderly language, preferred by the Misses Lane who are neighbors of his on West Front street. The Judge suspended sentence.

A Commodore in the Parade.

Plainfield has been honored by having one of her well-known citizens appointed as one of the commodores in the big "sound money" naval parade this evening. The man in question is Alonzo Aldrich, of Sherman avenue.

E. C. Dunn, of Millstone, who has been at the Muhlenberg Hospital under treatment, has returned home, having been perfectly cured.

ACROSS SEA TO ROME.

A NEW AND INTERESTING FEATURE OF CHURCH SOCIAL LIFE.

It Was Entitled "A Study in the Epistle to the Romans," and Was Participated in by Members of the Epworth League.

While the rain poured down uninterruptedly outside, the visitors at the Epworth League social in Vincent chapel last night were transported far across the seas to the sunny land of Italy and there they visited the home of Cæsar, the grand city of Rome. It was a new departure in the line of entertainment and those who ventured out in the storm found it a very enjoyable and instructive one.

It was the opening sociable of the season of the Epworth League and the new form of programme was entitled "A Study in the Epistle to the Romans." Miss Ida Angleman presided.

The imaginery journey was started by Thomas N. Stafford who told of the journey from New York to Rome. Miss Alice Jenkins went back in history to the beginning of the Roman Empire and told of Rome in the Age of Augustus. Frank Jones spoke on the Jews at Rome and elsewhere. A very interesting account of the persecutions of the early Christians at Rome was given by Miss Susie Davies. The subject of Miss Grace Barnes' remarks was the "Authorship and Purpose of the Epistle, Date and Place of Composition." A sketch of the Catacombs was read by Miss Anna Smalley. Frank Bristol then entertained the audience with several humorous vocal selections, one of which he was the composer.

The "Question Drawer" followed. It consisted of a number of one minute talks on interesting topics relative to Rome. The speakers and subjects were as follows: Miss Bertha Jenkins, "Founding of Rome;" Forrester Hartpence, "Its Population Today;" Miss Eva Jenkins, "Italian Missions;" Frank MacDonald, "The Vatician;" Miss Bessie Day, "The Appian Way;" Miss Cory, "The Temple of Janus;" Miss Davies, "The Pantheon;" Miss Tantum, "Castox and Pollux;" Miss Gertrude Sharpe, "The Seven Hills;" James A. Stafford, "Julius Cæsar;" Miss Lucie Palmer Davis, "The Colosseum;" Miss Elsie Horne, "St. Peter's;" William Symons, "The Campus Martius;" Miss Stackhouse, "The Roman General Who Destroyed Jerusalem." The meeting closed with the hymn, "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

A number of photographs of Rome and vicinity were on exhibition, and the remainder of the evening was spent in examing them and in social converse.

The Home Merchant Preferred.

A certain dressmaker in Plainfield desiring to make quite an extensive purchase in dress linings, trimmings and dry goods, learning that J. Linn Edsall claimed to sell cheaper than other houses, made a special trip to New York stores to get posted. She returned without buying there and told Mr. Edsall frankly that his prices were lower and his goods just as fine and desirable as those in New York. As a consequence, she bought of the home merchant and encouraged home enterprise. Mr. Edsall courts the closest inspection of his stock and prices.

Brief City Court Stories.

Edward Kelly, an umbrella maker from the West End, was arrested by Patrolman Hartpense yesterday afternoon for using abusive language to Mrs. Tobin Cothers. The Judge fined him $3 this morning.

The case against Betty and Edmund Brown, in the City Court this morning was adjourned for one week.

John Ritter and John Richards did not tell the story of their alleged tin can throwing, in the City Court this morning as the complainant, Mrs. Ritter failed to appear. The Judge dismissed the complaint.

Seventy Years Old, and Drunk.

Mrs. Buckley, aged seventy years, was found on J. P. Humble's porch, on Somerset street, last evening, by Marshal Hansen. The woman was in a drunk and disorderly condition, and made considerable trouble. She is a stranger about this locality, and no one had seen her before. Marshal Hansen placed her in the lockup and a little later she was arraigned before Justice Crosley who gave the choice of $10 or ten days. She took the latter and Constable Steward accompanied her to Somerville.

If your children are subject to croup watch for the first symptom of the disease — hoarseness. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse it will prevent the attack. Even after the croupy cough has appeared the attack can always be prevented by giving this remedy. It is also invaluable for colds and whooping cough. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

CONTAMINATED WATER.

SOMERSET STREET PEOPLE TRYING TO SOLVE THE SOURCE.

Said to Have Originally Come From the Electric Light Station, But Now That the Latter is Abolished All is Mystery.

People residing on Somerset street in the vicinity of Lincoln place are at present much agitated regarding the drinking water, and the prospects are that before long steps will be taken to hold some one responsible for the contamination of the water.

William L. Smalley who owns property in that neigborhood is one of the principal objectors and now that he has opened the subject others have not been backward in coming forward. The water around that locality has been bad ever since the electric light plant was erected just back of the Smalley property, and those who have been obliged to use the water, have found it to be greasy and unhealthy. This condition, they claim, is due to the workings of exhaust steam pipe which was used, and water has been found in this condition as far off as Craig place. When the electric light station was in running order, the water pumped from in front of Boyce's hotel was found to be warm and oily.

Mr. Smalley expended considerable money in placing a driven well on his property and he thought he placed the pipe deep enough to escape all contamination, but this was not the case. A few days ago he secured a bottle of the water and it was almost black. Mr. Smalley says that the trouble has got to be removed or he will bring suit for damages. The matter has been brought to the attention of the Borough Board of Health and they may take action on it. In the meantime the residents cannot use the water and the result is anxiously awaited.

DOESN'T FEEL SAFE WITH HER.

Martin McDermott Thinks His Wife is Trying to Have Him Sent to Jail.

The McDermott family on Terrill road have a lively time, judging from their testimony in the city court this morning. Martin McDermott was charged by his wife with cursing and swearing and calling indecent names. She said he split the door with an axe, broke all the dishes in the house and threatened to beat her with a club. He claimed it was all a plot to send him down to Elizabeth that she might enjoy the products of the farm and the income therefrom. Neither side produced any witnessed that had seen the trouble, and the Judge dismissed the complaint. Mrs. McDermott departed mumbling to herself, while the husband anxiously exclaimed "She'll be down again in the morning. I'm not safe with her!" He looked apprehensively around and departed likewise.

At Low Rates.

Not every city is favored like this in having merchants that not only say but do smart things. For examples: There is a wall paper jobber in Plainfield, who, on account of the hard times, has decided to let the citizens of his own town have wall paper—and the best to be had at that—at the wholesale price. This is one of the brightest things Plainfield has seen for a good while and by its timely arrival has been the means of brightening many a room that would otherwise have remained dark and gloomy during the long winter. It will be a great advertisement for Mr. Love.

Recognition Service.

At the Congregational church, tomorrow, the morning service will be devoted to the welfare of the Sunday School and will be of interest to every member of the church as well as one at which every member of the school should be present. The following programme will be carried out:

Organ voluntary and doxology; Invocation; Hymn; Responsive Reading—Gloria; Roll call of officers; Address to officers with Scriptural counsel from the church; Prayer. Hymn with roll call of teachers; Scripture counsel and address; Covenant of teachers; Blessing by the Church; Hymn by Officers and Teachers; Offering. Sermon, Hymn and Benediction.

Queer Wrinkles.

Human nature is afflicted with some very queer wrinkles, many of which are due to other causes than care and trouble. For instance, one often sees a naturally attractive forehead disfigured by wrinkles that are a consequence of misfit eyeglasses. One may avoid this defect by being careful to have these aids to good sight adjusted by a reliable optician. At Colliers 103 Park avenue you will always find one in attendance.

Jewelers to be Represented.

The Plainfield jewelers will probably be represented in the monster "sound money" business men's parade at New York on the 31st. A company of sixteen men has been invited to take part by the Jewelers' McKinley and Hobart Club of New York, and J. Hervey Doane has been appointed captain.

KNEW SHE WAS DOING WRONG.

A Woman Caught Stealing Coal Frankly Admits Her Guilt.

"I knew it wasn't right, but I did it all the same," was what Mrs. Michael Gleason told the city court this morn- when she admitted being caught on a coal train appropriating coal. One of the greatest troubles of the Jersey Central Railroad is the great number of uninvited visitors on their coal cars who help themselves to coal.

Last Saturday morning George O. Stevens found Mrs. Michael Gleason and little May Marley filling a bag with coal on several coal cars, the contents of which belonged to E. H. Holmes, the coal dealer. He made them return the coal and then informed Mr. Holmes. The latter reported the case to the police and the offenders were arrested.

The little girl said she had gotten up Saturday morning to find that there was no coal in the house and so she persuaded Mrs. Gleason to accompany her to the cars to get some coal.

The Judge severely reprimanded them and suspended sentence as it was their first offence.

A LIVE AND GROWING TOWN.

Cranford Well Deserves This Title for Its Progressiveness.

There has been a rather indefinite idea in the minds of the citizens of Plainfield that Cranford was one of the villages along the line of the Central R. R. of N. J. but in the past two years it has dawned upon the minds of our citizens that the town of Cranford has come to stay, and is growing at a very rapid rate.

Occasions that have caused the name of Cranford to come to the front so rapidly have been very numerous, and our citizens must know that this town numbers among its inhabitants many progressive men, for we cannot go back of the fact that Cranford is making itself heard and felt to a remarkable degree. The annual carnival which is held on the river, which winds through the town of Cranford like the letter S., has become one of the most prominent factors that has done a great deal to advertise the beauties of this progressive town, and the enthusiastic citizens of Cranford claim (and that right well) that these carnivals transform the little stream into fairyland, and we who have seen it are willing to admit that the claim is most thoroughly substantiated.

Cranford claims (and that justly) to have one of the best business blocks on the line of the road. A business block which is practically a casino as it covers and includes not only the principal stores of the town, but the post office, a lodge room, where various lodges of the town meet, a private school, the town committee room, the Opera House, in which local and general entertainments are given, and the rooms of the athletic club. The building gives all the conveniences of heat, light and water (which one only expects in cities of much larger population) and in fact the building is really built ahead of the town.

Last, but by no means least, is the developement of a plot in the heart of the town known as Roosevelt Manor, situated within three blocks of the railroad station, including in its environments the country club, which embraces among its members a number of bright young gentlemen as well as progressive business men of the town, who introduce from time to time novel and entertaining amusements, which is attracting daily new people to this beautifully situated town, causing a large addition to the membership of this bright and entertaining club.

Roosevelt Manor has nicely graded streets, all sewered, with sewers running to salt water. It is situated on high rolling ground thoroughly drained by the Rahway River, which flows on its southern edge, and its many conveniences includes both gas and electric light.

Already some twenty-eight handsome residences have been built upon it, including the handsomest house in the two of Cranford. Roosevelt Manor is only seven miles from Plainfield, and if there are any of our citizens who anticipate building or desire to create homes, we would advise their looking into the merits of this plot before locating elsewhere. A prominent citizen of Brooklyn has decided, after spending the summer with a relative (who had already built upon the Manor) to spend some $12,000 in putting up a home of his own. We most heartily congratulate our young neighbor upon its growth, and feel assured that if they adhere to the restrictions which are now placed upon the sale of the property that they will attract a class of citizens that will represent the best elements of this and other communities.

VERMIN IN THE ROOKERY

A PRISONER'S HORRIBLE NIGHT IN A CITY LOCKUP CELL.

Says That Thousand Leg Worms Crawled All Over Him, and He Stabbed One With a Pin to Prove His Statement.

He had fought through the Civil War but his experiences then were not to be compared with a night with the vermin of the Plainfield lockup. Isaac E. Houston is a well-to-do machinist living out West Front street near Grant avenue. There has been trouble between he and his wife for some time and, at last, his wife appealed to the police to stop the quarrelling.

Houston was arrested and locked up for disorderly conduct and spent the night in one of the cells of the rookery. He was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza this morning and said that both were to blame for the trouble. His wife appeared in court but had nothing to say. Houston's record was good and the Judge decided to suspend sentence.

When the Judge had announced his decision, the prisoner took from the pocket of his blue Grand Army suit, which he wore, a cone of paper, and opening one end emptied the contents on the Judge's desk. It was a crawling thing, over an inch in length with innumerable legs, commonly known as a "thousand legged worn." There was a pin stuck through it with which, Houston explained, he had captured it. It was one, he continued, of many that crawled all over him as he sat in the cell. He told of the disgusting vermin that filled every crook and cranny of the cell and related the pleasures of remaining in the dark, damp little room with horrible crawling things wandering about his face and hands and all the rest of his body. He declared that it was a disgrace to put a respectable man in such a place even for a short time. He then carefully put away his midnight visitor and left the court.

The police and the city judge are not to blame for the condition of the cells as they are cleaned every few days. They are located in the basement and are mostly below the level of the ground which may account for the numerous multi legged visitors. The police declare that the place is a disgrace to the fair city of Plainfield and they have plenty of opportunities to judge.

Act two of this domestic tragedy followed very quickly. The couple returned to their home and then, Mrs. Housten claims, he used very improper language to her and ordered her out of the house. At any rate, she came down to City Judge DeMeza's office and made a new complaint against her husband. Another warrant was issued and will be served as this paper goes to print.

CHIEF U.S. INSPECTOR

Another Well Known Citizen Who Owes Health to Paine's Celery Compound.

Above is the picture of another of the thousands of well-known citizens whom Paine's celery compound has made well.

Chief Postoffice Inspector M. D. Wheeler, of Washington, D. C., writing to the proprietors of this most wonderful of curatives, says:

"I have used Paine's celery compound with marked improvement in health. At the time I commenced using it, I was very much run down from overwork and was advised by a friend to try it. I began almost immediately to improve, and after taking three bottles felt well enough to discontinue its use, and have been permanently benefited. I heartily recommend it to the public."

Mr. Wheeler has found out what every one should learn—that putting heart and soul in one's business no longer means sticking to the desk, counter or workroom till the head grows dizzy, the back aches and neuralgic twinges shoot through the frame.

They are the short-sighted men and women who put up with this state of things when the risk is so great and the remedy so easily within their reach. As weakness, nervousness, langour and sleeplessness are clearly the result of low nervous nutrition, so permanent relief will come from rapidly building up the wasted nerve tissues. Paine's celery compound is the means best calculated for this end.

Paine's celery compound purifies and reinforces the blood in a way that no other remedy has ever attained. There comes an immediate clearing of the jaundiced, muddy complexion; neuralgic and "sick" headaches cease to afflict, and the formerly wretched sleeper enjoys the blessings of sound restoring sleep. Given the hearty appetite, the sound sleep and the pure blood, all the other needful things that go to making what we call perfect health are sure to follow.

Low spirits, constant brooding over fancied wrongs and and imaginary slights, melancholia, and fretfulness are not treated as seriously as they deserve. They are evident faults of the tired nervous system and are to be corrected by putting an end to the neglectful condition of these vital parts.

Don't wait for nervous prostration.

When headaches continue and that tired feeling keeps up, or pain is felt over the kidneys, arouse the body from its unhealthy condition, get rid of not only these symptoms, but of the underlying causes, by prompt recourse to Paine's celery compound. This great nerve and brain restorer will not leave a vestige of kidney disease, nervousness, unhealthy state of the liver or heart trouble.

Its way of curing these alarming complaints is direct and unfailing.

It replaces unhealthy tissues by new and healthy parts and cleanses and purifies the blood until the tired body regains the elasticity and high spirits that are the sure accompaniment of perfect health.

THE CARLISLE INSULT

Regret and Indignation over the Egg-Throwing Incident.

PERPETRATOR A DRUNKEN ROWDY

Silver Men Equally as Indignant and Anxious To Apprehend the Guilty Party---A Lighted Cigar Also Thrown in the Secretary's Face.

Covington, Ky., Oct. 24.—Political circles are still discussing the insult offered to Secretary Carlisle during his speech here Thursday night and nothing but condemnation and regret over the disgraceful incident is heard on all sides. The perpetrator is believed to have been some drunken rowdy and the silver people here are equally as indignant as are people of other parties and are as anxious, for the capture of the guilty one. Instead of two eggs, there were really three hurled at the speaker. As the secretary stepped to the front of the stage two stale eggs were hurled from the rear of the hall. One struck the chandelier in the centre of the hall, the substance trickling down upon the audience. The other struck near Mayor Rhinock, who, with his wife and other ladies, occupied seats in the front row. A couple of minutes later another egg was thrown which struck the lower edge of the stage. Probably not more than a dozen people in the hall knew that the eggs had been thrown. Chief of Police Pugh, who was present, made an unsuccessful effort to discover the persons who threw the eggs. The only attempt at violence toward Mr. Carlisle was made by a man named Fagin, a plasterer, who, unable to get into the hall, had remained outside. As Mr. Carlisle came out of the hall Fagin excitedly threw a lighted cigar at him, striking him in the face. Fagin then stooped as if to pick up something in the street and throw it, but an officer seized the man and marched him to police headquarters. Mr. Carlisle left yesterday afternoon for Bowling Green, where he spoke last night.

Chairman Butler on the Insult.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Chairman Butler, of the national populist committee, discussing the Carlisle incident at Covington, said: "I regret any such conduct towards any man however much I may oppose his position or however much I may object to his views. It matters not in what bad faith he may have acted he was entitled to decent treatment by those who went to hear him. Those who do not believe with him or have no use for the doctrine he advances should have remained away. Good citizens cannot endorse such proceedings, but while we do not approve of the course of those who engaged in this affair last night, we do not at the same time approve of the course the secretary has pursued."

ITALIAN ROYAL WEDDING.

King Humbert Donates $20,000 to the Poor in Honor of the Event.

Rome, Oct. 24.—King Humbert has donated the sum of 100,000 lire ($20,000) to be distributed to the poor of Rome in honor of the marriage of his son. His majesty has also ordered that similar disbursements be made in other places. The money will be distributed to-day, the day of the wedding. Cartloads of flowers, many costly presents and a large number of addresses have arrived at the Quirinal, the royal palace. The Prince of Naples and the members of his suit are overwhelmed with the work of answering the thousands of messages of congratulation that are being received. Every train arriving in the city is loaded with people desirous of attending the pageant to-day. One of the chief sights will be a procession of gala carriages, including the one used at the wedding of King Humbert and Princess Margherita of Savoy. Princess Helene has telegraphed to her mother saying that she is unable to describe the grand welcome given to her by the Italian people and the affection they show.

Repairing Our Warships.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The cruiser Newark, which arrived at Hampton Roads last evening after duty in Florida waters, will go at once to the Norfolk navy yard for extensive repairs aggregating $100,000. The Newark has been cruising steadily for three years. The Maine and the Texas went to the New York navy yard last night, where they will stay for ten days for repairs to their machinery.

HELD UP BY BANDITS

An Express Train Robbed by Four Men Near Kansas City.

NONE OF THE PASSENGERS MOLESTED

Two Packages of Jewelry and Three Hundred Dollars in Money Secured---Blue Cut, the Scene, Made Famous by the James Brothers.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 24.—Blue cut, between Independence and Glendale, Mo., was the scene of another train robbery at 5:30 o'clock last evening. Chicago & Alton train No. 48 was held up by four bandits, who compelled the engineer to use his coal hammer to break open the small safe. One of the robbers went through the passenger cars pretending to take a poll while the others attended to the express messenger, firemen and engineer. The robbers secured two packages of jewelry and $300 in cash. This is the second time that a Chicago & Alton train has been robbed in Blue cut, which was made famous by a robbery by the James boys. Inspector Flahive of Kansas City left with a posse of eight men for the place where the robbery occurred. It is about twelve miles from Kansas City. The train robbed was a fast express enroute from Chicago to Kansas City. None of the passengers were molested and many of them did not know that a robbery had occurred. The train was stopped by displaying a red flag. Not a shot was fired. The bandits had Winchesters, and are supposed to have had horses hitch close at hand.

TROUBLE OVER CIVIL SERVICE.

Street Cleaning Operations in New York City Totally Suspended.

New York, Oct. 24.—Col. Waring, commissioner of street cleaning, issued orders at 5 p. m. last evening totally suspending the operations of the street cleaning depertment. The reason given by Col. Waring for this step was a decision by Comptroller Fitch to the effect that he would in the future pay no vouchers of contractors under the street cleaning department, unless the men in the employ of such contractors have been registered under the rule of the civil service commission, and employed in accordance with the regulations adopted by that commission. Commissioner Waring said that the controller held besides, that every contractor must pass a civil service examination.

Health

Depends upon keeping the blood in a pure condition, free from disease germs, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla cleanses, vitalizes and enriches the blood, throwing out the impurities that clog and irritate the system and permits no lodgment of the seeds of disease. Read the following:

"I cannot recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla too highly for it has done wonders for me. I was

and all run down and my health was so poor I could not get out of doors. I was not able to do anything, being troubled with asthma and heart disease. I was nervous and could not sleep nights. I had become completely discouraged when I happened to read an advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to give it a trial. After taking the first bottle I felt better and since taking five bottles I am so much improved that I feel like a new man. I am now able to do a fair day's work and sleep at night. My heart does not trouble me and I have realized great relief for asthma. I feel full of courage once more and life seems brighter and worth living. I would recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all afflicted as I have been, for I know it will help them. If this statement of facts will be of benefit, you are welcome to use it as you please." HENRY J. WRIGHT, Box 502, Oxford, New York.

MRS. HENRY WARD BEECHER

Praises in High Terms the Grandest of Medicines, Dr. Greene's Nervura.

Those Who Are Weak, Tired, Nervous, Out of Health and Suffering, Will Take Renewed Hope and Be Cured by Using This Wonderful Medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.

Men of highest prominence in this country like Lieut.-Governor Thomas, of Vermont, (Montpelier, Vermont,) Congressman Andrew Williams, of Plattsburg, N. Y., Senator George W. Randall, of Waterbury, Vt., Ex-Speaker, of House of Representatives, Charles J. Noyes, of Boston, Mass., Hon., Henry Robinson Mayor of Concord, N. H., Judge Edwin C. White, of Hyde Park, Vt., Secretary of the Senate. Hon. Fredrick W. Baldwin, of Barton, Vt., and many other eminent public men throughout the United States are using, endorsing and publicly recommending the people to use this most wonderful medical discovery of the age, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

Representative women of our land also are enthusiastic in praise of its marvelous power to cure, among them being Vice Pres. of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society, Mrs. S. Louise Barton, of Boston, Mass., who was cured by this grand medicine.

Now comes a letter from one of the most widely known women in America, Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, who is loved and honored by everybody, and who thus speaks to the public out of her deep regard for humanity and her earnest desire to see the weak, tired, feeble, nervous and suffering restored again to health and strength.

She has personally witnessed the really wonderful effects of Dr. Greene's Nervura in curing several of her friends, and for the good of others, for those who are out of health, she writes to the people what she knows and has herself witnessed of the remarkable beneficial and health giving effects of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

Mrs. Beecher says:—I have given some of Dr. Green's Nervura to several friends who I thought would be benefited by it. They speak highly of it, and feel they have been much benefited by its use."

"These people are very responsible witnesses as to the beneficial character of the medicine, and I am ready to vouch for the honesty of their approval of Dr. Greene's Nervura.

"If needed in my own case, I certainly should use it."

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the best medicine and surest restorer of health the world has ever knowe.

All who are nervous, weak, tired, exhausted in nerve power and physical strenghth; who are sleepless, wake tired and unfreshed, without strength and energy for the day's work; who have poor blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, backache, dyspepsia, indigestion, gas, bloating, faint feelings, loss of appetite, constipation, kidney and liver complaint, should immediately use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will make you well. It gives a splendid complexion, making the cheeks glow and the eyes sparkle with health. No remedy was ever so successful in causing people to gain flesh. By strengthening the digestive functions, promoting assimiliation and enriching the blood, it causes the person to gradually increase in weight until the thin and slender parts assume a rounded and beautiful contour.

Dr. Greene's Nervura is the prescription of the most successful physician in curing nervous and chronic diseases, hence it must if necessity be perfectly adapted to cure just these complaints. Its discover, Dr. Greene of 35 West 14th St., New York City, can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

Delegations from West Virginia, Indiana and Illinois Claim His Attention To-day.

Canton, O., Oct. 24.—Delegations from Illinois, Indiana, West Virginia and points in Ohio are due here to-day, some of whom arrived here this morning, but the great bulk of them will not be here to besiege Major McKinley's home until late in the afternoon. Major McKinley began the laborious task of speechmaking and handshaking at an early hour this morning and does not expect to finish it until long after the sun has set. The delegations yesterday were as versatile in character as ever, and almost all lines of legitimate human activity were represented. The delegation of railroad employes from Kansas aroused much interest in Canton, satiated, as it is, with the excitement caused by marching colums of men, mounted and afoot, flying banners and the strains of martial music; and the citizens, by warm expressions of appreciation, coupled with manifestations of hospitality, endeavored to their utmost to impress upon the minds of the visitors from the Sunflower state a vivid recollection of the cordiality of their welcome.

MR. HOBART IS CONFIDENT.

He Says There Is No Doubt Whatever of the Election of Major McKinley.

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 24.—A morning paper of this city to-day publishes the following: "My opinion now is that we will carry all the eastern states and all the western middle states, also Kentucky, North Carolina, West Virginia and old Virginia. All these I consider sure, and do not include any states that might in any sense be regarded as merely possible or doubtful. In my opinion, based on the most reliable information, there is no doubt whatever of the election of Major McKinley, and the only question now involved is the size of the majority he will have in the electoral college.

"GARRET A. HOBART."

BRYAN IN ILLINOIS.

Democratic Nominee's Big Reception at Peoria—An Open Air Trolley Ride.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 24.—William J. Bryan, who began his tour of this state yesterday, making his initial address at Danville and delivering several speeches enroute, arrived here last night, and about 10,000 people tendered to him a brilliant reception in the Tabernacle, to which spacious building he was taken, not in the usual carriage, but in an open trolley car, profusely decorated and brilliantly illuminated. The democratic nominee appeared to enjoy the novelty. During the course of his speech he referred to the indignities shown to Secretary Carlisle at Covington, Ky., and strongly deprecated them

COLOR LINE DRAWN.

Black Patti Troubadours Unable To Get Hotel Accommodations at Hartford.

Hartford, Oct. 24.—The manager of the Black Patti's Troubadours, fifty refined musical persons, colored, has been unable to get accommodations for them in this city, every hotel having refused to take them on account of their color. The show is billed here for Oct. 31 and Nov. 2, and the manager has advertised for board and rooms. He threatens to cancel his dates, and says that he has been able to get hotel accommodations in every other city in the state where the show has been given.

The Herbert Fuller Murders.

Boston, Oct. 24.—Charles Brown, one of the crew of the barkentine Herbert Fuller, on board of which the captain and his wife and the second mate were murdered last July, who with Mate Bram of the barkentine was held by the United States commissioner on the charge of murder, has been discharged under a "no bill" report returned by the grand jury. Brown has not been released, however, as, upon the recommendation of the district-attorney, he is held as a witness.

CONDITION OF TRADE.

General Business Still Continues Along Conservative Lines.

TRADERS HOPEFUL AS TO OUTLOOK

Buyers and Sellers Will Defer Business Until After Election—Prices Remain Firm and High—Reaction in Wheat.

New York, Oct. 24.—Bradstreet's weekly review of the state of trade will to-day say: General trade continues along conservative lines, buyers and sellers preferring to defer business until after election. Traders are more hopeful as to the outlook for business later in the year and next spring. The reaction in wheat prices, after an advance of 22c., is the natural result of a desire to realize profits, an advance in rates for money and enormously heavy receipts of wheat at primary markets caused by higher prices. Comparatively small stocks of wheat in importing countries, a decrease in the world's total production of wheat for two years in succession, unexpected shortages in Russia, India, Argentina and Australia, and only an average crop in the United States, are interpreted to mean that the price of wheat will advance further.

Prices Remain High and Firm.

The firm and practically unchanged prices for pork, lard, sugar, coffee, cotton, refined petroleum and copper indicate the strength of the general market, while advances are reported for wheat flour and oats, for butter, cheese and eggs, and for canned vegetables and dried fruits, among food products; for wool, leather, print cloths and for pig tin and crude petroleum. Interest in iron and steel products lags, but prices are firm, buyers evidently preferring to pay more after November 3 than to order now. It is noteworthy that while higher prices after election are not predicted in all lines, lower prices are not anticipated for any staple.

Financial Market.

A premium is still paid for gold, and small but steady withdrawls reduce the government specie reserve, while the advance in the Bank of England rate, the rise of discount in London, the hardening of exchange cut off further gold import for the time being. Demand sterling is 4.84½@4.84¾. Total gold receipts since August are $57,000,000, and about $10,000,000 is in transit hither. Western railroads are choked with grain, and the lines west of Chicago are forming an association to regulate competition, based on the Joint Traffic association agreement of the trunk lines. Silver, after a slight rally, is weak, and declining at 30 1-16d. per ounce in London and 65½c. in New York.

Bank Clearings and Business Failures.

Mercantile collections continue as diffult to make as heretofore, except in a few of the larger cotton-growing states and in the spring wheat region, where rapid marketing of cotton and of wheat has rendered funds more plentiful. Total bank clearings in the United States increased, amounting to $1,047,000,000 this week, about 5 per cent more than last week, but 10 per cent. less than in the thire week of October, 1895, and 10 per cent. less than in the corresponding week of 1892. The increase this week as compared with the week in 1894 is 15 per cent., and as contrasted with 1893 it is 13 per cent. There are 292 business failures reported throughout the United States, which is 13 more than last week, 33 more than in the corresponding week last year and 71 more than in the like week of 1894, but fewer than in the third week of October, 1893.

Presented to the President.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Just before the cabinet met yesterday Secretary Olney presented to the president Moustapha Tahsin Bey, the newly appointed minister from Turkey, the ceremonies taking place in the Blue room. The minister's speech on presentation contained only the customary good wishes from "his imperial majesty the sultan, my august master, whose constant and ardent desire was for the maintenance and strengthening of the good relations of friendship so long established between the two governments."

A DISGRACE TO THE CITY.

The story printed in the news columns of The Daily Press today concerning the experience of a prisoner who was locked up in the station house last night is a frightful one, and there is but little doubt that every word is true, in which the horrors of a night spent there are told. Time and time again this paper has called the attention of city officials to the disgraceful condition of this place, but there seems to be no effort to make any change. It is time that a decent place is provided for the confinement of city prisoners.

We have the best banking system the world has ever known, and we are going to maintain it."

Mr. Cleaver closed his remarks by introducing candidates Reed and VanDoren, with a few appropriate words. The Plainfield Glee Club, consisting of Wm. N. Runyon, Geo. Schoonmaker, Walter Place, Harry Williams, Harry Spencer, Gifford Cooley and John Petrie, rendered several catchy campaign song which pleased the audience. Mr. Reed then arose to speak, but the applause was so great that he could not say a word for several minutes. Mr. Reed urged all to vote for McKinley and Hobart, and he spoke of the honor for New Jersey in having Garrett A. Hobart on the ticket. He said that this State had been pledged for a 50 000 majority. He also spoke on behalf of J. V. D. VanDoren, nominee for the Assembly, and urged all to give him their hearty support.

THE YONKERS MYSTERY.

Opinion Again Divided as to the Manner of Mr. Andrus' Death.

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Opinion is again divided in this place as to the manner in which Mr. Andrus met his death. Two public officials—the chief of police and the coroner—are at swords points over the case, the former persisting that Mr. Andrus met his death either by accident or by suicide, while the coroner strongly declares his conviction that it was the work of a villainous assassin. The chief of police has many facts to support his theory of an accident. It has been known that for years Mr. Andrus has been experimenting with various contrivance of his own invention. He was of an inventive turn of mind and he has been known to spend hours in the machine shop of his establishment studying different processes. It has been clearly proven that he secured two pipe caps similar to the one found in the room after the explosion. But, on the other hand, there is no disputing the fact that the ingenious electrical contrivance found in the cellar was placed there for the purpose of exploding the bomb. It cannot be agreeably argued in any way that Mr. Andrus put this contrivance in the cellar himself, for its very construction shows a fiendish mind. Attempts were made to prove that the bomb was not exploded by electricity, and suggestions were made that clock work had been used in the death-dealing pipe. Investigation, however, proved beyond doubt that the working of the electrical wire was the cause of the explosion. It is not definitely known what theory the Pinkerton men are working upon, but it seems certain that no arrests will be made until after the funeral services. The statement of John E. Andrus, brother of the dead man, to the effect that there is an organized band of anarchists here who have in contemplation the murder of a number of wealthy men, is ridiculed by everybody in Yonkers. It is the open expression of nearly everybody who has been permitted to examine the scene of the explosion that the plot was conceived and carried out by someone in the company's employ. It was suggested that perhaps someone employed about the office had fixed up a bomb and electrical device to be used in case burglars were found in the office. It was further theorized that Mr. Andrus might have been ignorant of its existence, and that the string controlling the opening and closing of the circuit became disarranged, thus firing off the bomb. This theory found favor, because, upon investigation, it became evident that no attempt to conceal the wires had been made. To-day funeral services will be held over the remains of Mr. Andrus, and the body will be interred.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

Mrs. L. S. Titsworth is entertaining Mrs. Bentley, of Providence, R. I.

A. A. Parker has reopened the Giles hardware store, on the Main street.

J. W. Giddes, who is employed in Plainfield, is at home suffering from the grip.

Walter Harris, of Somerset street, North Plainfield, is visiting Russell Runyon, in this place.

Mrs. Emory, of Main street, has been visiting Clinton avenue friends for a day or two past.

Special Railroad Detective Dougherty, who has been on night duty for sometime past, has now been assigned to day duty.

The Dunellen authorities have taken up the fad of burning leaves. Yesterday a dozen bonfires were seen blazing in the gutters.

Fred Vail and his brother, Charles, were in Newark last evening and attended a party given in honor of their cousin, Miss Bertha Krueger.

Conductor Rarick, of Dunellen's Fifth avenue, has yurchased a valuable trotting horse from Peter C. Osborne's stock farm. The popular conductor is getting ready for sleighing, of which he is said to be very fond.

Eugene Runyon started the carpenter work on his new house on Dunellen avenue yesterday. Harry Gaskill is the contracting carpenter, and when the building is completed it will be a lasting ornament to this place.

A regular meeting of the Dunellen Building and Loan Association was held on Thursday evening. The meeting was harmonious. No shares were cancelled, but instead a considerable amount of money was loaned on bond and mortgage. The association is doing admirably well.

W. H. Carman, Edward Teel, A. Randolph, Wm. Terry, Alvah Gray and F. Gise are scheduled to start south today, so one of the number says, on a hunting and fishing expedition. It is needless to say they'll get what they go after—even if they have to resort to the markets.

George J. Litterst, Democratic candidate for Sheriff of Middlesex county, was in town yesterday with "Joe" Field, of New Market, feeling the political pulse of the people. Mr. Litterst is a man of good, sound judgment, and if elected will no doubt serve his constituents most faithfully.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

The workmen on the Terrill road bridge expect to complete their work today, but it was found necessary to complete the contract.

The beautiful Bryan and Sewell flag which was so badly damaged by the rain and wind storm a week ago, was yesterday again set floating in the breeze.

The mounted tiger which attracted so much attention in the parade at Princeton yesterday in connection with the 150th anniversary celebration was the gift of Dr. J. H. Coles, of Scotch Plains, which fact is not generally known.

Mrs. Clemantine B. Runyon, widow of the late late Embassador Theodore Runyon, together with the Misses Julia B. and Helen Louise Runyon, are the guests today of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Stanberry. Mrs. Stanbery was sister of the late Embassador.

WASHINGTONVILLE.

William Demler is erecting a new barn on the site of the one destroyed by fire two weeks ago.

Miss Nettie Wycoff and George Mobus, of this place, journeyed to Millington Thursday night, and there were quietly married by Rev. Dr. Schenck. Last night many friends serenaded them, and afterwards the visitors were sumptously entertained by the bride and groom.

A Miraculous Escape.

Contractor Chas. H. Westphal, of South Second street, narrowly escaped fatal injury last Wednesday while at work on the new Matron's Home in connection with Muhlenberg Hospital. He was standing on a scaffold, about twenty feet from the ground, when the supports gave way and threw Mr. Westphal with great force to the ground. When he landed he struck on his head. In a few minutes he got up and managed to reach his home. An examination was made and it was learned that no bones were broken. Although Mr. Westphal feels very sore as a result of the fall he is still able to work. That he was not killed is a miracle.

—A regular business meeting of the First Church of Christ will be held on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Three trustees will be elected.

THEATRICAL.

Manager Willey has secured the successful melodrama "Slaves of Gold" to appear tonight at Music Hall. This will be the first appearance of this attraction in this city. It is a play that has met with great success throughout the country. The company will be headed by Arnold Reeves, a young romantic actor of merit. The play is one of great "Heart Interest." The story appeals to all classes, ages and sexes. A pure story, of a father's sacrifice for his child, a brave daughter's love; who in order to save her father's life, and elude the pursuing villians, breaks through a solid glass bay window and leaps to the branch of a mighty apple tree, and swings thirty feet through space to the ground below. One of the most thrilling effects ever produced on a stage is the mine scene.

If the production of the Spider and Fly was submitted to the pruning predelections of Anthony Comstock or Mrs. Grannis it would surely be better fitted to be witnessed by a respectable audience such as gathered in Music Hall last night. As a matter of fact, anyone with moral turpitude could purge it of several features that would elevate its tone and at the same time relegate a few artists to oblivion, whose only claim for being on the stage seems to be their ability to be lude and crack coarse jibes to the embarrassment of people who go to the theatre to be entertained, not to be insulted. It is doubtful if a more disgraceful exhibition of suggestiveness and vulgarity has ever been witnessed on any stage outside of the French capital itself than was the alleged specialty act of a team styling themselves "the Voujeres" in the Spider and Fly production. Manager Willey was grossly imposed on in booking an attraction with such features, and probably no one regrets it more than he does himself.

DEATH OF C. F. CRISP

The Ex-Speaker's End Was Tragic in Its Suddenness.

CONSCIOUS TO THE VERY LAST

Stricken with Paroxysms of Pain Near the Heart Thursday Night, Which Continued at Intervals Until His Sufferings Were Relieved by Death.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 24.—Hon. Charles Frederick Crisp, speaker of the Fifty-first and Fifty-second congresses, whose death occurred yesterday afternoon at the Holmes' sanitarium, came to Atlanta six weeks ago for treatment. He was then suffering from a typical case of malarial fever which had developed at his home in Americus. He spent June, July and a part of August in the mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee. His return to middle Georgia during the very hottest period of the summer developed the fever. After a week's treatment by Drs. Holmes and Davis, the fever disappeared and the judge improved slowly. Last week he was out driving several times and he was getting stronger until Sunday night, when he was attacked with symptoms of his old trouble, pneumonia. Dr. J. S. Todd was called in and on Tuesday congestion of the lungs disappeared, but the patient was so weak that Mrs. Crisp telegraphed for her children, and all came the next day. On Wednesday and Thursday Judge Crisp's condition improved, but he received no callers. His family were hopeful until 10 o'clock Thursday night, when he had a paroxysm of pain near the heart. At midnight there was another paroxysm, and they continued at intervals through the night and forenoon. He suffered intense pain, but was conscious up to the very last. At 1:30 his son, Charles F. Crisp, jr., and his younger brother and sisters went across the street to a hotel for lunch. Mrs. Crisp remained with her husband. At 1:40 the pain reappeared. A messenger was sent for the children. They came hurriedly, and just in time to get some last glances of recognition, for Judge Crisp was unable to utter a word and died within five minutes. Although warned by his physicians that the end might come at any moment, when it did come it was tragic in its suddenness. Gov. Atkinson was his last visitor, having called on Sunday, when he and the judge chatted for an hour on current topics.

Complicates Politics in Georgia.

Judge Crisp was keenly interested in politics to the very last. He opposed fusion with the populists and charged Gov. Atkinson to defeat it, if possible, in Georgia. Judge Crisp was one of the leaders of the silver movement in Georgia, and on that issue the state overwhelmingly indorsed him for the United States senate, to which he would have been almost unanimously elected by the legislature, which meets next Wednesday. His death at this time complicates the situation and may lead to a bitter fight for the senatorship. Perhaps other offices will be involved, too. Judge Crisp declined to contest for renomination to the house.

Brief Sketch of Judge Crisp's Life.

Charles Frederick Crisp, although of American parentage, was born on Jan. 29, 1845, in Sheffield, England, where his parents were playing in a stock company. He was educated in the public schools of Savannah and Macon, Ga., and enlisted in the Confederate army in the first year of the war, being then only 16 years old. He was a lieutenant in the Tenth Virginia infantry when he was captured and taken to Fort Delaware as a prisoner. On his return to his home in Ellaville, Ga., after his release in June, 1865, he began to read law. Admitted to the bar in 1866, he soon built up a considerable practice. In 1872 Mr. Crisp was appointed solicitor-general of the southwestern judicial circuit of Georgia, and five years later he became a judge of the superior court by appointment. In 1878 he was elected judge by the general assembly, and twice re-elected. He resigned to accept the nomination for congress for the Third district, which was equivalent to an election.

His Career in Congress.

He served as a representative in congress until the time of his death. His knowledge of parliamentary law was not exceeded by that of any man in the house except, possibly, Speaker Reed, with whom he was frequently in conflict on points of procedure. During the memorable fight against the Lodge bill, Mr. Crisp was the leader of his party on the floor, displaying remarkable self-control, alertness, boldness and patience. In the committee-room—and Mr. Crisp at one time or another was a member of all the important committees—he showed unwearying industry and grasp of detail. In the spring of 1886 Mr. Crisp was chosen speaker pro tem. during the absence of Mr. Carlisle, and while serving in that capacity he made his first speech advocating the free coinage of silver.

Noted for His Fair Rulings.

Mr. Crisp had displayed such ability as a parliamentary tactician that he was selected by his party in the first session of the Fifty-first congress to make the fight against enforcing Speaker Reed's rules. The republicans won in the end, but only after some of the most exciting scenes ever witnessed in congress. Judge Crisp's coolness, resolution and resource baffled the majority for a long time, and on more than one occasion he triumphed over the speaker. When the democrats secured a majority in the next congress Mr. Crisp was chosen speaker after a contest with Roger Q. Mills of Texas. Mr. Crisp added to his reputation by the fairness of his rulings and his uniform courtesy, although he and Mr. Reed sometimes clashed as of old.

Was a Candidate for the Senate.

At the time of his death Mr. Crisp was a candidate for United States senator from Georgia, his chief opponent being ex-secretary Hoke Smith. Last spring they began a series of joint debates, Mr. Smith advocating sound money and the ex-speaker free silver coinage. Mr. Crisp was compelled by ill-health to withdraw from the platform. He had throat trouble and suffered from pains in his chest. Friends thought he was on the verge of a physical collapse at the time. He did not attend the Chicago convention and had taken no part in the campaign.

THE NEWS IN WASHINGTON.

Severe Illness of the ex-Speaker Was Well Known to His Intimate Friends.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The serious illness of ex-Speaker Crisp and the probability of its terminating fatally has been known to his intimate friends for some time, but has only been spoken of confidentially. Nevertheless, the announcement of his death came as a shock and has caused much sorrow in official circles. His ailment, it is stated, took its origin in the excitement growing out of his joint debate with secretary Hoke Smith last summer. When he was forced to withdraw from that debate for physical reasons, his friends persuaded him to enter a sanitarium for treatment. He was subject to heart disease. Reassuring reports as to recovered health have appeared from time to time, but they have been largely discounted by those fully informed as to the facts. Mr. Crisp was one of the best-liked men in congress. He commanded the respect of friends and opponents by his abilities and his generally unruffled judicial fairness.

ENTERTAINING PRINCE LOUIS.

The Italian Nobleman To Visit Niagara Falls as the Guest of the Lehigh Railroad.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—Prince Louis of Savoy and his fellow officers of the Italian cruiser Christoforo Colombo, have accepted the invitation extended through Charles S. Lee, general passenger agent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, to visit Niagara Falls, and he will leave here on a special train to-morrow morning. Mr. Potter will accompany the party which will include Captain Bertholini, Italian Consul Lecca, a number of the officers from the cruiser Colombo and several Lehigh Valley railroad officials. The return from Niagara will be made on Monday. On Tuesday Col. Edward Morrill will take the prince and party to the Country club on a tally-ho. Tuesday evening a dinner in the prince's honor will be given at the Hotel Walton and on Wednesday the Christoforo Colombo will leave for New York. Yesterday the prince and his fellow officers visited Cramps' shipyard. The visitors were shown through the various departments of the plant and they also inspected the government vessels in course of construction. Later the prince entertained ex-Minister to Italy Potter and a party of friends at luncheon in the Union League club house and last evening he was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Mrs. John Thompson Spencer at her residence on Spruce street. A large reception followed the dinner.

Dr. Tanner Burned to Death.

Akron, O., Oct. 24.—Dr. Tanner, who secured notoriety several years ago by fasting for an extraordinary period, was burned to death on Wednesday in the fire which destroyed the pottery plant of Whittmore, Robinson & Co. The body has not yet been discovered. It is said that the name "Dr. Tanner" was assumed and that his real name was Francis Harrison.

CHAPTER IV.

Alive, alert and well at two o'clock the young sentry on Number Five had passed the call. Entitled to his relief immediately after two thirty and allowed a few hours' rest and sleep at the guardhouse, he had but half an hour now to tramp up and down—up and down along that dark and dreary post, with the black silhouettes of the officers' quarters rising between him and the southern sky and the black shadows of the northward foothills hemming the view to the Prescott road. Soft and sandy was the soil in this depression, with stunted shrubbery and hardy brushwood dotting it here and there. West of the road by which G troop had trotted away the ground lay open and clear. East of it and over toward the upper end of Six's post there remained many clumps of wild vegetation, and if any doubts existed at two o'clock of the near presence of Apaches in force they were banished at two thirty, for C troop, tumbling out in hot haste and formed in fighting line, went down the slope in single rank, out over the post of poor Ruckel lying there skewered with Tonto shafts, and in dispersed order, with carbines at ready, they beat through that chapparal, stirring up the jack rabbits by the score, and, later on, finding here and there and in a dozen spots the track of a Tonto moccasin—unmistakable as the hoof prints of a moose, but finding not a single Tonto. Fleetest of mountain warriors, they had made their reconnaissance, and then, while some drew Foster's troop toward the Raton Springs others, slipping behind, had crept noiselessly within ten yards of the drowsing sentry, lolling in fancied security along his shadowy path, passing and repassing between their lair and the star-lit southern sky, until, crawling upon him, sinuous and slow and patient as the boa constrictor, they had struck at one and the same instant, and dropped him in his tracks with no more than one gurgling, inarticulate cry, then sped away for the foothills.

While Raymond's men were beating the bush, their comrades of F troop had saddled and led into line at the stables. It was then fifteen when the dismounting company came swinging back up the slope, silent, vengeful, yet thrilling a bit with the sense of unseen danger. Thornton by this time was fully aroused to the possibilities of Apache warfare.

"It will be daybreak soon," he said, "and I want you, Turner, to push out on the trail of those beggars and run them to earth if a possible thing. Raymond will remain with me. They must belong to some bigger band hereabouts. God grant it isn't along the Sandy—now."

Involuntarily as he spoke he turned and looked to the west. There stood old Signal Butte—dark and silent still. No sign of beacon fire there. There lay the dim and distant ruins of the old post, down in the depths of the shadowy valley. No sign of danger or excitement. Yet if the Apaches dare stalk the sentries of a big command as these had done, what would they not dare with so small a detachment as Crane's? And then those unprotected women and children at Kelly's ranch! Thornton had seen exciting times during the war of the rebellion, but women and children never entered into those calculations. It was after three when Raymond's men returned from their fruitless quest. Turner's troop had gone out to the stables, and not a word had come from Foster, not a sign from the Sandy valley to tell that Leon had safely reached the post. Nervously the major paced up and down his broad veranda now, every little while pausing to address some query or instruction to officers or men hastening by. Lights were flitting about in every set of quarters and on every side.

Everybody was astir, even the children. Over at the east the stars were beginning to pale in the faint, pallid light of the coming morn, and little by little the jagged outline of the Mogollon range grew sharp and clear against the reddening sky. Over at the west the peaks began to warm and glow in answer, while at their base the valley of the Sandy still lay dark and unrevealed. Nearly four o'clock—no further word from Foster. Could he have sent couriers from the springs, who, riding carelessly, confidently homeward, had met poor Ruckel's fate? Certainly by three o'clock he should have been heard from, and here it was almost daylight. In ten minutes, just as soon as coffee could be served, Turner, with his troop, would push away on his scout, and then, all on a sudden, the old anxiety flashed again upon the major. Nearly four o'clock and Leon's signal had not been fired. Great heavens! were the Apaches on the westward road, then, after all? Was that brave little life another sacrifice? Taking Raymond and his adjutant with him, the major once more tramped out to the westward. There over the tumbling sea of rock and gorge and beetling cliff the gleaming tip of old San Pedro peered at them, his rugged flanks robed in royal purple, but even Signal Butte in the lower valley lay shrouded in gloom. In low tone the sentry on No. 4 challenged at their approach. He recognized the voices of his officers, but orders compelled him to demand further token. "Friends with the countersign," answered the adjutant, half impatiently, as though to say: "We weren't coming on or across your post," yet refraining from other words because he knew the sentry's right.

"Halt, friends! Advance one with the countersign," ordered the soldier, in the same low, firm tone, and, obediently, Thornton and Raymond waited while the junior officer went quickly forward and whispered the mystic word over the lowered bayonet of the infantry guard. Permitted then to hold conversation with his visitor, Private Graham answered the first anxious question of the major: "No, sir; not a sign of a fire anywhere in the valley. I've been watching particular." And just at that moment the call of four o'clock began.

Only two calls had gone the rounds since the discovery of Ruckel's fate, and once more now, still dim and indistinct, the post of No. 5, down in the low ground to the north was uncovered at the front, for Raymond's troop had returned. Instinctively the officers turned away from No. 4 and walked back nearer the northward slope as the soldier watch cry came on from lip to lip. They could just faintly distinguish the form of the sentry well to the westward of the road, well out of range—small blame to him—of those stunted brush heaps and the point where poor Ruckel had been done to death less than two hours before. He had halted a moment as though to listen to the call as it came to him, and No. 4—the infantryman they had just left—began to take it up as No. 3's voice died away. Then all of a sudden No. 5 brought his rifle down to the charge and went leaping like a colt along his post to the point where it was crossed by the Prescott road, and instead of the prolonged and melodious call of the hour, when it came his turn, it was the sentry's challenge—sharp, clear and imperative—that split the morning air. There was something nerve tingling, something that smacked of swift coming alarm in the very tone, and its only answer at the front was the quick, rising thud of galloping horse's hoofs. Again rang the challenge—all three words jumbling this time into one—"Whocomeshere?"—then "Halt!" "Halt, or I'll fire!" and then Raymond's powerful tones rang out through the breathless air

"Hold your fire, sentry. That horse has no rider!"

But the only answer was the loud bang of the Springfield and the leaden bullet went whistling away toward the pole star. That sentry had heard enough of the perils of post No. 5 for one night, and preferred to take no chances. "Sure, I didn't hear the captain," he explained, a few minutes later He heard only the rapid coming of horse's hoofs, and despite the fact that horses were things the mountain Apaches never thought of using except when hungry, Private Hanrahan believed all the Tonto tribe were coming and let drive accordingly. It was only a troop horse, blown and bleeding, only another evidence of the devilish cunning of the savage foe, for the moment Corporal Dunn could reach them on the jump, he cried, with a sob in his voice: "It's Tralee, of G troop, sir Jim Rafferty's horse." And so at last here was Foster's courier from Raton Springs—but where were the dispatches? Where, alas, was Jim? Tralee's heaving flanks and distended nostrils and eyeballs told his story of peril and homeward flight, even as the long welt in his broad haunch and the gash through the high pommel of the McClellan tree were eloquent of its cause. Like Ruckel, the sentry, poor Rafferty, homeward speeding with his captain's midnight dispatch, had been ambushed at the roadside.

Another thrill to the chorus of excitement that had throbbed the long night through, and yet not the last. There were still left a few minutes to darkness, and the devil of mischief seemed afloat in the very air. "Go and tell Mrs. Foster the truth the best way you can," said the major, miserably, to his adjutant. "There she is on the veranda now I'll go round the west side of the office. You can join me there. Yes, Turner, mount and start at once if your men have had their coffee. Now sweep that road clean from here to the Sandy, and don't leave an Indian to tell the story Look for Foster or his men and try to find Rafferty." And so saying he turned him to the west and pushed slowly up the slope, a heavy-hearted man. Almost the last thing he heard as he reached the end of officers' row was Nellie Foster's weeping. If stout, soldierlike Irish Jim could be so swiftly, surely massacred by unseen foes what must have been Leon's fate? Little black-eyed Leon riding alone, unarmed, with Mrs. Downey's sorely needed medicine, through the dark depths of this Indian-haunted night? But now the mountain tops were all shimmering with the glow of coming day, and even into the valley depths the faint light seemed to peer, and still there waked no sign of life from the distant outpost, no reassuring flame to warm his heart with tidings of the boy's safe coming—but something new and weird and strange was bulging Signal Butte, all out of shape and the sentry on No. 4 stood halted in fascination and amaze. The purple fringe of the familiar pine crest seemed to be soaring slowly upward, drawn out into a floating curl, rose-tinted at the top where it met the blush of dawn, deep hued below where it left the black base, then all on a sudden it burst into lurid glare, red, yellow, banishing the rose and flaming over the valley for many a mile. No welcome signal that, telling of the wanderer's safe return, no message of hope or comfort, but most dreaded sign of all, it was the cry for help from the Sandy valley, the appeal of terrified women and children—the token that red war had burst about the walls of the old frontier fort, and even its little garrison was now in peril.

Maj. Thornton was in grave distress before he was in the depths of dejection now. For hours he had been longing for day, and day had only brought him new and worse disaster. Here he was with one small company of infantry as permanent guard and three troops of cavalry, fresh from the saddle work of the plains and utterly untaught in mountain fighting, as his striking and scouting column. Well had the Apaches chosen their time, and direct indeed was the effect of their concerted blows. All in a flash the major realized that his little force was scattered or scattering—Foster somewhere up in the Socorro to the northwest, possibly pushing still farther away from the post and into peril; Turner already marching out in support of him and in pursuit of the ambushing Indians, who, at this rate, before another sunset would line the Prescott road with graves, and this left only Raymond's troop, diminished in strength by the detachment of Lieut. Crane and his party to go to the rescue now. Thornton was quick to think and act. "Mount your horse, you!" he cried to the orderly trumpeter just issuing from the adjutant's office. "Ride like a streak after Capt. Turner. He can't be across the lowlands yet. Tell him to return at once."

"Foster's strong enough to take care of himself," reasoned the major. "Poor Rafferty's done for, and anybody who's foolenough to be riding the Prescott road this morning must take his own chances. My first duty is to save these people to the west." Already the sentry's cry had summoned the corporal. The guard was springing to ranks at the tidings that the beacon was blazing on Signal Butte. There was no need of sounding "To arms," since the whole command was practically alert and belted now—no need to sound reveille since the entire post was up and astir. The sunbeams were gilding the westward peaks and the upper billows of the clouds of dust, in which Turner's troop came trotting back and, met half way by instructions, never entering the post, turned "column half right" midway across the sandy swale and went cantering westward into the dim valley, spurring swiftly to the rescue—Thornton and his adjutant with them, leaving Raymond in command at Retribution.

And as the sun climbed higher and blazed slanting down upon the mesa and the soaring dust cloud faded out of sight, men, and women, too, gathered on that westward bluff to watch for further sign of weal or woe. "Oh! that we had kept Leon with us!" was Mrs. Foster's plaint. "It breaks my heart to think of him." Indeed, Leon and Leon's fate seemed uppermost in the hearts of all. Rare, indeed, were the occasions and strong their numbers when Apaches had dared to face a whole troop in the field, and Capt Raymond strove to soothe the fears of those who trembled at the thought of peril to Foster and Turner and their men. "Apaches have raided the ranches most probably," was his theory. "Crane cannot protect them and the old post, too. He has probably been penned at the corral and could hardly look out for even Kelly's homestead. The Apaches are possibly there all around them, but Turner will brush them off like so many flies. Kelly's people are safe in the cellars, I haven't a doubt, and the old man, with the assistance he has, can easily stand off the prowlers until they see Turner coming; then they'll all skip for the range, perhaps run slap into Foster, and between the two there won't be much left of the Tontos."

And this was very buoyant and reassuring, but women can see so many possibilities of peril to loved ones at such a time. Somebody was sure to be killed and several wounded—no matter how the Indians were driven. It always happened so. The troops might win the fight and hold the ground and drive the warriors helter skelter through the hills, but who suffered most? Who got the worst of the fight? Who was the thing which wives and children, mothers and daughters, most considered, and in almost every case it must be owned that the preponderance of dead and wounded lay with the troops "Already two of our best are gone," sobbed an Irish laundress, "and what have we got to show for it?"

"TWO KILLED OUTRIGHT."

"Two killed outright," cried Mrs. Foster, "and one of them our Rafferty, and now where is Leon?"

Alas! who could say? Leaving Raymond, his weeping women and angering men, let us spur on after Turner and the sorrel troop, by this time nearly half way to the Sandy Even on fleetest of American horses we cannot hope to overtake them until they are almost within pistol range of the willows in the bottom, and when we do the first platoon is dispersed in wide skirmish line, the men riding five yards apart. The other is in reserve, ready to strike wherever the foe may be developed. Only a mile away lie the old ruins across the Sandy. Only a mile and a half up there along the falda, to the northwest, are the brown adobe buildings of Kelly's little ranch. Hereaway to the north, nearly opposite the gateway of Apache canyon, through which the Sandy comes brawling, towers the black pyramid of Signal Butte, a thin smoke still floating skyward from its summit. A dozen times, say the men of the reserve, have they seen Leon's pony tracks on the way, but not once since passing the dry arroyo two miles back. Over beyond that strange cone-shaped butte, so strong a landmark as it stands like a sentry guarding the canyon's gate, the shallow rift in the Socorro tells where the trail comes in from Raton Springs over on the northeast. Riding at speed until within a mile of the timber, Turner has been watching with eager eye for any sign of life or action, of friend or foe, from across the stream, and not so much as wave of flag or blanket, or even bandana has rewarded his wistful scrutiny. Kelly's home is apparently deserted. The dismantled walls of the old post are now hidden behind the sheltering fringe of timber close to the stream. Downey's ranch below is out of sight behind the shoulder bluff that shrugs to the very brink of the Sandy. "Queer," says Thornton. "Not a sign, yet they must have seen us coming. Look out for every clump of trees or bush ahead there, Turner. Since last night's experience I sniff an Indian in every twig." Turner only nods grimly in reply. All along the skirmish line the carbines are advanced, the men peering eagerly into the thickets ahead of them. The road itself winds through the low bottom and enters the stream at a gravelly bend opposite the walls of the old quartermaster's corral, but that is a couple of hundred yards further to the south now. Turner is aiming to reach the open ground midway between Kelly's and the post, and thereby be enabled most promptly to lend aid to either. If the Tontos are in strong force and lurking in the timber to give him a hot welcome, then the fight will be hand to hand, and that's what he wants. If, on the contrary, they are too weak to match him, then there is little hope of meting punishment, for in his own hands the Apache can only be thrashed when thoroughly surprised, and one might almost as well hope to catch a weasel asleep. One hundred yards only to the timber now, and not a sign from anywhere. More slowly, cautiously, the line advances, expecting any instant to hear the crack of the Indian rifle among the trees. The suppressed excitement of the men communicates itself through muscles, that pardonably quiver a bit, to the mettlesome horses, and these are sniffing the hot air suspiciously, with wide eye and nostrils, and erect, twitching ears shrinking from the possible ambush ahead. Then comes a sudden shout from the reserve: "Look! Look at Kelly's!" And half a dozen horses cower and shy, and, such is the nervous strain of the moment, a score of human hearts bound in young troopers' breasts.

Some one—they can't discover who—is waving a shawl or blanket from Kelly's doorway. Some one else can be dimly seen lunging out from behind the ranch and fiercely gesticulating and pointing toward the range to the north. "It's the old man himself," cries a sergeant. "They're all right." The next minute, too, waving his hat, a trooper comes spurring through the willows at the front and rides briskly out toward the advancing line. Men breathe freer at the sight.

"What's gone wrong? Where are the rest, corporal?" queries Turner, riding eagerly to meet the coming trooper.

"Patchies, sir—ran off Kelly's mules and killed his herder and tackled the ranch at dawn. They skipped away up the canyon, and the lieutenant's after them with ten men. He said he knew the captain would be coming as soon as the signal was seen. They fired on us, too, sir, but didn't harm anybody. Six of us were left to look after the women and children. It's lucky Downey's people had come or they'd all been killed."

"Are the women all safe?"

"All safe, sir, but pretty badly scared. They must have had a close call at Kelly's. The old man wouldn't leave it last night and Mrs. Kelly wouldn't leave him, but—"

"Then if you're all safe at the post we'll go right on to Kelly's," said Turner, impatiently. "Assemble on the right skirmisher!" he shouted to the fighting line. "Sound the trot, trumpeter!" and away he went with his orderly and a few men at his heels to the point where the right of the line had just reached the timber.

But Thornton lingered. "How's Mrs. Downey? Did she get her medicine?" he asked, uneasily.

"Mrs. Downey's better since the Indians skipped, sir; but I don't know of her getting any other medicine."

"Didn't Leon get back?"

"Not here, sir. He may be up at Kelly's. We didn't suppose he'd attempt to come back after Ferguson and the other fellers got in here last night—chasing old Muncey. They must have run foul of this very band, sir. Muncey rode in all by himself, he said, to warn [illegible] and was then going—"

"Never mind him. I hope the Apaches have got him You are sure Leon never got back."

"Sure, sir. We never knew he'd left you." And then Thornton turned and rode hard to the ranch. There stood the old sergeant, mopping his red face and modestly receiving Turner's congratulations on the plucky fight he made in defense of his home; but the light went out of Kelly's eyes when the major burst forth with:

"Sergeant, is Leon with you? Did he reach you in time?"

"Leon, sir? I haven't seen or heard of him since yesterday. I thought he was with the women and children down yonder," and the sergeant pointed to the old post, his face paling with grief and apprehension.

"I wish to Heaven he were!" said Thornton, sadly. "Mrs. Downey was suffering great pain, and the boy rode all the way to us for the doctor and insisted on going back with the medicine. We never dreamed—at least I didn't—of Apaches here. God grant they haven't got him!"

But just then there rode up from the direction of the canyon Sergt. Chariton, with sorrow in his sunburned face. "I'm afraid they have, major," said he, dismounting. "See, here's the medicine phial—all we can find of him—and his pony lies dead at the foot of Signal Butte."

CAUGHT UP ON GRIDIRON

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

The football elevens from Dunellen and Bound Brook meet on the gridiron this afternoon providing the weather is suitable, in all probability it will be.

It is probable that the Alis team will not play at Scotch Plains this afternoon after all, as all the members of the team are very anxious to see the Plainfield-Westfield game.

The Thanksgiving Day game for the Y. M. C. A. eleven will probably be with the "Tiger Inn" eleven from Princeton College. It is a strong team, several of its members being prominent candidates for the Princeton "varsity" team.

Today will probably end the football season on the present Y. M. C. A grounds and the other games will be played on the Crescent Oval. The latter gridiron is much the best, but its out-of-the-way location is not as liable to draw large crowds.

The South End Athletic Club's eleven defeated the Crescent Wheelmen Juniors yesterday afternoon on Herring's gridiron by a score of 6 to 0 A. P. Odam is captain of the South Ends, and V. W. Nash, Jr., is captain of the Young Crescents. R. S. Arm strong refereed.

The rain last evening made practice for the Y. M. C. A. team on the regular field impossible. Not to be outwitted by the rain, the players gathered at the Jersey Cycle Academy and enjoyed an excellent practice. The new signals were tried again and again and several new plays were practiced.

Several young Plainfield men went down to Westfield Thursday evening and saw the eleven from the latter place at practice. They practice in the lot beside the Westfield Y. M. C. A. building and have the place illuminated by a long row of candles, which, aided by the moon, made practice possible. The Plainfield boys were not overwhelmed with the strength the Westfield team exhibited and returned home more than ever of the opinion that Plainfield will win in today's contest.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Park Club will open the bowling season next Friday night, when they will send a team to meet the Roselle Casino five in a practice game on the latter's alleys The team will consist of Laurens H. VanBuren, F. O. Ball, Carl Brown, Charles Dupee, and Fred P. Taylor.

GOLF.

The preliminary rounds for the silver cup, presented by J. W. Reinhart to the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, open to members only, handicap play, will be started this afternoon on the links of the Hillside Club. The finals will be played on next Saturday afternoon.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

Thomas McDonald has gone to Port Richmond, S. I., where he will join a party of friends on a duck hunting expedition.

BASKET BALL.

A meeting of the Y. M. C. A. basket ball team was held Thursday night and Berry Egan elected Captain. He will select the team.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

GUILELESS NEWSBOY; FRESH BLOODS IN POLITICS.

The Former Had a Cinch on a Bet and the Latter Had a Fight About Favorites.

The Train Butcher Was Willing to Lose Fifty Cents on One Bet in Order to Make a Dollar on Another—The Neshanic Young Bloods Took the Dog List Supposing It, However, To Be the Registry List of the Township.

A couple of ardent Plainfield Democrats who are interested in politics, on their way home from New York one day last week, got into a political discussion with the train newsboy, the upspot of which was the latter offered to bet fifty cents that he could name thirty States that would cast their electoral votes for McKinley and Hobart. On being promptly taken up, he offered to bet a dollar that he could name five more that they would get. This looked better than the other and was also covered. The boy then proceeded to name the solid South and a few of the sage-brush States of the West for his first thirty, paying up his half-dollar like a little man. When he began to name Pennsylvania, Vermont, Maine, etc., for his other five, the Plainfielders "caught on." The newsboy gave them back their dollar, however, out of compassion.

NEW CHURCH FEATURE.

Congregational Sunday-school Officers Installed With Special Services.

A special service in the interest of the Sunday-school was held in the Congregational church yesterday morning. The newly-elected officers of the Sunday school were installed, and the teachers reappointed. After the usual opening of the morning service the roll of officers was called, as follows: Joseph A. Robinson, superintendent; Lucius B. Morgan, assistant superintendent; Stacy R. Raynolds, secretary; J. Augustus Powlinson, treasurer; Charles Steiner, librarian; Mrs. M. E. Dwight, pianist. These came forward, and the pastor, Rev. Charles Lyman Goodrich, addressed them briefly concerning their responsibility as Sunday-school officers, and Deacon George F. Raynolds read some words of Scripture which formed appropriate counsel for the occasion. The roll of teachers was then called, and the teachers all came forward and listened to their pastor's earnest words concerning their high calling, and their duty to be regular and prompt in attendance, and to watch over their pupils and lead them into the Christian life. The teachers repeated a covenant, promising to be true to their duties as teachers, to lead a consistent Christian life, and to counsel spiritually with their pupils, both in the classes and at other times. Scripture counsel was given them by Deacon Raynolds and Superintendent Robinson, the congregation joined in a Scripture benediction upon the teachers, then the latter sang together "A Charge to Keep I Have," and returned to their seats.

The sermon was in reference to the Sunday school, of which the pastor gave three definitions: the church teaching the Bible, so doing the work Christ gave to his disciples; the church caring for its own, training up the young people who would soon be its strength; and the church studying the Bible socially and gaining from contact with one another's minds more help in Bible interpretation than could be obtained from solitary study. He earnestly invited the older members of the congregation to come into the adult classes of the Sunday-school.

This service was well attended and much enjoyed. It was something quite new to the Plainfield churches, and the effects of it will doubtless be seen in increased earnestness on the part of the Sunday-school workers.

Misleading.

The headline over the news item in Saturday's Press anent the trouble between Councilman Serrell and P.M. French over street sprinkling was misleading. Mr. French was not arrested. He was simply notified to answer the complaint in city court. This was done by Mr. French's son, Elston, accompanied by Driver Teeple and Collector Laid.

The young bloods of Neshanic vicinity is very active in this political campaign and are particularly anxious to have their names recorded on the registration roll. At the sitting of the Board, at Hill's Hall, the two young men presented themselves and demanded the reasons why their names should not appear on the registry list in a conspicuous place. They were informed that their names had been registered and would appear when the list was ready. The young men insisted they had looked over the registry list carefully and were fully aware their names were not thereon. A few words followed, and it was discovered they had been searching the 1895 dog list. Being somewhat irritated as to the result, each blamed the other, and on the way to their respective homes harsh words and threats followed, one making the remark that Bryan would be elected anyway. The other said he supposed he (Bryan) would if all the people were as big fools as the former.

"The Bryan man then remarked, that is the second time you have insulted my capacity tonight, and you can't back it."

The McKinley man said he could dip the Bryan man in the brook. A free fight followed, resulting in both getting thoroughly wet and muddy, a badly bitten finger, and various head bruises and scars, making business for the local physicians the following morning.

ON GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

Characteristics as Pointed Out in a Sermon by Dr. Yerkes.

At the First Baptist church yesterday morning the pastor, Rev. Dr. Yerkes, preached on Good Citizenship, taking for his text Paul's assertion that he was of Tarsus, "A citizen of no mean city." Starting with the congratulation that an American can claim he is a citizen of no mean country, he spoke of some of the duties to be exercised by the good citizen, actuated by patriotic principles, broader than party, above sectionalism, upholding righteous law, guaranteeing fairness, freedom and justice to every man, and on the side of God, either with or independent of party and policy. In view of the near approach of the time when the citizen's power can be wielded at the ballot box, he urged conscientious, thoughtful and prayerful use of that power.

TO A HIGHER THRONE.

FINAL OBSEQUIES OVER THE REMAINS OF G. H. NEAL.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck Preaches a Deeply Affecting and Consoling Sermon to the Bereaved—Floral Tributes.

The exceedingly large attendance at the funeral of the late George H. Neal, held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 from the house, 76 Fairview avenue, was a strong testimony of the high esteem and true worth of the decedent. In addition to the large number of Plainfielders present, and representations of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W. and Senate Lodge, No. 3542, K. of H., of which lodges Mr. Neal was a member, there were present thirty employes from the house of Merck & Co., of New York, where Mr. Neal was a valued employe. Many friends who desired to attend the funeral were unable to gain admittance to the house owing to the large attendance.

Rev. Cornelus Schenck, of the Trinity Reformed church, conducted the services which were very impressive. His remarks were based on Paul's words, "Thanks be unto God who giveth us the Victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." In part Mr. Schenck said:

"We naturally shrink from death for we see the dark side of it. To the believer the grave is transformed. It is as a vestibule to the Eternal Day, a resting place for the worn out body. Death has been robbed of its sting, and to the believer it has been swallowed up in victory. It serves as a summons calling him as a soldier of Christ. When the blossom drops from the tree we do not mourn, for we know it is the result of ultimate fruitage. The believer views death as falling asleep in Christ. Such a triumph must have a rock basis, not a mere surmise or wish, but an immutable foundation of Christ and the resurrection. To the members of this household I have brought you this view of death. Not that our hearts are not grieved. It does not mean that there is no sorrow. It does not mean that we will not mour the loss of our fellow citizen who walked with us as a faithful legislator, whose record speaks louder than words. It does not mean that the mother, sisters, wife and little children shall not sorrow. There is a comfort in this sorrow and that is that our brother committed his soul to his Saviour and in Him he rested, which makes this occasion one of triumph. Let us, with his associates in business, receive the blessing we require today."

When Mr. Schenck concluded his remarks, he offered a touching petition to the Throne of Grace, after which E. E. Runyon sang tenderly, "Rock of Ages." Those present then looked for the last time on the form of their beloved friend. Among the floral tribute was a large wreath of roses and galax leaves, from the house of Merck & Co. It bore a broad band of satin ribbon on which was inscribed, "We shall ever mourn our great loss, Merck & Co." Another tribute was an anchor bearing the letters A. O. U. W. The Knights of Honor presented a large choice bunch of roses, while there were several small wreaths and bunches of flowers from friends. Those who served as bearers were John Messerschmidt, Fred M. Slater, John Fellows and S. P. Williams. Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

Delighted Plainfielders.

Among the many Plainfielders who went to New York on Saturday evening to witness the great sound money water parade, none had a better view of the magnificent spectacle than a party of five—Messrs. E. W. Mills, the superintendent of the United States Express Company in this city; A. M. Griffen, L. S. Pocock, Frank M. Dunham and the writer, who were the guests of G. L. Douglass, of 42 Sycamore avenue, on one of the large steam lighter boats of the New York Central Railroad Company, which formed a part of the great water pageant. Mr. Donglass is general manager of the great lighterage system of the New York Central, and had five of the boats of the company in the parade, all being loaded to their full capacity with employes and their wives and the friends of Mr. Douglass. All greatly enjoyed the event and feel indebted to him for the pleasures of the long to be remembered sound money parade. The party from Plainfield was chaperoned by Mr. Mills.

REST ON THE MOUNTAIN.

SECOND SERMONS FROM TEXTS SUGGESTED BY A CYCLE TRIP.

Rev. C. E. Herring Last Night Made an Interesting and Inspiring Discourse From the Subject of "Resting Places."

"Resting Places" was the text of Rev. C. E. Herring's second discourse on texts suggested by a wheeling tour through the continent. The sermon was delivered last evening in the First Presbyterian Church before a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Herring said:

"'The son of man had no where to lay his head?' Never did any text of Scripture come so vividly to my mind as did this text one night last summer. My journey had been very long that day and at nine o'clock at night I found myself on a very high mountain in Northern Italy with no apparent possibility of reaching the top. It seemed as if the bleak mountainside would be my resting place for the night for there was not a house in sight. To my right I could see in the distance the beautiful Mediterranean, but there was no road leading from that mountain height to the valley below, I was beginning to be despondent when a turn in the road revealed two or three houses which constituted the city of Brecco, and in one of those was a light. I have great reason to remember the city of Brecco for it was a resting place after a long and tedious mountain journey. It was during that night that the rain descended and the floods came, which caused so much suffering in Northern Italy last summer, and I thought of my Master travelling in the wilderness of this world without a place to lay his head.

"He was the son of man. That was condescension, the Son of God becoming the son of man—not the son of Mary, but the idle man, the man of no race or age, having no pecularity so that we could place Him in a particular age but belonging to us as much as He did to John.

"More than the son of man, He did not come into man's best estate but into his worst. All belonged to Him yet He made Himself of no reputation. He was homeless. He had no advantage over us in life because He was divine. He learned obedience by the things. He suffered; in all things He was made like unto His brethren. His divine Nature did not take the place of his rational soul.

"We are struck with the solace of Scripture regarding His home. Was His mother all she might have been to Him? Did she not deem Him beside Himself?

"Christ needed sympathy—needed it because He was human yet His disciples did not realize His plans and they therefore could not sympathize with Him.

"Yet Jesus might have had a home if worldly policy would have secured it. Worldly policy would have secured this eminent lawyer who wanted to follow Him. It was to him Jesus said 'I have no home, My religion is one of self denial.' The scribe was emotional, —too quickly enthusiastic; that which which is soon ripe is soon rotten. Jesus left these three thoughts on the minds of His hearers.

"'My followers must deny self even if it means homelessness, immediately surrender themselves to Me, and give Me an undivided heart.'"

BURNED OUT OF HOUSE AND HOME

Alexander Dunn Loses Heavily by the Flames Last Night.

Alexander Dunn, who lived on the main road leading from Dunellen to Bound Brook, was burned out of house and home at an early hour this morning. The house was one of those old-fashioned and sturdy farmhouses, and had stood in its present position for fifty years or more.

Just how the fire originated has not yet been fully explained, but it is presumed that it started from a kitchen stove, probably overheated. The family escaped, but saved nothing of value. Considering the lateness of the hour, and the somewhat isolated part of the town, only three or four neighbors saw the fire, and they quickly responded and did all in their power to keep the fire from spreading to adjoining buildings.

The Dunellen fire department were not notified and consequently did not report. Mr. Dunn's loss, it is said, is total, as he had no insurance on either the building or contents. The loss will amount to about $5,000.

J. H. Johnson, who is in business in this city, was on his way home to Bound Brook and noticed the fire being around the chimney. Mr. Johnson aroused the sleeping inmates with much difficulty and with their assistance managed to save much of the furniture.

SHOT DOWN BY A DAGO; HELD UP BY ROAD PIRATES

Exciting Escapades at a Scotch Plains Italian Shanty and on a Public Thoroughfare.

Alexander Frazee Rescues a Companion From the Italian Resort and Falls a Victim to a Bullet From a Gun—John Hogan Runs Up Against Highwaymen at Night Time and is Clubbed and Robbed of His Money, Etc.

"He tried to shoot you, Frank!" cried Alex Frazee, "we'll have him arrested," and he shook the door of the Italian shanty so that the glass in the windows rattled. The long double barrel of a shot gun appeared from an upper window, then followed a dirty hand and arm and then the wicked looking face of a crafty Italian. There was a flash, a report and the load of shot entered Frazee's side, just back of the arm, and one of Scotch Plains Italians had become a fugitive from justice. Dominico di Diminico is his name and his victim, Alex Frazee, now lies in a precarious condition at Muhlenburg hospital.

Hezekiah Ryno, Will Louis, and Alex Frazee, all residing on Terrill road near Two Bridges, and Frank Pfister, of 220 East Twenty-fifth street, New York, were out for a walk yesterday morning and wandered over to Scotch Plains. They were strolling along Hunter avenue, between Front street and Midway avenue, and passed by an old Italian shanty. The proprietor of the place stood at the door and invited them to come in and Pfister, more adventurous than the rest, accepted the invitation. Inside he found three Italians and a white woman who crowded around him at once. He tried to escape but they held him and he finally shouted for help. His comrades outside started for the Italian den but before they reached it Pfister threw the Italian one side and rushed out. One of the foreigners ran to another shanty near by while Dominico rushed out, revolver in hand, and fired two shots at Pfister's retreating form. He then rushed into the house and Frazee made the remarks above mentioned.

After Frazee received the contents of the shot gun in the side, he started to run. The Italians in the other house had appeared on the scene and blazed away at Frazee with a shot gun but missed him. He ran quite a distance and then fell Seeing the result of Dominico's shot the Italians scattered.

Frazee's friends made him as comfortable as possible and one went after Dr. Westcott and another after a constable. Dr. Westcott came and looked after the wounded man. He gave him morphine to ease the pain and placed him in a carriage and conveyed him to the Muhlenburg Hospital. In the meantime, no constable could be found for some time and when one was he would make no arrest without a warrant. Of course, the justice of the peace was out of town and they finally came to Plainfield where Justice Newcorn issued the warrant.

The shooting took place at 12 o'clock and the injured man reached the hospital at about three o'clock. Frazee is employed at the freight house. Pfister was visiting here over Sunday. Ryno and Louis are brothers in-law of Frazee and live near him.

Dominico has not yet been captured.

Hackman Tom Burns was unceremoniously roused up at his home late last evening by a man whose face, hands and clothing were covered with blood. He had the voice of John Hogan, of 428 West Third street, however, and he was just able to tell that while on Central avenue, near Road Ending, he was set on by three men and cruelly beaten and robbed. Hogan fought desperately and downed one big highwayman, but the odds were too great and they obtained his watch and pocketbook, which contained a considerable sum of money. Hogan could not distinguish who his assailants were.

They clubbed him until the blood flowed freely and he was scarcely able to walk and then departed with his valuables. He managed to reach Burns' home and the latter took Hogan home in his hack considerably battered up by his rough treatment. His face was cut and he was covered with bruises, he was able to be around today however.

The police were not informed of the affair this morning, so Chief Grant states, and he did not believe anything had happened. A glance, at Hogan speedily dispelled that idea however. The latter did not care to state the amount of his loss.

TO BE HUNG, AND SMILES

THE BOY MURDERER SEEMS NOT TO REALIZE HIS AWFUL FATE

Judge Magie Sentences Elmer Clawson to Be Executed December 16th For the Killing of Farmer Harry Hodgett.

Elmer Clawson, the eighteen-year-old boy who killed Henry Hodgett, the Eedminster farmer, last August, with a revolver, and was tried and convicted of murder in the Supreme Court before Judge Magie at Somerville, came into court this morning with a smile on his pale and somewhat wan face to hear the sentence of the Judge. The boy seemed to be totally oblivious of his impending fate and joked and laughed with those to whom he talked.

William Steele, of the firm of Stelle & Meehan, who defended his case in court, made an eloquent plea for clemency from the court in passing sentence. He spoke at such length that court asked him to close. The sentence was that Clawson should hang to death in jail yard at Somerville on Wednesday, December 16th. The sentence did not seem to affect the prisoner and he left the court room with the same smile that he had entered. He had nothing to say when the court asked him if there was any reason why the sentence should not be pronounced.

Steele & Meehan applied for a new trial but the Judge refused the motion.

A CIVIL MARRIAGE.

City Judge DeMeza Makes Fast the Knot of Love.

The home of James Bowman, corner of Westervelt and Brook avenues, was the scene Saturday afternoon of an unusual wedding when Miss Mary H. Peggie, of Scotland, and Rowland Long, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng., were united in marriage by City Judge George W. DeMeza. The contracting parties are members of the Plymouth Brethern, which denomination has no stated ministers to perform marriages. The ceremony solemnized at 4:30 in the presence of about twenty-five intimate friends. Those who stood up with the bride and groom were A. J. Pollock, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng., and Paul S. Cohn, of Passaic.

After the ceremony an excellent supper was served which was followed by a meeting. The service opened with a prayer and address by Frank Lock, of West Front street. Another address was given by Hughes Fawcett, of Grove street. Mr. and Mrs. Long received a collection of usefel and handsome presents from their friends. They will reside at 313 West Front street.

Mrs. J. W. Reinhart and daughter, Miss Catherine, returned to their Netherwood home on Saturday from Hot Springs, Va., where they have been since September 29th.

COUNT WILL BE SLOW

Much Delay Looked for in Election Returns Next Week.

MANY STATES ADOPT BLANKET BALLOT

Unless the Election Should Prove a Landslide There May Be Many Hours of Anxious Suspense---Fusion Tickets Will Add to the Delay.

Washington, Oct. 26.—The presidential election of Tuesday, Nov. 3, will be held under conditions which have never before prevailed, and which will render the official count a matter of difficulty and unusual delay. Since the last presidential contest almost every state which had not then adopted the Australian ballot system has by state enactment prescribed some form of secret blanket ballot, either based on the Australian plan or closely resembling it. The only exceptions are Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina and South Carolina. In nearly all the other states blanket ballots will be used, and in many of them the count will be complicated by the fact that state, legislative and county nominations are printed on the same ballot with the names of the presidential electors. Connecticut has an envelope system, and New Jersey prints each party ticket on a separate ballot. Should the election be in any way close, it is therefore quite possible that it may be twenty-four hours or even forty-eight hours after the polls close before the result is known with absolute certainly. In states like Nebraska, where there may possibly not be a margin of 5,000 votes either way, it will be impossible to arrive at a correct judgment until all the back counties are heard from. The polls in the cities close at 4 p. m., but the country districts keep open till 5 p. m., and with a governor, a legislature and county officers to elect all on one ballot it will take at least six hours to complete the count. Some idea of the general trend of the votes in Ohio can be obtained from the result of the counties in which Cincinnati and Cleveland are respectively situated and these results will probably be known comparatively earlier. The rest of the state, it is anticipated, will go pretty much as it has done in previous presidential years. The doubtful points are Hamilton and Cuyahoga counties. Chicago will control Illinois. There will be no doubt of the outcome when the vote of Cook county is recorded. But in other doubtful states like Indiana, Michigan and Kansas where state and legislative tickets also complicate the ballots, there will probably be no keynote from which the result can be definitely determined on Tuesday night unless the election should prove a landslide. In that case midnight may give a clear idea who are the victors and who the vanquished. Otherwise there may be many hours of anxious suspense. The last two presidential elections have been singularly free from uncertainty. It was known by 10 p. m., on election day in 1888 that Mr. Harrison had defeated Mr. Cleveland, and is was known with equal certainty at 11 p. m. on election day in 1892 that Mr. Cleveland had defeated Mr. Harrison. But in the election of 1884, when Mr. Cleveland defeated Mr. Blaine, the official result hung in doubt over the vote of New York for four days. The fusion tickets will add a further element in the presidential count this year.

ATTACKS THE CONSTITUTION.

Minister Foster Says All Christian Citizens Should Refuse To Vote.

New York, Oct. 26.—In his sermon yesterday Rev. F. M. Foster of the Third Reformed Presbyterian church in West 23d street said, that as the Constitution of the United States did not recognize God in it all citizens loyal to Christ were debarred from voting. "It is the duty of the Christian to refuse to swear allegiance to the constitution of a government which does not recognize the authority of Almighty God," he said. Mr. Foster said that the laws of God are broken every Sunday by the government, and as an example he cited that "the government will admit into the service of the postoffice department only those who will swear that they will violate the Fourth Commandment and keep the office open on the holy day. The candidate for office must, according to the constitution, swear that he will uphold the laws which contradict the laws of God. The Christian loyal to Christ cannot take such an oath, for if he does he becomes a sharer in all the wickedness which is fostered and protected by this government. As all candidates must take this oath, the Christian citizen is debarred from voting on the principle that he cannot ask another to do what he may not do himself. The Christian citizen cannot vote because the constitution does not require God's qualifications for official trust. Moral qualifications are required in the office-bearer." The Rev. Mr. Foster said, after the sermon, that none of his congregation would vote on election day.

THE COUNT BADENYI.

Father of Austria Prime Minister Was a Polish Cook.

Count Casimir Badenyi, prime minister of Austria, is literally a favorite of fortune. His father was a cook, but no doubt a good one, for, though he came with the queen from her Italian home to Warsaw, he won the affections of his new master, one of the last kings of Poland, and was created a count just two years before the present premier was born. But it was an empty honor at the time, for the newly-made count had no funds with which to maintain the acquired dignity, and when his two sons were born it looked as if they would be obliged to earn their living. But good luck intervened. Their mother's brother, Count Meir, had married the famous German actress, Anna Wierer, and she, childless, took a fancy to her nephews and bequeathed to them at her death her fortune, amounting to several million dollars. This enabled the boys to procure educational advantages suitable to their rank, and upon attaining the suitable age they adopted politics as a pursuit and both achieved success. Count Badenyi is distinguished for his jollity and is without exception the most popular Pole at the Viennese court. He is exceedingly bald, with a well-domed cranium, high cheek bones, a fierce mustache, of medium but strongly-knit stature and the air and bearing of a patrician. He has an imposing and pleasing presence. His fortune, which he spends in the most liberal manner, is estimated at $2,500,000, whereas his younger brother, who is less open-handed, and has just been appointed in Casimir's place as governor of the province of Austria Poland, is credited with a fortune of four times that amount. There is a good deal of resemblance between the new Austrian and the Hungarian prime minister. Baron Banffy, who presides over the council of ministers at Pesth, is a noble of relatively recent creation and is married to a village schoolteacher. When it is realized that the influential classes in both sections of the dual empire are the proudest aristocrats in Europe it will be understood that the two prime ministers must be men of much force of character to have acquired their present positions.

COUNT CASIMIR BADENYI.

You Can't Do It

It isn't possible to boil any oatmeal long enough to break the starch-cells, and so render it digestible. Starch is not converted into digestible material until 250 degrees is reached, and 212 degrees is the maximum boiling temperature. Oatmeal can only be made digestible by dry heat, and is the only oatmeal in which the starch is rendered soluble by bursting the starch granules. This makes it the only safe oatmeal for infants, children, and those of weak digestion.

Be sure and get the package with the big H O on the end.

RT. REV. DR. TEMPLE

Appointed Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of All England.

SUCCEEDS THE LATE DR. BENSON

Born in 1821, the Son of an Officer in the British Army---Author of "Essays and Reviews," Which Caused Much Controversy When Issued.

London, Oct. 26.—The Right Hon. and Right Rev. Frederick Temple, D. D., provincial dean of Canterbury and dean of the chapels royal, has been appointed archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England in the room of the Right Hon. and Most Rev. Edward White Benson, who died suddenly at Hawarden on Oct. 11. The new archbishop of Canterbury is the son of an officer in the army. He was born Nov. 30, 1821, was educated at the grammar school at Tiverton, and, proceeding to Oxford, became scholar of Balliol college and took his degree of B. A. in 1842 as a double first class. He was elected fellow and mathematical tutor of his college and, having been ordained in 1846, was appointed principal of the training college at Kneller hall, near Twickenham, in 1848. This post he resigned in 1855, and having held an inspectorship of schools during the interval, was appointed, on the resignation of Dr. Goulburn, in 1858, head master of Rugby school. Dr. Temple, who was a chaplain to the queen, gained some notoriety in 1860 as the author of the first of the seven "Essays and Reviews" which caused so much controversy soon after their appearance. At the general election of 1868 Dr. Temple took an active part in Warwickshire in support of Mr. Gladstone's measure for the disestablishment of the Irish church; and the premier nominated him to the bishopric of Exeter in succession of the late Dr. Philpotts—an appointment which caused some commotion in clerical circles. The confirmation of Dr. Temple's election took place Dec. 8, 1869, at the church of St. Mary-le-Bow, Cheapside, when Bishop Trower, as the representative of a portion of the clergy who were opposed to Dr. Temple, because he was the author of the "Essays and Reviews," instructed counsel to oppose the election. Counsel were accordingly heard on both sides, and Dr. Temple's election was confirmed by the vicar-general. Dr. Temple received Episcopal consecration at Westminster, Dec. 21, 1869, together with the bishops-elect of Bath and Wells, and of the Falkland islands. Dr. Temple published "Sermons Preached in Rugby Chapel in 1858-60," in 1861. In April, 1883, he was elected Bampton lecturer at Oxford for the ensuing year. On the death of Dr. Jackson in January, 1885, Dr. Temple was appointed bishop of London, and was succeeded at Exeter by Dr. Bickersteth.

Fatal Accident to a Carriage Party.

Amesbury, Mass., Oct. 26.—A fearful accident occurred here yesterday afternoon. Alfred H. Cooms, his wife, a 10-year old boy named Percy, who lived with them, and another boy, a son of Alfred Morrill, started from Mr. Coombs' house at Tuxbury's Corner to drive to Newton, N. H., to attend church, when the horse took fright and plunged over an embankment, throwing them out. Mrs. Coombs' head struck a tree, crushing it into an unrecognizable mass and breaking her neck. Mr. Coombs was rendered unconscious and will probably die. The boy Percy is injured internally, and it is believed he cannot recover.

John Eliot's First Sermon to the Indians.

Newton, Mass., Oct. 26.—November 18, 1646, the apostle to the Indians, John Eliot, preached his first sermon to the Indians at Nonatum, now a portion of the city of Newton. The members of the Eliot church at Newton, which was named for the distinguished apostle, yesterday appropriately celebrated the event. At the morning service Rev. Dr. Ezra H. Byington of Newton preached an historical sermon upon the apostle. The evening service took the form of a union meeting, in which all the divines of the place participated.

Divorced from Margaret Mather.

Milwaukee, Oct. 26.—A decree of divorce has been granted to Col. C. G. Pabst, son of the millionaire brewer and himself a millionaire, from Margaret Mather, the actress. The decree was given to the husband by default on the ground of cruelty and inhuman treatment. The complaint alleged that on Oct. 2, 1895, Mrs. Pabst horsewhipped her husband on the public streets of Milwaukee, following him some nine blocks and repeatedly dealing him blows.

Do Not Like Harper's Theology.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 26.—After a warm debate lasting four hours at the closing session of the Illinois Baptist association on the report of the committee on education, the section endorsing the divinity school of the University of Chicago was defeated by a vote of 72 to 22. Many of the clergymen, especially from the central and southern parts of the state, strongly opposed endorsement, alleging that the theology of President W. R. Harper of the Chicago institution is not sound.

Paderewski in Good Health.

New York, Oct. 26.—In consequence of accounts published in the papers alleging that Paderewski, the renowned pianist, was suffering from illness and was in a broken-down condition at Aix-les-Baines, William Steinway of this city sent a telegraphic message of inquiry to the virtuso, who replied by cable as follows: "In spite of so-called friendly reports, I am enjoying perfect health; at least it is good enough for me."

C. F. CRISP'S FUNERAL

The ex-Speaker's Remains Laid To Rest in Georgia Soil.

AMERICUS PUTS ON MOURNING GARB

The Governor and Staff, Members of the Bar, and a Military Company Take Part in the Last Sad Rites.

Macon, Ga., Oct. 26.—The remains of ex-speaker Charles F. Crisp were interred in Oak Grove cemetery in Americus yesterday afternoon at twilight. The funeral train bearing the body of Georgia's dead statesman left Atlanta at 7:30 a. m. and arrived at Americus, his home, at 2 p. m. The casket, placed in a special car under a guard of honor, had a full glass front, so that his familiar face and form could be viewed by thase who loved and honored him in life and now revere his memory in death. The massive casket was enshrined in the silken folds of the United States flag, while floral tributes of love covered the walls of the car and were piled in profusion in every available space. In the same car, in a closed compartment, were members of the family. At various stations along the route people congregated by thousands and were permitted to take a last look at their departed friend. The remains were accompanied by Gov. Atkinson and staff, delegations from Atlanta and other cities of the state, members of the Georgia bar association, Hon. Hoke Smith, ex-secretary of the interior; ex-senator Patrick Walsh of Augusta, congressmen Chas. L. Bartlett and J. C. C. Black, ex-congressman Barnes, a military escort of commissioned officers of the Fifth Georgia regiment, and several hundred citizens.

Arrival of the Remains at Americus.

When the train arrived at Americus the entire population of the city had gathered at the depot. The vast assemblage stood in silence with uncovered heads to show their respect and grief for the dead. The tolling of bells in the city added to the solemnity of the occasion. The casket was conveyed from the special car to the hearse, which was drawn by four black horses, each led by a sable groom. The Americus Light infantry and a delegation of forty citizens preceded the hearse, and the procession started to the Methodist church. The buildings along the line of march were draped in mourning. At the church one hour was devoted by Mr. Crisp's friends in viewing the remains. It was a solemn procession. After the reading of appropriate passages of scripture and prayer, Gen. Clement A. Evans delivered a funeral oration. His tribute to the deceased was impressively touching. After the conclusion of the services the remains were conveyed to the cemetery. The procession passed by the house in which the Crisp family dwelt years ago. Friends had placed a large arch over the gateway, on which were the words "His Old Home." People lined the sidewalks from the church to the cemetery. Arriving at Oak Grove the military opened ranks and stood at present arms. The remains were carried to the family burial lot, and after a prayer, read by Gen. Evans, the body of the dead statesman was lowered into the grave to sleep beneath the sod of Georgia soil, under southern skies, in the city he loved and the section he served. The deep twilight that accompanied this last act of sorrowful duty added to the gloom of the occasion.

Wheat Conditions in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 26.—Wheat prices throughout Manitoba and the northwest continue at the top notch, being in no way affected by the speculative American markets. Sixty-five cents is the prevailing price and when the big milling companies get after each other the price may be anywhere between seventy cents and a dollar. The government has revised its estimate of the wheat yield of Manitoba, reducing the amount to something less than 15,000,000 bushels. The acreage under wheat was a little short of 1,000,000 acres. This does not include wheat of the northwest territories.

Three Prisoners Break Jail.

Lancaster, Pa., Oct. 26.—A bold escape took place Saturday night from the Lancaster county prison, John Mahoney, Edward Jones and Samuel Smith, who were awaiting trial for house robbery, gaining their liberty. The prisoners with the aid of rough tools made from their iron bedsteads cut a hole in the wall of their cell and scaled the outer wall with a rope made from their bedclothing. The escape was not discovered until several hours later, and as they were in citizens' dress and had a good start there is little prospect that they will be recaptured.

Stage Coaches Robberd.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 26.—Positive information reached this city this morning that both the White Oaks and San Antonio mail coaches have been robbed in the Oscuran mountains as feared. The mail pouches were rifled, the stage horses were stolen and the driver had to walk to the nearest station. The thieves overlooked $2,000 in silver in their hurry. The thieves were recognized as belonging to the same band that held-up another coach several weeks ago.

Relative of Prince of Wales Arrested.

St. Louis, Oct. 26.—V. J. Monerville, said to be a relative of the Prince of Wales and a brother of an English nobleman residing at Feith, near Lenox, England, has been arrested on a charge of receiving $450 from A. R. Saintecroix on a check drawn on the Hibernian bank of Chicago, which the bank declined to cash.

A HASTY ENGAGEMENT.

It is difficult to feel much sympathy for Miss Mary A. McNamara of Elizabeth, who recovered only $75 and costs last week in her suit for breach of promise against Capt. James Cox, when we read that she was the bridesmaid of the first wife of the defendant, and that the alleged promise of marriage was made only three days after the first wife died.

ON TO CANTON.

Three hundred Republicans and gold standard Democrats left Newark last evening for Canton, O., picking up pilgrims at Elizabeth and Trenton. The train was made up of four Pullman sleepers and seven day coaches. The party, through Comptroller Gibson, of Newark, will extend New Jersey's greeting to Major McKinley today, and will reach home on Tuesday.

All of the political candidates have filed their acceptances, and below is a list of those who will call for the votes on Nov. 3d. Likes the West Better Than the East.

Frank Ianson, a former resident of East Third street, together with his wife and three children, left for their home in Hastings, Neb., this morning. They have been east visiting among relatives and friends for a few weeks. Frank is now a most trusted engineer on the Burlington and Missouri Railroad, and it was just five years ago last July since he visited his former home here. Frank says the west suits him exactly, and he has no desire to return east to live. Out there, he says, there is no extreme cold weather, although the winters are quite long but not severe. During this fall he reports that the crops were so abundant that corn sold for 8 cents a bushel, oats at 7 and wheat at 33.

WORLD OF KNOWLEDGE.

PUBLIC EXHIBITION OF BOOKS AT THE LIBRARY.

Presided Over by Society Leaders and Attended by a Large Assemblage of Plainfield's Citizens—The Library Decorated.

The art rooms of the Public Library presented a very charming appearance, last Saturday morning and afternoon, during the exhibit of choice books.

The picture covered walls made a very effective background for the decorations which had transformed the conventionally arranged art gallery into a very attractive drawing-room. The decorating was done under the direction of Miss Margaret E. Meredith, and pretty things for the room were loaned by the women who took part in the exhibit, and also by Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh. Prettily arranged tables, standing here and there, held the books to be exhibited, while smaller ones held plants, banquet lamps and bronzes. Comfortable divans, cosy with cushions, stood at either end of the apartment; handsome chairs were scattered about, and in the very centre of the room was a large century plant, its standard draped with warm crimson.

In the alcove opposite the curtained entrance, at a table covered with very handsome scientific books, the guests found Mrs. Alexander Gilbert. This table was thronged during the entire exhibition with people fascinated with the fine plates and the interesting explanations given by the lady in charge.

At Mrs. Gilbert's left, Miss Van Bosberck was seated at a table containing books on Egyptology, Shepp's "Photographs of the World," "Little Women," printed in raised type for the blind, and other things of interest.

In the corner beyond Miss Van Bosberck, Miss Arnold presided over some charming books on Great Britain. In the opposite corner, Miss Dalziel exhibited a number of exquisite art books. Between this table and the entrance, Miss Leonard and Miss Munger's table was found, with some beautifully illustrated books on the Middle Ages.

At Mrs. Gilbert's right stood a table covered with art books on Florence, presided over by Miss Tracy, while in the corner beyond her Miss Thorn displayed some fine illustrated books on the cathedrals. A tall, draped easle at her left supported a large picture of Lincoln Cathedral, England.

At the right of the center, Miss Erskine's table held some very fine books on costume; at the left center sat Miss Ellis, exhibiting books on United States history, and the American Indians.

Each lady had upon her table a dainty little list of the books which she was exhibiting, the covers charmingly painted in water colors by Miss Grace Flazen.

A steady stream of visitors flowed in and out during the exhibition hourst the crowd in the afternoon being larger than that of the morning. The guests were charmed with the fine books, and it was evident that the exhibit had awakened a new interest in the treasures of the Public Library.

As it began to grow dusky, the camps and candles were lighted, and the scene was even prettier. The guests remained long after the hour set for closing, and it was nearly six o'clock before the last ones departed, bring to a close a thoroughly successful afternoon.

A hacking cough is not only annoying to others, but is dangerous to the person who has it. One Minute Cough Cure will quickly put an end to it. L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

Mrs. John Book, of Irvington, is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. C. Apgar, on Front street.

The mason work on Henry Ludivoci's new house on Jackson avenue was started on Saturday.

Mrs. H. Giles, of Bound Brook, has been the guest of Mrs. Howard Giles here during the past week.

The Misses Sallie and Linnie Emery will be tendered a party at their home on Fourth street tomorrow evening.

Dunellen's crack football team went to Somerville on Saturday and defeated the team there by a score of 24 to 0.

W. H. Carman, who went to Pennsylvania hunting on Saturday, forgot his ammunition and consequently he will not shoot more than he sees.

Edward Hopkins, of Bayonne, is filling Baggagemaster Teale's place, while the latter is scouring the wilds of Pennsylvania in search of game.

James Ready, who left the position as switchman here some fifteen months ago to go to St. Louis, has returned and will hereafter reside and work in Brooklyn.

The gutters in the vicinity of the "Eight row" need immediate attention. In some places the bed of the gutters is even higher than the dooryards, and the surface water naturally runs through the yards.

The carpenter work on Eugene Runyon's new house on Dunellen avenue, started on Thursday last, is progressing most favorably. Weather permitting, the building will be enclosed within the next fortnight.

Mr. Brown, of Park avenue, left out a pail and money on his front porch Friday night, so as to have the pail filled with milk early the next morning. But during the night some mean thief confiscated pail and money both, and the owner had to drink his coffee "in the dark" on Saturday.

Dunellen is to hoist a Democratic banner, and it has arrived. It was consigned to Postmaster P. C. Staats, and arrangements are making for a grand hoisting and demonstration some night this week. The date has not yet been announced, but there will be prominent speakers and fireworks, together with band music.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church held a cake, pie and bread sale in the W.C.T.U. rooms Saturday afternoon, and the receipts were most flattering to the ladies having the matter in charge. The officers of the society, who aided materially in making it the success that it was, are: President, Mrs. J. D. Dunham; treasurer, Mrs. T. B. Bodine; secretary, Miss Rea.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

William E. Bacon, of Haverstraw, N. Y. is visiting Scotch Plains friends.

Lynes Walpole, Jr., while at work around his father's store, on Sunday, fell an severly sprained his right wrist.

Peter J. Collins, a former resident of Plainfield, and now of the New York Morning Journal, will address a political meeting here probably on Wednesday night.

William Hedden, while riding through Scotch Plains on a pleasure trip yesterday afternoon, broke the forks on his wheel, and was obliged to pilot his wheel home on foot.

The electrical engineering and construction company are now working their force of men on full time, in order to fill their orders which are rapidly coming in from various parts of the State.

UNION VILLAGE.

The Methodist church here is being repaired in the best manner possible with the funds left the society by the late Joel Coddington. New fences, sheds and blinds are being added, and the whole building thoroughly repainted.

The Houser farm, owned by the Scotch Plains Baptist church, has been sold to the foreman of Hill's Brewery, Newark, and will be fitted up for a summer residence by the owner.

MOUNT BETHEL.

A large stonecracker is now being erected by Mr. Havey, of Stirling, near the old Dan Cory mill pond, one-half mile east of the village. A contract with the Warren township committee has been made and the people expect to have the best of roads in the near future.

STIRLING.

The large silk mills are to be rebuilt in a better location, and the village will be greatly benefited by the great improvement.

FOR THE REINHART GOLF CUP.

The Preliminaries Played on the Course Last Saturday.

The first competition among the members of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club handicap play for the cup presented by J. W. Reinhart, took place Saturday afternoon on the golf links, Plainfield avenue. There were twenty-eight entries, and only eight members qualified to enter the contest which will take place next Saturday. The conditions were that the eight men with the lowest net scores should compete in match play next Saturday, and the winner is to hold the cup six months, and it must be won three times to become the personal property of a member. Those who qualified last Saturday and the scores made are as follows:

	Gross	Handicap	Net
Wharton, J. H. P.	96	9	87
Anthony, J. S.	98	10	88
Warren, F. D.	98	10	88
Walz, Carl	108	20	88
VanBoskerck, T. R.	119	32	87
Ard, Dr. F. C.	124	34	90
VanBoskerck, George	109	20	89
Grace, Ashley	97	27	70

During the afternoon tea was served in the clubhouse to the large number present. Mr. Atterbury poured tea and was assisted by Miss VanBoskerck, Miss Tracy, Miss Ginna and the Misses Holly. Already there is much interest manifested in the contest for the cup and who will be the first one to secure it. The fact that it will take a long time for a member to own the cup serves to create an increasing interest in the contest.

Senator Stewart to Speak Here.

There is no better known advocate of free silver, unless it is William J. Bryan himself, than Senator William E. Stewart, of Nevada. He has always supported the bi-metalic theory and has played a prominent part in the United States Senate during the last few years. This great silver man will appear in Plainfield on Thursday night when he will speak at the Democratic mass meeting to be held in Music Hall that evening. The Democrats expect to have a big time then and have provided a band for the occasion. Senator Stewart will, of course, be the drawing card. Ladies are invited to the meeting.

A mass meeting of the Democratic voters of the borough and township of North Plainfield, will be held on Wednesday evening in the Gesang and Turn Verein Hall. Rev. John A. Wells, the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Third district, will address the meeting, as will also the Senatorial candidate, George Cramer, likewise the Assemblymanic nominee, William J. Logan, the present able and efficient director the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders. Other speakers will also be present and address the meeting.

Travelled Sixty-Seven Years as a Gypsy.

The tortures and hardships of a band of itinerant gypsies are told in a few words. Valentine Stanley was born in England sixty seven years ago of gypsy parentage and this pursuasion he has ever since followed travelling throughout England, Ireland, and Scotland, and finally twenty years ago coming to this country. Stanley was in town with his rolling residence, wife and child on Saturday. The family had camped the two previous nights near Elizabeth, and from here they went to Bound Brook to remain over Sunday, where they were to proceed to Philadelphia and anchor for the winter. The owner of the caravan is 63 years of age and when he stopped over in this city, he was so crippled up with rheumatism that he could not get out of the wagon.

Features for the Fair.

The G. A. R. fair committee, of which W. W. Coriell is the treasurer, invite the loan of any war relics that persons may have. Gen. Negley and W. D. W. Miller, of this city, and Major Carlton, of Elizabeth, have each loaned valuable collections of relics. Arrangements have been made to have the relics insured without cost. There will be someone present at the fair rooms every afternoon and evening, commencing Wednesday, when goods will be received.

—On election day, commencing at 9 o'clock in the morning, the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will enter the first competition for the championship cup, scratch play, presented by George A. Chapman.

—Charles Debele, who owns a large dairy farm on Rock road, near Clinton avenue, will astonish his neighbors in a few days in the use of a machine for spreading manure on the land, it being the first of its kind in this vicinity.

Tetter, eczema and all similar skin troubles are cured by the use of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It soothes at once, and restores the tissues to their natural condition, and never fails to cure piles. L. W. Randolph 143 West Front street.

THEATRICAL.

The dramatic profession is one of pecular influences of chance and luck, and there is no more significent or apt demonstration of this than the clever farce "My Friend from India," at the Bijou Theater in New York. The author had never been heard of before its production, and its managers, though well known and highly esteemed, had never been associated as proprietors with any metropolitan success. The success of "My Friend from India" means many things. Several theater parties of Plainfielders have seen this piece and are loud in praise of its entertaining merits. Several theater parties for the future are also being arranged.

The Darlington, Wis., Journal says editorially of a popular patent medicine: "We know from experience that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is all that is claimed for it, as on two occasions it stopped excruciating pains and possibly saved us from an untimely grave. We would not rest easy over night without 'in the house.'" This remedy undoubtably saves more pain and suffering than any other medicine in the world. Every family should keep it it in the house, for it is sure to be needed sooner or later. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

GOSSIP FROM BERLIN

Our Presidential Race Watched with Keen Interest in Germany.

NOT INTELLIGENTLY UNDERSTOOD

The Rumor That the Situation Is Such as To Threaten Civil War Ridiculed by the Press---Great Sugar Ring in Process of Formation.

(Copyright, 1896, by the United Associated Presses.)

Berlin, Oct. 26.—The progress of the presidential election campaign in the United States is watched here with the keenest interest, though more from a financial point of view than with any idea of contrasting the social positions occupied by the candidates. It is difficult, however, to get as yet even from the leading newspapers, which devote columns of space to the subject, an intelligent appreciation of the situation. Voluminous letters are received here by mail conveying to Germans the developments of the struggle in which so many millions of their fellow countrymen are interested, but few of the newspapers here follow an intelligent line of argument in discussing the questions which the campaign comprehends. The Vossische Zeitung says it is a rare thing in the political history of the United States to see democrats fighting on the side of the republicans and that it is still more surprising to see the democrats of the eastern states standing up for McKinley, despite the fact that he is the apostle of the doctrine of a high protective tariff, which they have consistently combatted for years.

Ridicules Rumors of Civil War.

The Vossiche, quoting from the New York Handelszeitung in regard to the platform upon which Mr. Bryan is making his campaign, proceeds to argue that neither the principle of the currency nor that of the tariff especially inspires Mr. Bryan and his followers, who, the paper says, simply strive to carry themselves along the old lines of belief that the spoils belong to the victors. The article concludes by saying that neither the victory of McKinley nor the success of Bryan can ultimately affect the economic movement in the United States, which depends upon causes far beyond the struggle which is now taking place between the great political parties of America. This may or may not be true, but the Vossische ventures nothing in saying so. The paper also ridicules the rumors which have been current in the columns of the English newspapers, furnished by their American correspodents, and which have been reproduced here, that the situation in the United States is such at the present time that a very narrow issue could involve civil war. and says that the Germans, comprising a considerable part of the American populace, would at all events accept the result of the election without the slightest dream of revolt against the voice of the majority as expressed by the suffrages of the people. The Kreuz Zeitung is rather inclined to support Bryan against the gold men, and denies that his speeches can be construed as a menace of rebellion, as his opponents have alleged.

Gigantic Sugar Monopoly.

It is reported that a sugar ring is in process of formation whose membership will consist of 400 German sugar manufacturers. This organization proposes to establish a central point for the sale of the products of German sugar manufacturies and negotiations are in progress with a view of connecting the organization with the Austrian and Russian sugar trusts. The Freisinnige Zeitung, in an article announcing the proposed formation of this ring, characterizes the scheme as a gross outrage having for its object the exploitation of consumers in an attempt to cement an oppressive German sugar monopoly. The scheme, the Zeitung says, must be suppressed at all hazards. The Bismarckian newspaper organs in their comments upon the marriage of the Prince of Naples, crown prince of Italy, to Princess Helene of Montenegro, connects the incident with an English intrigue, whose object is to isolate Germany and cause the withdrawal of Italy from the dreibund. Maximilian Harden, writing to the Zukunft says that the Dreibund is now only an external semblance of an alliance. Germany, he says, cannot reckon upon her allies, as she knows full well that Russia may at any moment give her assent at the scheme of an enemy (France) frantic for revenge. The Zukunft in its comments upon the communication, traces the present position of the efforts to conciliate the czar.

Receipts Under the Raines Law.

Albany, Oct. 26.—State Excise Commissioner Lyman announces that the total receipts under the Raines liquor tax law to date amounts to $11,007,615.57. The amount rebated upon surrender of liquor tax certificates, which have occurred principally in the cases of summer hotels, summer boat lines, and excursion steamers, aggregates so far $175,993.78, and the rebates yet due and unpaid amount to $62,139.52. The balance remaining after payment of rebates is, Mr. Lyman says, $10,769,512.28.

Foul Play Suspected.

Providence, Oct. 26.—Chief of Police Baker has been asked by the district attorney of Schoffer, Delaware county, Pa., to exhume the body of Mrs. A. H. Postel, who died in Chester, Pa., two weeks ago, and who was buried in this city. Foul play by poisoning is suspected.

Death of a British Baronet.

London, Oct. 26.—Sir Albert Abdullah David Sassoon, baronet, died at his residence, in Eastern terrace, Brighton, Saturday night.

CUBAN INSURRECTION.

Rebel Reverses Reported---Evidence That the Dauntless Is a Filibuster.

Havana, Oct. 26.—General Gonzalez Munoz, commanding the Spanish troops operating in the northern division of the province of Pinar del Rio, reports that his division has occupied the camp of the insurgents at Carajicara. The rebels made a strong resistance to the advance of the Spaniards at the San Miguel pass, but were compelled to retire leaving thirteen of their number dead on the field. The Spaniards lost one killed and five wounded. The rebels, who were commanded by Maceo, after abandoning Carajicara attacked the trocha at Artemisa, firing twenty-five cannon shots and volleys of musketry, but they were eventually repulsed. The garrison at Artemisa had one man wounded. Documents captured by the rebels prove that the expedition which landed at Rio Hondo, near Cienfuegos, recently, was disembarked from the steamer Dauntless.

BOMBARDMENT OF ARTEMISA.

Cubans Hurl Grenades Loaded with Dynamite into the Town.

New York, Oct. 26.—A special cable dispatch to the Herald from Havana says: The Herald's correspondent at Artemisa details Maceo's attack on the night of the 22d. He says that at 10:15 p. m. tremendous explosions were heard, followed quickly by others. Soon the bombs commenced to fall in the streets, bursting and causing horrible destruction. Gen. Arolas, in command of the garrison, animated his forces, giving an example of great valor in personally directing the defense. The cannonade lasted three-quarters of an hour. The enemy fired thirty-two cylindrical grenades, loaded with grape shot and dynamite, fifty-five centimetres long and seven wide. The bombardment caused consternation and terror in the town. Women and children rushed from their homes and huddled in the best protected places. Many houses were completely destroyed and others more or less damaged. Up to the present time five residents are known to have been killed, including a girl of eleven years and a colored woman. Among the wounded were six children, ranging from two months to ten years old; ten women, nine men, and one private soldier of the local garrison.

New Jersey's Greeting to Maj. McKinley.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 26.—Three hundred republicans and democrats left the Market street station of the Pennsylvania railroad at [illegible] morning for Canton, O., picking up others at Elizabeth and Trenton. The train was made up of four Pullman sleepers and seven day coaches. The party through Comptroller Gibson, of this city, will extend New Jersey's greeting to William McKinley. They reached Canton at 9 a. m. to-day, and will leave that city at 5:30 p. m., arriving ot Newark at 8 p. m. to-morrow.

Sag Harbor Soldiers' Monument.

Sag Harbor, L. I., Oct. 26.—The soldiers' monument was unveiled Saturday and the parade and other exercises were under the auspices of the Edwin A. Rose G. A. R. post. The fire department and school children paraded, and the Rev. John J. Harrison delivered an address. The monument is sixteen feet high, and has three polished bases surmounted by a soldier standing at parade rest. Patriotic sentiments are inscribed on the four sides of the base.

Republicans Claim Nebraska.

Linclon, Neb., Oct. 26.—Chairman George W. Post of the republican state central committee to-day gave out his first official estimate of the election result in Nebraska in the following words: "Nebraska is unquestionably republican and will on November 3 be found the republican column. A most conservative poll of the state just completed shows a clear republican majority of both state and national tickets of not less than 18,000."

Another Demand on the Porte.

London, Oct. 26.—The Telegraph today publishes a dispatch from Constantinople saying that the dragomans of the six great powers have together attended the porte on behalf of the embassies, conveying a joint note calling for the withdrawal of the imperial irade decreeing a forced levy of from five to twenty piastres each upon 12,000,000 subjects with a view of arming the Moslem populace.

CHAPTER V

It will be remembered that Muncey with a fleet horse had probably an hour's start of his pursuers, possibly more, that he had dropped in at the old post long enough to give them warning, and then had ridden away for Kelly's. "Just as quick as I've warned the old man I'll come back to you," he called to Lieut. Crane, who had thanked him somewhat inadequately for the service rendered. Crane shared the universal suspicion, perhaps, and disbelieved Muncey's report on general principles. Muncey was spurring off when Crane hailed him: "You must have met Leon a mile or so out. Didn't you turn him back?" And Muncey whirled around in saddle, evidently astonished and for a moment confused.

"Leon! Never saw nothin' of him—or anybody," he muttered. "Never knew he was back here—at least—er—I didn't know it until I heard a rumor of it to-night." Evidently it wouldn't do for Mr. Muncey to tell that lie, as it would soon be known how they had been talking but a few hours before of Leon's return. "How'd you come to let him go?" he queried, turning about again and apparently forgetting his urgent mission to Kelly's.

"Well, he never stopped to ask me," said Mr. Crane, which was very true. "But I can't understand how you missed each other if you kept the road. However, go ahead and warn Kelly, and then come back here and we'll talk about Leon."

And Muncey had gone on to Kelly's, but that was the last seen of him, despite the fact that he gave Kelly to understand that he must hurry over to Crane again at once. Ferguson and his friends came galloping in to old Retribution and stirring up the guard, and they could tell of Leon's safe arrival within easy range of the new post, and of their warning him to stay there, but they, too, had pushed on over to Kelly's, and thence, scoffing at Kelly's story of Muncey's return to the outpost, and telling him the man was a liar, which Kelly already knew, and a horse thief, which he more than suspected, they had ridden straight back past the lower gate of the canyon and made for the trail to Raton Springs. Whether they had met or had escaped the Indians no one could tell. The fate of Muncey and his pursuers became for the time being a secondary consideration. Thornton's first effort was to ascertain what had become of Leon.

With any luck at all the boy should have got back to the old post by three or a quarter past three in the morning. Crane and his little guard, Mrs. Downey and her sympathizing friends, however, had reasoned that he would not be allowed to attempt to return, and so had ceased to look for him. Crane conveyed to the woman the tidings brought by Ferguson, for up to that moment he had disbelieved Muncey's wild tale. Then, doubling his sentries, but telling the rest of his party to lie down and rest, he coolly sprawled himself on his blankets and went to sleep. The next thing he knew it was nearly dawn, and the sentries had roused the guard. Springing to his feet, Crane demanded the cause of the alarm, and was told there was firing up by Kelly's ranch. It was still dark, though the eastern sky was beginning to flush as the little detachment quickly, noiselessly assembled in the starlight in front of the old guard house. Two veteran war soldiers, Tracey and Collins, were on post at the time, and both declared that there had been a rapid fusillade—at least a dozen shots. It could have come from nowhere but Kelly's, said they, though from their stations they could not see the farm buildings. Corporal Foot, on duty, was inside the corral wall when the distant firing began, and ran for the gateway at once, but it had ceased by the time he got to a point whence Kelly's ranch was visible.

Then for a moment the lieutenant was in a quandary. His orders required him to send to and fire the beacon at the butte if the Apaches appeared in the valley, but this might not have been Apaches at all. It might have well been a skirmish between the horse thief and his pursuers, who had tracked him to some refuge near Kelly's. That was a matter in which military interference could hardly have been tolerated. Settlers and frontiersmen, though eager enough to have the army look after the Indians, much prefer to dispose of their own reprobates in their own way. If an attack had been made by Apaches it was speedily over, for not another sound was heard. Within the corral the women and children, however, had been aroused by the suppressed excitement, and Kelly's daughters were now clamoring to be allowed to go to see if all was well with father and mother, and Crane ordered a corporal and two men to mount, ride thither and ascertain what had happened. In ten minutes they rode away, and in ten minutes more were back again, driven in by a sharp and sudden volley from the thicket along the Sandy, not five hundred yards up stream. The prowlers had so secreted themselves as to enable them to command the road leading to Kelly's and the canyon, reasoning, no doubt, that some of the troop would be sent up to reconnoiter. Crane had never fought Apaches before, but this served to convince him. He reasoned that the bottom was full of Tontos, that they surrounded him on every side and that the only thing for him to do was to dispose his little force as best to defend the terrified women and children and hold out against overpowering numbers until relief reached him from the fort. He now thought it high time to fire the beacon, but who was to do it with Apaches watching every pathway? How could anyone hope to reach that outlying butte? Every minute it was growing lighter, however, and as soon as broad day came he determined to make the attempt, and then Downey, also an ex-dragoon and a stalwart settler, took a hand in questioning the corporal who, with his fellows, had been driven in unhurt, yet a trifle demoralized. Neither horse nor man had a scratch, yet everybody had heard the fusillade—six or eight rapid shots almost bunched. "I never knew Apaches to fire so many shots before," said he, "and miss. You're sure they weren't more'n ten yards away?"

"Certain sure," said the corporal. "Certain sure," said his followers, two good looking young troopers. Then after a moment's pondering Downey said he believed he could get to the butte in safety, and he'd go and fire the pile, whereat the women began to wail again and the lieutenant to protest, and right in the midst of the discussion somebody shouted "Hurrah!" and a column of smoke, speedily bursting into flame, shot upward toward the zenith from the summit of the old butte, and everybody thought how plucky a thing it was in Kelly to creep out there and climb that jagged bowlder strewn cone in the dim morning light, set fire to the ever ready stack of wood and steal back to his lair. They were talking of it when broad daylight and Kelly came in together.

"The blackguards ran off my mules," he said, with a fierce oath, "and killed poor Bustamente. There can't be more'n six all told. Can't the lieutenant spare me a few men to go after them? They've all skipped off for the Socorro." But Crane said he'd go himself with a dozen men if need be, for he had been chafing at the idea of having done nothing at all and was eager to retrieve himself ere relief could reach them and the chance be gone.

"The bottom must be clear if you came across from the butte," he said, "and very likely they'll run for all they are worth."

"Yes, the bottom's clear enough, sir, though I haven't been near the butte—"

"You haven't? Then who fired the beacon?"

"I'm sure I don't know, sir. I thought, of course, some of this party had been sent over to do so."

And then men began looking into each other's faces, bewildered. If not by some one at Kelly's or here at the post who could have scaled the butte and started the signal fire? Already a lookout, peering eastward through the lieutenant's binocular, reported a dust cloud far up the rise toward the new post—the coming of the reinforcements—and if Crane meant to do anything at all now was the time.

"THEN WHO FIRED THE BEACON?"

"I'll leave you to find out who did it, sergeant," he said. "We'll go on after the mules. Perhaps the Apaches did it themselves as a joke."

"Apaches don't joke," growled the old man, with gloomy face, as the detachment trotted away. "There's been no joke from one end of this night to the other, but there's been some stupid blundering on somebody's part, or I'm a recruit." And then, turning to one of his daughters, who stood silently by, he said, briefly: "Fetch me the pony, Kate. I'll ride back to your mother."

"Sure, didn't you know yet, father? 'Twas Leon took it to ride to the fort for medicine for Mrs. Downey."

And thus for the first time was the veteran trooper made aware that his little friend and foundling had dared that midnight ride. Fiercely he broke forth:

"And was there no man among ye?" he turned to the silent group of soldiers left behind. "No man among ye fit to do a man's work that ye should let a boy, baby ride into the teeth of them Indian divils? Where were you, Phil Downey, that you should send a kid like that for yer wife's poppy sauce?"

"Where was I but tending to my own business, as you were, Sergt. Kelly," answered the other veteran, stoutly, for between the two ex-dragoons and rival ranchmen little love was wasted. "Of course, if I'd been here, 'tisn't Leon or anybody else would have gone for medicine but me, as you ought to have sense enough to know if you weren't so keen to be saddling blame on other fellows' shoulders and so diverting it from your own. Me and Mike spent the night at our ranch, as you did at yours, and niver came up till we heard the firing." And Downey's eyes flashed angrily on his more prosperous neighbor. "I haven't a gov'ment post or a gov'ment arsenal to dhraw on to defind me property and I have to do it meself," he added in withering sarcasm, and if anything would stir old Kelly's wrath to the nethermost depths it was the faintest hint that he ever used so much as a single cartridge of all the ordnance stores confided to his care.

"'Tis no time for settling our scores, Phil Downey, or you and I would expind a few 45's as soldiers and gintlemen did in the days when more gintlemen and fewer frauds were soldiering. Go to yer wife that's always dyin' if she has an ache, and I'll to mine, that's never known what it was to whimper, and she and I will see what we can do to find the brave little lad that's gone to die for you and yours—for by me sowl the hand that lit yon blazing signal was his, as sure as this," and he clinched a hairy fist under Downey's nose, "is at yer service in any way ye'll have it, Mr. Phil Downey—an' it won't be the first batin' it gave ye."

With that he turned his back on a shamefaced group and strode fiercely away in the direction of his home. Never until that instant had it seemed to dawn upon them that by any human possibility Leon had striven to return—had found the Indians interposed between him and the old post in the valley, and then realizing what its original projectors had not thought possible—that the Indians had probably so closely invested the post itself as to prevent anyone's getting out to fire the beacon—he had risked his own brave life in the attempt; had given the signal that brought rescue to them at the gallop, and in so doing had betrayed his own presence to the lurking foe. Here again, therefore, was a case where the ground remained in the hands of one party, but all the telling blows were dealt by the other. The soldiers had felt the sting of Kelly's words. True, no one of their number had been ordered to make that perilous ride, though all had heard Mrs. Downey's cries and moans and appeals for aid, and some one might have volunteered and been allowed to go, but not until Leon was well on his way. True, had Downey been there he would not have permitted the sacrifice, and was now ready to bitterly upbraid his weaker half for inspiring it. A good woman in many a way was Mrs. Downey, and very fond of the boys, Randall and Leon, but the least pain or illness prostrated her, and a serious pain frightened her to the verge of distraction. All this Leon was too young to appreciate. He believed her suffering terribly and in dire need, as did all who heard her, perhaps, but Kelly's girls and her own Mexican maid of all work—and so, just as he thought Randy would have done had he been there, he determined to go and went without a word to Crane, who might have stopped him, as, indeed, Mrs. Downey was shrewd enough to declare he would if he happened to hear of it.

"IT WON'T BE THE FIRST BATIN' IT GAVE YE."

And now Crane and his party were well away into the Socorro in pursuit, and Kelly, returning wrathful to his home, was anticipated in his search for Leon by the coming of Turner's troop, followed within a moment or two by Charlton's dramatic announcement of the discovery of the slaughtered pony.

Half an hour later while the old sergeant was bending over and examining the stiffened carcass of his pet broncho, Turner's best scouts, afoot, were scouring every square yard of those jagged, bowlder strewn flanks of the butte in search of Leon's trail or that of his Indian foes. Others were examining the signs in the timber and along the Sandy, and the more they found the more they were mystified. Apaches, as a rule, in those days were foot warriors. The Tontos, Sierra Blancas, Hualpais, Apache Mohaves and Apache Yumas had small use for horse or mule, yet there were more hoof than moccasin prints in the timber and around Kelly's corral. What was more, both mules and horses were shod. That meant that they had run off a good deal of stock and were riding instead of walking.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? CHAPTER V

It will be remembered that Muncey with a fleet horse had probably an hour's start of his pursuers, possibly more, that he had dropped in at the old post long enough to give them warning, and then had ridden away for Kelly's. "Just as quick as I've warned the old man I'll come back to you," he called to Lieut. Crane, who had thanked him somewhat inadequately for the service rendered. Crane shared the universal suspicion, perhaps, and disbelieved Muncey's report on general principles. Muncey was spurring off when Crane hailed him: "You must have met Leon a mile or so out. Didn't you turn him back?" And Muncey whirled around in saddle, evidently astonished and for a moment confused.

"Leon! Never saw nothin' of him—or anybody," he muttered. "Never knew he was back here—at least—er—I didn't know it until I heard a rumor of it to-night." Evidently it wouldn't do for Mr. Muncey to tell that lie, as it would soon be known how they had been talking but a few hours before of Leon's return. "How'd you come to let him go?" he queried, turning about again and apparently forgetting his urgent mission to Kelly's.

"Well, he never stopped to ask me," said Mr. Crane, which was very true. "But I can't understand how you missed each other if you kept the road. However, go ahead and warn Kelly, and then come back here and we'll talk about Leon."

And Muncey had gone on to Kelly's, but that was the last seen of him, despite the fact that he gave Kelly to understand that he must hurry over to Crane again at once. Ferguson and his friends came galloping in to old Retribution and stirring up the guard, and they could tell of Leon's safe arrival within easy range of the new post, and of their warning him to stay there, but they, too, had pushed on over to Kelly's, and thence, scoffing at Kelly's story of Muncey's return to the outpost, and telling him the man was a liar, which Kelly already knew, and a horse thief, which he more than suspected, they had ridden straight back past the lower gate of the canyon and made for the trail to Raton Springs. Whether they had met or had escaped the Indians no one could tell. The fate of Muncey and his pursuers became for the time being a secondary consideration. Thornton's first effort was to ascertain what had become of Leon.

With any luck at all the boy should have got back to the old post by three or a quarter past three in the morning. Crane and his little guard, Mrs. Downey and her sympathizing friends, however, had reasoned that he would not be allowed to attempt to return, and so had ceased to look for him. Crane conveyed to the woman the tidings brought by Ferguson, for up to that moment he had disbelieved Muncey's wild tale. Then, doubling his sentries, but telling the rest of his party to lie down and rest, he coolly sprawled himself on his blankets and went to sleep. The next thing he knew it was nearly dawn, and the sentries had roused the guard. Springing to his feet, Crane demanded the cause of the alarm, and was told there was firing up by Kelly's ranch. It was still dark, though the eastern sky was beginning to flush as the little detachment quickly, noiselessly assembled in the starlight in front of the old guard house. Two veteran war soldiers, Tracey and Collins, were on post at the time, and both declared that there had been a rapid fusillade—at least a dozen shots. It could have come from nowhere but Kelly's, said they, though from their stations they could not see the farm buildings. Corporal Foot, on duty, was inside the corral wall when the distant firing began, and ran for the gateway at once, but it had ceased by the time he got to a point whence Kelly's ranch was visible.

Then for a moment the lieutenant was in a quandary. His orders required him to send to and fire the beacon at the butte if the Apaches appeared in the valley, but this might not have been Apaches at all. It might have well been a skirmish between the horse thief and his pursuers, who had tracked him to some refuge near Kelly's. That was a matter in which military interference could hardly have been tolerated. Settlers and frontiersmen, though eager enough to have the army look after the Indians, much prefer to dispose of their own reprobates in their own way. If an attack had been made by Apaches it was speedily over, for not another sound was heard. Within the corral the women and children, however, had been aroused by the suppressed excitement, and Kelly's daughters were now clamoring to be allowed to go to see if all was well with father and mother, and Crane ordered a corporal and two men to mount, ride thither and ascertain what had happened. In ten minutes they rode away, and in ten minutes more were back again, driven in by a sharp and sudden volley from the thicket along the Sandy, not five hundred yards up stream. The prowlers had so secreted themselves as to enable them to command the road leading to Kelly's and the canyon, reasoning, no doubt, that some of the troop would be sent up to reconnoiter. Crane had never fought Apaches before, but this served to convince him. He reasoned that the bottom was full of Tontos, that they surrounded him on every side and that the only thing for him to do was to dispose his little force as best to defend the terrified women and children and hold out against overpowering numbers until relief reached him from the fort. He now thought it high time to fire the beacon, but who was to do it with Apaches watching every pathway? How could anyone hope to reach that outlying butte? Every minute it was growing lighter, however, and as soon as broad day came he determined to make the attempt, and then Downey, also an ex-dragoon and a stalwart settler, took a hand in questioning the corporal who, with his fellows, had been driven in unhurt, yet a trifle demoralized. Neither horse nor man had a scratch, yet everybody had heard the fusillade—six or eight rapid shots almost bunched. "I never knew Apaches to fire so many shots before," said he, "and miss. You're sure they weren't more'n ten yards away?"

"Certain sure," said the corporal. "Certain sure," said his followers, two good looking young troopers. Then after a moment's pondering Downey said he believed he could get to the butte in safety, and he'd go and fire the pile, whereat the women began to wail again and the lieutenant to protest, and right in the midst of the discussion somebody shouted "Hurrah!" and a column of smoke, speedily bursting into flame, shot upward toward the zenith from the summit of the old butte, and everybody thought how plucky a thing it was in Kelly to creep out there and climb that jagged bowlder strewn cone in the dim morning light, set fire to the ever ready stack of wood and steal back to his lair. They were talking of it when broad daylight and Kelly came in together.

"The blackguards ran off my mules," he said, with a fierce oath, "and killed poor Bustamente. There can't be more'n six all told. Can't the lieutenant spare me a few men to go after them? They've all skipped off for the Socorro." But Crane said he'd go himself with a dozen men if need be, for he had been chafing at the idea of having done nothing at all and was eager to retrieve himself ere relief could reach them and the chance be gone.

"The bottom must be clear if you came across from the butte," he said, "and very likely they'll run for all they are worth."

"Yes, the bottom's clear enough, sir, though I haven't been near the butte—"

"You haven't? Then who fired the beacon?"

"I'm sure I don't know, sir. I thought, of course, some of this party had been sent over to do so."

And then men began looking into each other's faces, bewildered. If not by some one at Kelly's or here at the post who could have scaled the butte and started the signal fire? Already a lookout, peering eastward through the lieutenant's binocular, reported a dust cloud far up the rise toward the new post—the coming of the reinforcements—and if Crane meant to do anything at all now was the time.

"THEN WHO FIRED THE BEACON?"

"I'll leave you to find out who did it, sergeant," he said. "We'll go on after the mules. Perhaps the Apaches did it themselves as a joke."

"Apaches don't joke," growled the old man, with gloomy face, as the detachment trotted away. "There's been no joke from one end of this night to the other, but there's been some stupid blundering on somebody's part, or I'm a recruit." And then, turning to one of his daughters, who stood silently by, he said, briefly: "Fetch me the pony, Kate. I'll ride back to your mother."

"Sure, didn't you know yet, father? 'Twas Leon took it to ride to the fort for medicine for Mrs. Downey."

And thus for the first time was the veteran trooper made aware that his little friend and foundling had dared that midnight ride. Fiercely he broke forth:

"And was there no man among ye?" he turned to the silent group of soldiers left behind. "No man among ye fit to do a man's work that ye should let a boy, baby ride into the teeth of them Indian divils? Where were you, Phil Downey, that you should send a kid like that for yer wife's poppy sauce?"

"Where was I but tending to my own business, as you were, Sergt. Kelly," answered the other veteran, stoutly, for between the two ex-dragoons and rival ranchmen little love was wasted. "Of course, if I'd been here, 'tisn't Leon or anybody else would have gone for medicine but me, as you ought to have sense enough to know if you weren't so keen to be saddling blame on other fellows' shoulders and so diverting it from your own. Me and Mike spent the night at our ranch, as you did at yours, and niver came up till we heard the firing." And Downey's eyes flashed angrily on his more prosperous neighbor. "I haven't a gov'ment post or a gov'ment arsenal to dhraw on to defind me property and I have to do it meself," he added in withering sarcasm, and if anything would stir old Kelly's wrath to the nethermost depths it was the faintest hint that he ever used so much as a single cartridge of all the ordnance stores confided to his care.

"'Tis no time for settling our scores, Phil Downey, or you and I would expint a few 45's as soldiers and gintlemen did in the days when more gintlemen and fewer frauds were soldiering. Go to yer wife that's always dyin' if she has an earache, and I'll to mine, that's never known what it was to whimper, and she and I will see what we can do to find the brave little lad that's gone to die for you and yours—for by me sowl the hand that lit yon blazing signal was his, as sure as this," and he clinched a hairy fist under Downey's nose, "is at yer service in any way ye'll have it, Mr. Phil Downey—an' it won't be the first batin' it gave ye."

With that he turned his back on a shame-faced group and strode fiercely away in the direction of his home. Never until that instant had it seemed to dawn upon them that by any human possibility Leon had striven to return—had found the Indians interposed between him and the old post in the valley, and then realizing what its original projectors had not thought possible—that the Indians had probably so closely invested the post itself as to prevent anyone's getting out to fire the beacon—he had risked his own brave life in the attempt; had given the signal that brought rescue to them at the gallop, and in so doing had betrayed his own presence to the lurking foe. Here again, therefore, was a case where the ground remained in the hands of one party, but all the telling blows were dealt by the other. The soldiers had felt the sting of Kelly's words. True, no one of their number had been ordered to make that perilous ride, though all had heard Mrs. Downey's cries and moans and appeals for aid, and some one might have volunteered and been allowed to go, but not until Leon was well on his way. True, had Downey been there he would not have permitted the sacrifice, and was now ready to bitterly upbraid his weaker half for inspiring it. A good woman in many a way was Mrs. Downey, and very fond of the boys, Randall and Leon, but the least pain or illness prostrated her, and a serious pain frightened her to the verge of distraction. All this Leon was too young to appreciate. He believed her suffering terribly and in dire need, as did all who heard her, perhaps, but Kelly's girls and her own Mexican maid of all work—and so, just as he thought Randy would have done had he been there, he determined to go and went without a word to Crane, who might have stopped him, as, indeed, Mrs. Downey was shrewd enough to declare he would if he happened to hear of it.

And now Crane and his party were well away into the Socorro in pursuit, and Kelly, returning wrathful to his home, was anticipated in his search for Leon by the coming of Turner's troop, followed within a moment or two by Charlton's dramatic announcement of the discovery of the slaughtered pony.

Half an hour later while the old sergeant was bending over and examining the stiffened carcass of his pet broncho, Turner's best scouts, afoot, were scouring every square yard of those jagged, bowlder strewn flanks of the butte in search of Leon's trail or that of his Indian foes. Others were examining the signs in the timber and along the Sandy, and the more they found the more they were mystified. Apaches, as a rule, in those days were foot warriors. The Tontos, Sierra Blancas, Hualpais, Apache Mohaves and Apache Yumas had small use for horse or mule, yet there were more hoof than moccasin prints in the timber and around Kelly's corral. What was more, both mules and horses were shod. That meant that they had run off a good deal of stock and were riding instead of walk-

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? CAUGHT UP ON GRIDIRON.

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

With shuttered wing and tail feathers almost gone, Westfield's once mighty bird of victory lieth prone in the dust, and kicketh feebly for existence while briney tears flow fast from its one remaining eye. Above all the powerful bird from Plainfield proclaims her victory over her opponent in no uncertain notes by a score of 28 to 0. Yes, the long anticipated football game between the rival elevens of Plainfield and Westfield was played Saturday afternoon in this city and the Plainfield boys carried everything before them.

It was a good game, especially to the eyes of the Plainfield spectators who crowded along the side lines to the number of several hundred. It was well fought and the victors won the battle by their superb team play and excellent individual work. There was an absence of slugging that was very satisfactory to both audience and participants. The visitors were a gentlemenly lot of fellows and worked hard for victory but it was not to be. The audience was the largest that has witnessed a game on the gridiron in Plainfield this year and it was a mightily enthusiastic one, yelling unitedly or individually most of the time so that the noise could be heard blocks away. A number of the old baseball cranks were there and rooted for Plainfield in old time fashion.

Plainfield had a strong team on the field, not a special one for the occasion either, but the regular eleven. The teams lined up as follows:

PLAINFIELD Y. M. C. A.		WESTFIELD.
Serrell	right end	Richardson
Dupee	right tackle	R. Wherry
Brown	right guard	Wyckoff
Cuming	centre	Ayres
Milne	left guard	Bussing
Peck	left end	Griswold
Freeman capt.	quarter back	Post
Cathcart	right half back	Carberry Capt
Smith	left half back	H. Harbisen
Darling-Simmonds	full back	Crooks

Touchdowns—Smith 2, Catheart, Simmonds, Dupee. Goals kicked—Darling, Simmonds 3. Referee—Fred A. Wenck, of New York. Umpire—A. J. Burchill, of Syracuse University. Linesmen—A. Willis West, of Plainfield, and Mr. Mangam, of Westfield.

Plainfield defended the eastern goal and had the kick off. Westfield caught the ball on the kickoff only to lose it at once on four downs. Cathcart bucked the line for eight yards and then the other backs assisted in steadily forcing the ball toward Westfield's goal. The visitors fought fiercely but great gaps were torn in their line into which the Plainfield boys plunged for good gains. At the twelve yard line, Smith was carried around the right end by good interference and fell across the goal line for a touchdown. Lovell missed the goal which was rather hard. Score, Plainfield, 4; Westfield, 0. Time, 5 minutes.

The ball came back from where Westfield kicked it and was steadily advanced. Dupee and Lovell made several splendid gains through tackle while the Plainfield boys repeatedly pushed their opponents a number of yards on a centre. Smith carried the ball for eight yards around the right end to the four-yard line and then Catchcart was dragged and pushed through left tackle for another touchdown. Darling kicked the goal. Score: Plainfield, 10; Westfield, 0.

Plainfield used her kicking tactics and Darling punted the ball far down the field. Cathcart recovered it for Plainfield on a fumble, but it was lost soon after on four downs. Plainfield obtained possession of it again the same way and carried it to Westfield's four-yard line when time was called

In the second half, Darling retired and Simmonds took his place at full-back. Simmonds tried to avoid a Westfield back and ran backward only to be downed for a loss, Plainfield then losing the ball on four downs. In the next play, Smith threw Harbisen so hard that he dropped the ball, and a Plainfielder fell on it. On a quarter-back trick, Freeman went through a hole in Westfield's line and had an open field before him when he stumbled and fell. Plainfield was given five yards in offside play and then, guarded by the other backs and ends, Smith circled the right end and ran twenty-five yards down the field o the goal line under Simmonds excellent interference. Simmond punted out to Lovell and then kicked the goal. Score: Plainfield, 16; Westfield, 0.

The ball started on its usual journey for Westfield's goal, when Simmonds hit the line and passed through. He ran forty yards before Crooks downed him. Plainfield finally lost the ball on four downs on Westfield's ten-yard line only to get it again the same way. Brown bucked the line and never stopped until within a yard of the goal and then Simmonds was pushed over for another touchdown. He kicked the goal. Score: Plainfield, 22; Westfield, 0.

Depue returned the ball after the kick off and punted far up the field. Crooks kicked, but for only ten yards. Post, Westfield's quarterback, sprained his ankle and Richardson took his place. Sunday played end instead of Richardson. The Plainfield boys played fast and carried the ball right up the field again and then, five yards from the goal, Dupee found an excellent opening at left tackle and dashed across the line for a touchdown. Simmonds kicked the goal. Score: Plainfield, 28; Westfield, 0.

Time was called soon after with the ball in the center of the field and team and rooters executed a war-dance about their gallant captain, "Teddy" Freeman, under whose careful direction the game was handily won. 'Twas a great victory, there's no doubt of it.

Alis Won at the Plains.

Great things were expected of the Scotch Plains eleven in their game with the Alis football team, of this city, Saturday afternoon on the Scotch Plains gridiron, but the Plainfield boys sustained their reputation, despite the fact that their team was weakened by the loss of two of the regular players, and won easily by the score of 30 to 0. The Alis boys put up their usual excellent game and won by the superiority of their team play and interference. The quarter trick was worked very successfully while, on the double pass, Peck rounded the left end and ran sixty yards for a touchdown. Woltmann and McCullough were two new men, but both put up an excellent game and had no trouble in landing their opponents on the line. The two teams lined up as follows:

ALIS.		SCOTCH PLAINS.
Woolston	right end	Klempser
Finch	right tackle	Chapin
Stewart	right guard	Albert
Woltmann	centre	Doe
McCullough	left guard	Meyer
Rittenhouse	left tackle	Maguire
Dwight	quarter back	Cooper
Peck	right halfback	W. Phillips (C)
Cuming	left halfback	Bull
R. P. Phillips (C)	full back	Gluck

Touchdowns—Peck 3, Dwight 1, Cuming 1, Phillips 1. Goals kicked—Phillips 2, Finch 1. Long runs—Peck, 60 yards, 40 yards; Dwight, 50 yards; Cuming, 40 yards. Referee—Mr. Phillips, of Scotch Plains. Umpire—Walter Long, of Plainfield.

May Lose a Finger.

Carl Hauser, the five-year-old son of of Rev. and Mrs. Hauser, of Duer street, may lose a portion of a finger the result of an accident which occurred on Friday. He with a young son of William C. Krausse, of Vine street, were playing with a bicycle. The latter's son was turning the rear wheel around at a lively rate of speed, when young Hauser's hand caught in the rear sprocket wheel. The little fellow screamed with pain, for the nail on the finger was completely torn off, and the flesh deeply lacerated. He ran to the house and told his parents what had happened. Dr. Davis was summoned at once and dressed the wound. It cannot be determined just yet whether the finger will have to be amputated or not.

Copper in the Tissues.

For several years past the working chemists have claimed that native copper may be found in minute quantities in the tissues of every known species of plant and animal. Since January 1 a commission appointed by the British Association for the Advancement of Science has made 60,000 examinations and chemical analysis by a great variety of processes and has not failed to find traces of copper in a single instance. They found it in the coloring of flowers, in the feathers, beaks and eyes of birds, in the human brain and blood, in the blades, grains and roots of wheat, in the scales of fishes and serpents, in short everywhere.

HEROIC SAILOR GIRL.

How a Norwegian Maiden Saved Her Father's Ship.

Margaret Neilson, 18 years old, is the daughter of a Norwegian sea captain who lately sailed from Wales for Nova Scotia. Margaret had made several voyages in her father's vessel before, so that she was at home on the sea. For company she took with her a water spaniel, a big black cat and half a dozen rabbits.

A heavy storm came on, and the ship, which was 27 years old, sprung a bad leak, and soon all hands who could be spared from the management of the vessel were put at the pumps.

Margaret herself, seeing that her father could not be everywhere, took a hand at the pumps and encouraged the men. But the storm rose higher and higher; the men could not pump the water out as fast as it came in. The ship was gradually filling. Huge waves rolled over the deck.

Then Margaret, still sticking to the pumps, began to sing. Her father had taught her many of the old Norse sagas, recounting the bravery of the sailors' ancestors, for they were all Norsemen. Through the howling of the storm the girl's voice rose in those old songs. The sailors, dropping with fatigue and loss of sleep, and fighting a losing battle, were urged on to heroic efforts by Margaret's example as well as by the spirited words and music that she was singing to them.

TOOK A HAND AT THE PUMPS.

At last it became clear that the ship must be abandoned; but the captain, before ordering out the boats, lay down and slept a little, for he was at the end of his strength.

Margaret went on singing and cheering the men. As she worked, she spied a sail in the distance. Signals of distress were already up. They were seen by the distant ship. It was a long time before the sail, which was a brig bound for New York, could come alongside, and in the interval the Norwegian ship was very near sinking; but at last Capt. Neilson, his brave daughter and all his men were taken off, and their vessel almost immediately went down.

LEAVE THEIR NIGHTGOWNS.

Guests at Hotels Sometimes Forget an Interesting Garment.

There was a whirr of bells, and the annunciator behind the desk told the night clerk something was wanted in room 319. A little black boy darted up from the bench before the night clerk could call "Front." The boy glanced at the indicator and plunged upstairs. In about four minutes he came down grinning and fronted the night clerk, says the Chicago Post.

"Well?"

"Gent in 319 wants a nightgown."

"Well, go get him one."

The darkey's grin vanished and his eyes were big with surprise. Then the night clerk told him to go to the housekeeper's room and get a nightgown for the man.

"Do you keep an assortment of nightdresses for your guests?" asked a boarder who had known the house ten years.

"We don't aim to do it, but we do," said the night clerk. "You see, about every day some man leaves his nightgown in his room. Women rarely do. If we know where the man has gone we let him know he left it, and await his orders. If he is a regular patron we wash the garment and keep it till he comes back. But many times we know nothing of him beyond what the register tells us. And so every week we have about half a dozen gowns left on our hands.

"Convention time always brings a bundle of them. We must have collected a hundred while the democratic convention was in town.

"What do we do with them finally, when no owner turns up? Oh, go ask the housekeeper."

INSIST ON ALL BUSINESS

UNITED STATES EXPRESS COMPANY TO STOP PACKAGE EXPRESSMEN.

They Will Establish a Similar Service and Employ a Special Messenger to Do the Work—The Company's Side.

At various times during the past few months the Central Railroad of New Jersey has attempted to stop the package expressmen in Elizabeth, Somerville and this city from doing business in competition, as they claim, with the United States Express Company who have a lease over their road. Every time a step has been taken, however, to stop the messengers the latter have got around the restrictions in some manner and continued their business of buying and delivering small orders for the local merchants.

During the interval of peace the express company had consulted its lawyers and mapped out a plan to wage war on the messengers. The plan, as given by one of the Ceatral Railroad detectives, is as follows: Beginning with tomorrow, the United States Express Company will place a messenger of its own in Somerville, Elizabeth and Plainfield. These men will not only thoroughly canvass for all the business in these towns, but will do the errands at a reduced rate. The railroad detectives have been instructed to notify Stevenson and the other two local messengers not to get on the Central trains with their packages. If they disregard this order and attempt to board the trains they will be arrested for disorderly conduct, no matter what the consequences may be, as the express company has guaranteed to stand all costs and settle any suits for damages that may be recovered against the railroad company.

A late decision of the Supreme Court against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway Company lays down the rule that common carriers have the right to prevent persons from boarding their trains with packages, but after they are on board, and have a proper ticket, the companies have no right to put them off.

Manager E. W. Mills, of the United States Express company in this city, was seen by a Press reporter this morning. He said that the business of the package expressmen all along the road had grown to such proprotions that they felt called upon to call a halt on the encroachment of what they considered their rights, as the company paid a large sum of money each year for the right of the express business over the road. If the business had been carried on in a moderate manner by the package expressmen, Mr. Mills said, the move to stop them would probably never have been made. The trouble, though, was that they had carried it to such an extent that many times it was necessary for them to hire wagons to deliver their packages, and the transaction of such an extensive business as that meant big losses to the express company.

So far as wishing to deprive Whitney Frazee, the Plainfield messenger from a livelihood, he said the company had no such desire and they had even offered him a position with them. He said it is always the intention of the company to cater to the wants of the merchants they serve and since there seems to be a demand for a messenger service such as Frazee has established, the company intend to supply that demand. F. S. Runyon, a train messenger for the company, and a former driver in this city, will act as the messenger for the new system of the company in Plainfield, though it is possible that if Frazee accepts the overtures made to him he will be employed as such on a salary.

An Election Bet.

An interesting and novel election bet has just been made by George Flammer and William Wraight, both employes of W. J. Conroy, the Somerset street carriage manufacturer. Mr. Flammer is for gold and McKinley while Mr. Wraight is for free silver and Bryan. Both men are loyal and true to the cause they espouse and each one is willing to do most anything for his champion, so they decided to make a bet on the election result. The losing man is to wheel the winner from Linden avenue down down Somerset street to Front street and back again in a wheelbarrow. Of course, both men are equally sure of getting a free ride, and Mr. Wraight declares he will have Guttman's Band to head the procession, while Mr. Flammer thinks the Independendent Fife and Drum Corps would just suit him if he wins. Mr. Wraight is keeping a sharp lookout for the lightest wheelbarrow obtainable to use in case he loses the bet, as Mr. Flammer balances the scales at 180 pounds while he himself weighs only 135 pounds. Both men declare they will keep their word.

TRIALS OF AN EDITOR.

CRANFORD CHRONICLE MAN SUDDENLY LOSES HIS MOTIVE POWER.

Had a Gas Engine Which Bothered Other Tenants and the Landlord Took Summary Action—Now in the Court.

J. Alfred Potter, editor and proprietor of the Cranford Chronicle, met with a a peculiar experience at his place of business last Friday, and temporarily he was obliged to stop his machinery. There is an amusing, though serious, side to the difficulty, and it has been ventilated in Justice Newcorn's court.

Mr. Potter rents a building in Cranford which is owned by Mr. Teet, of Elizabeth. Recently the former purchased a gas engine to run his presses, as the increase in his business required a speedy motive power. Of course, it was necessary to have an exhaust pipe and when the engine was at work there was a certain amount of noise which seemed to annoy other tenants in the building. The disconcerted ones complained to Mr. Teet, and he took the matter in his own hands. On Friday last he instructed Mr. Kirby, a Cranford plumber, to go to the building and remove the pipe which was causing so much trouble. Mr. Kirby selected a convenient time, which happened to be Friday noon, while the employes were home to dinner. He removed the objectionable pipe and plastered the opening through which it projected.

The work was accomplished in short order and when the men returned to work after their dinner hour they learned what had been done. Mr. Potter was soon acquainted with the state of affairs and immediately took steps to bring his landlord to justice. He brought action against Kirby, in Justice Newcorn's court, for tampering with his machinery, and the case came up yesterday afternoon. The latter waived examination and was held in $50 bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury. In the meantime Mr. Potter is obliged to use hand and foot power to run his presses until the case is settled.

GRATIFYING REPORTS OF BOROUGH PUBLIC SCHOOL.

The Average Attendance Has Increased 139 a Day Over Last Year, Due to the Addition of the Higher Studies.

The North Plainfield Board of Education held its regular meeting last evening. The committees, and also the principal, made gratifying reports as to the progress of the school. In the matter of attendance, it was reported that the school opened in September with 674 on the roll, and every week since the list has increased until it now number 760. The average attendance one year ago was 611, and now it is 750; and it is believed to be due to the increased number of studies, and the additions to the High School grades and the Kindergarten, both of which features are meeting with very marked success.

One of the committees reported a rule concerning absences of pupils from school. It is to be printed for distribution to the parents, and is said to be founded upon the successful practice of one of the leading schools of this State. The number of apparently unnecessary absences has impeded the progress of some of the classes, and it is thought that if parents understood the situation, they might co-operate to reduce the absenteeism to a minimum.

Miss Clara Petrie was, at her own request, given a month's leave of absence, because of illness at home. Miss Babbitt, who was teaching on trial, was highly commended and engaged for the balance of the school year.

Snyder Unjustly Imprisoned.

Seventeen days ago Robert Snyder, a resident of Fanwood, fifty-five years old, was arrested there on a serious charge preferred against him by his nineteen-year-old daughter. He was lodged in the county jail by a Fanwood justice of the peace under $1,000 to await the grand jury's action. That body took up his case Saturday, and after a thorough investigation, decided the prisoner had been wrongfully imprisoned, as there was no evidence to prove he was guilty. Without waiting for the court to take action in the matter, the grand inquest decided that Snyder had suffered enough and took the unusual step of ordering his immediate release. Snyder will not take any measures, it is thought, to obtain satisfaction for his unjust imprisonment.

A Young Lady Cyclist Hurt and a Hippodrome Affair by Three Hack Horses.

In the Dark a Delivery Wagon of R. O. Howell Runs Into Miss Phelps, Who Was Thrown and Hurt—Driver Not to Blame—Hack Horses, Two Without Drivers, Run Away With Disastrous Results—Remarkable That Speed Was Shown.

A veritable hippodrome race, only there were hacks used instead of chariots, was the exciting sequel to a quarrel between several of the hackmen at the North Avenue station at a late hour last evening. Several complaints with the accompanying warrants and arrests followed this morning as a result of the affair last night

Quite a number of the hackmen gathered in the smoking room at the station to keep warm during the intervals between the trains. An argument was started and Max Nunman and John Kennedy had some high words. The quarrel began to look serious, for both hackmen, finding words of no avail, resorted to fists. In the excitement nobody exactly knows who really was to-blame. William Kennedy, a brother of John Kennedy, stepped in and tried to stop the scrap. He was pushed to one side and several blows were struck.

Then John Kennedy left the smoking room, rather in a hurry, it is said, threw the blanket off his horse and sprang in the hack with unusual violence. He brought the whip down on the horse's back and started off at a rapid pace. It was nearly 11 o'clock and the streets were silent. The hacks driven by Messrs. William Kennedy, Peter Seader and Cornelius Guinee, were standing in line while their drivers were inside the station. The hurry and clatter of Kennedy's departure roused the three remaining horses from their slumbers and they started out after the departing hack. The walk became a trot, the trot a gallop, and soon the vehicles were flying down the avenue side by side in a wild rush. Frank W. Morse, of West Fourth street, was riding down North avenue on his wheel and heard the runaways just in time to reach the gutter and avoid the wheels of the hacks. The speed was too great for the horses to turn the corner. Sparks flew and then a terrific crash followed Will Kennedy's rig was wedged between the little tailor shop and the telegraph pole, while the horse broke away and ran down the alley. The hack was somewhat damaged. Guinee's horse managed to turn after striking the curb and was caught by Jack Rafferty at the corner of Second street and Park avenue.

Seader's hacks struck the telegraph pole and had the top knocked in. The horse, with carriage attached, continued down Park avenue just missing Letter-carrier Daniel Shea near Second street, and down Somerset street almost to Jackson avenue, where it was stopped.

Patrolman Vanderweg was one of the first to arrive at the scene of the smashup. John Goodwin requested him to arrest Will Kennedy, which he did, but after investigation showed that he was probably not to blame and was released to appear this morning.

This morning Max Newman swore out a complaint against John Kennedy for fighting.

Will Kennedy and Max Neuman were also arrested, and all three held for trial on Saturday morning.

Just as many of the commuters were returning home for their evening meal last evening and the hands of the clock in the North avenue station pointed to 5:45 o'clock, a unfortunate accident occurred at the corner of North and Watchung avenues in which Miss Adella C. Phelps, of Watchung avenue, daughter of Rev. A. A. Phelps, principal of the Plainfield Business College, was seriously and perhaps dangerously injured.

Miss Phelps was returning to her home on her wheel and was just turning from North avenue into Park avenue, when Howell's delivery wagon driven by Tom Robinson, turned into Watchung avenue from East Third street, coming from the freight house. It was quite dark, although not yet an hour after sunset, and Miss Phelps had no lantern. The darkness hid the cyclist and wagon from each other until too late to avoid a collision. Robison pulled his horse to the right hand side and all who saw the accident declare that he was not to blame as in coming in from Third street it was impossible for him to swing more to the right. The sharp corner and the darkness prevented Miss Phelps from seeing the wagon in time to avoid it. She struck the horse in the breast and the next instant, the frightened animal was plunging and rearing over her prostrate form. Robinson guided the horse to one side and then assisted in carrying Miss Phelps to Mallison's pharmacy. The young woman was unconscious when brought into the store but recovered when Drs. Long and Hedges arrived. She was taken home in a hack soon after.

The full extent of her injuries is not yet known. The shock was a severe one and she is covered with bruises from head to foot. It is thought that a rib was broken, and internal and spinal injuries are feared.

Robison was completely broken down by the accident, although no one blames him. He was so upset last evening that he had to stop work and go home.

IN HEALTHFUL EXERCISE.

Business Men Give an Exhibition in the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium.

Visitors were given some chance to see the work of the business men's class at the Y. M. C. A., yesterday afternoon, and they found the exhibition very creditable. It was the first of a series of receptions to the friends of the class and association in which the regular routine of the class was followed under the direction of Physical Director Haywood.

The members are divided into two squads, one under the leadership of Street Commissioner Robert A. Meeker, who is, by the way, a very good athlete, and the other directed by Mr. Haywood. They exercised on the parallel and horizontal bars, the German horse and with dumb bells. Then followed a basket ball game between the business men's team and a scrub team. The business men, captained by John H. Doane, won by two goals to none. Rev. W. C. O'Donnell threw them both, one from the field and one on a foul.

Among the other members of the class were School Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, Rev. J. H. Johnson, G. M. Griffin, F. B. Joseph, A. C. LaBoyteaux, J. A. V. Craighead, George Fuller, Mr. VanFleet, J. A. Stafford, Gilmore Drayton and Fred Smith.

DEAN RODMAN'S ASSISTANT.

Rev. Floyd Appleton to be Assistant Rector at Grace Church.

The Rev. Floyd Appleton, of New York, has accepted the call as assistant minister of Grace Episcopal church and will enter upon his duties on Sunday, November 15th. Mr. Appleton will preach in Grace church next Sunday evening.

The new assistant rector is twenty-seven years of age and a graduate from the General Theological Seminary, where he obtained first prize for extemporaneous speaking. Since his graduation he has been engaged in mission work with Bishop Potter in New York.

About F. X. Schoonmaker.

The following item of interest concerning a former Plainfielder appeared in the Bakersfield (Cal.) Journal of a recent date: "F. X. Schoonmaker, a big gun of New Jersey, will be the next Republican speaker to appear on the Bakersfield hustings after this evening. He is programmed for the evening of the 12th inst. He is said to be an exceptionally fine orator."

Dr. Davis No Longer at Brookside.

Dr. T. S. Davis, of Park avenue, formerly associated with Dr J. H. Cooley in the management and ownership of the Brookside Retreat, has severed his connection with that institution, and has disposed of his interest to Dr. Cooley, who is now sole proprietor and owner.

"Billy" Kirk's Great Ovation.

A McKinley and Hobart mass-meeting was held in the Westfield Club Hall, last evening, with addresses by Congressman Fowler, Senator Foster M. Voorhees, William T. Kirk, candidate for Sheriff, Assemblyman Codington and Dr. R. R. Sinclair, candidate for Coroner. The speakers were all loudly cheered, but a perfect ovation was given to "Plainfield's Own" Billy Kirk. They reached the hall a little late, and the audience were waiting expectantly for their arrival. As they marched toward the stage cries of "What's the matter with Kirk?" and he's all right," sounded on every side. Assemblyman Codington and Mr. Kirk spoke briefly and then left with Assemblyman Clauss, who did not have time to speak, as they had all engaged to attend other meetings.

The Young Men's Republican Club, accompanied by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, went to Roselle last evening to hear "Billy" Kirk speak.

QUEEN CITY'S FIFTH.

ODD FELLOWS PLEASANTLY CELEBRATE AN ANNIVERSARY.

Ex-Judge W. A. Coddington Opened the Programme With Words of Welcome and Some Facts About the Noble Order.

The fifth anniversary of the formation of Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I.O. O. F., was pleasantly observed by the members last night in their rooms in the Elkwood building, when a large number of friends were entertained with a literary and musical programme and supper.

The assemblage was called to order at eight o'clock by Noble Grand Lewis DeCamp, who acted as master of ceremonies during the evening. He introduced ex-Judge William A. Coddington, a members of the order, who spoke a few words of welcome to the guests and told something of the order itself.

He extended a warm welcome to the guests and told how, just five years ago, the lodge had been formed with thirty members. It's membership list has now grown to 150, while the lodge has been able to meet all its obligations and is now in excellent financial standing. He made a complimentary reference to the side issue of Rebecca Lodge and complimented the officers on their excellent work and District Deputy Grand Master Pocock and his staff on having done the best work of any team in this district. He dwelt particularly on the benefits of the order.

The Judge's remarks were followed with a song, "Just Tell Them That You Saw Me," by Bert, Frank and William Vail, a trio of young voices mellow and clear. Then came a recitation by Bert Ford and a song by Anna Higgins, both little people, who acquitted themselves creditably in their efforts to entertain. Adams and Sherwood introduced a few feats in legerdemain much to the mystification of the auditors. Benjamin DeVere rendered a cornet solo and Albert and Miss Springer gave a duet that received the applause of appreciation. Then came the announcement of John Carney in a German dialect monologue. Mr. Carney's talk was the feature of the programme and many a laugh he got with his humorous climaxes to stories fraught with local hits. Eli Odam gave a song in a good tenor voice, though slightly hampered by a cold. The programme was ended with a solo, "She May Have Seen Better Days," by Frank Vail, and a parody on the same song by Bert Vail.

Afterwards the guests enjoyed a pleasant social chat and refreshments in the hall below.

The committee of arrangements in charge of the affair consisted of J. B. Higgins, Charles Young, Isaac Lane, William Barber and Floyd D. Fuller.

New Hospital President.

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital met at the Public Library last evening and elected George H. Goddard, president, in place of the late E. N. Erickson. It was reported that gas connection had just been completed at the hospital and that a new roof was being placed on the main building. The rest of the evening was devoted to routine business.

The Secretary was instructed to notify the medical staff of the adoption of an amendment to the constitution giving effect to the recent decison of the board to open the hospital to patients and physicians of every school of medicine. The managing committee was delegated rules appropriate to that decision; pending the adoption of which, patients may be admitted subject to existing rules and the discretion of the medical director.

Died After a Brief Illness.

James O'Keefe, aged forty-five years, died at his home, 422 West Sixth street, yesterday, after an illness extending only since last Wednesday. He leaves a widow and six children. The funeral will be held from his late residence tomorrow morning at 8.30 o'clock, and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. He was a member of the Mason's Union, and this order will attend the funeral services.

Jurors Fined.

Several petit jurors failed to respond to their names in the Union County Court of General Sessions in Elizabeth yesterday, and Judge T. F. McCormick fined them $25 each. The case of Dr. J. Max Reiner, editor of the New Jersey Herald of that city, aacused of libelling Mayor John C. Rankin, which was set down for yesterday had to be postponed until November 14th.

THE PRIMARY INSTITUTE

SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHERS ASSEMBLE TO EXCHANGE IDEAS.

Many Helpful and Practical Methods Offered for Successfully Teaching Scripture Lessons to the Young Scholars.

The first annual institute of the Plainfield Primary Teachers' Union was held in Vincent chapel yesterday afternoon and evening and it was eminently successful in every particular. The roll-call showed that twenty-five out of the thirty-one members of the union were present, beside a number of representatives of unions in Somerville, Bound Brook, Westfield, Elizabeth, Newark and Jersey City.

The devotional exercises were opened by Mrs. Baker, of Westfield, after which Mrs. M. W. Smalley, secretary, presented her first annual report. A digest of the report shows that the union was started a year ago September 13th, in the Y. M. C. A. building, with twelve members. Since then there has been a steady growth until at present there are thirty-one members. Meetings are held every Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. building. Three summer schools were held during the season and five members attended the one at Schooley's Mountains and the delegates gave a highly interesting report of the sessions. Each union was obliged to raise $50 for the summer schools and the Plainfield Union was the only one to raise the amount within the prescribed time. The members desire to thank all who so kindly assisted in raising the $50. The president, Miss Nettie Beeching, was highly complimented for her untiring zeal and energy in the wor and the members resolved to str for better results the coming year.

Mrs. J. W. Barnes, of Newark, president of the State Primary Council conducted a most helpful conference on the subject of "Grading and Promotion," and she left many valuable hints as to the proper age a child should be promoted in the Sunday-school and what studies should be given.

The Sunday school lesson for November 1st was ably taught by Mrs. T. H. Skillman, of New Brunswick, secretary of the State Primary Council. After the offering, Mrs. Barnes gave a valuable talk on "Teaching a New Hymn." The hymn selected was "Can a Little Child Like Me." Mrs. Barnes brought out the object lessons in the hymn and made the application in an interesting manner. A discussion of the subject followed her remarks, which was helpful to many.

In connection with the afternoon service a novel feature was introduced. When the roll was called each member responded with a verse of Scripture.

The session closed at 5 o'clock with the Mizpah benediction, after which tea was served to all present in the chapel.

At 7:30 the evening session was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, pastor of the Monroe Avenue chapel.

John Valiant, superintendent of Grace M. E. Sunday-school, on behalf of the Union offered a few words of greeting.

He said in part: "I greet you in the name of the Union which organization is one of great importance. It should receive more help. As a worker in the Sunday-school I can see why it should receive help and its usefulness be extended. There is one proposition I wish to submit to you as vital, and that is the importance of teaching the very young. At the age of nine or thereabouts, a lasting impression is usually made on the young mind. The boys and girls are to become the fathers and mothers. Thus, more time should be devoted in training their young lives. There is one difficulty experienced among teachers. That of bringing their mind into unison with the child's mind. This ability is greatly in demand among primary teachers. The teacher needs more encouragement, and the Union should be broadened in scope so that it can take in all departments of Sunday school work."

Mrs. T. H. Skillman, secretary of the State Primary Council, then offered some suggestions regarding the Summer school plans for 1897. She said that while this year's Summer Schools were not a great success, they were by any means a failure and that a Summer school would be held next summer at Asbury Park, from July 5th to 10th, inclusive, for primary teachers. At the same time and place a school will be held for the superintendents of Sunday-schools. Mrs. Skillman urged all who possibly can to make an effort to attend. She stated that each Sunday-school ought to send at least one representative as

NEARING THE CLOSE

Last Week of the Campaign Finds Party Managers Very Busy.

ORATORS ARE DOING THEIR BEST

Committeeman Manley Confident of Victory for McKinley---Democrats Believe Bryan Will Win---Watson's Letter Not To Be Given Out.

New York, Oct. 27.—The last week of the political campaign finds the democratic and republican party managers very busy. There was a large number of callers this morning at republican headquarters. Committeeman Joseph H. Manley was on hand early. He said to a representative of the United Associated Presses: "We enter upon the last week of the battle with more confidence and more ardor than ever. We are certain of winning and the only question now is how large McKinley's majority will be." He declared that the republicans wonld undoubtedly carry Illinois, and added: "We will carry New York city by from 10,000 to 20,000." He was not prepared to state how many electoral votes McKinley would get, but said he would be a little later in the week. He was confident that the republicans would carry he middle west states. Chairman James C. Truman of the democratic state executive committee, who was called on subsequently by the reporter, was equally as sure that Bryan would carry New York state by a substantial plurality.

EFFORTS FOR PEACE GIVEN UP.

Warring Factions of Massachusetts State Democracy Unable To Agree.

Boston, Oct. 27.—For what is apparently the final time in this campaign all negotiations for peace between the warring factions of the state democracy were last evening declared off. The result of the meeting leaves the situation just where it was before Judge Corcoran sent in his resignation last week, for that resignation is now withdrawn. Judge Corcoran is still to continue as chairman of the state committee, and there will be no official ratification of George Fred Williams and the other democratic candidates. Messrs. Robert Treat Paine, jr., and Harry J. Jaquith were the representatives of the Bryan-Sewall-Williams club at yesterday's meeting of the state committee, and it took them but a short time to report that, in view of George Fred Williams' refusal to negotiate further with the state committee, nothing more could be done toward making peace. After they had retired the committee discussed the situation and decided to postpone the meeting of the full state committee, which had been called for this afternoon, indefinitely. They also communicated by telephone with Judge Corcoran, apprising him of the situation. He at once withdrew his resignation, which had not been accepted. Notices were then sent out to members of the committee, announcing that the meeting for to-day had been postponed.

Hobart Speaks at Camden.

Camden, N. J., Oct. 27.—Hon. Garret A. Hobart, the republican vice-presidential candidate, made his first formal address of the campaign here last night. He was enthusiastically received. Mr. Hobart and party, including Gov. John W. Griggs, state committeeman William Bettle and Hobort Tuttle, secretary to the governor, on arrival here were escorted to the headquarters of the Camden republican club where an informal reception was held by Mr. Hobart and the governor. The reception lasted from 4 o'clock until 6 o'clock and during this time a constant stream of persons were greeted by the distinguished guests. The party were then entertained at dinner by United States Senator Sewall at his residence and at 8 o'clock they proceeded to the Temple theatre where Mr. Hobart and Gov. Griggs made addresses. The city was gaily decorated in honor of the occasion, the displays of flags and bunting being elaborate.

Major McKinley a Very Busy Man.

Canton, O., Oct. 27.—From now until election day next Tuesday Major McKinley will probably have little time that he may call his own for there are already numerous delegations scheduled to call on him, and the mails and wires are constantly bring in inquires for dates from clubs and organizations from all the surrounding country. Yesterday was a day of splendid surprises for Major McKinley and his friends. They were not expecting a lively time or any very large delegations, but it proved to be the most important Monday of the campaign and seven delegations, one numbering about 3,000, came to pay their respects to the candidate

Registration at Waterbury.

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 27. — The board of registration which held its final session last evening has admitted 1,497 new names, which exceeds all previous records. Of this number the republicans claim a majority of 433, but the democrats contend that the new voters are divided about equally.

MIDDLE OF ROAD POPULISTS.

Efforts To Solidify Their Vote for Mr. Bryan at an End.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—All negotiations which were being conducted by western Chairman Washburn of the populist national committee, representing candidate Watson and Chairman Jones of the democratic national committee for the purpose of solidifying the middle of the road populist vote for Bryan were officially declared at an end today by Mr. Washburn in an interview with a reporter for the United Associated Presses. Democratic state committees, particularly the silver democracy of Georgia and Tennessee, are blamed for the failure of the negotiations. Mr. Watson will spend the remainder of the campaign practically in silent disgust and his interesting letter of acceptance will likewise not appear in public. Mr. Washburn said: "The negotiations which were pending between Senator Jones and myself are all off now. There were a few states where fusion was pending and we were trying to consumate arrangements. When I visited Georgia I saw that it was vitally essential that all complications should be adjusted at once, so that the solid vote of the middle of the road populists might be secured for Bryan. Upon my return, while we were arranging these matters, it was flashed over the wires that the Georgia and Tennessee democrats had rejected all overtures made by the populists and adjourned without making a counter proposition. This was most unfortunate, as it occurred at a time when it seemed apparent that all complications would be removed, our people satisfied and Bryan's election made certain. As the two states were involved in our arrangements this action rendered it impossible for us to continue negotiations. In all justice to Senator Jones, I must say that from the beginning he has been eager to remove all complications and effect an equitable fusion in every state." "Will Mr. Watson make a speaking trip to Kansas or North Carolina?" Mr. Washburn was asked. "I do not think he will. He has promised to make a few speeches in his own district for Mr. West, our congressional candidate, and I understand that will close his campaign." "Having read Mr. Watson's letter of acceptance, do you think it ought to or will be published?" "I do not see what good would be accomplished at this late day by its publication, as Mr. Watson has made plain the principal points of his letter in his public speeches. Therefore, I do not favor its publication."

Carlisle Speaks at Owensboro, Ky.

Owensboro, Ky., Oct. 27.—Secretary John G. Carlisle spoke in the Tabernacle here last evening to 7,000 people. He was given respectful attention and there were no attempts at anything like disorder. There were a great many ladies in the audience and many of them sent flowers to the stage. Mr. Carlisle's speech was similar to those delivered at Covington and Bowling Green. Senator Joseph Blackburn is billed to speak here Friday night in answer to Mr. Carlisle.

To Speak in Sibley's District.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Hon. Alexander McDowell, clerk of the house of representatives, after a week's campaigning in West Virginia, has gone to his home in Pennsylvania, where he will put in the last week of the campaign in this district where ex-Congressman Sibley is a candidate for congress on the silver democratic ticket.

Secretary Herbert To Speak for Palmer.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Secretary Herbert will leave Washington to-night to make three speeches in the Alabama congressional district he formerly represented. He will urge Palmer's election.

Duchess of Sutherland To Marry.

London, Oct. 27.—The Daily News says to-day that the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland will shortly marry Sir Albert Kaye Pollitt, M. P., the well-known ship owner. She was formerly Mrs. Blair, and was married to the late duke in Florida in 1889, but she was never fully recognized by his family. Her first husband, Arthur Blair, met his death in a mysterious manner while shooting on the estate of the Duke of Sutherland.

Hard Position To Fill.

Albany, Oct. 26.—On account of the special scientific attainments required for the position of associates in the Pathological institute of the New York state hospitals in New York city, the state civil service commission has deemed it advisable to suspend the requirement of residence and citizenship in New York state for those positions. An examination for these places is to be held on November 4 next.

Against Our Intervention.

Paris, Oct. 27.—The Gaulois, referring to the rumors which are still in circulation, to the effect that the United State will interfere in the affairs of Cuba, protests against the interference of any nation in the internal affairs of Spain, and says: "Europe is especially interested not to allow Cuba to fall under the domination of the United States."

DAYS WERE ONCE SHORT.

Only Three Hours in Length in the Early Stages of the World.

When the earth was young, says Dr. Ball, the eminent British astronomer, it turned on its axis so rapidly that it made one complete revolution once in every three hours! The earth was liquid then, says the St. Louis Republic, and it spun around at that fearful speed probably for thousands of years. The sun caused ever-increasing tides on the surface of the great liquid planet, and at last it burst in two. But the break was not in the middle of what had been the great, swift-revolving globe of liquid matter. It was to one side, and the effect was to throw the smaller fragment out into space. That fragment kept on turning, and was soon fashioned into a globe. We see it to-day and know it as the moon. The larger piece also kept turning on its axis, and in the course of ages became the spherical, habitable earth. The smaller fragment of the great original globe, being held in place by the attraction of the larger, has been going around the earth ever since, but has been gradually increasing the distance between itself and its primary. Some astronomers believe that eventually the moon will get so far away that it cannot be seen by the inhabitants of our planet.

WHAT A BILLION MEANS.

It Would Take Nearly Ten Thousand Years to Count It.

The following remarkable calculation on the length of time which it would take a person to count 1,000,000,000 recently appeared in an issue of an English periodical: What is a billion? The reply is very simple. In England a billion is a million times a million. (1,000,000,000,000). This is quickly written and quicker still pronounced. But no man is able to count it. You will count 160 or 170 a minute. But let us suppose that you go up as high as 200 a minute, hour after hour. At that rate you would count 12,000 an hour; 288,000 a day, or 105,120,000 in a year. Let us suppose now that Adam, at the beginning of his existence, had begun to count, and had continued to do so and was counting still. Had such a thing been possible, he would not yet have finished the task of counting a billion! To count a billion would require a person to count 200 a minute for a period of 9,512 years, 542 days, 5 hours and 20 minutes, providing he should count continuously. But suppose we allow the counter 12 hours daily for rest, eating and sleeping. Then he would need 18,025 years, 319 days, 10 hours and 45 minutes in which to complete the task!

Hood's

Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier and building up medicine leads everything ever produced. It is positively the best. Others may make the same claim. But there's this difference: We prove it. Not by antiquity, but by Merit. Not by what we say, but by what Hood's Sarsaparilla does. Sarsaparilla has a record of Cures unequalled in medical history. It positively, perfectly and permanently cures when all other medicines fail. That the keen discrimination of the people recognizes its merit and the cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla, is shown by the fact that they buy Hood's Sarsaparilla in preference and to the exclusion of all others. Hood's Sarsaparilla has a larger sale than all other blood purifiers. It wins confidence everywhere because the statements in its advertising and testimonials are verified by all who take it. No other medicine has ever received such praise, or so many voluntary testimonials of wonderful cures. No other medicine possesses the peculiar combination, proportion and process used in preparing Hood's Sarsaparilla, and which give it merit peculiar to itself. This is the secret of its wonderful power, of its wonderful sales, of its wonderful hold upon the confidence of the people. This is why it cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Catarrh, Rheumatism, all Humors, Kidney and Liver troubles, Dyspepsia, That Tired Feeling, builds up the nerves, creates an appetite and strengthens the whole system. Its merit, its sales, its

Some say that the hypophosphites alone are sufficient to prevent and cure consumption, if taken in time. Without doubt they exert great good in the beginning stages; they improve the appetite, promote digestion, and tone up the nervous system. But they lack the peculiar medicinal properties and the fat found in cod-liver oil. The hypophosphites are valuable, and the cod-liver oil is valuable.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites contains both of these in the most desirable form. The oil is thoroughly emulsified; that is, partly digested. Sensitive stomachs can bear an emulsion when the raw oil cannot be retained. As the hypophosphites, the medicinal agents in the oil, and the fat itself are each good, why not have the benefit of all?

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been indorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.

CUSTOMS REBATE DECISION.

The United States Treasury Mulcted for a Total Sum of Several Million Dollars.

Washington, Oct. 27.—The government's contention in the somewhat famous case of Saltonstall, collector of the port of Boston vs. Birtwell, has just been overthrown by a decision of the supreme court of the United States and importers who have paid customs dues under similar conditions to those obtaining in this case, will now be enabled to recover them from the treasury, to a sum total of several millions of dollars. Birtwell, an importer at Boston, sued the collector for the recovery of dues paid, protest of which was not made at the time of payment. The government contended that in the absence of protest at the time the money was paid, the right of recovery was lost. The circuit court for Massachusetts and the court of appeals for the first circuit successfully ruled against the United States and Justice Shiras announcing the judgment of the supreme court said it took the same view of the question as did the courts below and affirmed their judgments. It was held that effective protest might be made at any time within ten days after the final adjudication and assessment of the duties. This was the second hearing of the case in the supreme court of the United States and Chief Justice Fuller stated that himself and Justices Field, Harlan and Brewer dissented from the majority of the court.

THE VERDICTS INCREASED.

Result of Second Trial of the Scotts' Suit for Damages for Personal Injuries.

Boston, Oct. 27.—The second trial of the actions brought by Mrs. Emma Scott and her husband, William T. Scott of Somerville, against the West End Street Railway company and Fifield, Richardson & Co. resulted in the superior court awarding the plaintiffs larger verdicts than at the previous trial and in finding both defendants liable. Mrs. Scott, who sued to recover $15,000 damages for personal injuries, is given $12,500, while her husband, who sued to recover $10,000 damages for the loss of her services, is given $5,500. The accident which caused the injuries occurred while Mrs. Scott was walking on the sidewalk, when she was knocked down by a team owned by Fifield, Richardson & Co., the team having been forced upon the sidewalk by being struck by an electric car of the West End company. At the previous trial Mrs. Scott was awarded $5,000 and her husband $1,740. Soon after the verdicts were rendered the judge caused a surprise by setting them aside. No motion asking for such action was made.

BINNS LET DOWN EASY.

Resignation of the Lieutenant Who Predicted War Accepted.

Washington, Oct. 27.—The resignation of Second Lieut. Joseph R. Binns, Second infantry, has been accepted, to take effect immediately. This officer tendered his resignation in a long letter setting out his belief that a collision between the people and the United States army will follow the election, in which case he wrote that he cannot conscientiously serve against the former. Binns' letter brought him into much notoriety. In violation of the articles of war he published a letter in a Chicago newspaper assailing the president and the army and saying that he was satisfied the army was going to be used as a weapon against the people. The war department declined to take serious notice of these utterances and accepted the young man's resignation instead of putting him on trial by court-martial.

Damage Verdict Set Aside.

Boston, Oct. 27.—Judge Bishop in the superior court has granted the motion of the defendant in the case of Howard B. Hodgate of Roxbury vs. the Grand Trunk Railway company of Canada, to set aside the verdict of $7,500 awarded the plaintiff and to grant a new trial. The verdict was returned October 19, and was for the alleged malicious prosecution of the plaintiff, a former employe of the railway company in its Boston ticket office, upon a charge of embezzling about $175.

Nihilistic Literature Seized.

London, Oct. 27.—A Berlin dispatch to the Standard says that Russian officials on the Prussian frontier have seized a hundred thick walking sticks containing thousands of nihilistic proclamations.

TYNAN IN NEW YORK

He Refuses To Discuss the Object of His Mission Abroad.

SAYS IT WAS HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

Favors the Use of Dynamite as Washington Favored Gunpowder — Disappointed Because There Was No Demonstration on His Arrival.

New York, Oct 27.—P. J Tynan, the alleged "No. 1" of the Phoenix park murderers, was a passenger per the North German Lloyd steamer Saale, which arrived last evening from Bremen, via Cherbourg. Mr. Tynan was seen at Quarantine by a representative of the United Associated Presses. He said he naturally hesitated to talk for publication, even in this country, as it was possible any utterance by him might compromise others and perhaps those who had been kind to him. He refused to discuss the purpose of his visit to Europe, but he emphatically stated that his mission was entirely successful. He ridiculed the reported cleverness of the Scotland Yard detectives and said he had been under their noses a number of times without being suspected. He had also visited Gibraltar. He said it was owing to some carelessness while in a certain city that the detectives began to suspect him. He refused to say what city he referred to. Tynan expected his friends to make something of a demonstration on his return, but there was no one present at the dock to greet him when the steamer arrived except his wife and eight children and several newspaper reporters. An incident occurred on the voyage over which seems to give an inkling of his mission abroad. Tynan spoke to few passengers, was reserved in his demeanor and spent most of the time in nervously pacing the decks. At dinner on the third day out he was sitting next to J. W. Beales, the secretary of the American Trust company of Boston. Mr. Beales did not know who the man was, but during the conversation he said: "Do you know that we have the great dynamiter aboard?" Tynan's face flushed. He dropped his knife and fork and, looking Beales in the face, angrily replied: "I know of no dynamiter. The only dynamiter I know is my friend Lieut. Zalinski, the dynamite gun manufacturer. I have just been over to see him." When Beales learned the name of his neighbor he felt somewhat embarrassed, but talked no more dynamite to him. What Tynan went to Europe to see Zalinski for can only be conjectured, and many believe it had a great deal to do with his mission to Europe and the freedom of Ireland. Tynan's appearance gave evidence that he had just passed through a trying ordeal. There was no mistaking that. "What would the English have done with me had they got me across that little channel?" he ejaculated in answer to the reporter's query. "Well," he continued, "it would not have been a question of what they would do, but how they would do it. Oh, I'm glad I'm on free soil once more." "Was your mission successful?" he was again asked. "Yes, indeed," responded Tynan in joyous tones, "far beyond my wildest dreams." "It has been said that you believe in the use of dynamite. Is it true?" "I believe," said Mr. Tynan, in a slow and measured voice, "in dynamite as George Washington believed in gunpowder. The cause I espouse is the cause of the whole Irish nation. I will continue to agitate it until it succeeds, or until I am called to the far beyond." "Have you heard of an alleged dynamite plot, having for its purpose the assassination of certain high English officials?" "No, I have not. It is all the imagination of certain misguided English spies. No one wants to hurt the poor old queen that I know of."

Chicago Wheat Market.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—The net appreciation in the price of wheat at the close of the market yesterday was one cent, but the situation was nervous and in a position to be "worked." Business was on a much reduced rate scale, not only in wheat but in the other grains and provisions. There was a disposition to follow leaders or guess what the market would do next. The December option in wheat opened at 69⅝c. and the highest price for the day was 71⅛c. The lowest figures were 69¼c. Shortly before the closing hour news came of the burning of the Pacific elevators and this caused the market to firm, the final price being 70⅛c.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.

"Mystic Cure" for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. A NEW DISCOVERY BY THE SHAKERS.

For more than a hundred years the Mount Lebanon Shakers have studied the cultivation of medicinal plants and sought to extract from them their healing essences. Their labor has not been spent in vain. They have made a discovery that will prove a blessing to mankind. It consists of a cordial that causes immediate relief in cases of indigestion. The importance of this discovery will be apparent when we realize that nearly nine-tenths of suffering are caused by dyspepsia or indigestion. Nearly every person you meet has this digestive trouble in some of its varied forms—sick headache, distress after eating, pain and fullness in the chest after eating, palpitation of the heart, etc., are but symptoms of indigestion. To relieve these sufferings has been the study of the Shakers, and they have succeeded. The reason the Shaker Digestive Cordial has such an immediate and salutary effect is that it causes the food eaten to be digested, for it is undigested food that causes the distress. The Cordial causes the food to be digested before there is time for it to ferment and sour on the stomach. When the food is so digested it gives strength and vigor to the feeble body, makes one feel bright and cheerful, and makes one gain in flesh.

The Digestial Cordial is so prompt in its action that the very first dose will have a perceptibly favorable result. It gives immediate relief.

Every druggist has been sent a supply of our handsome Donkey Puzzle Books, and a copy may be had for the asking. It tells all about the Cordial as well as Laxol, the new castor oil.

Try a twenty-five cent bottle of Digestive Cordial and see what it will do for you.

AUTUMN LEAF REUNION.

A MERRY PARTY AND A MERRY TIME AT MT. MINSI.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Nightingale Entertain a Party at Their Summer Home and All Have a Jolly Time.

Invitations were issued by Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Nightingale to their friends, to assemble at Mount Minsi, Deleware Water Gap, for the autumn leaf reunion and final country dance of the season of 1896, to be held October 24th. A special car was provided and attached to the train leaving New York at one o'clock p. m. on the Delaware Lackawanna and Western.

The guests were met at Hoboken by Mr. Nightingale, who escorted them to their car and personally saw to their comfort.

Of those leaving New York were noticed: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen, Miss Rose Daly, F. B. Casey, R. P. Moore, Miss Kate E. Hanly, Miss Julia A. Hanley, D. L. Lee, Miss Ella Darraugh, The Misses Delaney, Mr. Kimmelmann, of New York; Charles Burnett, of Plainfield; Miss Ida F. Hobby, Arlington; Charles Young, A. Ganzel, J. Harbison, R. Taylor, Westfield; Colonel C. K. Moore, Fanwood; Mrs. John Burnett, Miss Margueri'e Burnett, Plainfield; Mrs. Meyer Zulick, Mrs. Frank Ramsey, of Avon-by-the Sea; and Mr. and Mrs. John Burnett, of Plainfield.

As the train left the station it was announced that Mrs. Delaney was left and consternation reigned, supreme, but level headed Mr. Lee telegraphed back from Paterson for her to take the next train and she did it. Just here must be mentioned a heroic act, and Charles Burnett was the hero. The train carrying Mrs. Delaney arrived at Mount Minsi just on the time of the fast express going in the opposite direction. Whether or not without thinking never will be known but the trainmen assisted the lady off directly in front of the express. Another instant and she would have been hurled into eternity, but quicker than thought, Mr. Burnett was there and lifted her from the track, as the flyer sped by.

On the way up, Mrs Charles Burnett and her daughter, Miss Clyde, of this city, joined the party at Washington, they having come up over the New Jersey Central Railroad, and at Manunka Chunk, Mrs. A. E. Holton, of the Wanamaker Borough, and Miss Annie Hammann, of Easton, completed the party. Messrs. Ganzel, Taylor and Harbison, with their banjos and mandolin gave some of their choicest selections and accompanied the vocalists, who led by Miss Eaily absolutely carried everything by storm, and to such an extent that the tourists from the other cars begged to be admitted.

Upon arrival of the special the guests were greeted by Mrs. Nightingale, and all immediately felt at home.

It was a great question as to why "Autumn Leaf Reunion" was the call, but gracious, the decorations would astound the most cynical critic. Not so much the profusion of autumn leaves, as their artistic arrangement, which under the skillful hands of Mr. Oscar Nightingale, Mr. Russell and Miss Hammann, gave the effect of a veritable fairy palace.

The country dance was, indeed, what it purported to be, as every one joined in the old fashioned style. The Virginia Reel was carried out to its entirety, forty couples taking part.

Quietly was the Sabbath observed. The steamboat "Kittatiny" being placed at the disposal of those who desired a trip up the Delaware through the "Gap." Others strolled over the mountains meeting the steamer on its return.

The serenade to the ladies led by R. H. Moore was a decided feature, occuring as it did early Monday morning, before taking the train on the return trip.

Mr. Casey, who ably assisted Mr. Moore, was the recipient of a salute from Oscar, much to the former gentleman's surprise, as after climbing the veranda post, he expected it from his intended.

The Plainfield ladies were out bright and early Sunday morning for an appetizing constitutional, and at breakfast the palm was awarded to Mrs. Charles Burnett, who with her husband after walking up to the spring, returned with a complexion most beautifully bronzed.

The most delightful and best appreciated part of the entertainment was the singing of Gospel hymns by our fellow townsmen, John Burnett, at Sunday eventide. His rich and melodious voice was never heard at better advantage than upon this occasion and accompanied by his niece at the piano no sweeter harmony could be imagined.

"Have you enjoyed yourselves young gentleman?" asked Mrs. Allen Heartily came the response, "Have we? indeed yes." Then Mrs. John Burnett quietly suggested to the ladies "Three cheers for our host," and the ladies did it.

Mrs. Matthias Price, of Newark, is visiting at the home of her daughter. Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

Miss May Gise is enjoying a few weeks' stay at the State Capital.

Mrs. Abner Taylor, of Brooklyn, is visiting Rev. Mr. Todd and family.

Wm. Hamilton has returned from a few days visit with Millstone friends.

Eugene Runyon and Arthur Giddis drove over to New Brunswick yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sirisky, of Raritan, are visiting Bernard Sirisky of North avenue.

Dr. and Commissioner W. P. Brakely drove over to New Brunswick yesterday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Tebo, of Brooklyn, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nelson at their Dunellen home.

William Kunhs and wife have gone to Hampton Junction to spend a few days with Mrs. Kuhn's parents.

The union service in the Methodist church, Sunday evening was largely attended. Rev. Solomon Parsons, of Paterson, preached.

Miss Twiname, of Carmel, N. Y., who has been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickson for a few weeks past, left for her home yesterday.

Rev. Mr. Peterson, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, at New Market, preached in the Dunellen Presbyterian church on Sunday and delivered a very able discourse.

Soloman Parson, of Paterson, lectured in the M. E. church Sunday evening to a good sized audience. The meeting was held under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., and the subject was temperance.

Jerry, the valuable Newfoundland dog belonging to Charles Lyons, of West Dunellen, had to be shot Sunday. The dog was recently bitten by a dog supposed to be mad and has been acting queerly ever since.

Expressman John Huff has been notified, by letter, to meet Messrs Carmon, Teel, Terry and Randolph at the Dunellen depot on Friday evening with an express wagon and two extra men, to carry away the vast amount of deer, birds and fish, which they are this week trudging through the uncivilized parts of Pennsylvania in search of.

Woe be unto the man or woman who inhabits the new cells in the town hall. Snoring drunks will not interfere with one another for the partitions are about four inches thick and when the doors are closed there is not enough light in the cell for a prisoner to see himself think. They are simply dungeons.

The Dunellen Gun Club has arranged to shoot a team race with the crack New Brunswick team on election day. The match will be shot at Dunellen, beginning at 2 p. m., and there will be twelve shooters on each side. The match will no doubt be hotly contested as each club will have out its best shooters.

The value of fire insurance is again illustrated by the fact that Alexander Dunn's house and contents were insured for $2,500 in William A. Woodruff's agency. At first it was reported that the loss was total, the policies having expired, but new policies had been made out and left in Mr. Woodruff's office, and the insurance therefore holds good.

Some time during Saturday night, some one, as yet unknown, broke into John Scott's wholesale wine room here, by cutting out a pane of glass. Then the latch on the window was shifted and access to the place was easy. Once inside the theives helped themselves to the best whiskey, and it is thought several gallons were carried away. Mr. Scott will sleep in the place hereafter, and guard his interests.

WESTFIELD.

This place furnishes three candidates for Corner: Sinclair, Republican; Marsh, Democrat, and Burke, National Democrat.

The Westfield Club has announced a smoker for the night of November 3d, and while the members are being entertained, between times election returns will be announced from the stage. The committee in charge of the affair has promised the women that there will be no objectionable features in the way of skirt dancing.

The Westfield Christian Endeavor Union held its annual meeting and conference last night in the Baptist church, at which time the election of officers for the ensuing term took place and the reports for the past year were read. Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of Plainfield, delivered the address to the union. The union includes Westfield, Cra ford, Roselle, Picton and Willow Grove.

Burning leaves in the roadway is now a favorite pastime with many of the school children these days. The object is a good one, but the practice is most dangerous.

Weather permitting, a party of fishermen will start from here at daylight on Thursday next for the Passaic river, where they think there are plenty of bass—to get.

Arrangements are being made for a Democratic mass-meeting to be held in Excelsior Hall some night this week, probably Thursday. The committee in charge are trying to get a good speaker and until one is definitely secured the exact date cannot be announced.

Some miscreant, evidently bent upon mischief, stole a lighted lamp from a bicycle on Sunday night and threw it into a doorway right in the heart of town. The burning oil set fire to the carpet and woodwork, and for a time there was a lively skirmish in the household.

CUBA'S BLOODY WAR

A Series of Fierce Battles Reported in Pinar del Rio Province.

SPANIARDS CHASING THE REBELS

Said To Have Been Dislodged from a Stronghold and Retreat to the Hills Cut Off—A Number Killed and Wounded on Both Sides

Havana, Oct. 27.—Col. Segura has reported to the government that his command surprised a body of rebels at Garganta Soroa, province Pinar del Rio, and that in the fighting that followed four of the insurgents were killed. The Spaniards by this victory gained possession of a route to the hills and started to build trenches to defend their position. While employed in this work the troops were continually fired upon by rebels, but no losses were sustained. On Oct. 24 Col. Segura left the main body of his command and with a small force started to reconnoitre the country. On his way back he learnde that the Zamora battalion was engaged with the rebels. He, therefore, hurried to the scene of the fighting and took part in the combat. The rebels made desperate efforts to carry the Spanish position and thus open the way for their return to the hills, but were compelled to retreat, closely followed by the Spaniards. A series of bloody fights occurred during the two days of the pursuit. The rebels had sixty-one dead on the field. The troops lost a lieutenant and twenty-one privates killed and 110 wounded, including four captains and two lieutenants.

Spain's Resources All Right.

Madrid, Oct. 27.—The premier of Spain, Senor Canovas del Castillo, has requested the press to announce that the reports, said to have been circulated in the United States, that Spain has not the resources necessary to continue the war in Cuba, are unfounded. He adds that the government can rely upon securing the funds necessary, as proved by its refusal of the conditions proposed in Paris for a new loan, negotiations for which are proceeding elsewhere, and also, he says, as shown by the postponement of bringing out the quicksilver mines loan, which, it is claimed, is awaiting a better market. In conclusion, the Spanish premier states that the Spanish banks have combined with the foreign banks, ready to take up the new loan, and he asserts that the country he represents is prepared to make all the necessary sacrifices of men and money.

Steamer and Twenty-seven People Lost.

Colombo, Ceylon, Oct. 27.—A number of passengers and the crew of the British steamer Taff, which plies the island of Mauritius and Bombay, have been landed here. They report that the steamer foundered during a heavy gale on September 24 and that twenty-seven natives were drowned.

ARMENIANS ACCUSED

Attempt To Assassinate Mgr. Bartolomeos at Constantinople.

WAS ATTACKED IN THE STREETS

He Is Assistant to the Armenian Patriarch, But Is Highly Esteemed by the Turks for His Mohammedan Sympathies.

Constantinople, Oct. 27.—While Mgr. Bartolomeos, who on August 9 last was selected as locum tenens of the Armenian patriarch, Matthew Izmirdian, was driving through the streets of the city yesterday afternoon he was attacked by four men, who attempted to murder him. The escort accompanying Mgr. Bartolomeos seized the would-be assassins and turned them over to the police. An examination elicited the fact that one of the prisoners was an Armenian grocer. Mgr. Bartolomeos has excited the hostility of the Armenians by his subservience to the sultan, and the attempt to murder him is undoubtedly due to this feeling. He is highly esteemed by the Turks for his Mohammedan sympathies.

EXTENT OF RECENT MASSACRES.

A Letter from the United States Sanitary Inspector at Constantinople.

Washington, Oct. 27.—A letter from Spiridion C. Zavitziano, United States sanitary inspector at Constantinople, addressed to Surgeon General Wyman of the marine hospital service, gives a striking idea of the extent of the recent massacres in that city. He writes: "A commission has been appointed in consequence of an irade or imperial order, the mission of which commission was to ascertain if the corpses of the massacred people have been buried according to the rules of hygiene and have not endangered public health. The above mentioned commission, the members of which were mostly members of the international board of health, has visited the Armenian cemetery at Shishly, where they saw three large graves, one of which was forty-five by five metres and nearly two metres deep. The two other graves were smaller, about eight by three metres each, where several hundred corpses were buried. The above mentioned commission has not visited the other Armenian cemeteries of Constantinople as that, for instance, of Tod-Kuleh, Has Kioi and other places where the massacred people have been buried. In yesterday's sitting of the sanitary commission, the question whether the prison will not endanger the public health of the capital was discussed. It has been said, for instance, that the arrested Armenians are so many and so thronged in the prisons that the poor prisoners are obliged to stay on foot all the time they are in prison, being unable to lie down on account of lack of room. I will be able to state the sanitary condition of the prisons after the commission presents its report. If what is reported is true, such condition may cause the outbreak of infectious diseases. There has been several cases of typhoid fever, but every year at this season this disease exists. What a physician can see now are frightened patients suffering from the consequences of what they saw during the two massacres of the 26th and 28th of last August, when all along the streets of Galata men armed with cudgels were striking living men or dead bodies—a dreadful and terrific sight."

Beached to Extinguish the Fire.

New York, Oct. 27.—The British steamer Worsely Hall, bound from New Orleans for Havre, which discovered her cargo of cotton to be on fire when over 500 miles at sea from Sandy Hook, and at once headed for this port under full speed, reaching here last evening, was beached on the flats and her holds flooded. The damaged cargo will be lightered to-day and the steamer pumped out and repaired.

The Acme Powder Explosion.

Pittsburg, Oct. 27.—The cause of the explosion at the packing department of the Acme Powder company, thirteen miles from this city, is still unknown and will probably remain a mystery. Only fragments of the bodies of the two packers, Stofiel and Andrews, the only occupants of the building at the time, were found.

The Engineer Disappears.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 27.—Engineer Joseph Dryden, who is charged with the responsibility for the collision on the 'Frisco road, near this city, Sunday, by which eight persons were killed and a score more injured, has disappeared, and efforts to locate him have proven unavailing.

To Defend the Castles.

London, Oct. 27.—Sir Frank Lockwood, Q. C., M. P., who recently visited the United States in company with Lord Chief Justice Russell, has been retained to assist Sir Edward Clarke in the defence of the Castles of San Francisco, charged with shoplifting.

End of a Long Pension Case.

Washington, Oct. 27.—The Long-Lochren pension case has been dismissed by the United States supreme court on the ground of abatement by reason of the retirement of Judge Lochren from the office of commissioner of pensions.

Women Glove Makers on Strike.

Gloversville, N. Y., Oct. 27.—All of the women employes in the glove factory of L. N. Littauer, in this city, are on strike against a reduction of 20 per cent. in their wages.

Ex-Congressman Eldridge Dead.

ing, said Turner's men, but Kelly, growing graver and less disposed to talk with every moment, continued searching on his own account, and neglecting many a chance to snub some callow young trooper hazarding theories as to the numbers and movements of the Indians.

Maj. Thornton contenting himself with sending a platoon on the trail of Crane's party, had ridden up to Kelly's ranch to pencil some instructions for Raymond. It was now seven o'clock, and neither he nor his men had seen a single Indian; neither had he news of Foster, nor tidings of any kind, yet with the events of the night still fresh in his mind, with the death of Ruckel and Rafferty and Kelly's Mexican assistant and the loss of Leon to mourn, the major felt convinced the Indians had swooped in force upon the valley, and would have killed, burned and destroyed everything in sight but for his prompt answer to the signal which his forethought had caused to be provided at the top of the butte. The Apaches had desisted from their attempt only at his approach, and had fled into the hills, whither his men were now pursuing. Such, at least, was his theory. This, too, was to be the tenor of his report to department headquarters, to be sent forward by a detachment that day. Already he was framing his diction, and after a few penciled words to Raymond, bidding him hold the fort, as he wasn't coming—for the present, at least, the major had borrowed a big sheet of the ordnance sergeant's official paper, and began:

"KELLY'S RANCH, South of Apache Canyon, June 2, 187-. Assistant Adjutant General, Headquarters Department of Arizona:

"Sir—I have the honor to report that on receipt of your dispatch notifying me of the Apache outbreak, and directing me to guard well my working parties at old Fort Retribution and the road connecting it with the new post, I detached Lieut. Crane, with twenty of Capt. Raymond's troop, and sent him to camp temporarily at the abandoned corral, and also took steps to notify the settlers north and south of the post of the new danger. Deeming it possible that the Indians might attempt to pass around us and raid the ranches, I had caused a beacon to be built on the summit of Signal Butte, and instructed Lieut. Crane to fire it if he learned the Apaches were in the valley.

"Last evening my sentries reported firing on the Prescott road, north of the new post, and Capt. Foster, with his troop, was sent to investigate. He reported by courier that he had come upon two Mexicans, who claimed that the Apaches had attacked them and run off their mules, they themselves escaping by hiding in a dark ravine. They also reported a large party of prospectors, etc., at Raton Springs, and represented them as being in peril of similar attack, so Foster pushed on at once to their succor, expecting to reach them at midnight. At two-thirty a. m. Trooper Ruckel, a sentry on post No. 5 in the low ground to the north of the post, was found dead, pierced by several Apache arrows, and Capt. Raymond with his men made a search through the chapparal as far as the foothills without discovering anything of the enemy. A few minutes later a horse recognized as Private Rafferty's, of C troop, came riderless and wounded into the post, and I had just dispatched Capt. Turner with his troop at daybreak to scout the country along the Prescott road, when the flaming signal at the butte told that the Indians had worked around to the valley to the west of us. Leaving Capt. Raymond with the infantry and his half troop to guard the post, I proceeded with Troop F (Turner's) to this point, reaching here after a sharp trot in less than an hour and a quarter, only to find the Indians fled with some stock from Kelly's ranch and Lieut. Crane already in pursuit. The only casualty in the valley thus far reported is one Mexican herder killed at Kelly's, and, I regret to add, the probable loss of a gallant little fellow, Leon MacNutt, whose pony was found a few minutes ago at the foot of the butte with three Apache arrows through him. It is feared that the boy has been killed or run off by the Indians, who are reported to have fled into the fastnesses of the Socorro, to the north of us. If so, between Capt. Foster's troop, already in the field, and those here at hand, I hope to make short work of them."

And here Maj. Thornton was interrupted by the entrance of the ordnance sergeant. It must be remembered now that old Kelly had served in Arizona in his dragoon days, before the war, and had just completed another period of five long years with the Eleventh cavalry, the predecessors of Thornton's regiment. Like every other old soldier, he was inclined to the belief that newcomers had very much to learn, and, as we have seen, the Indians themselves were taking advantage of this inexperience. Kelly couldn't be disrespectful to an officer, but he had much to say, and there was no time to be lost.

"May I speak to the major?" was his abrupt request, as he stood erect at the doorway, his hand raised in salute. Thornton wheeled round in his chair and looked up in quick interest.

"Certainly, sergeant. Go ahead!"

"As I understand it, sir, Lieut. Crane's party followed the trail into the canyon, and would go on through in pursuit."

"That's my understanding also," said the major.

"And did the major order the detachment that followed Lieut. Crane to go on till they came up with him?"

"Yes. He couldn't go very far, you know; he took no rations."

"I know, sir; but from what I near the lieutenant rode straight into the canyon and expected to find the raiders there somewhere. Once into it, sir, there's no way out but through it."

"Very true."

"Well, what I'm afraid of, sir, is this—the Indians who have run that stock into the canyon so as to make a trail to draw the troops in pursuit are only two or three in number, but if there are more Indians in those hills—and the chances are there are—" and Kelly pointed significantly to the rugged heights so nearly overshadowing them—"the most of them will be found lying on their bellies up the cliffs and ready to heave down whole tons of rock on our fellows in the gorge."

Thornton started to his feet and stared eagerly out of the north window in front of him. "That's a very serious matter," he said, "but wouldn't we have heard of it by this time? The cliffs are nearly all down at this end, are they not?"

"Most of 'em are, sir; but there's a bad slit within a mile of the north gate, nearly twelve miles from here, and another about midway. If they jump the troops at this end they'd know the reserves here would be galloping up the game trails east or west of the canyon in no time, whereas if they wait and let the lieutenant and his party grope along to that narrow part of the canyon, just below where old Sanchez and his people were drowned out, why, they've got 'em, sir; got 'em where they can't hit back or help themselves in any way."

The major hastened out into the open sunshine, now beating hot and dry upon the adobe walls. "Bring my horse, orderly," he called, as he stowed away his unfinished report, and a boy trumpeter with his slouched hat pulled down to keep the sun from his eyes, turned away from where a little knot of men had just buried the body of the hapless Mexican herder and darted into the corral, presently reappearing with the major's reluctant charger towing at the end of a taut bridle rein. "Now let Sergt. Kelly have your horse," said Thornton, "and give my compliments to Capt. Turner and ask him to join us. Come, sergeant, show me the trails."

Old Kelly was already in saddle beside the commander, and, never waiting to let down the stirrups, but with his long legs dangling, led the way along a winding path to the stream and then through the willows to its wooded bank. A trot of three minutes brought them to the bluff at whose rocky base the Sandy came boiling out of the canyon. Ahead of them, fresh and distinct, the hoof prints of a score of horses had obliterated all sign of what might have been driven ahead of them. But wheeling his horse abruptly to the right Kelly plunged into the foaming waters and sent him sputtering, breast deep, to the lower bank on the opposite side. Here in a shallow depression to the east of the stream lay some soft and marshy ground, and here the old sergeant reined in and pointed without a word to some peculiar footprints. Thornton, following his lead, gazed down at the sign, then into the sergeant's face for explanation.

"MAY I SPEAK TO THE MAJOR?"

"When did you find these?" he asked.

"Not fifteen minutes ago, sir. The animals went into the canyon, as Mr. Crane supposed, and he followed, but that's the print of the Tonto moccasin, and some of those bucks have cut across below here, skirted the edge of this here cienega close as they could without getting into it, and gone on up the heights. It's my belief they've planned to trap the lieutenant, and we can't get after them along this trail too quick."

Thornton turned and gazed eagerly down the Sandy. Out from the willows, loping, rode the tall and soldierly form of the captain of the sorrel troop, hastening to join his chief; but, before he could ford the stream, far to the northward, somewhere among those resounding rocks, came faint, distinct, but unmistakable, the ring and rattle of musketry.

"By heaven, old man, you're right!" cried the major. "Mount your men, Turner," he shouted, "and get them up here lively."

CHAPTER VI.

It was some twenty-three miles, as has been explained, in a general northwesterly direction, by a crooked road, from the new post of Fort Retribution, around the base of the Socorro, past Raton Springs (eight miles out) to the fords of the Sandy, which lay some five miles north of the upper entrance to Apache canyon. It was about ten miles nearly due west from the flagstaff at the new post to Signal Butte. Apache canyon, from gate to gate, was a gift of nearly eleven miles, and the course of the Sandy was about southeast by south. So here was a rude scalene triangle with a ten-mile base, a sixteen-mile adjacent side and a twenty-three-mile hypothenuse, crooked as a corkscrew, as the troopers said, and this little triangle, solidly filled with mountains, was the field of operations of Maj. Thornton's command in this its first campaign against Arizona Indians. The Sandy took a sudden turn to the southwest as it passed the old post, and flowed away in that general direction to its confluence with the Gila, and the old roundabout wagon route from Retribution to Prescott went down the Sandy, around the southern end of the mountain range and then away northwestward up the valley of Willow creek. The only short cut through the Socorro clump was by the old Tonto trail from Signal Butte at the south to Raton Springs to the northeast—and this, said Sergeant Kelly, was not the route by which the raiders retired on the approach of Turner's troop, but was the route by which they descended into the valley. If so they must have come over from Raton Springs and Foster's men should not be far behind them—only Foster hadn't a soul with him who had ever been through there or could trail by night. He had to wait for day, and possibly for orders. There were game trails all through the rocky, pine covered heights, but these would only confuse the uninitiated.

If, as Kelly declared, the Indians had dared to drive their captured stock straight through the canyon to lure the troops after them, while a larger party lurked in ambush on the overhanging cliffs, it meant that they had scouts watching Foster and ready to lead him astray, while others far to the north, keeping wary eye on the movements of Col. Pelham's troops at Sandy, dispatched swift runners or communicated by smoke or flame signals that only Indian eye could read.

"They feel secure for this day, sir," said Kelly to the anxious and perplexed field officer, whose command was now so widely scattered, "or they wouldn't wait to jump the lieutenant."

Had they "jumped" the lieutenant? That was the absorbing question. The firing had died away almost as suddenly as it began. The sounds came from the general direction of the canyon—not that of the trail to the springs. It could not, therefore, be a clash between Foster's troop and the Apaches. It must have been Crane's men, to whose support a whole platoon had been dispatched; but if what Kelly said was true, they were little better off than so many rats in a trap. All this the major was rapidly considering while Turner rallied his men down stream and came trotting up to the cienega. Then, led by Kelly, afoot and in single file, the little party began the tortuous ascent to the heights. In ten minutes they were again in saddle and trotting through a bold and beautiful range. To their left lay the deep chasm of Apache canyon and off to the eastward could be seen the dark rift through which ran the trail to Raton Springs. A guard of ten men, together with Downey and his fellow ranchmen, remained about the post, so that at this moment, say eight o'clock of a hot June morning, Maj. Thornton's force was distributed at five or six different points at both the southern angles and along the outer edge of this rough triangle. Verily, the Apaches seemed to know how to "play" the newcomers.

"If poor Rafferty hadn't been headed off and killed," said the major to Capt. Turner who, now that there was greater room, rode up alongside, "we should have known Foster's discoveries and movements. As it is, we are completely in the dark. I'm not so anxious about Crane now, for he has evidently got through the lower part of the canyon all right, and hasn't had time to reach the northern end, but I hope he's safe out of the bad place in the middle."

And just at this moment the old sergeant, riding a dozen yards ahead, and coming to a sharp turn around a rocky point, reined suddenly in, signaling halt. With much clatter and sputter of hoofs the rear of the column seemed to double up on the leaders before the rapid trot could be checked, and then with heaving flanks the horses huddled in a bunch. There was an opening in the hills to the right and a game trail led down around the very point where Kelly had halted and was now off his horse studying the ground.

"I thought so, sir," said he, pointing eagerly to certain prints in the rock dust along the trail. Then, bending low he worked over toward the edge of the cliff. "See, here again, sir, and here—Tonto moccasins! They probably crept up close to the edge, two or three of them, to watch what might be coming up through the gorge below." Turner was listening with a whimsical smile on his face, and here interposed.

"Look here a moment, sergeant," said he. "I have been doing some little scouting down stream and there are some points that may not have occurred to you. I admit we're new to Apache scouting, but there are some general rules that all Indians recognize. Now, we learned from our Pawnee scouts, and a Pawnee would say that these fellows" (and here Turner pointed to the footprints in the yielding surf) "were peering over at something going up the canyon ahead of them, and not what was coming behind. Let me ask you—what has become of Muncey and Ferguson and all their crowd all this time—where did they go?"

"God knows, sir, but ever since the cloudburst Muncey's too big a coward to push through the canyons alone at night."

"Ordinarily, yes—I admit that, but this time was 'life or death' with him. For some reason he stole the best horse at the fort—Ferguson's—and skipped in the dark. I believe it was in hopes of joining Manuel and his gang. I believe he thought he could safely ride and get credit for giving warning to Lieut. Crane and yourself; then he pushed out over toward Raton Springs. You say there were the prints of a dozen horses and mules this morning coming down the valley?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, they would obliterate any prints of those going up. Now, wasn't that Manuel's party? Don't you suppose Muncey met them in the hills, had them hide until Ferguson and his friends passed them by in the darkness and then came on down by Signal Butte intending to stay with Crane's guard or else, perhaps, to push on down the Sandy to the Gila and Tucson after they got what they wanted?"

"Got what they wanted? Does the captain mean Leon?"

"Leon, mules, horses—anything else to help them in their flight. How do you know who killed your herder and ran off your mules, sergeant? Could you see?"

CAUGHT UP ON GRIDIRON

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

Fletcher Hallock was on the field Saturday afternoon in his mole skins ready for the fray, but he did not get a chance as none of the Plainfield line men were disabled.

Assistant Manager Thomas U. Smith has received a challenge from the senior class at Princeton College for Thanksgiving Day. They are a gentlemanly set of players and Plainfield will probably hear the Princeton tiger howl here on Thanksgiving Day.

Captain "Ted" Feeman played his first entire game at quarter back Saturday and played the position well. He directed the team with excellent judgment and was the life of the team. He was in every play, tackled well and played a prominent part in the interference.

The Plainfield team has secured a good man in Louis Darling and it is too bad that he is in such hard luck. He wanted to play throughout Saturday's game but he had not quite recovered from his recent injuries and was forced to retire after the first half.

Considerable money changed hands on the result of Saturday's game and the Westfield supporters left quite a little money in Plainfield. One of them wagered $25 on the game and as the Plainfield boys began to make touch down after touch down his face was a study.

Among the familar faces on the side lines Saturday afternoon was that of A. Willis West, last year's captain and half back of the Leal School eleven. He is unable to play this year, but does duty as linesman for the Y. M. C. A. team, and makes a very efficient official.

Fred A. Wenck, manager of the SanRemo football club, refereed Saturday's game and a better one could not have been found. His judgement was good and there was no kicking by either side at his very fair decisions. A. J. Burchill, of Syracuse University, made a good unpire and performed his duties very satisfactorily.

Plainfield's plucky little half-back, Thomas U. Smith, will be seen behind the line no more this season, or in the gridiron for that matter. In Saturday's game, he received a blow on the knee that has caused water on the knee and Dr. Hedges has ordered him off the gridiron for the season. He will be confined to his bed for a week or two. He will continue his duties as assistant manager, however.

The Y. M. C. A. team will play no more on their old field near Washington avenue, as Contractor Uhdal's men are rapidly converting one end of that gridiron into a new road. No game will be played Saturday but on Election Day the Plainfield boys will line up against the Rutger's "Scrubs" on the Martine field, on Park avenue, just above Ninth street. Admission will be twenty-five cents to all except the ladies who will be admitted free.

Albert P. Simmonds played with the Y. M. C. A. team Saturday for the first time this season. He has been playing on the New Jersey Athletic Club's eleven, but laid off for the Westfield game. He put up a good game, making the longest run of the day, thanks to the excellent work of the men on the line in making an opening for him. He also did his share of work in the interference.

The Westfield players were disappointed. They had expected to win or at least, only allow Plainfield to score after a long and hard fight but the result was very different. They were greatly surprised at the strength of the Y. M. C. A. eleven and several of them advised Assistant Manager Thos. U. Smith to play the team of the Orange Athletic Club and said that they believed Plainfield would stand an excellent show of winning.

WHIST.

The Park Club will play again for the State whist trophy on next Monday evening. The challengers are the four from the New Jersey Athletic Club, and if the Parks are victorious the silver cup will become their property.

THE SOCIALIST IDEA.

TALK OF A TIME WHEN ADVERTISING WILL NOT BE NEEDED.

Harry Corless Can See No Good in Either One of the Big Political Parties, and Believes Socialism to be Right Principle

About a hundred Socialists and a sprinkling of other persons gathered in T. A. B. Hall last evening to listen to an address by Harry Corless, of Newark, on the two great issues of the day—gold and silver. Wm. Campbell was chairman of the meeting and John P. Wyele was the secretary.

During his remarks Mr. Corless said he considered it just as essential and necessary to use coal as it is the air we breathe. No man should lay hold of both gold and coal in large quantities, and the miners should receive equivalent wages to those in other spheres of life. For sixteen years the mining industry has been growing lower and lower. In Illinois, the speaker said, the miners are depressed, and in Fondulac many of them have no shoes to wear. The man who tries to keep his fellows in ignorance is the true Anarchist. The silver men talk liberally of free silver, same as they do of the free lunch, with a string to it, and some of the ignorant voters of the States today do not know the difference between free silver and free schools. Free coinage does not mean that the farmer or laborer shall get any more of it unless he works for it, and the only way the laboring man can better his condition is to increase his wages. Economic freedom, the speaker contended, can only be regained by the supply and demand; Bryan is pleading with and for the small capitalists, and the Republicans are catering to the wants of the gold mine owners. Socialists possess only about 5 per cent. of the National coinage of money, and the capitalists get the balance through the efforts of the laboring men.

The speaker went on to compare capitalists with parasites, who gorge at the feast which they have not created; people who never saw this land are today living on the fruits of your labors, and one of the main objects of Socialism is to stop this wholesale robbery by people who live in different party of the world. In closing, the speaker admonished his hearers to vote for the Socialist candidates, and by so doing vote that the people shall own their own tools of production, their machinery, etc.

"Hurl the capitalists to the bottom of the sea," said he, "and under Socialistic government no newspaper advertising will become necessary and traveling salesmen for our productions will become a thing of the past."

Then Mr. Corless invited the audience to ask him any questions they saw fit to concerning the issues at stake, and the first one asked was:

"Don't you really think McKinley will be elected?"

To which the speaker turned a partially hardened ear. Many other questions were asked.

Winckler Released.

Joseph Winckler, of New Market, has found the results of his recent fishing trip anything but pleasant. Although he had filed his appeal bond with Justice Storms, he was marched away to the New Brunswick jail, but now, thanks to his lawyer, City Judge DeMeza, he is at liberty. Judge DeMeza visited Justice Storms yesterday and the latter signed an order for Winckler's release.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Wm. M. McCutchen expects to ride on Saturday in the fall games at Yale. He has had but little training, but hopes to do well.

Rev. Dr. Yerkes, is one of the very latest converts to the wheel. Yesterday afternoon Rev. C. E. Herring, with a Hunter Arms tandem met the doctor on Park avenue and asked him to take a ride. The latter accepted and the two enjoyed a spin out Park avenue to the city line and back. The doctor rode like a veteran and those who saw him would not think that he was a novice.

the expense would not exceed $15. She laid the subject very impressively upon the hearts of all present, and its safe to say that next summer Plainfield will be well represented at the school. In conclusion Mrs. Skillman asked those present who had been benefited by the work of the Union to say so in a few words. Several teachers and superintendents responded, and in each case the influence of the Union had been marked to a great degree. One superintendent remarked that the primary department in his school was a wide-awake and aggressive one, but that it had been more so since the teachers had interested themselves in the work of the Union. Others gave like testimony.

As an offertory Joseph Titsworth sang a beautiful solo. Miss Beeching then introduced Mrs. J. Dimock Dudley, of Elizabeth, who gave a talk on Bible history, with the aid of the sand map. Mrs. Dudley is well known in this city, and her talents in illustrated primary teaching are thoroughly recognized by those who know her. She urged all teachers to use the sand map as far as possible in teaching the lessons. Before commencing her talk Mrs. Dudley announced that for convenience she would imagine that her audience was a class of scholars about eight years old. She then through the use of the sand map and a large number of minature articles, used to represent certain things mentioned in the Scriptures, told the story of the Bible from the beginning of the Word up to the resurrection of Christ. She explained in a very clear manner many little details of interest concerning the different tribes spoken of and of their acts and mode of worship and how they had broken faith with God, but God had kept His word with them. Throughout Mrs. Dudley's talk held the closest attention of the audience, and at the close she was heartily applauded. The singing of the benediction and the pronouncing of the benediction by Dr. Barnes brought the institute to a close.

The committee having in charge the institute include Mrs. Harold Serrell, chairman; Miss Margaret Rocap, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Elvaine VanName and Miss Lambert. Mrs. Serrell poured coffee and Miss Shreve poured tea, while the members of the Union assisted in general. Mrs. Powlison and Mrs. Mosher, had in charge the supply table, while Mrs. Jones, Miss Belle Lunger, Mrs. M. W. Smalley, Mrs. Serrell and Mrs. Powlison acted as ushers.

LOST HIS STORE TEETH.

Because of the Minister's Mishap, a Congregation Went Without a Sermon.

There is said to have been a ludicrous scene in the little Episcopal church in Linden last Sunday. For a long time the members have had to be content with the sermons furnished by irregular "supplies," secured from wherever they could be found.

Last week it was announced that a well-known D. D. from New York would officiate. All the members turned out to hear him, and arrangements were made for his fitting entertainment. But the dear old man had to travel all night to keep the engagement, and he couldn't help falling asleep while waiting for the hour set for opening the service.

The vestryman awoke the doctor in good time and was astonished to find him apparently speechless. He could not talk, much less preach.

"Awful pain in my throat," mumbled the doctor, by way of explanation. Then he bolted for the door and hurried towards Elizabeth. That was the last the congregation have seen of him.

Of course the folks talked. They talked all the more when the janitress discovered a double set of false teeth beneath the lounge upon which the departed doctor had rested.

Everybody laughed when they saw the artificial molars.

TOLD POLITICAL JOKES.

AND THE POINTS WERE ALWAYS FOR THE REPUBLICANS.

Lee Fairchild's Voice From the Pacific Kept His Audience in Good Humor—Also a Voice From Down East Maine.

Wit and argument were so pleasantly combined at the Republican mass-meeting last night at Music Hall that everybody was sorry when the meeting was dismissed and, like Dickens' "Oliver Twist," they wanted more. It was a good meeting, as Lee Fairchild declared, both from point of numbers and enthusiasm. Then, the ladies were there. They came in larger numbers than at any previous political meeting and they enjoyed the speeches as well as did their escorts.

The night was a delightful one, and before the meeting began every vacant seat was filled. The colored delegation entered with flags flying, headed by their drum corps, and marched through the lower floor. While waiting for the meeting to open, the Plainfield Cornet Band gave several selections; but it was much earlier in the evening when the music first began. A wagon, bearing a transparency and band, paraded through the streets early in the evening while the Young Men's Republican Club, accompanied by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, paraded through Plainfield's quiet streets and, from the sides of transparencies, displayed pictures of the National candidates, McKinley and Hobart, and the local men, William T. Kirk and Assemblyman W. R. Codington.

At the appointed time, Charles J. Fisk, chairman of the Republican Campaign Club, called the meeting to order and introduced the chairman, Mayor Alex. Gilbert. The other officers were: Vice-Presidents, Councilman R. I. Tolles, W. A. Freeman, A. D. Shepard, ex Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, Charles E. Brooks, Frank Bushnell, E. B. Day, James Clark, W. D. Murray, Street Commissioner R. A. Meeker, W. W. Howland, Robert H. Cook, Josiah H. Brown, Isaac L. Miller, E. B Clark, ex-Councilman L. Spangenberg, James Babbitt, Benjamin Sutton, C. Leveridge, Warren F. Randolph, I. S. Wells, J. B. Higgins; secretaries, Harry MacDonald, Armstrong Mulford, J. C. Pope, Charles H. Angleman.

Mayor Gilbert then announced that he had a pleasant surprise in store for his audience and that instead of a speech from him before Mr. Fairchild's address they would listen to a voice from Maine, an intimate friend and co-worker of Mr. Reed. Then he introduced Hon. Walter Emerson, of Maine.

Before the latter began his remarks the members of the Young Men's Republican Club marched in. By this time the hall was crowded, many standing in the rear.

"Once in a while," he began, "a Maine man comes over and blows out the gas. The undertaker does the rest. Four years ago the Democrats blew out the gas and we've been in the hands of the National undertaker ever since. There are others who are trying to do it again, only then it was free trade and now it is free silver." He referred to the divisions of the country and said that, in matters of National honesty like this, there would be no states, no east or west and no "enemy's" country. He spoke of Sewall and said that he was expected by the free silver men to carry the New England states.

"He did not carry his own State," exclaimed the speaker, "nor his district, nor his county, nor his city, nor his street, nor even his own family. If Bryan gets back in time," he continued, "he will carry his own family."

He described the earnestness of the campaign in Maine and declared that the recent election there was not a victory of one party, but of the honest men of two parties, an issue of patriotism, not of politics. The Maine contest was, he said, typical of the coming National contest.

He referred to the currency question as difficult and complex, but remarked that the past had plainly demonstrated the impossibility of one country successfully adopting the free coinage of silver. In his remarks he declared that Bryan's recent speech in the west in favor of a cheap dollar was exactly opposite to his remarks in New York, in which he supported a dollar of full value. The arguments of the other silver men were as conflicting as these, he said. He referred to the alleged crime of '73 and said that John Sherman and the best financiers in the country were the ones that did it and that they would certainly know more about it than Bryan and the rest. Bryan's great aim at present, he said, was to

THE GRAND JURY REPORT

TWO PRESENTMENTS AGAINST PLAINFIELD BUSINESS MEN.

One Was Against the Unsafety of the Cycle Academy and the Other for the Pollution of Green Brook by Sewage

The grand jury came into court in Elizabeth this morning and reported that they had finished their labors, and a total of sixty-three indictments were found and two presentments. The jury was thanked by the judge and discharged.

Two of the presentments were against Plainfielders. Charles H. Hand was presented for maintaining the Jersey Cycle Academy building without proper and safe exits for the handling of large crowds.

Chapot & Sons were presented for maintaining a nuisance in polluting Green brook with the refuse water from their kid glove factory near Evona, the details of which were published exclusively in The Daily Press sometime ago.

Four prisoners were discharged from the county jail against whom no indictment had been found for the charges made against them. Charles Frey, for beating his wife in this city, was indicted and arranged in court and pleaded not guilty. He was remanded for sentence.

Wm. VanNest, for larceny of a gun from Charles Lister, was indicted and when arraigned pleaded guilty. He was also remanded for sentence.

A number of other petty cases were also arraigned.

It is understood that an indictment was found against a prominent Plainfield citizen in connection with the crusade made by the Borough Board of Health in suppressing the pollution of Green brook.

DOMINICO NOT ARRESTED.

Frazee and His Friends Said to be to Blame For Sunday's Scrap.

Dominico de Dominico, the proprietor of the Italian resort at Scotch Plains, whom it was alleged shot Alex Frazee without apparent cause last Sunday, yesterday went to Elizabeth and gave himself up to Sheriff Kyte. The Sheriff had no warrant or complaint against him and permitted him to return home. No complaint has been made and it is understood that none will be. It is said that the party of men, of whom Frazee was one, were the ones to start the fight which ended in the shooting and were entirely to blame for the trouble they became involved in. Frazee is rapidly recovering from the injuries inflicted by the gun shot and will leave the hospital in a few days.

King's Daughters to Entertain.

A recitation and concert under the auspices of the Dorcas Circle King's Daughters will be held in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, Thursday night, at 8:15 o'clock. Ludwig Conde, violin; Midmer Glee Club, Mr. Chas. L. Lewis, Mr. Frank J. Smith at the piano.

Justice Thomas' Court.

The landlord and tenant case of the the Home Building and Loan Association against D. C. Allen, has been settled in Justice Thomas's Court by the defendant paying $38 and costs. Summons have been issued in the case of H. J. Martin against G. A. Lewis, for a promisory note of $50, which is returnable November 5th, and the case of H. J. Martin against Anthony C. Lazzi, on contract, returnable, November 5th.

Damrosch Lecture.

The lecture to be given by Frank H. Damrosch at Seminary Hall tomorrow afternoon will be one of the most interesting events of the season. The subject "A Key to Unlock the Treasures of Song" speaks for itself. Profitable to music lovers and enjoyable to all. Mr. Damrosch will give practical illustrations showing how to use this magic key. Dont fail to go and hear what can be done.

Release of a Prisoner.

Vincent Wessells, who has been in jail in Elizabeth since last June, on a charge that he made a poor investment of funds intrusted to him as guardian for his nephew, was liberated yesterday by Judge McCormick, with the stipulation that he pay his nephew's lawyers' fees and the cost of the Orphan's Court.

A Serious Charge.

Miss Victoria Municke, of New York, has brought action against Valante Gilanski, a shoemaker, doing business on Berckman street, for criminal assault. Justice Newcorn issued a warrant yesterday for the arrest of the latter and he was held until Thursday afternoon, for examination.

IN THE MIDST OF A MOB.

E. R. ACKERMAN STONED BY ORANGE ROUGHS MONDAY NIGHT.

The Plainfielder Delivered a Republican Oration and His Argument Was Met With Stones From the Disturbers.

Until Monday night the political campaign in New Jersey had been free from mob violence, but on that occasion Orange was the scene of a lively time that came near being a riot. A Republican demonstration was to be held that evening, which was to include a bicycle parade and a mass-meeting, at which a Plainfield citizen, Ernest R. Ackerman, Republican candidate for Presidential elector in this district, was to be the prominent speaker. The parade was large but the tough element did their best to break it up. Tacks were scattered over the streets and punctured tires were very plentiful. Clubs were used, and the decorations on the wheels smashed, and some poor Republican cyclists were dragged from their wheels.

At the mass-meeting, Mr. Ackerman enjoyed the rather unpleasant sensation of being stoned. Luckily the bombarders were on the outside of the hall, but large rocks, brickbats and the like crashed through the windows to the imminent peril of those within. Other means were used to disturb the serenity of the meeting. The hall was packed, however, with those who wanted to hear Mr. Ackerman, and hear him they did. He made a strong speech, despite the fact that he was talking under fire, and was loudly applauded. His audience was largely composed of workingmen who seemed greatly pleased with his remarks and appearance.

Born and Died in Somerset County.

The death of Dennis Barry, aged 29 years, occurred early this morning at his home on Greenbrook road, from an attack of pleurisy. Mr. Barry was born on a farm on the mountain near Washington Rock and afterward moved to North Plainfield where he always lived. He was a lather by trade, having learned the trade when quite young. The funeral services will be held Friday morning, at 10 o'clock from St. Joseph's (R. C.) Church.

"Flag Day."

Saturday will be observed as "Flag Day" throughout the United States and all good citizens will display the Stars and Stripes from their homes and a miniature flag on their coats. Plainfield people will not be behind the rest, and the city will present a holiday appearance on that day with flags of all shapes and sizes displayed at every point.

Card Club Resume.

The Washington Avenue Card Club, of Dunellen and North Plainfield, formerly known as the Young People's Progressive Euchre Club, held a meeting last evening at the home of Miss Gray, of Dunellen. Chas. H. English was elected vice-president, and two young men were admitted to membership.

Death from Diphtheria.

Ella Huntington, the five-year-old child of James and Mary Huntington, died at her home, 318 New street, last evening about 10 o'clock, from diphtheria, aftet a long illness. The funeral, which will be private, will be held tomorrow morning. The interment will be at Hampton Junction.

The Other Side.

As Lawyer Runyon gave the gold argument last Thursday night, Lawyer Swackhamer will give the silver argument before the students and friends of the Plainfield Business College, in the Babcock building tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Contract Suit Started.

The suit of Beekman against Reekman, on contract for $150, has been started in Justice Newcorn's court and summons have been issued. City Judge DeMeza represents the plaintiff.

To Lawrie Eight!

Will "Lawrie Eight" please communicate with the city editor of The Press in his own name?

THE VOICE OF A VICTIM

ONE WHO SUFFERS FROM BONFIRE SMOKE SCORES MR. MEEKER.

Quotes a City Ordinance to Show That the Street Commissioner Tacitly Approves What He is Authorized to Stop.

A member of the Woman's Town Improvement Association sends the following communication to The Daily Press, signed "Victim," anent Street Commissioner Meeker's recent interview in this paper:

The ordinance relating to the morals, peace and good order of the city of Plainfield, section 4, reads: "For setting off firecrackers or squibs, throwing fireballs made of combustible materials, or making bonfires on the streets or public ways * * a fine is imposed in any sum not exceeding $20." The ordinance relating to the duties of the street commissioner, section 2, reads: "The street commissioner shall be the overseer of the roads, streets and public grounds in the city of Plainfield, under direction and supervision of the committee on streets and public health * * and it shall also be his duty to detect and discover every nuisance which may exist in the streets of said city, and forthwith to remove the same, and to prevent said streets from being improperly obstructed and encumbered, and to prevent the maintenance or continuance of any nuisance or anything of offensive or unwholesome nature within said streets or public grounds."

Judging from a recently reported interview with the street commissioner it would seem that the foregoing ordinances have very little weight with him, as he, a paid officer of the city, virtually encourages the violation of the ordinances, and the increased number of bonfires of leaves within the last few days show that people have not been slow to follow his suggestions. He also gives his opinion in regard to the non-injurious effects of the smoke from the burning of the leaves, in direct opposition to the known views of eminent physicians and the sad experience of many a sufferer.

The Town Improvement Association is seeking to beautify and improve the city, and deserves the support and encouragement of its officials at least.

An Elizabeth Paper Suspends.

The New Jersey Herald, of Elizabeth, after a career of one year, gave up the struggle for exirtence yesterday. It was formerly the Central New Jersey Herald, a Democratic organ. After running for many years in became the property of Dr. John Max Reiner, who changed its politics to that of a Republican afternoon daily and began a crusade against the city authorities for alleged non-enforcement of the Sunday-Closing law. The outcome was the imprisonment of Dr. Reiner for twenty days on twenty-six charges of criminal libel, made against him by Mayor Rankin. The Grand Jury only found indictments on four of these complaints, and the trial of Dr. Reiner has been set for November 14. Editor Reiner will engage in literary work in New York. The paper may be started again after the election.

To Start Work Again.

M. Uhdal, the contractor, who was compelled to stop work on the grading of the new Sycamore avenue extension, on account of the lease held on a portion of ground by the Y. M. C. A. foot ball players, will commence work again in a few days, as the Y. M. C. A. has agreed to surrender their lease. The avenue when completed will be a fine thoroughfare, and Mr. Uhdal is entitled to much credit for the part he has taken in the grading.

An Informal Reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, of Central avenue, gave an informal reception at their home last evening in honor of their niece, Miss Phillips, and her friend, Miss Valentine, of Jersey City. The evening was pleasantly passed in sociability interspersed with refreshments. There were about twenty friends present who enjoyed the affair exceedingly.

Grand Jury Throws Cases Out.

The Grand Jury of Union county has thrown out about 200 cases, in which they said they were unable to find sufficient evidence on which to base an indictment. Local justices were blamed by the jury for presenting trivial cases for the jury's consideration. About sixty indictments will be handed to the court today.

DEMOCRATIC MEETINGS.

ASSURANCES THAT SENATOR STEWART WILL SPEAK TOMORROW.

The Preacher Candidate to Talk Tonight in North Plainfield and Palmer and Buckner to Hold Forth on Friday Night.

There is every assurance that the Bryan and Sewell Democrats of this city will have the pleasure of listenening to Senator Stewart tomorrow evening in Music Hall. The Senator will be on his way from Washington to New York, and the National Committee have said that it is almost sure that he will stop off and speak in Plainfield. Senator Stewart is one of the foremost and pronounced advocates of free silver in the United States, always prominent in National legislation, and a man well versed in argument and figures to prove to his auditors the practicability and honesty of the issues which Bryan and Sewall are upholding. Another speaker will be Dr. Beckworth, of Ohio, who addressed an audience in T. A. B. hall some weeks ago. It is expected that other speakers will also be present.

This evening the Bryan and Sewall Democrats will hold a mass meeting in Saengerbund hall on Somerset street, which will be addressed by Rev. Mr. Wells, Congressional candidate in the Third district, and the Somerset county Democratic nominees. J. Grattan MacMahon, a King's county spellibinder, will also speak.

The Palmer and Buckner Democrats will hold forth in Music Hall Friday night and will be addressed by Edward M. Sheppard, of Brooklyn, and Richard V. Lindabury, of Newark, both well-known political speakers.

READY TO HEAR OBJECTIONS.

Sewer Commissioners Hold a Public Meeting in the Council Chamber.

The first public meeting of the Sewer Commissioners was held last evening in the Council chamber. The commissioners organized by selecting J. Parker Mason, chairman and Geo. R. Cornwall, secretary. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was present and read the ordinance by which the men were appointed. The meeting was held for the purpose of giving anybody an opportunity to meet the commissioners and offer any objections they might have regarding assessments, and Councilman Moore was the only outsider present and he came to learn what the assessment would be more than anything else. The meeting was adjourned to November 5th. These meetings will be held once a week until the commissioners are ready to make their report to the Council.

Death of Walter Leland.

Walter Henry Leland, son of George and Mary Leland, died at his home, 401 West Front street, yesterday afternoon, after a week's illness from typhoid pneumonia. He was out on the street the day before he was stricken down to his bed, and he was conscious to the last. "Walley," as he was familiarly known, was born in Brooklyn Feb. 15th, 1863, and came to Plainfield twenty-five years ago. He was a tinner by trade and had worked with his father for a long time. The funera will take place from the house on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Will Sue For Heavy Damages.

Former Congressman John T. Dunn, of Elizabeth, returned yesterday from Hampton Junction, where he has been the last three months undergoing treatment for injuries received by the falling of an elevator in the Merchant's Mutual Bank, in Newark. At the time he received the injuries it was feared he would die, as there was a clot of blood at the base of his brain. He has not yet fully recovered. He says the corporation offered him $1,500 to settle his claim, but he refused the offer and will sue for heavy damages.

—Another McKinley and Hobart flag has been flung to the breeze in this city. It hangs in front of the residence of Charles W. Burton, of Watchung avenue, and was placed there by him.

A HEAVY REGISTRATION.

MANY ADDITIONAL NAMES ADDED TO THE POLL LISTS YESTERDAY.

There is Almost Sure to be Two New Districts Formed by the Result of the Vote Next Tuesday, and Possibly Three.

The Boards of Election last night completed the work of registering the larges number of voters ever recorded in this city and borough. Though a thorough house-to-house canvass had been made before the boards set two weeks ago, and a large number came and personally registered that day, still quite a number in addition to these were registered yesterday. Members of the boards say that several men—especially colored men—came yesterday and demanded that their names be added to the lists who were unknown to any one of the board, but the law compelled them to register their names.

It is probable that in the Third ward fully 600 votes will be cast out of the 698 names registered, and this will necessitate the formation of another district. The same thing will happen in the First district of the Fourth ward, where 731 names are registered, and it is quite probable that even 600 votes may be cast in the First district of the First ward. This would make three additional election districts in this city.

The figures follow:

	Regis.	First day	N'ms added	erased	To'l 1896	To'l 1895
First ward, 1st dist	568	40	2		606	562

A LOVE KNOT TIED.

Marriage of Miss Ernestine Negus, of Bound Brook, to Edward V. French.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at Bound Brook, when Miss Ernestine Negus, of that place, was united in marriage to Edward V. French, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. French, of West Seventh street, this city.

The celebration took place at the home of the bride and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Whitney, of Plainfield, an uncle of the groom, in the presence of the near relatives of the contracting parties. Miss Negus and Mr. Negus, sister and brother of the bride, served as bridemaid and best man.

Following congratulations, a sumptuous repast was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. French left for a short wedding trip. On their return they will probably reside in this city. Mr. French is an architect and will open an office in the Babcock building when he returns.

Among those who witnessed the marriage were: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. French, Miss Mary French, Miss Lou French, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. French, Frank French, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. French, Miss French, of Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Keeps, of Boston.

The presents received by the bride and groom were handsome and very costly.

WEE GIRL BEAT A WOMAN.

Forty-Pond Child Convicted of Assaulting a Two Hundred Pound Lady.

The tinest female prisoner ever tried in Union County, appeared before Judge McCormick at Elizabeth Monday. Her name is Louisa Grass, a German, of No. 600 Elizabeth avenue. She is ten years old and weighs forty pounds.

Miss Annie Jarvis, twenty-six years old, is a plump Scotch girl, near the two-hundred pound mark, and lives next door to the Grass family. Recently, it is charged, Miss Jarvis called Louisa "Dutchie," whereupon the latter struck the other in the face with a stick. For this she was arrested and the Grand Jury, not knowing her age or size, indicted her.

Little Louisa conducted her own case yesterday, and told the story of the assault in a masterly manner for her side. The jury, after being out three hours, concluded that the assalt had been proved and brought in a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation for mercy. She will be sentenced Wednesday.

Died in South Dakota.

Word has been received in this city telling of the death of Walter Fawcett, aged forty-three years, of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, which occurred at Elk Point, Dakota, last Saturday evening. The decedent was a son of Thomas Fawcett, of Plainfield, and had practiced law during the past seventeen years in the west. No particulars regarding his death have as yet been received, but the body is expected to arrive in Plainfield by tomorrow. The funeral will be private.

POLITICS BOOMING

Great Activity at the Different Party Headquarters.

RUSHING THE WORK AT THE CLOSE

Every Speaker Available Pressed into Service and Thousands of Campaign Documents Crowded into the Mails.

New York, Oct. 28.—As the campaign draws toward its close the activity at the different headquarters not only does not diminish but increases in proportion to the shortening of the time. Every nerve is being strained to the utmost and every effort is being made in all parts of the country to carry the day for the respective candidates. Thousands of campaign documents are still being circulated by mail and otherwise, and hundreds of speakers are being directed in their stumping tours in various parts of the country from the national headquarters here. This work will be carried on unremittingly from now until the day before election. All day long and far into each night a large force of clerks at the headquarters is kept constantly alert attending to the several matters that fall within their province. The literary bureaus are particularly hard pressed, the demand for speeches being seemingly unlimited, but every resource will be taxed to the utmost to supply what is requested.

INSULT TO MR. BRYAN.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The beginning of Wm. J. Bryan's campaign in Chicago and Cook county, the most earnest fight of his three months' of hard work, began late yesterday afternoon and lasted until midnight. Last night the democratic nominee addressed five meetings in various parts of the city. He spoke first at Arcade hall at 7 o'clock, was whirled away in a carriage to Boulevard hall, and addressed in turn audiences in Polish hall, in a big tent at Twenty-ninth street and at Tattersalls. During the journey from the depot to the armory building, and when opposite the Metropolitan Business college, several eggs were thrown at Mr. Bryan's carriage. The missiles did not reach the candidate or his wife, but several members of the escort suffered. No arrests were made and but few knew of the insult.

Hobart Speaks at Jersey City.

Jersey City, Oct. 28.—Vice-Presidential Candidate Hobart spoke to a large audience at Oakland rink last night. He referred to the assurances of an honest count of the ballots in New Jersey next Tuesday and spoke in praise of those democrats who are allied with the republicans this year. The main portion of his speech was devoted to finance and the tariff.

Erie's Gold Standard Parade.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 28.—The gold standard parade in Erie yesterday afternoon brought together a big gathering. Excursion trains were run on all the roads, bringing thousands of visitors.

Declines a Joint Debate.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Secretary Herbert, who left Washington last night for Alabama to make several speeches, has declined a joint debate with Congressman Stallings.

The Question of Admitting Armenians.

New York, Oct. 28.—Dr. Joseph H. Senner, commissioner of immigration, has received a telegram from the acting secretary of the treasury which says: "The treasury department approves your action in Armenian matters as reported in your letter of the 23rd inst. and the future course indicated therein. Your recommendations as to the acceptance of bonds will be considered in connection with the papers received." Dr. Senner's recommendations were that the transportation authorities should insist upon the proper distribution of the immigrants so as not to conflict with the labor market in any particular branch or location.

Yale University Membership.

New Haven, Oct. 28.—The Yale News prints figures, partly official, of the total membership of the university. It fixes the whole number of students at 2,516, a gain of 90 over last year. The academic department gains 68, the medical department 10, the graduate department 51, while the scientific department loses 13, the divinity school 5, the law school 20 and the art school 1.

Election Riots in Hungary.

Budapest, Oct. 28.—Serious election riots have taken place in different parts of Hungary. At Tyman a detachment of hussars, while attempting to restore order, was stoned by the mob and one trooper was killed. The huzzars thereupon charged with drawn swords and several of the rioters were wounded. Troops have been sent to the various disturbed districts.

Col. Loder, U. S. A., To Retire.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 28.—Col. Richard Loder, U. S. A., commanding the Second United States artillery at Fort Adams and Fort Warren, left last night for Washington. He retires Friday by reason of age, having commanded the Second artillery since reaching his present rank in July, 1890.

Death of an Aged Brattleboro Judge.

Brattleboro, Vt., Oct. 28.—Judge Royal Tyler, for fifty years judge of probate for the Marlboro district of Winham county, is dead, aged 84. He was born in Brattleboro.

Dowager Duchess of Leeds Dead.

London, Oct. 28.—The Dowager Duchess of Leeds is dead. She was formerly Miss Harriette Stewart.

THE CUBAN INSURRECTION.

Pinkerton Detectives Arrested for Attempted Bribery in the Dauntless Case.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 28.—Henry W. Budd, a pinkerton detective in the employ of the Spanish government, is in jail here for an attempt to bribe D. A. Allen, who has been employed on the Dauntless, to give evidence against the alleged filibustering steamer. Budd was held in $2,500 bond and failing to give it was sent to jail. If the Cubans have evidence to convict Budd of the alleged attempt at bribery, he will be sent to the penitentiary for five years.

Battle at Galofre.

Madrid, Oct. 28.—A dispatch from Havana says: Major Uriz, with 500 men, following instructions from Gen. Melguizo, found the rebels under Llorent at Galofre, Pinar del Rio. The troops were assisted by the gunboats Delgado and Parijo, which shelled the rebels' position, which was finally abandoned. The loss of the insurgents was thirty-two dead, the bodies being left on the field. It is calculated that eighty of the rebels were wounded. The troops lost an officer and nineteen privates wounded. Senor Escobar, an editor of the suppressed newspaper La Discusion, who was arrested a few days ago and then released, has been rearrested.

Another Rebel Defeat Reported.

Havana, Oct. 28.—The forces under Col. Aldea have routed the rebel parties commanded by Lucret and Roque, 250 strong, ninety of whom, mostly infantry, perished. The combat, which lasted six hours, began at Gabriola and terminated at San Miguel, province of Matanzas. The troops lost one killed and five wounded. As the above story emanates from official sources, and on account of the large numbers of rebels said to have perished, with a loss of only one from the Spanish ranks, friends of the Cubans here believe it should be taken with a grain of salt.

Defenseless Cuban Prisoners Stoned.

Cadiz, Oct. 28.—A number of Cuban prisoners were landed here yesterday and were at once taken to the prison where they will be confined. They were followed by a hooting mob, many members of which threw stones at the defenceless men. The gendarmes who had the prisoners in charge had much difficulty in protecting them against the violence of the mob.

VENEZUELAN DISPUTE.

Lansdowne Deprecates Clarke's Assertion That England's Claims Were Untenable.

London, Oct. 28.—The Marquis of Lansdowne, secretary of state for war, delivered a speech at Leeds last night. He took occasion to deprecate the speech recently made at York by Sir Edward Clarke, formerly solicitor general, who said that Great Britain's claims in Venezuela were untenable, and that no honest or impartial arbitrator or commission could decide in Great Britain's favor on the evidence. Lord Lansdowne declared that Sir Edward's statement was a startling and serious one. Great Britain's claims had been carefully investigated and he believed that most of them could be supported by satisfactory evidence. Lord Lansdowne added that there was reason to hope that the time was approaching when these questions would be settled by arbitration or an amicable compromise upon suitable conditions. When the time came Great Britain would enter court, not for a moment believing that every point would be decided in her favor, but confident that her claims would be found to be supported by evidence based upon the established principles of international law.

EVERHARDT BADLY PUNISHED.

Stands Up Twenty-four Rounds Before Lavigne, Who Is Awarded the Fight.

New York, Oct. 28.—The Bohemian Sporting club held its first contest of importance last night when George, better known as "Kid," Lavigne of Saginaw, Mich., and Jack Everhardt of New Orleans, the well-known lightweights, met in a twenty-five round bout at 138 pounds for a purse of $3,500. The prices charged for admission were $30, $20 and $10. The betting was 1,000 to 700 on Lavigne. The contest was advertised as being for the "lightweight championship of the world," but the weights at which the men fought precluded any such conclusion, the legal weight limit being 133 pounds. The fighting was fast and furious, the men appearing pretty evenly matched. In the twenty-fourth round, after Everhardt had taken enough punishment to have finished half a dozen men, the referee jumped into the ring and awarded the fight to Lavigne.

Mrs. C. F. Wells Not Known in Trenton.

Trenton, Oct. 28.—Nothing could be learned here of the identity of Mrs. Carlton F. Wells, wife of the man who is supposed to have been buried for dead while still alive at Juneau, Alaska. Wells' wife is said to live in this city, and it was her directions to have the body of her husband disinterred and shipped here which led to the discovery of Wells' horrible fate.

Big Mills Resume Operations.

Boston, Oct. 28.—The Washington Mills company of Lawrence started up their plant this morning, giving employment to 4,500 people. There will be no interruption in the delivery of their goods on account of the fire. The property is amply covered by insurance.

Extradition Papers Refused.

Boston, Oct. 28.—Acting Governor Wolcott declines to honor the requisition of the governor of Missouri for E. E. Wilson, a produce merchant of this city, who is charged with grand larceny by Kansas City parties, for the reason that the papers were insufficient.

Death of Lord Alexander Paget.

London, Oct. 28.—Lord Alexander Paget died here yesterday. He was born in 1839, and was a brother of the Marquis of Anglesey.

BICYCLE WITH WINGS.

Flying Attachment Enables Wheelmen to Mount in the Air.

If the wheel isn't fast enough for you, why, fly.

It seems as though the old fairy legend of the seven league boots would come true before this century ends.

The bicycle has multiplied many fold the speed possible in personal locomotion. Distance has been divided by 100.

But that isn't enough. No week passes but there appears some new device, intended to lighten the labor and accelerate the speed of the wheel.

The latest of these is a bicycle flying machine. Experiment has just been made with this wonderful machine, and the results, the inventor says, make ordinary cycling seem as ancient and clumsy as a jolting journey in the wagons of our grandfathers.

The man who has devised this wonderful machine, says the New York Journal, is Charles Sigors, a young machinist. There is no joke about it. He considers the bicycle flying machine an altogether practical proposition and has filed application for patents to protect it.

The flying machine attachment is to be fastened to the handle bar of the bicycle. The wings will be of canvas, stretched over aluminium frames. They will be eight feet long and about four feet in width. They will be rectangular in shape and one will be fastened on either side of the air cylinder, which will be in the center.

THE WHEEL WITH WINGS.

In the cylinder lies the secret of the success of the device. It will be four feet in length, with a diameter of 15 inches. It will be constructed of aluminium and some alloy of sufficient resistance to allow 100 pounds pressure of compressed air to the square inch.

Before the wheelman starts out the air will be pumped in, and the inventor declares that when the cylinder is filled the buoyancy will counteract the weight of the apparatus, and render the propulsion of the wheel perfectly easy.

PUT FISH IN HIS MILK.

Cruel Treatment of Honest "Paddy" O'Hara by Two City Jokers.

"Paddy" O'Hara, butcher and milkman of La Conner, with his fountains of mirth and beaming face, is in the city again taking in the sights, says the Seattle Times. "Paddy" is a character, an original fellow, and is known to everyone in Skagit county, also to most all of the old-timers of Seattle. He likes to tell stories, but here is one that another fellow told on him:

The duties of milkman in La Conner are in a large measure regarded as those of a public servant, and if the milkman is ever suspected of watering his milk a public scandal is the result. O'Hara was continually annoyed by some of his customers in their bantering way accusing him of selling watered milk. One of them declared he would prove the milk was watered, and a wager was quickly closed with two of the most noted "joshers" in the community.

The next morning "Paddy" was more careful than ever, and gave his customers almost pure cream. His content was short-lived, however, for in the presence of his best lady customer, as he poured out the rich fluid, what should glide out of the can into the measure but three small Puget sound silverside salmon. O'Hara was greatly excited and his customer equally alarmed. He declared loud and long that he had been "jobbed," and, to substantiate the assertion, he even said that if he did water his milk a little he was not guilty of putting in the fish, as that would only too plainly display criminal carelessness.

Biliousness

Is caused by torpid liver, which prevents digestion and permits food to ferment and putrify in the stomach. The Difference

"I see no difference between H-O and any other oatmeal!" We know it. The difference is not to be seen. You taste, and smell, and feel the difference, though!

H-O

is different from all others, in that it is more sweet, smooth, delicate, digestible. Its preparation begins where the others leave off. It is twice cooked, once by steam, once by super-heated air. Thus half the work of digestion is done, and the system is never over-taxed or over-heated.

Be sure to get the package with the big H-O on the end.

POPE WATCHING US

Great Interest at the Vatican in the Election Here.

ONE OF THE LEADING TOPICS

Catholic Bishops Must Not Take Any Part in the Campaign—The Pope Fears a New Division and Outbursts of Intemperate Expressions.

London, Oct. 28.—The Pall Mall Gazette publishes a dispatch from its Rome correspondent in which he says: "The coming presidential election in the United States is the absorbing topic in the vatican, owing to the strides made by Catholicism in America, now one of the largest sources of income the church has. It is recognized that the standing danger to Romanism in the United States is the independence of the American bishops, noticeable since the time of Pius IX. The latter fully recognized that these bishops enjoyed greater power than their brethren elsewhere, and he showed he understood this by his answer to some English priests who asked for certain privileges. He said: 'I am, as you say, pope, yet I cannot accept your request. But I can show you a way to obtain your desire. Go to America, for there the bishops are greater than the pope.' On the accession of Pope Leo matters assumed a different aspect. He charged Mgr. Satolli with the duty of intimating to the bishops, in unmistakable language, the limits of their powers, and the result was something like a split, which it took Mgr. Satolli something like two years to heal. But his mission had good results." The correspondent adds that the vatican does not wish the clergy in the United States to take part in the campaign, lest there should be a new division in the ranks and an outburst of intemperate expresssions of political opinion on the part of the more impetuous bishops.

KEYPORT CROSSING ACCIDENT.

Railroad Men Lay the Responsibility on the Victims.

Keyport, N. J., Oct. 28.—The railroad crossing accident at Keansburg yesterday, by which Dr. W. W. Palmer and his 15-year-old granddaughter were instantly killed, his daughter, aged 21, slightly hurt and William Hauran, a visitor whom the Palmer's had gone to the depot to meet, perhaps fatally injured, is claimed by railroad men to have been caused by their own carelessness in not ascertaining whether a train was approaching before they started to drive across the Central railroad tracks, but this opinion is not shared by the friends of the victims, who say that the crossing has always been considered dangerous. The accident was a peculiarly sad one, as, just before the locomotive struck the carriage, the four were chatting merrily together and had not the slightest knowledge that danger was near. The time elapsing between their first seeing the train and the fatal collision was so short that the frightened occupants had no time to leap from the coach. The train went some distance before it could be stopped, and then many of the passengers alighted to see what had occurred. Physicians were summoned, but their services were of no avail in the case of Dr. Palmer and his granddaughter, who were already dead. Dr. Palmer's head was horribly crushed and his right foot cut off, while his granddaughter's body was almost cut to pieces. Mr. Hauran, who is thought to have no chance of recovery, and Dr. Palmer's daughter, who was comparatively slightly injured, were taken to the Monmouth Memorial hospital, Long Branch, for treatment. The carriage was wrecked, but the horse was not killed.

Gold from Australia.

New York, Oct. 28.—The $2,125,000 in gold to be shipped from Sydney, N. S. W., by the steamer Alameda for San Francisco, as announced in a dispatch from the former place last evening, is consigned to the Anglo-Californian bank, which is practically the San Francisco branch of the firm of J. & W. Seligman & Co. of this city. At their office here it was said that the gold would be turned into the United States sub-treasury at San Francisco immediately upon its arrival there, and that the treasury's gold reserve would be correspondingly increased. Further shipments of gold at that point, it was also said, would be received and turned into the treasury reserve.

Railroad Incorporated.

Albany, Oct. 28.—The Perry, Livingstone & Wyoming Railroad company, to construct a standard gauge steam road about twelve and a half miles in length from a point on the Silver Lake railway in Perry, Wyoming county, thence to a point on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad at Greigsville, Livingstone county, has been incorporated.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 28.—The police are looking for Adolph Kwasney, a German, of Fairfield, who recently lost his reason. His family is wealthy. He was recently discharged from a sanitarium and was to sail for Europe on Saturday. He took a horse and wagon with him.

Albany Police Law Unconstitutional.

Sentenced To Die in the Electric Chair.

WATSON'S LETTER

The Missing Document Reaches Chairman Butler at Last.

WAS DETAINED FOR POSTAGE

It Will Be Given to the Public Provided at Least One Important Change Is Made in It, Which Watson Has Been Asked To Make.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Senator Marion Butler, chairman of the populist national committee, has just given out the following: "Mr. Watson's letter was received Saturday night. It had been detained in the postoffice for want of sufficient postage, and I had not been notified by the postoffice authorities. Of course, I expected Mr. Watson to give his letter to the public in the usual way, as soon as he had it ready. At a recent meeting of our executive committee at Chicago, Mr. Washburne was sent by our committee to Thomson, Ga., to confer with Mr. Watson. On Monday, October 19, I received a telegram from Mr. Washburne, sent while he was at Mr. Watson's home, at Thomson, Ga., asking me not to publish Mr. Watson's letter until I heard from him, but that was before I had received the letter. In the meantime Mr. Washburne went to Nashville, Tenn., on last Saturday, for another conference with Mr. Watson. I wired Mr. Washburne who had just returned from Nashville, where he had a second conference with Mr. Watson, that the letter had been received. Mr. Washburne wired me in reply, asking me not to publish the letter at present. In the meantime I have written to Mr. Watson, urging the advisability of making at least one important change in his letter. If he authorizes this change, I will give out the letter. Otherwise, he must take the responsibility of publishing it himself.

"MARION BUTLER."

COHEN EXTRADITED.

The Accused Embezzler of $100,000 Taken to New York for Trial.

Philadelphia, Oct. 28. — Adolphus Cohen, alias Coles, who was arrested here on October 16 charged with being an embezzler of $100,000, was taken to New York to-day by a detective from that city. Requisition papers arrived last night from Harrisburg. Cohen was in the banking business on Canal street, New York. Among his business associates was Leonardo Morrelli, who says that on December 24, 1893, Cohen skipped, embezzling large amounts of money and causing the downfall of a number of small banks. Morrelli is now a laborer in this city. He recognized Cohen in a cigar store recently and caused his arrest. Cohen had been living in Philadelphia for two years.

Chicago Wheat Market.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Bradstreet's report yesterday afternoon on the world's wheat stocks fulfilled anticipations on the exchange, an increase of 5,930,000 bushels being given. The force of the weakening power of this item of news was not instantly felt, but when it was exploited there was a unanimous selling movement, touching 68¼. The buying against puts sustained prices and even caused a partial rally, but the discouraged tone was prominent even on recoveries. The final moments of the session developed nothing new in the situation, the market rallying and closing on puts. The range on December was between 70⅛ and 68¼, and the close at 68¾, 2@2⅛c under Monday.

Daring Burglar Breaks Jail.

New York, Oct. 28.—The detective bureau at police headquarters has been notified by the authorities of the Westchester jail at White Plains, that Peter James, alias Edward Jacques, one of the men concerned in the Walker Adams murder at Bedford station on August 20, had escaped. James filed his way out of the cell while the keepers were watching a parade then passing the prison.

Li Hung Chang's Appointment.

London, Oct. 28.—The Times regards Li Hung Chang's appointment to the newly created post of foreign minister, apparently placing him above the obstructive and unprogressive influence of the tsung-li-yamen, as significant. "It is obviously intended," says the Times, "to show the desire of working in harmony with the interests and ideas of the western world."

Cape Broyle Gold Fields.

St. Johns, N. F., Oct. 28.—The English expert who was sent to investigate the Cape Broyle gold fields in the interest of a British syndicate reports very favorably upon the fields. Fifty square miles are now covered by licenses to search for gold. Prospects are good for extensive operations next spring.

Donlon Acquitted of the Charge of Murder.

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 28.—The jury in the case of Thomas Donlon, who has been on trial here charged with having caused the death of Edward Masterson, by pushing him under the wheels of a moving engine on the Pennsylvania railroad, brought in a verdict of acquittal.

Since the last Presidential election almost every State which had not then adopted the Austrailian ballot system has, by State enactment, prescribed some form of secret blanket ballot, either based on the Australian plan or closely resembling it. The only exceptions are Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina and South Carolina. In the first three States named the old open ballot system prevails, and the election machinery is in the hands of the State authorities. In South Carolina there is what is called a "reform ballot," the avowed purpose of which is to restrict the votes of illiterate negroes. In nearly all the other States blanket ballots will be cast and many of them will be complicated by the fact that State, legislative and county nominations are printed on the same ballot with the names of Presidential electors. Should the election be in anyway close it is, therefore, quite possible that it may twenty-four or forty-eight hours after the polls close before the result is known with absolute certainty.—True American.

The Montclair town counsel, to whom were referred last week question of the sale of lapel buttons to children with questionable or vulgar inscriptions, reported that the act is liable to heavy penalty by a fine of $1,000.

TOLD POLITICAL JOKES.

array different parts of the country against each other. He closed with an eloquent plea.

If ever a speaker captured his audience it was Lee Fairchild, of California, who made the next address. He was witty, very much so in fact, and his expression as well as his remarks were very amusing. He had such a dry, quiet way of saying his funniest things. Every point was illustrated by some story, humorous ones mostly, all of which it would be impossible to give. Some points were told as parables and his remarks were of the most entertaining character of any speaker at a mass-meeting yet. He began his fun at once.

"Three years ago," he said in starting, "I delivered a speech for the Prohibition party and that party is not as large now as before." He then told of his experiences in that line. The condition of affairs is the great orator of this campaign, he continued, and it is the result of a Democratic experiment. It cost this country more than did the Civil War, and he backed up that statement with facts and figures. He said that the good Democrats had also had enough.

"If I had my way," he drawled out in his characteristic way, "I would send all the Bryan Democrats to Patagonia. It would be a great blessing for this country but it would be hell in Patagonia."

He said he didn't blame the poor people of the west for thinking they wanted free silver after four years of Democratic rule. They wanted a change, but not that kind.

"Have you any Populists?" he asked. There was silence.

"You are safe," he remarked, and everybody laughed and clapped.

"Have you any Bryan Democrats?" he continued.

"Yes," shouted several of the audience.

"Then you are very lonesome," he answered, and that hugely pleased his listeners judging by the applause.

He was glad, he said, to see so many farmers in the audience as he knew all about farming himself; he had watched his brothers, he added. He compared the currency problem with a farmer trying to get a load of turnips to market and his various wagons, representing the different kinds of money, were continually getting stuck in the mud. The first thing they wanted to do, he said, was to dig the mud of populism and free trade out of the road and then it didn't make so much difference in the kind of meney.

He spoke of the claim of free silver men to provide more money. The present amount, he said, was plenty to meet the demands and free silver will result in the hoarding away of the gold and its consequent disappearance from circulation.

Some workingmen, he said, asked what good a gold standard would be to them as they never saw any gold. Everyone, he declared, had handled gold. The paper bills and silver coin were the representatives of gold, which was the same thing, for both could be redeemed at the treasury for gold. And he explained the manner in which the workman could fall back on the United States Government to redeem its pledges.

"Why was McKinley nominated for President?" he required. "Protection," suggested a member of the band, and he enlarged on the subject.

"The common people, and we are all common," he remarked, "prefer protection and the McKinley bill every week to free trade and everybody elses bill every week."

Then he referred to Bryan and he declared that he was not a representative of the great west. He was going to try to take the law in his hand, pick the pockets of the nation and defraud the people out of their honest debts. They want the government to support the people and they want a living without working for it.

The claims of a great number of supports by the Bryan men was, he declared, largely over estimated and where fifty may be expected by the noise, only one will be found. He spoke of the opposition to Bryan among the farmers and ended with an appeal to vote for McKinley, not because he is a Republican, but because he stands for the continuation of the grand institutions of the nation and the untarnished honor of its flag.

Mr. Fairchild's remarks were constantly being interrupted by applause and when he concluded the audience gave him a rousing show of their appreciation of his talk.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

Mrs. William VanMiddlesworth and daughter, Miss Lillie, have arrived home from a visit with Bayonne friends.

William Dougherty is the latest acquisition to Court Pride of Dunellen, Independent Order of Foresters.

Charles E. Wilson who has been a guest at the Park Hotel for the past two weeks has returned to his home in Philadelphia.

Three hundred and four names was the total number of names registered in Dunellen at the close of the day's registration yesterday.

A careful and conservative estimate of the number of dogs in Dunellen is 157. This is equivelant to about one dog to every two voters. Yet the dog tax does not amount to much and there is no recognized dog catcher to weed them out.

There is no regularly organized Town Improvement Association in Dunellen and the people here take a common sense view of the matter by raking up the leaves and burning them. Yesterday fully twenty bonfires were noticed in the town at one time.

J. Duer Randolph, of Dunellen, and Miss L. Dobb, of Elizabeth, were united in marriage at the bride's home this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The groom holds a lucrative position with the chemical works at Tremley, and Elizabethport will be their future home.

BOUND BROOK.

The report of the commissioners appointed for the assessment of the special benefits of Bound Brook's sewer system, which was filed with Judge Magie on October 1st, came up in the county court Monday for the hearing of objections. The principal objectors were J. M. Thompson, who contended that vacant lots were not assessed in proportion to improved property; Daniel B. Ross, who claims to have sustained damages, and Gerald R. Cushman, in behalf of P. H. Oakley, H. M. Herbert and others, who contended that the assessments were erroneous and unequal, notably in the case of VanKeurin avenue (the old gravel pit), on which no assessments were laid. The objections of Ross and Cushman, in regard to VanKeurin avenue, were not sustained. The total cost of the sewers was $28,424.13, of which $20,581.50 is assessed against the properties, and $7,842.63 against the borough at large. Wm. A. Coddington defended the action of the Commissioners, Gaius Hoffman, A. S. Coriell and Peter H. Smith.

STOCK MARKET RUSE

Consul-General Lee Not To Leave Cuba at Present.

SORELY IN NEED OF REST, HOWEVER

Will Forego an Intended Vacation To Avoid Countenancing False Reports—A Spurious Telegram Causes Some Excitement in Wall Street.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, consul general at Havana, has given up his proposed visit to his home in Virginia, which he had expected to make within the next few days. The determination to remain at his post is understood to be due to the reports current in the United States that he was dissatisfied with his instructions and desired to be relieved. As his return might give seeming approval to the reports, the consul general determined to give up the vacation he had planned, although he is much in need of a change of scene, owing to the hardships of the Havana climate during the last six months.

Bear Ruse on New York Stock Exchange.

New York, Oct. 28.—Soon after the opening of the stock exchange many prominent brokerage firms in Wall street were surprised to receive what were intended to be regarded as telegraph messages, dated from Washington, and signed L. C. They read as follows: "Fitzhugh Lee now on way from Cuba. Upon his return this week extra session will be called and war message submitted from president. See letter." Who L. C. is none of the receivers knew or cared. The work was at once set down as a bear trick, and no importance would have been attached to it but for the fact that the stock market suddenly broke, partly because of the high rates for money, and "room traders," who had heard only vague reports of the reception of the messages, accepted the statements made in them as matters of fact, and soon the exchange was full of talk of impending war with Spain. The messages were written in pencil on the ordinary blanks used for sending messages over the Postal telegraph wires.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA.

The Reported Alliance During Prince Bismarck's Term of Office.

Berlin, Oct. 28.—The Reichsanzeiger announces officially that, in spite of the desire expressed that the government should make a statement on the subject of the announcement made by Prince Bismarck's organ, the Hamburger Nachrichten, on Monday last, that a defensive alliance existed between Russia and Germany during the last six years in which Prince Bismarck was in office, the government will not make one. The Reichsanzeiger adds: "Diplomatic events of this kind are strict state secrets and to preserve them conscientiously is an international duty, a breach of which would prejudice important state interests. The imperial government must therefore decline any attempt to clear up the matter, and it will neither correct what is false nor supply what is incomplete, in the conviction that reliance upon the sincerity and fidelity to treaties of German policy is too firmly established among the other powers to be shaken by revelations of this kind.

TOO EXTRAVAGANT.

Dr. Heath, Institutions Commissioner of Boston, Removed from Office.

Boston, Oct. 28.—Dr. A. B. Heath, institutions commissioner of the city of Boston, has been removed by Mayor Quincy. The financial management by Dr. Heath is given in the mayor's letter as the cause of the removal. The mayor says that while $675,000 was appropriated for the purposes of the institutions for the financial year, the present indications point to a deficit of $75,000 above this amount at the close of the financial year. Ernest C. Marshall is appointed by the mayor to succeed Dr. Heath.

Brooklyn's Big Fire.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Every one of the 150 girls employed in the Fay Harmon corset works and skirt manufactories of Lockin & Findley and Zemon Brothers, located in the six-story building of Ronalds & Co., which was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, have been accounted for. As many of the girls were on the top floor when the flames were discovered it was feared that some of them might have perished.

Winston Out-Shoots the "Count."

Asbury Park, N. J., Oct. 26.—J. S. Winston of Kansas City and Gustave Langon, better known as the "Count," shot a live bird match at Elkwood park, Long Branch, yesterday. The match was for $147 a side at 100 birds. At the end of the sixty-ninth round Winston had killed sixty-three to the count's fifty-four. Winston was so far in the lead that the match was concluded without further shooting.

Dr. Lee Convicted and Sentenced.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 28.—Dr. Edward J. Lee, the much arrested physician, was yesterday afternoon convicted in the superior court of malpractice, the jury being out only fifteen minutes. He was sentenced to five years in state prison. His attorney filed a motion for a new trial.

Irish Dividend Declared.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 28.—The directors of the Naugatuck Valley Baseball league will assess each club $70 to pay the umpires for their work and other debts remaining from the past season.

Fast Time on a Bicycle.

London, Oct. 28.—The brothers Chase, bicyclists, rode a tadem at Sydenham yesterday afternoon, covering five miles in 9 minutes and 28 seconds.

ENTERTAINING THE PRINCE.

Louis of Savoy Having a Grand Time During His Stay in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—Prince Louis of Savoy, who has been the recipient of much social attention since his arrival here on the Italian cruiser Cristoforo Colombo, will be entertained at dinner to-night by ex-Minister Potter, and afterward he (the prince) will give a ball at the Hotel Stratford in acknowledgement of the hospitality shown him in Philadelphia. The Cristoforo Colombo will leave to-day for New York and the prince will board the vessel at that place later in the week. Yesterday the prince was driven to the Country club by Col. E. DeV. Morrell on a tally-ho. There were a number of prominent persons in the party including ex-Minister Potter and a number of ladies. The party occupied three coaches. Luncheon was served at the club house and later in the afternoon the prince returned to the cruiser. Last evening Col. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel gave a dinner in Prince Louis' honor, and a dance followed on board Col. Drexel's yacht, the Margarita. The prince was also the guest of honor last night at a banquet given by the local Italian societies at the Hotel Walton and which was preceded by a promenade concert at Horticultural hall. Col. and Mrs. Drexel's dance was a gorgeous affair. The Margarita was in gala attire and brilliantly illuminated with electric lights.

THE YONKERS MYSTERY.

Uncertainty Surrounding the Death of Mr. Andrus May Never Be Cleared Up.

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 28.—No apparent solution of the mystery surrounding the death of Hamlin J. Andrus, who was killed by the explosion of a bomb in the office of the Arlington Chemical works last Wednesday morning, is in sight. From the hour of the accident Coroner Mills has been working to make out a case of murder, with many strong circumstances to bear him out, while Chief of Police Mangin has ridiculed this theory, maintaining that Andrus was killed by the accidental explosion of the bomb. The coroner and the Pinkerton detectives have been running down all sorts of clues for the past week. It is apparent, however, that they have made very little progress. Sentiment here now seems to be drifting toward Chief Mangin's conclusion, but the weak part of this theory is the unexplained purpose for which the electrical device was constructed. It now looks as if the case would never be satisfactorily cleared up. No new developments are looked for until the inquest, which is held to-morrow, the case will then be allowed to go on record as one of accident. Mr. Pinkerton called last evening to see Chief Mangin and the two had a private conference.

HEAVY DAMAGES FOR SLANDER.

Result of an Electioneering Story in the G. A. R.

Elmira, N. Y., Oct. 28.—A court of inquiry yesterday afternoon rendered a verdict of $7,500 damages against Benjamin S. Webster of Seward post, Grand Army of the Republic, of Aubnrn. Capt. John T. Davidson of this city was a candidate for senior vice-commander at the state convention held in Utica last May. Webster was working in the interest of Frederick Possem of Auburn, who was elected to that position. On the night before the election Webster is declared to have stated to delegates from all parts of the state that Davidson had been tried, convicted and sentenced for robbing a blind soldier. Mr. Davidson brought suit for slander with the above result. He had never been charged with such an offense.

Canadian Factories Reopening.

Montreal, Oct. 28.—The cry of ruin raised by the conservatives during the last elections as a result to follow the coming into power of the liberals, has not materialized, if one can credit the reports that come from various parts of the Dominion concerning the reopening of manufactories. The latest announcement in this connection is that the large cotton factories at Cornwall will start up on the 1st of November and run full blast during the winter. This announcement is a great boon to the mill operatives and merchants of Cornwall, as it is a long time since the factory hands enjoyed full pay.

(Copyright, 1894, by the Author.)

"No, sir; it was lighting up a little at the east and I'd fallen into a sort of doze, and the boy, I suppose, thought everything was all safe and he went out to let the mules out of the stuffy box, in which we'd penned them for the night. The next thing Mrs. Kelly and I heard was the firing. It was down the hillside toward the water and I could only shoot at the flashes."

"Exactly. What I believe is that those two bands of thieves — Apache and Mexican—ran afoul each other in the dark. Muncey and his party, scared to death, perhaps, have fled northward into the canyon, and the reason you have had no more trouble is that the Apaches put out after him. We have got the whole field ahead of us at this minute. I only wish we knew who has Leon."

"Mount, then, and come on," said the major eagerly. "Turner, you're probably right." And then, as if in confirmation of the theory, far to the front again the crack of cavalry carbines echoed along the mountain gorge.

And here, four miles out from the lower gate, the walls of the canyon seemed to fall away. Still jagged and steep where the Sandy lashed at its rocky banks, the cliffs were but a dozen feet or so in height, and thence the pine-covered slopes rose and rolled in bold upheavals with sheltered valleys between each mountain wave. Along through the pines led the Tonto trail. Along in single file, now at rapid trot, now at easy lope, but often climbing and sliding clumsily, the sorrels followed. Far down in the gorge the old canyon trail could be seen. "It's just around the point, sir," said Kelly presently, his eyes snapping with excitement. "Ould Sanchez and Leon's father were drowned out. We knew it because when the flood went down you could find mules and men, saddles and apparejoes, rifles and blankets lodged among the rocks and trees for miles below, but nothing above. They were swept out just like so many ants in a millrace."

"There's a mule down there now,' cried a keen-sighted trooper, riding close behind the captain.

"He's killed this morning then—and yon's a horse. See!" cried Kelly, pointing eagerly down into the depths of the canyon. "The first tackle must have been right along here somewhere."

Once more ahead of them the cliffs began to narrow. Once more the trail ascended to a projecting point, and then skirted a rocky palisade commanding a view of the canyon for two miles —the Sandy leaping in foaming rapids five hundred feet below. One after another the troopers reached the point, and then, following the leader, spurred into a lope, for Turner and Kelly, foremost now, had caught again the sound of firing, and presently out from the sockets whipped carbines— the fight was in view ahead.

But what a fight! Down in the depths of the gorge, sheltering themselves as best they could from occasional bullet and frequent bowlder hurled from up the heights, some forty blue uniformed troopers were falling slowly back before the ceaseless onslaught of a foe they could neither see nor reach. Just as Kelly had feared, Lieut. Crane had been lured into a trap, and the supporting platoon, reaching him, could only share his predicament. Just how far up the canyon he had succeeded in following the trail was now a matter of little consequence. Crane and his men were making the best of their way out, bringing their wounded with them. It was the first lesson, a bitter one, and one that would have been far more tragic but for the coming of their better led comrades along the upper trail. Long before Turner and Kelly could "sight" a single Apache, the Apaches had caught sight of them. Darting from rock to rock, slinking from tree to tree, away sped the lithe, sinewy fellows out of rifle range. Only a few long distance or random shots were exchanged between Turner and the invisible scattering foe, and Crane's fellows, sending up stentorian cheers from the stream bed below, drowned for the moment the roar of the waters. Throwing out some keen shots as skirmishers to prevent the reappearance of the Indians, Thornton and his troop leader signaled Crane to fall back to a point where the Sandy flowed in smooth tranquil reach for a hundred yards or so, and there, one side climbing down the heights, the other climbing up, the officers were able to compare notes. The first question was as to Crane's losses. Several horses killed, three abandoned and two men wounded. "But," said he, "they've cleaned out some Mexican outfit a mile up stream. We almost caught them at it." And so, leaving the wounded with the guard and attendants to make the best of their way back to the old post, the two commands again pushed on up stream, Crane on the lower and Thornton following the upper trail, both parties in single file. Turner kept the front well covered by a few skirmishers. Half an hour's march brought them around a wooded point, and there deep down in the gorge, just at the spot where Sanchez camped that luckless night two years before, under the burning blue of the midsummer skies, lay the wreck of another "outfit." Flood and fury had scattered the possessions of the former party broadcast down the canyon. Fire and flame and Tonto bullet or barb had huddled those of the second into a blackened, hideous heap. Crane had followed, in very truth, the trail of the raiders at Kelly's ranch, but the murderers of the luckless Bustamente were his own countrymen—the robbers of Kelly's corral were Manuel Cardoza and the genial Muncey. Here were the stiffening carcasses of the old sergeant's pets; here the half dozen pack mules, packs and all; here the mutilated remains of the poor devils whom Cardoza had abandoned, for up the canyon went the shod hoof tracks of American horses. Overtaken by Apaches, two well mounted leaders had left their humble followers to fight it out as best they could, and who could be the cowardly pair but Muncey and Cardoza?

Extinguishing the smoldering fires, gathering up such contents of the saddle bags and apparejoes as were undamaged by the flames, Crane's party, watched by Thornton's from the opposite heights, slowly remounted and set forth on their return. "If Foster comes through the mountains with his troop tell him we'll join him at the old post in a few hours," sang out the major from across the stream. "We've got to come back for something to eat soon, as we scout to the north side, and if this be a specimen of Apache business," added Thornton to himself, as he slowly remounted, "it's too complicated campaigning for me."

And so by noon that sultry and long remembered day, after burying the murdered Mexicans under cairns of stones, Crane and his wearied men were jogging back within hail of Signal Butte, while Maj. Thornton, with Turner and some twenty hungry troopers, pushed northward, determined to scout the Socorro to the Prescott road. Turner still kept his skirmishers ahead. There was no telling where the Indians might open on them from rock or precipice or tree. Kelly, raging in his heart to think that he had lost his mules and herdsman through such scoundrels as Muncey and Cardoza, attached himself closely to Turner, with whose judgment and foresight he was now greatly impressed. It was extremely hot and the water in the canteens utterly undrinkable. The horses, too, were suffering, but it was impossible to get them down the steep to the dashing stream, so even when after an hour's weary marching over the upland trail they came in sight of the broad valley of the Sandy above the range, Thornton decided to go on down to the lowlands and water before starting on his return. It was high noon, hot noon, a scorching noon, and the men's eyelids were blistered by the fierce rays of an unclouded sun. They were hungry, too, for not one had had bite or sup since coffee at dawn, but they bit at their plug tobacco and jogged silently on and up to the moment of their catching sight again of the old trail that wound beside the Sandy not an Indian had been seen or heard of. Now there rose into midair a little dust cloud far out near the Prescott road telling of some party in rapid movement. "Muncey and Cardoza skipping for all they're worth," hazarded Kelly, but Turner shook his head. "That cloud's coming this way," said he, "and coming fast—and it's some of our own people."

And so it proved. Less than half an hour later, down by the splashing waters, the two detachments came together. Comrades of the same regiment, yet from stations miles apart. The sunburned, dust-covered fellows from far up the Sandy rode in to the welcoming ranks from Retribution. "What news of the Indians?" was naturally the first inquiry, and rapidly, officer to officer, man to man, the two parties exchanged views. The captain of the little party from Camp Sandy was a soldierly fellow, Tanner by name, and with him were two or three experienced scouts. Al Zeiber was one, a man who knew Apaches and Arizona even as their old guide, Buffalo Bill, knew the Pawnees and the plains. "There isn't a hostile west of the Sandy this day," said he. "They've all had their 'jump' and done what damage they could, and now they're skipping back to the Mogollon country." But Zeiber looked grave and troubled when told of the deeds of the previous night. "They are little detached war parties," said he. "We may strike one of them down near the springs, but I doubt it."

In brief conference the officers decided what should then be done. Tanner sent his lieutenant with a scout and twenty men down along the north face of the Socorro to find Foster and follow full speed any of the straggling Apaches whose trails they might discover, hoping even yet to recapture Leon. Then the moon again came up and presently camp fires were blazing in the timber and from the Camp Sandy supplies a hearty dinner was served out to Thornton's men while Tanner proposed his plan. "My instructions," said he, "were to leave an escort of twenty men here at the ford for the general's ambulance. He is hurrying down from Prescott and should be here by sunset. We have a little party to meet him at the ranch over toward Willow creek. Now, you and your men and horses need a few hours' rest. Suppose you stay here with your detachment and I'll take my men and see what we can find up yonder in the hills," and Tanner pointed to the Socorro. "Leon's captors may be waiting there for darkness before attempting to cross the open country toward the Mogollon. You can have four hours' sleep and be ready to ride on to Retribution with the general to-night."

So said, so done. Capt. Tanner called up his men, saddled and rode away. Thornton's horses were given a good feed of barley from the pack train, and, with a small herd guard on duty, the rest of the command sprawled anywhere they could find shade and were snoring in ten minutes' time.

The sun went down red in the western sky. The smoldering fires in the Sandy bottom began to glow with the deepening twilight. One after another the troopers began to awaken, stretch and yawn and ask if further news had come, and just at nightfall one of Tanner's sergeants brought in three jaded civilians—Ferguson and his friends. All night they had hunted Muncey without success. All day they had hidden from Apaches, who at dawn, said they, were thick as leaves in Socorro, and Ferguson was loud in disgust at the escape of two arch thieves. And not ten minutes after they came in from the south, covered with dust and drawn by six spanking mules, with a dozen grimy troopers as escort, the general's big black ambulance drove in from the north.

First to emerge from the interior was a snappy aid-de-camp, followed quickly by the grave, quiet mannered chief himself.

"What's the truth about Muncey's party?" asked the aid in a gasp. "He and a Mexican rode by us like mad—said they'd been cleaned out completely and were so demoralized they couldn't stop."

"Only a case of diamond cut diamond," answered Thornton, briefly. "They had been running off horses, mules and boys for what I know, and the Apaches caught them red-handed. These gentlemen," said he, indicating Ferguson and his party, "want them for horse stealing, Kelly for murder and mule stealing, and all of us, I fancy, for boy stealing."

A tall man in scouting dress was backing out of the ambulance at the moment, helping a bright blue-eyed lad to alight. He turned in quick anxiety as the general asked: "What boy?"

"Leon, sir. Little MacDuff. If he wasn't with Muncey I'm sorely afraid the Apaches have got him."

Whereupon the blue-eyed boy burst into tears. "Oh, father," he cried; "have we come too late, after all?"

CHAPTER VII.

Maj. Cullen, hastening back to the field of duty, had made much quicker time than even he had thought possible. Alighting from the Central Pacific express at the Oakland wharf at eight o'clock of the fair June evening, the little party was met by an aid-de-camp of the general commanding the military division of the Pacific, whose headquarters were in San Francisco, and as they steamed across the beautiful bay toward the great city of the Golden Gate, with its myriad lights and rivaling the reflected images of the stars, the latest tidings from Apacheland were unfolded. The military telegraph, the pioneer of its kind, had not then been strung across the Mohave desert, and all communication between Arizona and the nearest telegraph station—Drum Barracks, at Wilmington, on the California coast—was by courier or buckboard, and it was here, instead of in Arizona, that for a time the department commanders had been allowed to establish their office. It was here that the news of the revolt at the reservation was received by the new commander; here that he wired to Cullen and received his reply; here, a few days later, that there was brought to him the tidings of the general uprising. Unlike his predecessors, the new general commanding this remote field decided that the place from which to direct operations was not Drum Barracks several hundred miles from the scene but the heart of the Indian country, and thither he went fast as "buckboard" could bear him.

"Tell Cullen he'll find me somewhere in the Sandy valley or Tonto basin," he said to his adjutant general as he drove away, and this message was placed in Cullen's hands, as, with his silent and devoted wife by his side, and Randy looking eagerly into his face, he was borne swiftly over the dancing waters.

"That means that the general expects them to leave the mountains and raid the mines and settlements," said he, reflectively. "What's the first stage or steamer down the coast?"

"Nothing now before to-morrow night," was the reply, "unless you can catch the Maritana. She's off for Santa Barbara and Wilmington with supplies and ammunition in about an hour."

Mrs. Cullen gave a little shiver and drew closer to her soldier husband's side, but said no word. She knew that what he conceived to be the soldier's duty would rule.

"Then you and Randall will go with Cap Thorp to mother's," he gently said, after a moment's thought, "and I will take the boat."

But when the Meritana sailed that night the major's family went with him. Mrs. Cullen calmly announced her intention of going back to Arizona with her husband, and accepting the warmly proffered hospitality of the general's wife until their new quarters should be in readiness. The mail buckboard went on across the California desert within an hour of the Maritana's arrival, and while Mrs. Cullen was cordially welcomed by the little colony of army wives and mothers at Wilmington, her husband and her only son hurried on to overtake the chief. It was with infinite misgivings that she let Randall go, but the boy pleaded with all his heart and soul, and the father decided. "I promised him that he should cross the desert with me," he said, "instead of going round by sea, as he has, both ways, thus far, and he

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result. It's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? CAUGHT UP ON GRIDIRON

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

The South End Athletic Club's eleven defeated the Crescent Juniors Saturday afternoon on the Herring's gridiron by the score of 8 to 4. A. P. Odam is the captain of the South Ends, and V. W. Nash, Jr., is captain of the Crescent Juniors.

Wyckoff, one of Westfield's guards, Saturday, was a special importation from Rutgers College for the Plainfield game. He has been playing on the Rutgers "Varsity" eleven, but he didn't astonish anyone by his wonderful playing. The odds against him were too great.

A very important meeting of the Y. M. C. A. eleven will be held on Friday evening at the Cycle Academy when Coach Waring will introduce the new plans for the return Westfield game. It is very important that all candidates for the team should be present at that time.

The team that will probably represent the business men's gymnasium class in their match with the regular Y. M. C. A. team Saturday evening will probably consist of John H. Doane and Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, forwards; Rev. H. J. Johnston, centre; George Fuller and Prof. Henry M. Maxson, guards.

Two members of the Plainfield team, Thomas U. Smith and Fred H. Freeman, were invited by Captain Masterson, of the New Jersey Athletic Club's eleven, to play the end positions for that eleven next Saturday in the game with the New York University. Smith's accident will effectually bar him from playing, and Freeman will probably not go alone.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. eleven will not play on Saturday, that is decided. The next game will be on Election Day, which comes on Tuesday of next week, and will be against the Rutgers "Scrubs." The game will be played on the Martine gridiron out Park avenue and will be played in the morning. On Saturday almost the entire team expect to go to Westfield and see their victims of last Saturday meet the team from the Passaic High School.

Crooks, who played fullback for Westfield Saturday, is not a full fledged Westfielder by any means. He comes from Orange and has been playing on the Montclair Athletic Club eleven. Westfield secured him, however, for the San Remo and Plainfield games, as their old fullback, Voight, is now playing with a Conneticut team. He wanted to play in Plainfield in the early part of the season, but the local management had decided to make it a strictly Plainfield team, and Voight's offer was refused.

Captain "Ted" Freeman's hair came very near turning grey, and all because of Alex. Milne, or "Shorty," as he has been nicknamed on account of his six feet and three and an eighth inches of bone and muscle. Milne will not play in Plainfield on Election Day, and when he remarked on that fact there was general consternation, for Milne is one of the most valuable men on the team. He promised long before he joined the team that he would play on the Pacific Athletic Club eleven in Brooklyn on that date. The color of Freeman's hair was saved, however, when it was discovered that Harry Rand, Plainfield's last year's centre, would be able to show up on the gridiron on Election Day, so Rand will try his hand at guard on that day.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Democrats and the Republicans of the Park Club will have a bowling match on their alleys next Saturday night.

The Crescent Wheelmen will not enter any bowling league this winter, owing to the fact that they have no alleys to bowl on.

The Park Club bowling team has entered the Journal Bowling League and will play their first game next Thursday evening with the Roselle team at that place.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The South End Athletic Club defeated the Crescent Juniors by a score of 8 to 0 yesterday.

THE G. O. P.'S LAST SHOT.

Roswell G. Hoar to Speak Next Monday Evening.

The Republicans of this city will continue the campaign up the very eve of the election. The young and progressive members of the Young Men's Republican Club will take charge of the last shot to be fired before the real contest on Election Day. On Monday night, under the auspices of the above club, a mass meeting will be held at Music Hall, when Plainfield's well known citizen, Congressman Roswell G. Horr, who has been on the stump for McKinley and Hobart, will speak. He is known to Plainfield audiences, and it is probable that Music Hall will be packed that evening with those who wish to hear the bright remarks of their fellow townsman. There will be no other Republican mass meeting before election.

A Course of Five Lectures.

The Monday Afternoon Club will give a course of five lectures during the season of 1896-'97, the first taking place Monday, November 2d, when Prof. George McLean Harper, of Princeton University, will have for his subject "The Golden Age of the Drama" (Corneille, Racine, Moliere); December 14th, E. C. Perkins will lecture on "The Man With the Iron Mask;" January 4th, "Montesquien, the French Political Seer," will be the subject of discourse by Prof. Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton University; Prof. A. M. Wheeler, of Yale University, will give a lecture on "Rousseau, Voltaire and Their Influence;" May 17th, the course will be finished by Louis F. Pilcher, of the University of Pennsylvania, on "French Architecture." These lectures will take place in the Casino on the above dates and desiring to put them within the reach of all the admission has been fixed at the sum of 25 cents each.

Like Plainfield's Beds.

City Engineer Brown, of Danbury, Conn, visited Plainfield today with Engineer Farquhar to inspect the city farm and disposal beds. Danbury has a sewer system, accommodating some 10,000 persons, draining into the river. After being sued repeatedly for polluting the stream, the city is now ordered to discontinue emptying into the river before next May, and a tract of 200 acres has been purchased for disposal beds, which are now being constructed.

The condition of Miss Phelps who was injured Monday hight in a collison with a horse, is slightly improved. It is hoped that no internal injuries will result from the accident.

PARROT WAS GOOD COMPANY.

He Was Recommended to a Lonesome Married Woman.

"Yes'm," said the dealer in captive birds and animals, "you want a parrot for company? I have the bird here, the very bird. You are married, are you not?"

His fair customer bowed, says the Chicago Tribune.

"And your husband is away? I thought so. And you want the parrot to keep you from feeling lonesome? Yes? This is the very bird."

"Is it a fluent talker?" asked the prospective purchaser.

The dealer hesitated.

"Well, no'm," he said, at last. "You wouldn't hardly call him a fluent talker; no, not that. But for what you want, he's the best I have."

"What can the bird say?"

"That's what makes him the right one, ma'm. He ain't got but one remark, to tell the truth; but he's been brought up for just what you want. Every morning he makes a sound like a bureau drawer opening, and says, cross-like:

"'Where the deuce have you hidden my clean collars this time?'"

Make Nuisances of Themselves

There are some persons who are never satisfied unless making a noise. For them the bicycle is too silent a steed, and they have been endeavoring to find some method of racket-making while riding. The latest for the noise-loving rider is the big gong attached to the rear wheel, which clangs like a street car gong and makes timid persons fear that they are about to be run down by a trolley car. This is only one form of nuisance. The other is a rubber band attachment to the frame of the wheel. The rubber bands are used for the reason that when the wind is blowing and the rider is pedaling in its direction the bands set up a humming sound that is really hideous. Several runaways have been caused by the buzzing of the rubber.

The Explanation.

G. A. R. BAZAR OPENED.

THE VETERANS' FAIR STARTED AUSPICIOUSLY LAST NIGHT.

The Interior of the Old Post Office Building Set Off With Decorations and the Winning Ways of Fair Ones

An American flag waved over the sidewalk in front of the old postoffice building on East Front street, at the corner of Fairchild's alley, last night. There was no political inscription attached, but signs on the building told passersby that the G. A. R. bazar had opened and was in full sway inside. It was the first night of the fair, but everything was ready and the bare interior was, indeed, changed. Booths decorated in different colors were arranged around the walls, but at every point the Stars and Stripes prevailed and there was a patriotic atmosphere about the place. There was a good attendance, considering it was the first night, and as the hours flew by and the dancing in the rear of the room was started the place became crowded. The fair will be continued all this week and part of next.

The G. A. R. bazar was given by Winfield Scott Post, assisted by the Woman's Relief Corps and the Sons of Veterans. The affair was arranged by committees from those different organizations, and long and faithfully have they worked for the success of their undertaking.

The fair committee was composed of Wm. C. Smith, chairman; W. W. Coriell, treasurer; Andrew Cox, secretary; Charles Stevens, Edward C. Morse, Charles Westphal and I. L. McVoy. The committee from the Woman's Relief Corps was as follows: Mrs. Charles Stevens, chairman; Mrs. V. W. Nash, treasurer; Mrs. I. L. McVoy, secretary; Mrs. W. C Smith, Mrs. E. C. Morse, Mrs. Charles Westphal, Mrs. A. Cox, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins and Mrs. Emmons. L. E Eaton, H. S. Thatcher and H. C. McVoy were the detail from the Sons of Veterans. W. C. Smith had charge of the door, with H. S. Thatcher as his assistant and general utility man. On the right of the visitor as he entered the room was the grocery table, prettily draped with red, white and blue bunting. Groceries, canned goods and the like were sold, with Mrs. Andrew Cox, Mrs. W. R. Mattox and Mrs. Ira Riker in charge.

Pale yellow and green were the prevailing colors under in the decoration of the next booth on the right, the Baglin booth, so called, as the many pretty hats on exhibition there were donated by the Baglin Hat Company. It was prettily arranged and was presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baglin, Mrs. W. C. Smith and Miss Sadie Smith. Next came the candy and flower booths which were consolidated into one. The decorations of pink made a charming contrast to the green leaves of the flowers and the tempting display of good things on sale there. Mrs. V. W. Nash, Mrs. Walter Walker, Miss Ella Mirax and Miss Lucy Westphal were in charge of the candies, while the Misses Mary and Kate Graves and Mrs. Devine, looked after the flowers.

The fancy table was tastefully arranged throughout and presented a very pretty appearance. Bunting representing numerous little American flags was chiefly used in the decoration of the booth, while the numerous fancy articles made a charming display. Those in charge of this booth were Mrs. Willard V. Sutton, Mrs. Clarence Leland, Miss Doy, Miss May Doud and Miss Ada Nash.

The lunch table opposite told its object in its name, and, of course, it was a popular place. The decorations were red, white and blue bunting. In charge of this booth were Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, Mrs. Isaac Brokaw, Mrs. Mary Denise, Mrs. Caspar Bosterli, Mrs. E. Bowman and Mrs. Kline. Soft drinks and cigars were sold by Comrade Cox, H. C. McVoy and L. E. Eaton.

Last, but by no means least, was the war museum, looked after by W. W. Corriell and W. D. W. Miller, and here were to be found a host of relics of the civil war. Camp kettles, bugles, shells, bullets, muskets, and the like picked up on the different battle fields. Old guns, pistols and swords were also on exhibition, besides commissions and other valuable papers, the property of well known Plainfield veterans. There were several uniforms, hats, sashs and a few pictures of well known Plainfielders, as they appeared during the services in the war. The exhibit is an excellent one and well worth seeing. This museum was partioned off from the rest with several large American flags. Other flags, including those of the different corps, covered the walls and hung from the ceiling, giving the room a very fitting appearance for a G. A. R. fair.

—Democratic mass meeting, Music Hall, tonight.

FIGHTING FOR BALLOTS WITH EVERY KIND OF ARGUMENT.

REV. J. W. WELLS TALKS TO BOROUGH PEOPLE AND J. W. YATES WRITES AN OPEN LETTER TO THE WAGE EARNERS OF THE COUNTRY.

UNFURLED IN DUNELLEN.

Major Creamer Says Plutocracy and Republicanism are Alike.

The Democratic voters of Dunellen and vicinity turned out in large numbers last evening to witness the banner raising and to attend the political meeting in Maier's hall. Through some defect in the pulleys and guy ropes the banner could not be unfurled, but the meeting was held just same.

Lawyer Swackhammer, of this city, spoke from the balcony in front of the hotel, and he hastily glanced over the records of the two great parties. The destiny of the country, he said, depends on keeping with the Democracy. Daniel Webster, James G. Blaine and other noted statesmen he quoted as saying that the demonitization of silver is the greatest ruin this Nation ever knew." "By Bryan's election," he said, "we will see the salvation of the country. If England dictates to this country we will be obliged to bow in humble submission to her soverign will."

In the hall Major R. S. Creamer, of New York, spoke to a large and appreciative audience. The battle, said he, is between Democracy and Plutocracy, and the nearer we approach the election the brighter it appears for Bryan and Sewall. New York and New Jersey won't settle the great issues at stake, but they will join the Great West and roll up a monster majority.

Like Belshazar's handwriting on the wall, the Democrats on election day, will rise up and say, "By the grace of God and the voice of the people Bryan will be the next President, and after March 4th next, a new prosperity will prevail in this country. The present issues at stake means gold for the bankers and silver for the toiling masses. Peter Cooper once said it's no wonder the rich advocate a gold standard, for every millionaire in this and other countries advocate the gold standard to swell their bank accounts, while on the other hand there is alone, poor, struggling humanity. "Mark these words," said the speaker in concluding, "If McKinley is elected inside of two years all of the labor organizations in the country will sink into oblivion." Three rousing cheers were given for the Democratic candidates and the meeting adjourned.

All is Not Lovely.

All is not lovely, so it is said, in the Republican household in North Plainfield. The numerous friends of H. Newton Spencer have been regarding him as the logical candidate for Surrogate when the time comes round. Now, however, in the event of Mr. Reed's election to the Senate, it would be rather cheeky for that township to ask for another plum so soon. That there has been a deal, Mr. Spencer's followers are convinced; else how are they to account for the desertion of Senator Thompson by "Billy" Long. They figured it out this way: Two and two make four.—Somerset Messenger.

Hear Both Sides.

In public meetings this campaign the gold standard people have had everything their own way, but tonight, in Music Hall, the free silver people will take opportunity to properly present their side of the cause with several speakers who are well informed on the currency question. Everybody anxious to hear both sides —and who is there that is not—should attend the meeting tonight.

Expects a Complimentary Vote.

Ernest R. Ackerman, Plainfield's representative on the Republican Electoral Ticket, will receive many complimentary votes in Plainfield. Mr. Ackerman has made a reputation for himself in the business world of which his Plainfield friends are very proud, and it is said many will take the opportunity which election day affords of testifying to their regard for him.

Mr. Yates Says the Poor Will Suffer If Bryan Wins.

RICH, HE ARGUES, ARE INTRENCHED.

He Appeals to the Man Who Has Money in Saving Banks and Who Carries Life Insurance to Vote For Maintaining the Present System as Their Only Salvation From Disaster.

Hon Joseph W. Yates has addressed the following open letter to the wage-earners of this city:

Gentlemen:—I wish to present to you a few items for your consideration which apply directly to those who are commonly called "Wage Earners," and I shall try to do so as definitely and as briefly as possible.

It has been frequently said that there is no sentimentalism in finance, and in most instances this is probably true, and perhaps it is well that it is so. A man that will not make his strongest effort to care for his family must be a natural or unnatural heathen.

Mr. Bryan asks you to endorse the platform made at the Chicago convention, to vote for him and accept a fifty-cent dollar, in lieu of a hundred-cent one. That, you are told, is the right thing for you to do. Will you do it? There might be something generous about this unique proposition if we could tell where the other fifty cents of the dollar would go if we elect Mr. Bryan and a Free Silver Congress.

Let us put a searchlight on this huge and wonderful piece of finance, (huge, because of its magnitude, affecting the vital interests of our Nation, and wonderful, because no one seems to fully understand the import of the theories, as expressed in the speeches of Mr. Bryan,) and perhaps we can find out enough to set us thinking. Let us look into the savings bank deposits, which at present amount to about two thousand million dollars in the United States. These deposits have been made mostly by the financially poor people of the country—the widows, the orphans, the serving girl, the serving man, and all classes of so called "wage-earners." Bryan and a silver Congress elected, and a free silver legal tender bill passed, this vast amount of money will be paid back less fifty per cent. in the dollar, more or less governed by the value of the uncoined silver.

Who is to be benefitted by this wonderful scheme to make the people of the United States prosperous and happy? The savings banks officers are your trustees. They receive your money and loan it out, as best they can, under certain lawful restrictions, and pay it back to you when called for, and in addition at stated times, such dividends as they may be able to earn. So you see the depositors are the creditors and the borrowers are the debtors. and in taking two thousand million dollars as the amount of deposits passing through the savings banks, the depositors in aggregate may be legitimately called the "Gold Bugs." But if you elect Bryan and pass a free coinage legal tender silver bill, as proposed, you will become a "Silver Bug," and that privilege will cost you fifty cents on the dollar so far as your savings are concerned. Unless the banks should be able to collect their loans by foreclosure or otherwise before such a law could go into effect. But even in that event, it would produce confusion, stop dividends, and incur heavy legal expenses, all of which would have to be borne by the depositors.

The same argument applies to Life Insurance. Your premiuns have been paid in gold or its equivalent, and if an unlimited legal tender silver bill should become a law of the land, your beneficiary will be the sufferer.

Should you wish to remit either a small or large amount of money to any gold standard country, you will have to pay, in addition to your silver dollars, a sufficient amount to make them equivalent to gold dollars.

Who will be benefitted should this radical, crazy and hap hazard change in our finances be made? I know of none other than the dishonest debtor and the silver mine owner, who proposes to turn into the Government fifty cents worth of silver and have it minted and stamped one hundred cents.

We Democrats speak of a high tariff as being a tax upon the many, for the benefit of the few, and I believe it all

The Masses Against the Classes Claims the Minister.

THE POOR HAVE SUFFERED ENOUGH.

The Rich Corporations are Grinding the Life Out of the Real Producers and Consumers of the Country, He Says, and Free Coinage of Silver Will Help Them Back to a Happy Existence.

The Democratic mass meeting held in Saenger and Turner Hall last night under the auspices of the North Plainfield Democrats was a great success, both in numbers and enthusiasm. Free silver was expounded from its infancy to the present time, and the speakers were heartily cheered. H.O. Hance called the meeting to order, and Andrew E. Kenney was made chairman. Mr. Kenney stated that the meeting was held so that the party nominees could show themselves and have a word to say on the great issues of the day. He then introduced Rev. J. A. Wells, of Liberty Corner, nominee for Congress in the Third District. In part Mr. Wells said:

"I hope there will be a generous response this year to the new Democracy. By that I mean the Democracy of Thomas Jefferson, which is founded on the fundamental principles which represents the mass and not the individual, trusts, plutocracy, nor a class which strives to rise above its fellow beings. Our platform is founded on equal rights to all men. There is now in progress a real struggle between the mass of people and an overbearing plutocracy. There is a purpose exemplified by the latter to raise one class above the rest, to give prosperity to that class alone. We, the mass, are striving against the latter to establish laws that are equal, and will stand for the farmer, laborer and business man. This campaign is for the mass against trusts and syndicates, who take unfair advantage of the laboring man. You are business men and farmers, you know that you labor and are saving. yet you become poorer. When you find that your pocketbook is lean you begin to think that something is wrong. When a man is obliged to sell his goods now for about one-half what he did ten years ago, he begins to wonder what has happened and who has received the other half. The fact is that the Government has taken the other half. The demonetization of silver twenty-three years ago is the main cause of the shrinkage. Up to 1873 the country was prosperous, and the silver dollar was then the unit of value. But one-half of the metallic basis was removed and in consequence we suffer.

"In Bibie history we read that the people had gold and silver and by figuring a little I learned that the two metals were used at a ratio of 16 to 1. In 1873 silver was thrown out. The people did not ask to have it thrown out for silver has always been the money for the people. God made money for the use of man, and 'What God has joined together, let not man put assunder.' The Rothschild family is the richest in the world and years ago they started out to rule the world and they tried to hoodwink every Nation in Europe. They learned that they could loan Europe money on bonds, payable in gold-bearing interest, and make money. In 1863, this country was engaged in war and had to have money. They sought the representatives of the Rothschild's in this country and the Government was persuaded to issue bonds which were not taxable. The Government ran into debt, at the same time gold was being kept out of sight, for the Rothschild's hoped to make a big amount. This caused gold to rise to a premium. An English representative came to this country, just previous to 1873, with $5,000,000 in gold and a little later silver was demonetized. One-half of the foundation on which money rested was taken away and the 'gold bug' had the other half. This explains why you cannot get a fair price for your goods. The gold dollar has the purchasing power of two dollars and who has it? Why the gold syndicate, which sneakingly and slyly took it away. Only a few Congressmen knew in 1873 what the demonetization bill was and President Grant said, shortly after signing the bill, that if he had known what it was he would not have signed it. The 'gold bug' laughed, however. There has been ever since a downward tendency in prices. The

THE COLORED MEN IN LINE.

A Meeting Held in Spencer's Hall Last Night.

The colored Republicans of the borough met last evening in Spencer's hall on Somerset street, and after Borough Clerk Arnold called the meeting to order an organization was effected by electing Israel Jones, chairman, C. C. Taylor, secretary. There were about fifty persons present to join the new organization and the first speaker of the evening was Rev. Wm. Freeman, of Newark. In his remarks he dwelt upon the silver question and the great difference between such men as McKinley, Lincoln, Garfield and Bryan. He spoke of Bryan as a boy and said that people could not expect much of a boy. He did not think anyone would take a boy from school and give him a responsible position in a bank if he had no experience. He advised his fellow Republicans to vote solidly for McKinley and Hobart and make the victory a sweeping one.

Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., then made a few remarks on the great issues of the campaign. He advanced the idea that the 16 to 1 plan would work great injury to the workingman and he urged all present to vote for the straight Republican ticket, and thus bury the 53 cent dollar. The principles of the Republican party were spoken of at length, and the Major's remarks won hearty applause from the crowd present.

TO PARADE ON ELECTION EVENING.

Republican Campaign to be Carried Right Up to Monday Night.

The Plainfield Republicans are preparing to close their campaign Monday night with a demonstration that will rouse the energies of every Republican in the city and borough and infuse some real campaign excitement into the city on the eve of election day. It was at first planned to have a monster mass meeting at Music Hall with Congressman Roswell G. Horr as the speaker of the evening. Then it was learned that there was to be a show at Music Hall, on Monday nigt.

Last night, the campaign committee talked the matter over until the wee small hours of morning arrived. During that time, there was considerable planning done. The mass meeting is to be held on that night but at the Jersey Cycle Academy and it is to be preceded by a genuine campaign parade, the first and last to be held in Plainfield this season. William N. Runyon will be marshal and the entire demonstration will be given under the auspices of the Young Men's Men's Republican Club of which Runyon is president. His aides will be announced later. The parade is to start from the Republican Headquarters, on East Front street at 7 o'clock promptly.

DR. ENDICOTT ANSWERS.

Denies Specifically Every Charge Made by His Wife.

Dr. George W. Endicott today filed his answer in the suit for divorce against him by his his wife. The answer deals specifically with all the charges made against him, and denies every one of them unqualifiedly. McCarter Williamson and McCarter and James P. Powers are counsel for the wife. Craig A. Marsh is counsel for the husband.

Still a Democrat.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The assumed responsibility of Republican authorities, subordinating my political principles to tempting vice-presidential honors does not receive my approbation. Such is the single standard of my Democratic faith I must refuse to have it associated or tainted with the leaven of Republicanism.

He called at The Press office and said that this paper had published the only correct account of the trouble between the package express messengers and the company.

OVERDOSE OF MORPHINE

HAWARD BOGART TRIES TO ALLEVIATE PAINS—FATAL RESULT.

Suffering With Neuralgia and Took the Opiate to Rest Easily—Died Three After He Was Found Unconscious.

Just as he was entering manhood, Haward Bogart was suddenly stricken down yesterday afternoon while sleeping and never recovered sufficiently to speak, despite the earnest efforts of his physician. While the cause of his death is not known, all circumcumstances point to an overdose of morphine taken to deaden the pain of an acute attack of neuralgia.

Haward Bogert was a young man in his twenty-first year, well-known to many Plainfielders. He resided with his aunt, Mrs. Disborough, at 410 Central avenue, and his happy and jovial disposition was known to all. He had many friends in this city to whom the news of his death was a terrible shock and little else was talked of last night.

For several days Bogart had been complaining of neuralgia and to his more intimate friends he confided the fact that he was taking morphine to deaden the pain. They cautioned him about taking two much, but he laughed the matter off as a joke. Tuesday afternoon, he went to New York and returned in the evening. He appeared very anxious to go for some reason. He was seen by a number in the evening and visited the lunch wagon for a short time. He was accompanied home by Jack Crawford and retired to his room. It was then nearly eleven o'clock and he appeared in good spirits.

It has been his habit to remain out until a late hour and then not rise in the morning until nearly noon, so his aunt was not surprised yesterday when he did not appear. Shortly before noon she went up to call him and at the first glance she saw something was the matter. He was breathing heavily, and there was an unnatural look about his face. Drs. Berg, Gaston and Davis were hurriedly summoned and worked over the body of the unconscious young man until 3.20 o'clock, when he ceased to breathe.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paul, were absent from the city at the time but were summoned and returned today. They were greatly shocked by the news, and Mrs. Paul was almost prostrated.

Mrs. Paul is the wife of Henry Paul, who was formerly associated with Eli K. Ale in the conduct of the State Street House, of Trenton. Mr. Paul severed his connection with that hotel about two years ago. Last summer he married his present wife in Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul were visiting Mr. Ale at the State Street House when, on Saturday last, Mr. Paul's brother Joseph died in Woodbury. With Mr. Ale, the Pauls yesterday attended the funeral, and it was while at Woodbury that Mrs. Paul received word of her son's death.

The funeral services will be held from the home of his aunt, 410 Central avenue, Frinay evening at 8 o'clock. Interment will be at New Brunswick.

MR. AND MRS. E. C. BIRD SURPRISED.

Had Forgot it Was a Wedding Anniversary But Not so Their Friends.

Ex-Councilman and Mrs. E. H. Bird, of Elm street, had entirely forgotten that yesterday brought to a close the eleventh anniversary of their marriage, but their friends were mindful and a complete and pleasant surprise was tendered them last evening. Mr. and Mrs. Bird were taking supper at the house of friends and about 8:30 word was sent to them that they were wanted at home. Very reluctantly they left their friends and on the way they expressed regret in being called away. When they arrived home and entered the house they found the rooms completely filled with their friends. The bride and groom were speechless and did not know what to make of the surprise. As soon as they recovered from their surprise a game of progressive whist was started and continued until a late hour. There were seven tables and the playing throughout was excellent. First second and third prizes were awarded the lucky ones. About midnight dainty refreshments were served and when the guests departed they all wished their host and hostess many such pleasant celebrations.

Testimony Made a Big Book.

Judge McCormick heard the final argument of counsel at Elizabeth, yesterday, in the case of Sarah Conklin's heirs against Theodore J. Miller, her exeuctor. The contestants were represented by Craig A. Marsh and the executors by R. V. Lindabury and William M. Stillman. The testimony made a book three inches thick.

BRYAN'S ITINERARY

His Plans for the Balance of the Campaign Arranged.

WILL MAKE MANY MORE SPEECHES

The Last Day To Be Devoted to the Platte River Valley of His Own State---Reports from Democratic State Committeemen.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—The itinerary of William J. Bryan, in detail up to the day before election, was completed last night at democratic national headquarters. The nominee will leave Chicago late to-night over the Northwestern road and go to Green Bay, Wis., for his first speech to-morrow morning. The stop at Green Bay is an hour, from 8:15 to 9:15, and the stopping places and time allowances for the Wisconsin trip are subsequently as follows: Depere, 9:30; Kaukauna, 10:15 to 10:35; Appleton, 10:45 to 11:05; Neemah and Kenosha and Doty's Island, 11:15 to 11:35; Oshkosh, 12 noon to 12:30 p. m.; Fon du Lac, 12:55 to 1:25; Chester, 1:55 to 2:05. Juneau, 2:25 to 2:45; Watertown, 3:15 to 3:45; Jefferson, 4:05 to 4:25; Fort Atkinson, 4:35 to 4:55; Janesville, 5:25 to 5:55; Evansville, 6:25 to 6:35; Maidson, 8 p. m., for night meeting. After the Madison meeting the party will make a night run on the Illinois Central road to Dubuque, Ia., and over the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy line via Monmouth, Ill., down the Mississippi river to Burlington, Ia. The Saturday tour through Iowa will begin about 6;30 o'clock over the main line of the "Q." Half-hour stops will be made at Ottumwa, Creston and Council Bluffs, and 15-minute speeches will be made at the following county seat towns: Mount Pleasant, Fairfield, Albia, Chariton, Osceola, Afton, Corning and Red Oak. The night meeting will be held at Council Bluffs. Mr. Bryan will go to his home in Lincoln immediately after the Council Bluffs meeting to rest Sunday. Monday he will make his final speeches up the Platte river valley in his own state. He will be accompanied on his trip through Wisconsin and Iowa by Secretary Walsh of the democratic national committee, who is also the Iowa national committeeman.

From Democratic State Committeemen.

Campaign Committee Chairman Campau received last night additional telegraphic final reports from state committee chairmen as follows: New York—Letters from farming sections of New York state and the enthusiasm of working class in metropolis afford ample assurance of victory for Bryan. Farmers are offering lands and crops to our silver party committee for the cause. O'Brien democracy hold 200 democratic meetings this week. (Signed) Alex. Delmar, provisional chairman, state committee national silver party, and Frances M. Bixbey, for young democracy. Pennsylvania—Pennsylvania is making a great battle and is not surely republican. Great silver gains reported from all the agricultural counties and our mining counties are ablaze with enthusiasm. While we have now but two congressmen, we expect to have ten or twelve to help President Bryan carry out his proposed reforms. New Hampshire—The Bryan and Sewall ticket is gaining strength in New Hampshire. Wherever our speakers go we hear of converts and we shall carry towns that never were democratic before. The result in both our congressional districts is very doubtful and the chances are more than even for the election of the democratic candidate for governor. The Palmer and Buckner vote will be so small it is not worth mentioning.

EGG THROWERS RELEASED.

Mr. Bryan Pleads for Them---To Be Dismissed in Disgrace from College.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—On learning of the arrest of the two young men charged with being implicated in the egg-throwing incident of Tuesday, Mr. Bryan wrote County Chairman Gahan as follows: "I wish you would ask for the release of the boys arrested for throwing eggs. I am sure it was an act of thoughtlessness, and their arrest has doubtless been a sufficient lesson to them and others." On the strength of this plea the police released Foster and Hanchett from custody with a warning not to offend again and the young men were taken home by their fathers. Foster admitted to the detective that he bought a dozen fresh eggs to throw at the procession when the Bryan carriage passed the business college. Half of the eggs were thrown before the youths took fright and ran from the room. Mr. Powers, the proprietor of the school, will assemble all the instructors and pupils this afternoon and publicly dismiss the egg throwers in disgrace from the school.

Mrs. Bryan Greatly Fatigued.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Mrs. Bryan is showing signs of fatigue. She will remain in her home to-day while her husband is traveling about the city campaigning. Mrs. Bryan has been with the democratic candidate for several days, and the strain incident to railway travel and the exciting scenes connected therewith have caused her to feel indisposed. There is nothing serious, however, in her condition.

Gen. O. O. Howard's Brother for Bryan.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Gen. C. P. Howard, formerly a republican, a veteran of the late war and a brother of Gen. O. O. Howard, U. S. A., who is now engaged in stumping the country for the republican national ticket, presided at one of the meetings at which Mr. Bryan spoke last evening.

To Command the Iowa.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Captain Sampson, chief of the naval bureau of ordnance, has been selected to command the battleship Iowa when that vessel is commissioned next April.

MUST WRITE GOOD ENGLISH.

Another Move of Harvard Overseers in the Contest with Preparatory Schools.

Boston, Oct. 29.—At a meeting of the board of overseers of Harvard college it was voted that, in the judgment of the board of overseers, every candidate for admission to the undergraduate departments of the university should give evidence that he can write the English language with such degree of neatness and skill in penmanship, correctness in spelling and grammar, and with such facility of expression as will enable him to enter, without further elementary instruction, on the elective studies to which he propose to devote himself, including the more advanced courses in English composition; voted, that the faculty be requested to press steadily toward the attainment of the above end. This vote is another move in the contest which has been going on for some years past between the university and the preparatory schools concerning the ability of applicants for admission to the college to write good English.

DISTRESS IN INDIA.

A Dark Outlook Owing to the Drought---Prices Rising Sharply.

Simla, Oct. 29.—The outlook for a famine in India is increasing in gloominess. It is not probable now that rain will fall and the prospects are serious in the northwestern and central provinces and in the Punjaub. The scarcity is extending to Behar and at Bombay prices have risen heavily. Large imports of foreign grains are expected. About thirty lakhs of rupees have already been given from the imperial revenues for advances of seeds, etc., and relief works in the northwestern and central provinces of Punjaub, central India and Rajputana are being started in addition to the irrigation works which are projected in Punjaub. The government will issue a detailed and final forecast of the distress in December.

To Cremate Kate Field's Body.

San Francisco, Oct. 29.—The body of Miss Kate Field is expected to arrive to-day on a steamer from Honolulu. The remains will be cremated in this city with appropriate services, and the ashes forwarded to Boston for final interment in Mount Auburn cemetery, in accordance with the will recently found. H. H. Kohlsaat of the Chicago Times-Herald, on whose staff Miss Field was engaged at the time of her death, has telegraphed saying he will bear all the expenses.

Canadian Lumber Sales.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—One hundred million feet of lumber, the season's cut of deals at the Chandiere, Ottawa and Hawkesbury mills, have been sold during the last few days. It is the largest sale that has been negotiated in lumber for several years. Although there is no material change in prices from last year, the total sales amount to about $2,000,000.

New Tandem Bicycle Record.

London, Oct. 29.—At the Crystal Palace, yesterday, the bicyclists McGregor and Nelson regained the five-mile tandem record, covering the distance in 9 minutes, 21 3-5 seconds, beating the time made by the Chase brothers by 1 2-5 seconds. They also lead all records for three and four miles, finishing the fourth mile in 7 minutes and 24 1-5 seconds.

Released on $15,000 Bail.

New York, Oct. 29.—Ernest Gittings, a stock broker, was arrested yesterday and taken to the sheriff's office at the instance of Emanuel H. Miller and Arthur E. Wilson of Baltimore, who have sued him to recover $17,000 worth of stocks belonging to them, which, they allege, he refuses to surrender. Gittings furnished $15,000 bail.

Georgia Senatorship Contest.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 29.—The Georgia legislature, which convened yesterday, has before it a hot contest for the United States senatorship precipitated by the sudden death of Hon. Charles F. Crisp, who would have been unanimously chosen. There are five candidates, including Gov. Atkinson.

Winter Apple Crop.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 29.—Throughout the states of chief commercial production, including New England, New York, etc., the crop of winter apples is very large, according to the New England Homestead, which places the aggregate yield at a shade under 59,000,000 barrels for all of the United States, against 60,500,000 barrels in 1895 and 57,000,000 barrels two years ago. This authority says that the crop in New England, New York, Michigan and parts of a few other states is simply phenomenal.

STEPPED IT OFF.

Peculiar Shape of the Land Caused by the Measuring Process.

It is a commonly-accepted theory that a man steps three feet, and many a tract of land has been "stepped off" instead of measured with a chain, says the Washington Star. In the west they obviate the difficulties of surveys by the land being divided into sections, but in Pennsylvania much of the property, especially in the mountains, must still be described by metes and bounds.

In one of the counties in western Pennsylvania are two brothers, one of whom is tall and lank and the other short and fat. Many years ago they purchased a tract of mountain land calling for a mile square. They divided the labor of measuring it, one stepping off one side, the other the other side. Then they fenced it in and were perfectly satisfied until recently, when suit was brought to recover a considerable tract of land. Each brother swore that he knew the measurement to be right and told how it had been done. Then, as the spectators saw the short legs of the one, scarcely long enough to reach the floor when he sat in a chair, and the elongated extremities of the other, there was a general laugh, in which the judge and attorney joined. Upon surveying it was found that one line was a mile and a half long and the other only a little over half a mile.

To Receive Election Returns.

New York, Oct. 29.—The committeemen at republican national headquarters are giving their attention to-day to the preparations for receiving the news on election night. Workmen are putting in telephones and telegraph wires and the press bureau is getting ready to handle the returns. The routine work is practically suspended. Senator Quay will go home to vote today or to-morrow. Joseph H. Manley, Gen. Powell Clayton and N. B. Scott will remain at headquarters till after the election.

Dr. Lee Converted in Jail.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 29.—Dr. J. Edward Lee, who was sentenced on Tuesday to state prison, was converted during his confinement in jail. The repentance is reported as having been effected by Rev. John Morse, who occupied an adjoining cell and was awaiting trial on the charge of arson.

Names for New Naval Vessels.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Secretary Herbert announces that the unnamed ships now under construction will be named as follows: Battleships—Alabama, Illinois and Wisconsin; gunboats—Annapolis, Marietta, Newport, Princeton, Vicksburg and Wheeling.

In combination, proportion and process Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself, and unequalled in true merit.

No other medicine ever possessed so much curative power, or reached such enormous sales, or made such wonderful cures, as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It is undoubtedly the best medicine ever made to purify, vitalize and enrich the blood.

That is the secret of its success.

Read this statement:

"When my son was 7 years of age, he had rheumatic fever and acute rheumatism, which settled in his left hip. He was so sick that no one thought there was any help for him. Five sores broke out on his thigh, which the doctor said were sores. We had three different doctors. Pieces of bone came out of the sores. The last doctor said the leg would have to be cut open and the bone scraped, before he could get well. Howard became so low that he would eat nothing, and one doctor said there was no chance for him.

Scrofula

"One day, a newspaper recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla was left at our door. We decided to try this medicine. Howard commenced taking it the last of February, after having been sick for a year and a half. He hadn't taken it a week before I saw that his appetite began to improve, and then he gained rapidly. I gave him five bottles, when the sores were all healed and they never broke out again. The crutches he had used for four years were laid aside, as he had no further use for them. I give all the credit to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. ADA L. MOODY, Fay Street, Lynn, Mass.

This and many similar cures prove that consumption reaps his richest harvest where diseases of the throat and lungs are neglected.

HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR

If you have ever tried Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar you know what a safeguard it is against throat and lung troubles. Sold by druggists.

a million killed

would make no impression on the number of the germs of consumption that exist in one affected lung. All germs are little enough, but those which cause consumption are very minute. Cod-liver oil won't kill them. We don't know a remedy which will. The germs float in the air and we can't keep from breathing them into our lungs. Then why don't all of us have consumption? Because a healthy throat, sound lungs, and a strong constitution won't allow the germs to gain a foothold.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, restores and maintains the strength, increases the weight, heals inflamed membranes and prevents serious lung trouble. This is why it is the food-medicine in coughs, colds, loss of flesh, and general debility.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been indorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.

Put up in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes. The small size may be enough to cure your cough or help your baby. All druggists.

THE ANDRUS TRAGEDY.

Citizens of Yonkers Indignant over Delay in Holding the Inquest.

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 29.—The rumor that the Pinkerton detectives had ceased working on the Andrus tragedy is not true. They have been seen by Capt. Mangin's men and ostensibly they are still trying to make something out of the perplexing situation. Capt. Mangin is saying nothing, but he appears well satisfied, while the reverse may be said of the coroner. The citizens are angry over the affair, and if the inquest is further postponed it is likely that an indignation meeting will be called. It is expected that the investigation to be made by the insurance detectives will prove more productive of results than that of the coroner. Yesterday afternoon the will of Hamlin J. Andrus was filed and citations issued returnable at White Plains November 7. The will is very brief, making his widow, Stella A. Andrus, sole legatee, she being also executrix, with Charles S. Gorten, executor.

ARMENIANS AT BOSTON.

Several of the First Party of Refugees Put to Work This Morning.

Boston, Oct. 29.—Several of the eleven Armenian refugees that arrived in Boston yesterday from New York. Boston's first band of these persecuted people, were put to work by Mr. Gulesian, who, with Mrs. S. J. Barrows, has taken great interest in their cause. Situations were secured at various places. The men are an intelligent set with open countenances and a look of unmistakable character and energy. At least three of these have a good education and all are skilled workmen. Three of them speaks French in addition to their own language, while one is a linguist of proficiency and speaks fluently French, Greek, Italian, Armenian, Turkish and a little English. Mr. Gulesian, Miss Blackwell and Mrs. J. S. Barrows together have agreed to provide in Boston for sixty refugees all told.

Last of the Political Literature.

Washington, Oct. 29.—The republican congressional campaign committee last night sent out the last of the documents which it will distribute in this campaign, and closed the building which has been used for folding and mailing purposes. Upwards of 25,000,000 documents have been circulated from that building this year, each one in separate cover and nearly all folded there.

HIGHWAYMEN FIENDS

A Young Woman Murdered in Her Carriage Near Norristown, Pa.

HER HUSBAND BADLY WOUNDED

Robbed of All His Valuables and His Dead Wife's Body Also Rifled---Three Arrests Made in the Pelham Manor Assault.

Norristown, Pa., Oct. 29.—Murderous highwaymen did bloody work just outside the limits of this borough early last evening. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kiser, a young couple of Morristown, were returning from an afternoon drive when, just before they reached the borough limits, two men sprang from the road side and seized the horse's head. The men were armed with revolvers and they demanded of Kiser that he turn over to them his valuables. Despite the threatening pistols, Kiser refused the demand of the highwaymen and started to whip up his horse. Thereupon the desperadoes opened fire. Kiser was shot through the arm and his wife was shot through the head and instantly killed. Undaunted by the murderous effect of their fire, the highwaymen completed their work. They dragged Kiser from the carriage and robbed him of his watch and the money he had about him. The ruffians then rifled Mrs. Kiser's body of her gold watch and made their escape. Bleeding and fainting Kiser dragged himself to a near-by house and summoned assistance. He was brought to his home here and is badly wounded. Kiser was able to give the authorities a good description of the highwaymen and the police of this borough and Philadelphia are bending every effort to capture the bandits.

PELHAM MANOR BANDITS.

Mr. Bertine Goes to New York To Try to Identify His Assailants.

Pelham Manor, N. Y., Oct. 29.—J. H. Bertine, the New York city stationer, who while on his way home in his carriage with his 15-year-old daughter and coachman, Tuesday evening, was attacked by three highwaymen at a lonesome spot not far from the depot, went to New York city this morning to try to identify three men under arrest there who are believed by the police to be his assailants. His daughter, who jumped from the carriage and escaped in the darkness at the time of the assault, will accompany him. The coachman, who deserted Mr. Bertine at the time, says that he did not run away from fear, but went for assistance. The horse, which really saved Mr. Bertine's life by tearing away from the bandits and dashing down the road to its owner's home, although wounded in the head, stomach and shoulder from bullets from the robbers' revolvers, died yesterday from its injuries. Although the bandits fired a regular fusilade, Mr. Bertine received only a slight wound in the neck.

The Suspects Heavily Armed.

New York, Oct. 29.—Three men giving the names of Joseph Arlington, Joseph Chambers and Joseph Ferguson were arrested last evening at the Grand Central depot on suspicion of being the men who held up and attempted to rob J. H. Bertine at Pelham Manor. When taken to the police station in the depot and searched it was found that each man had two revolvers in his possession, one loaded and the other empty. The detectives are almost certain that these are the men wanted. Later on the men admitted that the names they had given were assumed.

The Question of Gleason's Naturalization.

Albany, Oct. 29.—Attorney-General Hancock has declined to bring an action to to test the title of Patrick J. Gleason to the office of mayor of Long Island City. The applicants claimed Gleason was not a citizen when he was elected to the office. The attorney-general holds that such a proceeding as the applicants desire to be brought is not the proper method to test Gleason's title to the office

SIGN OF POPULARITY.

In the fourth estate it is the common courtesy for members to congratulate one another with admiring adjectives when there is a special display of enterprise or improvement on the part of one newspaper. In the case of the Elizabeth Journal, which appeared yesterday in a brand new dress of type, with all the frills and cuts of modern typography, The Press accords it a privilege to say a pleasant word in recognition of an improvement which shows appreciation of a paper embodying all the best ideas of up-to-date journalism. The Journal is one of the best types of good newspapers that comes into The Press' editorial rooms, and we extend the warm word of congratulation on this new evidence of popularity.

READY FOR TUESDAY.

The State Democratic Committee held its last regular meeting of the campaign yesterday afternoon. Nearly every member was on hand, and those who could not attend sent in their reports. Chairman Price said the reports were all encouraging and showed the party organization in the State to be in far better condition than most people supposed. Very little trouble, it was said, had been experienced in securing volunteers for poll work on election day, and it is expected that very little trouble will be experienced in getting out the vote. Largely increased registration was reported from nearly every county in the State.

AN EVENING WITH MCLAREN.

First of the Sociables to be Held at the Seventh Day Baptist Church.

"An evening with Ian McLaren" was the entertainment provided for the social at the Seventh Day Baptist Church last evening. The Ladies' Society for Christian work was in charge and the customary supper was served in the church parlors early in the evening. It was the first sociable of the season and there was some delay before the programme began.

Frank Clawson was the master of ceremonies and announced a piano solo by Miss Carrie Dewey as the first number of the programme. Then Miss Bessie Titsworth read a short sketch of Dr. John Watson, otherwise "Ian McLaren." D. E. Titsworth read a selection from one of that author's books, and after a vocal solo by Mrs. D. E. Titsworth and an instrumental selection by Miss Dewey, he read again. That concluded the entertainment and a social time followed.

The entertainment committee consisted of Mrs. J. G. Miller, chairman, Miss Louise Lewis and Miss Ernestine Smith. The refreshment committee was composed of Mrs. F. A. Dunham, chairman, and Mrs. L. T. Rogers.

J. W. YATES' APPEAL.

wrong.—and yet at the same time we are asked to support the Chicago platform and tax the whole nation for the benefit of a fractional part of one per cent of the population of a few silver states,. Well, to say the least, it is a cool proposition to put before seventy millions of people.

There is another very dark side of this question. We all know that business is comparatively at a stand still at present. Business men are awaiting the result of the coming election. If reports are true, they have orders in now, amounting to millions of dollars, for goods manufactured and unmanufactured, with a proviso that these orders are void if Bryan is elected. This is only a shadow of what would take place in that event.

If the values are changed all over the country, confidence and credit destroyed, how can any sensible man look for prosperity for years to come? This being the case, how would the wage earner stand? With business limited; the demand for labor would be limited, affecting all classes coming under that head. Without a question there would be at least two men to do one man's work, and as the price of labor is governed by supply and demand, how can an advance in wages be expected? Those who have been fortunate enough to accumulate a reserve might live on their past earnings, but how about those who have not?

One other point I will mention. Most mortgages are made to run for one year and are seldom called in at the end of that time if the mortgagor is trusted and pays his interest promptly. Elect Mr. Bryan and you invite your mortgagee to demand principal and interest at once. Should you be unable to comply with this demand he may allow it to stand upon the condition that you insert a clause making principal and interest payable in gold coin or its equivalent. If you refuse to make this condition a foreclosure will inevitably follow before a silver bill could be passed and that would enable you to pay it off in depreciated currency. Then if you have not the money and cannot borrow it you lose the equity in your property. Should you succeed in placing it elsewhere it will carry with it considerable additional expense and a gold clause. If you have plenty of money at your command you can afford to take the risk; if not, I advise you not to vote for Bryan and Sewall.

A currency having an unstable standard, together with the repudiation of our honest debts, public and private, must destroy confidence, reduce business enterprise to a minimum, disturb our trustful relations with each other, and lead those of moderate means to the strictest economy. This will be distinctly felt by the wage-earner, and in every capacity create many hardships. These are matters that should have your careful and earnest attention before election day.

Finely Executed Resolutions.

Wm. Montgomery Smith, of Elmwood place, has just completed a set of resolutions which will be presented to Kearney Lodge No. 195, I. O. O. F., of Kearney, by Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F, in recognition of services rendered the late Anthony Dobbins, at one time a member of the Plainfield, and who later moved to Newark where he died. Mr. Smith's work on the resolutions is most finely executed and is certainly a work of art. A committee from the lodge consisting of Noble Grand Henry Nischwitz; Treasurer, J. B. Clarkson; Permanent Secretary, E. H. Bird and Recording Secretary J. F. Sheppard, will go to Kearney at an early date and present the resolutions.

Noel Gets a Verdict.

Justice Mosher this morning rendered a decision in the case of C. J. Noel against Hands Lambertson, in a suit for $200 damages for injuries received, by awarding the plaintiff a verdict of $85 and costs. Noel sued for $200, claiming that he was permanently injured by being run down by the wagon of Lambertson while being driven by Neal Metchin. The scene of the accident was on Terrill road, and the time two years ago.

A Surprise Social.

Geo. C. Eckhardt, of the borough, arranged a surprise social last evening for his friend, J. A. Stocker, of Manning avenue. The chief feature was the playing of games and at midnight refreshments were served. Those present were the Misses Wilcox, Mills, Nischwitz, Stiglitz, and Messrs. Julius Williams, Frank Wyckoff, George Eckhardt, W. C. Smith, Jr., and J. A. Stocker.

ONLY THE EXITS UNSAFE.

A Letter From Charles H. Hand, Owner of the Cycle Academy.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I see in last night's edition of your paper that the Grand Jury of the county have entered a presentment against the entrance to my hall or Cycle Academy. When Mr. J. L. Wiseman leased the academy he erected the showroom at the entrance for the purpose of exhibiting the different makes of wheels, and also as a waiting-room, and at that time he had no intention of renting the academy for public entertainments, etc. But later, or since the hall has been in demand for large gatherings, the entrance has been objected to. As far as the perfect safety of the hall is concerned, I feel at liberty to ask the best inspectors in the city to examine it, and I feel confident that the answer will be a most satisfactory one, both to the public and myself.

The lessee of the academy, Mr. Wiseman, is well thought of in this city, and I feel sure that he will arrange the Watchung avenue entrance to suit the City Inspector; and I also understand he intends to make one or two more exits on the Fourth street side of the Academy. When these doors are completed the entire building will be as safe, if not safer than any building in this vicinity.

Charles H. Hand,
Owner of Building.

The following explains itself:

This is to certify that I have thorougly examined the Cycle Academy, owned by Charles H. Hand and leased by Joseph L. Wiseman, and find the building perfectly safe in regard to the strength and durability. The only fault is the want of more exits.

T. O. Doane,
Inspector of Buildings,
City of Plainfield.

Make Two Cakes

One with Cleveland's baking powder, the second with any other.

Note the difference. The Cleveland cake is fine grained, keeps its natural moisture and flavor; "the other" is coarse grained, as if the sugar were too coarse, soon dries out and becomes husky.

Cleveland's leavens best because its strength is produced by cream of tartar and soda only, not by ammonia or alum.

THEATRICAL.

Mr. Theo. Emmett Corrigan, supported by an excellent company, will be the attraction at Music Hall, beginning Monday next, for three nights. Mr. Corrigan is well-known by the theatre going people, having been a member of Augustin Daly's and Charles Frohman's stock companies for a number of years. He will produce high class comedy dramas interspersed with dancing specialties and popular songs, illustrated by stereopticon views. On the street in front of the theatre, Monday evening at 7 o'clock, the agent of the Corrigan Company will give a free exhibition of comic views, etc. Election returns will be given from the stage Tuesday evening.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

A party was held at the Emery residence near here, Tuesday night. Prof. Naylor furnished the music for the sixty young persons who were present.

After being patched up the Republican flag was again unfurled yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Giddes, who returned home on Tuesday spent the night at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher, on the New Market road. A crowd of the town urchins gathered in front of the house and were about to fire to a half dozen barrels, when a son of Rev. Mr. Fletcher went out, and generously compensated the boys for their barrels, and after passing around cigars, the crowd dispersed.

Adam Dealaman and Dr. Nelson have gone to Bradford, Pa., on a hunting and fishing expedition.

Postmaster Peter C. Staats has had a relapse from the chills and is again confined to the house.

J. Stout and daughter, Miss Ada, of Independence, Iowa, who have been vifiting W. H. Smock, of Harris Lane, returned home last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Giddes returned to their Dunellen home on Tuesday after spending their honeymoon in Washington, D. C., Mt. Vernon and Alexandria, and last night they were tendered a reception at the home of the groom's parents. The house was very prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and cut flowers, and the supper was served by Caterer Paul Reusch. Those who received the guests were Mrs. Clark T. Hunt, of Stockton, Mrs. John Finney, of Lambertsville, and Miss Jessie Haines, of Dunellen. Mrs. Fred Camfield, of Somerville, presided at the piano and rendered several delightful selections during the evening. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. C. T. SCOTCH PLAINS.

Thomas Paff, Sr., who has his eagle eye on everything good thats going on around here, took a day off yesterday from the arduous labors of fishing and was at work "shying" up the line fence between his property and that of John Marsh.

By a revision of the Fanwood Township Board it has been found that the total number of names registered is 310. This is only a slight increase over the last registry, and the township was pretty thoroughly canvassed too.

Some of the leading Republicans and Democrats, too, of the town are considering the advisability of having a telegraphic loop cut into the engine house for the election returns next Tuesday night. The cost would be comparatively small, but jointly going into the project might result in trouble and confusion.

The quarries of the engineering and construction company near here are now getting out and shipping stone to Union Village for macadamizing purposes. Henry W. Rogers is doing the carting.

Charles Mooney of this place is equipping the Texier glove making factory in Washington Valley with a new turbine water wheel which he has manufactured himself.

Mrs. Charles Grant, of West Front street, spent yesterday with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Paff, Sr.

The Scotch Plains football team held another practice game near the school house yesterday afternoon.

William Messler while at work husking corn for Fred Clark, Tuesday, was stung on the chin by a bee or some other insect and his lower jaw soon after swelled to alarming propositions.

Some beautiful pairs of the Kiefer Hybard species and weighing nearly a pound each are on exhibition in W. H. Turton's store.

The Darlington, Wis., Journal says editorially of a popular patent medicine: "We know from experienee that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is all that is claimed for it, as on two occasions it stopped excruciating pains and possibly saved us from an untimely grave. We would not rest easy over night without it in the house." This remedy undoubtably saves more pain and suffering than any other medicine in the world. Every family should keep it it in the house, for it is sure to be needed sooner or later. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

MASSES AGAINST CLASSES

Bland-Allison act checked the slide for awhile and in 1890 the Sherman law checked it again until the purchasing clause was stricken out, and prices have been falling ever since. We have got the smartest young man that America ever produced and we are going to place him in the Presidential chair. If McKinley is elected there will be a stagnation in business, factories will close and there will be general depression a d misery. Contraction of money means hard times. Will the people allow a contraction of currency while others live in luxury, go to Europe and buy and sell titles? We want to place the silver dollar where it was in 1873. We are laboring for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and we favor an income tax so that the rich will bear their portion of the Government expenses. Our party was never so pure and strong as it is now and we are going to be victorious."

Mr. Kenney then introduced James Gratton McMahon, a prominent lawyer of Brooklyn, who spoke in substance as follows:

"We are here to discuss the question whether we will accept or reject William J. Bryan for president. There has never been a more able man before you for your consideration. I have eternal reverence for Washington, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe, but there has never been a man since Jefferson that is the equal of Mr. Bryan, who represents in a moment the slumbering energies of American soil, a great thinking people. He talks common language to a common people and the simplest can understand his speeches. The whole discussion has centred into three word 'supply and demand.' Bryan stands on a platform that belongs to no party, for it represents the people. Bryan stands for that which gave us our flag and that government and currency which has stood for years. We are told that Bryan is an anarchist. But who is that tells it? The millionaires! Where were they in 1860 and 1861 when Bryan's father left his infant son in a Western crib? Gould was in Chicago at the time selling mouse traps. We had a glorious career until 1873 when the silver of our country was poisoned and adulterated by England and American politicians. This government is not the wealthiest, most industrious and intellectual in the world. If it was it would not be dependent on foreign nations, and over its head in depth. The disease is in the head and not the feet.

"In 1868 this Government did not owe a dollar abroad, but a fever to build railroads was displayed. It required millions to do the work and the Government assumed a portion of the responsibility by taking some bonds. The railroad directors watered the stock to an enormous amount and bonds were sold in a number of countries. Some were were sold for forty cents on the dollar. The Government received one-half of the face value of the bonds and as a result lost about $118,000,000 in 1878 Since 1896 over $6,000,000,000 of our money has been spent in Europe. England has now in the United States 200,000,000 pounds bearing 5 per cent interest. We are tonight as a country bankrupt. There is not a great bank, insurance company, brewery, or ferryboat, but what is practically in the hands of foreign capital, while the native capital in United States gold is crushing the laboring man." Mr. McMahon in conclusion paid a glowing tribute to Bryan the young champion of the Democratic party and urged all Democrats to vote for him and their local ticket. Throughout Mr. McMahon's speech there was frequent loud bursts of applause and the speaker's ready knowledge of history won him many friends.

George Cramer, of North Branch, the Senatorial nominee was next introduced and made a few remarks. He said that he hoped the people would give him a chance to help make the laws and let Mr. Reed practice them. Mr. Cramer was well received. This finished the speechmaking and the meeting adjourned.

Those who occupied seats on the platform were lawyers Hiram Oliver Hance and John P. D. Kirch; Justice of the Peace David D. Smalley and D. J. Carney.

UNCLE SAM'S NAVY

Chief Constructor's Report Shows a Total of 110 Vessels.

THIRTY OF THESE ARE ARMORED

Eight Battleships and Twenty-Three Steel Cruisers Now in Commission—Naval Vessels Now Under Construction.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Chief Constructor Hichborn's annual report shows a total of 110 vessels in the navy, of which thirty are armored, including eight battleships, two cruisers, one ram, six double turretted monitors, all of which are in active service prepared for offensive or defensive operations, and thirteen single turret monitors which might be utilized in the harbors in which they now lie. Three other armored battleships are now under construction. There are twenty-five new steel cruisers also in commission, in addition to the three special class vessels of the new navy—the Bancroft, Dolphin and Vesuvius. These are unarmored, as are the sixteen iron and six wooden sailing vessels still carried on the lists. Three torpedo boats are in use and fifteen under contract. The other vessels building are six gunboats, one submarine boat and fifteen torpedo boats. Twelve tugs are also included in the naval force and eighteen old ships unfit for sea, which, however, are utilized for various purposes, such as training vessels, naval reserve rendezvous and receiving ships. In compliance with law for the increase of the navy, Engineer in Chief Melville and the chief constructor unite in a statement that $5,925,359 must be appropriated for 1897, which, with $8,287,502, the balance in the treasury, is required for existing contracts.

E. J. JENKINS' DOWNFALL.

The Disbarred Boston Lawyer at One Time Stood High in His Profession.

Boston, Oct. 29.—Edward J. Jenkins, who was yesterday disbarred as the outcome of charges preferred by the Boston Bar association, was one of the most prominent among the lawyers of this section of the state. His business was largely in connection with the settling up of estates, and the charges brought against him by the bar association were formed upon alleged irregularities in some such transactions. The specifications stated that he was not of good moral character, that he was guilty of deceit, malpractice and other gross misconduct. Judge Gaskill found that nine of the charges which the bar association set forth against the respondent had been sustained by the evidence. The respondent did not make any evidentiary defense, and in fact did not put in an appearance at the hearing at all, his counsel claiming that he was too ill to attend.

M'KINLEY'S VISITORS

Big Crowd of His Own Townsmen Call at His Home.

AFFECTED AT THE DEMONSTRATION

Organization of a Ladies' McKinley Club of Canton—An Estimate of the Republican Plurality in Ohio.

Canton, O., Oct. 29.—All Canton was divided into two parts last evening, those who marched to Major McKinley's house and those who viewed and cheered the marching throngs. The business men of Canton, irrespective of party, announced a few days ago that on Wednesday, about sundown, they would call in a body on Major McKinley. Last night they made good their promise, and they were joined in their demonstration by most of the other men in the city. About 5,000 men formed in line and marched with banners and bands to the McKinley residence just at sundown. Darkness fell just as they gathered in a solid phalanx in the street around the candidate's home. There were acres of people. Major McKinley was visibly affected and there was a thrill of emotion in his voice when he spoke. Introductory remarks were made by Alexander Hurford, one of Canton's most venerable business men, and by W. W. Clark. Then the cheering for McKinley commenced. It was the most engaging and inspiring scene of a day that had been crowded with pleasant and interesting incidents. Major McKinley addressed the gathering at some length, and his remarks were often interrupted with applause. At a meeting last evening the Ladies' McKinley club of Canton was organized. The club will call on Major McKinley Saturday. The Canton troop called formally on Major McKinley earlier in the day, and through their captain addressed some words of greeting to Major McKinley, who responded pleasantly. Among Major McKinley's callers were ex-assistant postmaster-general James N. Tynar of Washington, Judge A. C. Thompson of Portsmouth, O.; ex-auditor of state E. W. Poe of Columbus; ex-Lieutenant-Governor Richards of Steubenville, and C. A. Carlisle of South Bend, Ind.

Estimate 86,800 Plurality in Ohio.

Canton, O., Oct. 29.—Joseph P. Smith, an expert in Ohio politics, has compiled a detailed estimate of the plurality which each county in the state will give on Tuesday next. He has derived his information from sources independent of those drawn upon by the state committee and gives the name of his correspondent in each county. Mr. Smith thinks the republican counties of the state will give McKinley a plurality in the aggregate of 113,500, and that the democratic counties will give Bryan pluralities amounting to 26,700, making a minimum plurality for McKinley in this state of 86,800.

Killed Himself Over Politics.

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 29.—Goaded to a frenzy by the taunts of neighbors because he declared he would vote for McKinley, private John Protowsky, formerly of Company F, Fifteenth regiment, United States army, committed suicide at his home in West Hammond yesterday after attempting to kill his wife and baby. Several years ago, while home on a furlough, Protowsky killed two Polish highwaymen who attempted to kidnap his bride on the morning of the wedding. He left a card inscribed with these words: "John Protowsky will fight with his blood for McKinley."

A Nephew of Gen. Lee for McKinley.

Washington, Oct. 29.—The following bulletin has been given out at republican headquarters: "Cassius Lee, a nephew of Gen. Robert E. Lee, a resident of Fairfax county, Virginia, and Washington, has come out for the republican ticket. Mr. Lee has organized a McKinley club in Fairfax county numbering 100. He believes that the sound money sentiment in the old dominion is growing in a most extraordinary manner, and says that unless all indications fail Virginia will go for McKinley.

Albany Republican Campaign Closed.

Albany, Oct. 29.—The republicans of Albany closed the campaign in this vicinity last night with a big mass meeting. Over, 5,000 people crowded into Harmanus Bleecker hall, where Hon. Frank S. Black, the republican candidate for governor, and Hon. Timothy L. Woodruff, the republican candidate for lieutenant-governor, and congressman George N. Southwick of this city spoke for republican principles.

Special Election Prayer.

Boston's Last Republican Rally.

will be as safe at Prescott or Camp Sandy for distribution as he is here—and Mrs. C.'s house is crowded now. He is wild to meet Leon again, and the two boys can remain together at the post while I'm in the field. I'm only afraid the fun will be all over before we get there."

And so it was settled.

Many a time before the boy had been his father's companion in mountain hunt or scout, but never when the Apaches were swarming as at this moment. "We shall find none of them east of Date creek," said Cullen, "and east of there our escort will be too formidable for them to jump. Have no fear for him." But what mother could banish fear for the safety of her only boy? No one saw her parting with the brave, eager, blue-eyed little fellow. Devotedly though he loved her, he was soldier all over, like his father, and eager to act the soldier's part—eager to go with him to the seat of war, over mountain pass and desert and treacherous stream bed, regretting, if anything, that there was no likelihood of encountering Indians on the way. Her heart was wrung—yet like many another army mother of the old army days, she simply had to face the inevitable. She was to follow within the fortnight with the general's wife and their party of ladies, children and servants by steamer around Old California and up the gulf to the Colorado. By the time they reached Fort Yuma the outbreak would probably be all over and the Indians back in their mountain homes—the troops in garrison. It was one of those temporary separations mothers elsewhere marveled at and declared impossible, but that army mothers wept over, yet bowed to. Night and day for forty-eight hours while she prayed for them within sound of the Pacific surges, father and son whirled rapidly eastward, across the turpid Colorado, resting only an hour at Ehrenberg where they changed buckboard, mules and driver, then on again by starlight, gradually rising from billow to billow of the long leagues of desolation to the wild and picturesque scenery of the Sierras, then through resinous forests of pine, through rocky canyon and winding gorge, until they were landed, stiff and sore, dusty, hungry and thirsty, among the log huts of the little garrison at old Fort Whipple, catching the department commander just two days before even that impatient soldier thought it possible.

Then, after a refreshing bath and a few hours' rest in the general's own big ambulance, and escorted now by wary troopers, away they went for the valley of the Sandy. Everything indicated, said the chief, that the Indians, after wiping out the Santa Anita settlements, had swooped upon the lower valley while the garrison at Retribution was in its state of transition, and very probably they had made it lively for Thornton. Couriers had rushed to Col. Pelham at Camp Sandy with orders to send strong columns southward at once, one of them following the valley to meet the general at the fords just above Apache canyon.

Away sped their strong six-mule team down through the fertile Hassayampa, across to the broad valley of Willow creek, changing mules and escort at the mountain ranch and getting all manner of startling news and rumors on the way. Away at last for the Sandy, passing early in the afternoon, while Randy was dozing in his corner, the foam-covered, dust-begrimed pair, Muncey and Cardoza—"too badly stampeded to stop and talk," said the sergeant commanding the escort, "but shouting that they alone had escaped."

"We should reach Retribution by midnight," said the general. "And just won't I hunt up Leon and wake him and hug him the moment I get there, and won't he be amazed?" said Randall, joyfully.

The story of the boy's long tramp home was familiar to one and all by this time and had won the little fellow a host of friends among officers and soldiers alike. "No one can believe what that fellow Muncey says, though I have reason to think the Apaches have reached the Sandy," said the general. And so on they went, rattling and bumping and jolting down the winding road to the east of the range, and at last pulled up in the midst of Turner's troop at nightfall; and then for the first time did Randall realize that his friend and playmate was gone, and no one could say how or where.

Tired and drowsy as he had been during the long, hot day, tired as all might well be, there was no thought of weariness now. In breathless interest the little party listened to Maj. Thornton's description of the events of the previous night, Randall's heart throbbing hard as he heard of Leon's brave ride for Mrs. Downey's sake, and his tears raining afresh as Thornton told how they had found the pony, after daybreak, pierced with Apache arrows, near the butte. "Had they searched the butte itself?" asked the general.

"Every crevice of it, sir," replied Sergt. Charlton, who had found the pony. "There was no trace of him there."

"Indeed, there was no place there where he could hide," said Randall, sadly. "We had hunted and played scout all over it—all over the neighborhood, in fact. The only places we had to hide were in the old canyon itself, because we believed there the Indians wouldn't come."

"And you had some hiding place in there?" asked the general, placing his sun-burned hand on Randall's shoulder and looking kindly down into the boy's brimming blue eyes.

"Yes, sir; three or four of them. We had two down under the cliffs near the south end and another up by the cove, where old Sanchez camped—near where they were when the cloudburst struck them. We were up there twice only ten weeks ago," and again Randy's lips were quivering, though he fought manfully to hide his grief. "We had a regular little cache of stores there—hardtack and cheese and frijoles—in case we ever had to hide there when we were hunting."

"You'll make a good frontiersman one of these days, Randall," said the bearded chief, calmly glancing at his watch. "I wouldn't be surprised if you and Leon could teach us a thing or two worth knowing now. Now, Cullen, I've got to push right on for Retribution—the new post. We'll pick up Tanner's people on the way and take a few of Turner's men from here. Thornton and Turner can go with me, and you and Randy take their horses and a dozen men and search the canyon tonight. It's my belief that your little protege has given both crowds the slip, and that if he is in the land of the living Randy can find him!"

It was then nine o'clock of another hot, still, cloudless, starlit night. In ten minutes, with a few words of encouragement to the boy and a cordial handshake and pat of the shoulder, the general bade them all good night, sprang lightly into his ambulance, the aid-de-camp following, and away it went, escort and all, splashing through the Sandy. Half an hour later Maj. Cullen was once again in saddle among the old familiar scenes, and, followed by Randy, by Sergt. Kelly, who was overjoyed to welcome back his old captain, and by a dozen troopers who had never yet served with him, but knew him well, as soldiers will, by reputation, the major rode on down stream to where, dark and frowning, the black gate loomed before them. Randall, in his impatience to be off, could hardly wait for the men to be served with coffee and the horses with a bait of barley before starting on the night ride through the dim and ghostly chasm. Old Kelly gave them constant encouragement. "If he was caught by Apaches and killed we'd surely have come upon his body, Masther Randall," said he, "and after he fired that beacon, and Muncey's 'outfit' and the Apaches ran foul of each other, neither party wanted to be burdened with a boy. But the Apaches were between him and the old post. He's had only one place to run for, and that was the canyon. Muncey's 'outfit' probably reached it almost at the same time, and he had to hide from both. By this time, it's my belief, he's stolen out and made his way back to the old post."

"THE CANYON OPENS OUT JUST BELOW HERE."

It was nearly midnight when Cullen, riding at a brisk walk at the head of the column, pointed silently to the huge black bulk of precipice overhanging the Sandy a few yards ahead. It was so dark that only by giving the horse his head and an occasional prod with the spurred heel the leader could follow the winding trail. "We're within a few rods of Sanchez's camp," muttered Kelly to the impatient boy. "The canyon opens out just below here."

"I know," said Randall, briefly. "I'm wild to signal to Leon now. He knows my call as well as a bird knows its mate's."

"Ah, but it isn't up here ye'll find him, Masther Randall," said the old man, striving to prepare the boy for disappointment. "Even if they had fetched him this far he'd be working back now for the post, where Mrs. Kelly and the girls will be 'mazin' glad to see him."

But no sooner had the leader of the little column passed the base of the cliff than Randall urged his horse forward to his father's side. "I can tell it in the dark," said he; "may I go ahead?"

Cullen nodded, and the boy spurred eagerly on. The Sandy roared and rushed close by the trail as it turned the point, then more placidly swept along over some pebbly shallows, where the heights on the western side fell away and gave place to a deep and sheltered nook. They had reached the spot where the Sanchez party was camped when overwhelmed by the cloudburst, where the luckless Mexicans, that very morning, following blindly their rascally leaders, were corralled and massacred without mercy. Their bodies, as we have seen, had been buried by Crane's party, but the stiffened carcasses of the mules still lay there, already beginning to taint the summer air. The major had expected Randy to turn into the cove, but the boy pushed sturdily ahead.

"How much further, Randall?" he asked in a low tone.

"Two hundred yards or so, father. There's a pitahaya right opposite the place."

Then for a moment more the click, click of the ironshod hoofs along the stony trail and the soft rush of the waters were the only sounds to break the silence of the night. Dark and shadowy, still in single file, the party rode unerringly on, Randall leading. The boy's heart was bounding with hope and eagerness. The grief which had overcome him when told of Leon's probable fate had given place to high and spirited resolve to play a man's part in the effort to rescue him. What boy with a drop of soldier blood in his veins would not rejoice in being a "leader of men" amid such surroundings and on such a quest? No trooper could see more than the dim outline of his file leader, but Maj. Cullen's eyes rejoiced in the alert, soldierly bearing of his son. They had almost passed the cove and were once more entering the black shadow of the cliff when Randall's horse shied suddenly, stumbled and went down on his knees. The boy's deft, practiced hand had him up in an instant, but something went slinking away down the bank, and over on the opposite shore the wild, weird cry of the lynx, half snarl, half warning, rose above the rush of the stream. Somewhere further down the echoing canyon the cry was taken up and repeated and old Kelly growled aloud: "The major knows best, sir, but if there's Apaches hanging about here anywhere, that's the way they'd be signaling maybe, and I wouldn't like to have them heaving rocks down on Masther Randall."

"We're almost there now, father," spoke the boy for himself. "They can't roll rocks on us once I get you in there. There's our landmark now." And right ahead, around another abrupt shoulder of the cliff, there loomed up through the night the shaft of a tall cactus—the cereus giganteus of the Gila basin—and here again the heights broke away, and through a broad opening to the right the stars peeped down in silvery splendor. Unhesitatingly the boy led on into this nook of the mountains. One after another the click of hoofs on the rocks gave place to soft thud upon the yielding turf, and presently as Randall reined in and threw himself from the saddle, the party gathered in silence around him.

"It's quite a climb from here," he said. "Will you come, father — and Kelly? The rest had better stay."

A trooper took their reins. Silently the boy led on, bending low and searching the foot trail. In a minute they were climbing some steep ascent, slowly, cautiously. Presently they reached the little ledge of rock and stopped to breathe. Down in the depths of the cove a trooper struck a match to light his pipe, and the stern voice of Sergt. Charlton reproved him with: "Don't you know that if there are Indians about that's a sure way of telling them where to fire?"

"I've got to light a match in a minute, father," said Randall, "but it will be so far in the cleft it won't be seen above." Then once again he pushed on, still climbing some old game trail. About two hundred feet above the bottom he stopped, his heart beating hard. "I'm going to give our signal," he whispered. "It's one we had when we played scout."

A moment of silence and then, in low, mellow whistle, two notes, not unlike the Bob White pipe of our quail, were lifted on the night air. Breathless all the troopers far below and the little party on the hillside waited the result.

"The boy's right," muttered old Kelly to himself. "If Leon's in hiding from Apaches anywhere here he'll welcome that call." No answer came, and once again, a little louder, Randall piped anew. Still no result, and with a sob in his voice the boy turned.

"I'll not give up till I've searched the cave," he said, "but he'd have answered if he'd heard," and so once more led on. Presently they came to a deep cleft in a bold outcropping of rock, and into this cautiously Randall turned. "Keep a few yards behind me," he whispered. "I've got to light my match."

One moment, and with a snap and flare the blue flame of the lucifer flashed upon their sight, slowly turned to yellow red, and was lifted toward a dark aperture in the rock. One instant of hesitation, of doubt and bitter disappointment, and the boy passed stealthily in. Then something seemed to stir far back in the dark. There was a sudden start—a stifled gasp. Then the simultaneous cries: "Leon! Randy!" and in a confusion of sound of scrambling and hugging, and something suspiciously like sobbing and laughter intermingled, the match went out.

When, after a moment's lull, old Kelly struck a light and peered with moistened eyes, the boys were apparently doing a bear dance together, and a bear dance consists in hugging one's partner "tight as tight can" and hopping up and down, around and around; and then the word went down the heights in a jubilant shout and was answered by a soldier cheer: "MacNutt is found—all right!"

What a story he had to tell when, late that night, they sat about the campfire! Riding back from the new post, his pony had shied in an arroyo some two miles from Sandy, and he had lost his hat in the dark. Then, while hunting for it, the pony took a notion to wander, and was presently lost to view. Dismayed, Leon searched over the flats, but to no purpose. Not until the dawn was breaking did he come upon him again, close to Signal Butte, quietly grazing, and then, all on a sudden, he heard the firing at Kelly's, and in less than no time a dozen shadowy forms flitted between him and the distant guard lights at the post, and he realized that the Apaches were in the valley. Leaving his pony to his own devices, Leon climbed the rocky height and, taking no thought of his own danger, fired the beacon. Then hurrying down in hopes of escape, discovered several Indians rushing for the butte, saw that his retreat to the post was cut off, and made all speed for the canyon, thinking to hide in safety there until the coast was clear; but they followed, or at least he thought it was they. He heard the shouts and hoof beats at the entrance. Terror lent him wings and he ran like a deer up the gorge. Walking and running, an hour's flight brought him almost exhausted to their cave of refuge. Here he clambered to the cave, and there lay for hours, listening later to the shouts and sounds of battle, never daring to creep forth, even when nightfall came, and, after long hours of vigil, worn out, he fell asleep, only to awake in Randall's arms.

OLD KELLY STRUCK A LIGHT.

Leaving the boys to the care of his friends at the post, Maj. Cullen, with three troops of his new regiment, chased the scattering Apaches out of the Tonto basin without further loss to settlers or soldier. They had had their dance and had sense enough to know when to quit.

Old Fort Retribution is only a memory now. Apache canyon is threaded by a narrow gauge railway. A populous settlement has sprung up in the Santa Anita. Kelly's ranch is owned by one of the Kellys, but under a different name—that of her husband—for the old sergeant was gathered in to his fathers long years ago. Muncey never came back, even when the Santa Anita mines were worth revisiting, even when the claim of MacNutt and Murray was sold to good advantage and Leon's sole benefit. Ferguson's beautiful roan had reappeared after a time, as did Ferguson and his friends, and they said they found her over in the Agua Fria country, where Muncey and Cardoza seemed to run foul of the Apaches again, and this time without escape. At least Apaches were seen there just a day or so before the runaways, and they covered a multitude of sins. The old butte flamed its signal once again long years later, when the Indians had an outbreak on the Cibicu, but that was after Pelham and the —th served their five years in Arizona, and, with Maj. Cullen and Randall, left for the new station Kansas and Nebraska, and for long campaigns against their old friends, the Sioux and Cheyennes. By this time the boys had spent their high school days in San Francisco, and were sprouting down upon their sun-tanned cheeks and planning for future years of service in the life they loved, and the last time I saw them was some ten years ago—Leon, a stout, stalwart sergeant in the cavalry; Randall riding, a platoon commander, in his father's regiment—all the better soldiers, both of them, for the boy days in scout and saddle around Apache canyon and under the shadows of old Signal Butte.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

The game between the Alis football team and the Somerville eleven for next month has been declared off. The Somervillians came to Dunellen Saturday and were defeated 24 to 0. Four of the regular team failed to put in an appearance and the others became disgusted with the whole affair and disbanded the team.

The Scotch Plains boys practiced quite a little for last Saturday's game with the Alis team and thought they had fair interference. Johnny Gluck, who played full back, is a Westfield boy and is known here as something of a bicycle rider. He had just caught the ball on the kickoff and shouted:

"Where's the interference?"

"Here it is," responded Harry Cuming as he dived at Gluck and downed him on the spot.

The Passaic High School has a strong team this year, averaging 140 pounds, and on Saturday they meet the Westfield eleven. Quite a number of football enthusiasts from this city will attend.

The eleven of the Stevens Preparatory school is one of the leaders in the contest for the New Jersey interscholastic football championship. Nathan Lewis, of West Eighth street, is now playing centre on the team and putting up a good game in that position. He played guard during the early part of the season but when the regular centre was laid off on account of illness, Lewis took his place.

The Y. M. C. A. team will meet for practice at the Jersey Cycle Academy tomorrow night when Coach Waring will give instruction in a new kind of interference. Several new methods that are only being used by Yale and Princeton will be introduced.

Louis E. Waring went up to New Haven with the Elizabeth Athletic Club team yesterday for the game with Yale. He will go to Worcester Academy in a few days to coach the eleven there.

WHIST.

The next match for the trophy of the New Jersey Whist Association will be played Monday evening, at the Park Club, holders of this trophy. The New Jersey Athletic Club are the challenging team to play this game. If Park win this game it will give them permanent possession of this trophy, as this would make ten wins to their credit. Another trophy or set of appropriately designed pins will be presented to the association to be played for by teams of four men each from the clubs in the association.

Severidge to Be Tried Nov. 13th.

L. W. SERRELL INDICTED.

CHARGED THAT HE VIOLATED A STATE HEALTH LAW.

Prosecuted at the Instigation of the North Plainfield Board of Health—Plainfield Board of Health Presented.

Lemuel W. Serrell, Sr., appeared in court at Elizabeth, this morning, accompanied by his counsel, Craig A. Marsh, to plead to the indictment found against him by the Grand Jury. The indictment charges that Mr. Serrell has connected water closets from his several houses with Green brook by means of a private sewer.

His counsel entered a plea of not guilty, reserving the right to withdraw the plea and move to quash the indictment. Mr. Marsh says that without question, Mr. Serrell will be vindicated, that of course the Grand Jury could hear only one side of the case, and when both sides are heard, there will be an acquittal.

The Grand Jury also censured the Plainfield Board of Health for permitting violations of the State Health laws after their attention had been called to such violations.

Present for Grand Jury Foreman.

George B. Matthews, foreman of the Grand Jury, was presented by his associates yesterday in the jury room with an elegant gold locket, studded with diamonds and pearls and containing miniature pictures of Mr. Matthews's wife and daughter. Foreman Matthews thanked the donors for the handsome gift.

CLAM SHELL KILLED A PLAYMATE—WIFE FIRED AT FROM AMBUSH.

Somerset and Union County Courts Acquit a Boy and Man From Serious Charges.

The Grand Jury in Elizabeth having failed to indict William Spicer, thirteen years old, who killed William Ernest, seventeen years old, at Trembly Point, by hitting him on the head with a clam shell several weeks ago, the boy was released yesterday.

The boys were playing, and a clam shell thrown by Spicer made a wide curve striking Ernest in the lip and making a slight wound. Lockjaw set in, and killed him three days later.

The trial of Asher Fleming for the attempted murder of his wife in the woods near Peapack ended in the Somerset county court, Wednesday, in a verdict of acquittal. Fleming has been tried in the United States court at Trenton and in the county courts on several serious charges. His trial for sending "White Cap" letters through the mails to a member of the Smith family at Peapack resulted in his acquittal. Fleming and his wife have lived apart since June, 1895.

THE TREASURY OF SONG

FRANK DAMROSCH TALKS ON THE ADVANTAGE OF SIGHT READING.

Art, He Says, is the Great Beautifier of Life Becuse it is Out of the Ordinary—Music Rich in Material.

An unusually interesting lecture was given yesterday afternoon in Seminary Hall, by Frank Damrosch, of New York, who is well known to musical people of this part of the country. The room was well filled with music loving Plainfield women, and the lecture was thoroughly enjoyed by every one present.

Mr. Damrosch's subject was "The Key to Unlock the Treasury of Song," meaning the advantage of a knowledge of sight-reading in music. "Art," he said, "is the great beautifier of life, because it lifts us out of our ordinary, humdrum life, into the region of the imagination. Music has the advantage over painting and architecture and other arts, that it is not limited in its materials. There is no end to the possibilities of musical composition." He then spoke of the difficulty of becoming a fine instrumental musician, but said that nature had given everyone a voice which could be used with a great deal of pleasure and profit. It was not necessary to become a finished singer; a slight knowledge of music will give one an entirely new pleasure in other's rendering of grand compositions. Choral singing, in which the individual voice need be neither fine nor well trained, gives a great deal of pleasure to the listener. It also is an inspiration to those who take part in it.

Mr. Damrosch now related briefly the history of choral music, and told of his own people's singing classes in Cooper Union, where people of the uneducated class, with no previous training, learned with perfect ease to sing eight-part choral music, in a manner both beautiful and touching. He said it was easier for children to learn than grown people, but it was a very simple matter for anyone. He then showed, by practical illustration, how easy first steps in sight-reading were, asking the audience to go through some preliminary exercises, ending with the singing of a pretty, easy little "round." Mr. Damrosch closed by saying: "A great many people get along without music; how they get along I do not see. If I were obliged to live without music, I should not care how soon I was translated to another planet, nor to which one. I believe that music is the great ameliorator of life, the one thing that binds all mankind together. It is the true language of the soul; we express through it what we could not express in words, and by means of it we feel what we had never really felt till it was expressed for us in music. The effect of music is often like a revelation. But we should prepare ourselves to let this beautiful angel in, and we should give our own little contribution if only to increase our own apreciation."

Fell From a Scaffold.

William Stites, of 200 Grove street, is one of the latest victims of the deadly scaffold, and he narrowly escaped with his life yesterday while working for contractor Frank Patience on a house on West Third street. He was standing on a scaffold erected fourteen feet from the ground, when he made a misstep and fell to the ground. He was able to walk home where he is now confined. He received several bruises and cuts about the body, but no serious results are anticipated.

A Slum Worker to Speak.

Frank Lawrence, who is connected with the Jerry McAuley Water Street mission, will speak in the Congregational church Sunday evening. Mr. Lawrence is a very interesting speaker, who has seen and experienced much of the town life of New York. Special music, both vocal and instrumental will be a feature of the meeting. All are cordially invited.

—Several borough streets are receiving a fine coat of crushed stone, which improves them.

JURY WORK QUESTIONED

INDICTMENTS OF THE GRAND JURY MAY NOT STAND.

George J. Tobin, One of the Members, Said to Live Out of the County, and on That Claim a Contest Will be Made

The startling announcement was made today that there is a possibility that the recent work of the Grand Jury of Union county is invalid. The reason given for this assertion is that it is said that George J. Tobin, one of the members from this city, is not a resident of this county, nor has not been for nearly a year. Mr. Tobin formerly lived with his sister on West Sixth street, but when he was married about a year ago he took up his residence with his wife's parents who live beyond the intersection of Clinton and Sherman avenues, outside of the county line, which makes him a resident of Middlesex county.

The circumstances based on these facts would make it appear as though the business transacted by the Grand Jury of Union county was quite likely to be thrown out, and there is a possibility of the 63 indictments and three presentments being invalidated. It is understood that counsel for one of the Plainfielders indicted by the Grand Jury will attempt to have the indictment quashed by the court, and the result of the other cases will depend on this one. The news regarding the matter spread rapidly, and it has already caused a sensation in this locality. Mr. Tobin has registered in the Third ward. Mr. Tobin has in course of construction a new house in this city, but the residence is not yet completed.

A VOTING CONTEST.

Most Popular Past Commander and Son of Veteran to be Decided at the Fair.

The attendance at the G. A. R. fair last evening was much larger than on the previous evening and everything is now in good running order. There were many sales and the museum attracted a number of people. The museum is well worth seeing and additional relics are arriving all the time. A special feature is a costly silk waist which was presented to the fair by Mme. Renault, of Grove street. Many of the younger people enjoy the dancing each evening, which commences at 9 o'clock. The voting for the most popular Past Commander and Son of Veteran creates considerable interest among the many friends of those who are trying to secure the quilts. New features are promised for each evening.

Circuit Chaser Left an Unpaid Bill.

Justice Newcorn has issued a summons in the case Ivins & Co. against Brown, returnable November 6th. A writ of attachment has also been issued in the case of McVey against F. H. Allen, to satisfy a board bill of $22 which the defendant contracted while in this city at the National Circuit Race Meet. Mr. Allen is one of the racing men who was remained in Plainfield for some time after the meet, and he left a quantity of goods at the Revere House upon which an attachment has been made.

Immence Crowd in Music Hall to Listen to Silver Argument.

TWO REPUBLICAN DESERTERS SPEAK

The Meeting Marked With Great Enthusiasm on the Part of Bryan Men—The Speakers Discuss the Issues and Proclaim That McKinley's Election Means a Continuation of the Bad Times.

It was the silver men's turn to be heard last night and Music Hall was crowded with the advocates of the free coinage of silver and their opponents, who came to hear what their orators had to say. The announcement that Senator Stewart, of Nevada, was to speak, attracted many to the meeting, for Plainfield wished to hear that famous advocate. The silverites were full of enthusiasm and vented it in loud and prolonged applause, while some of the younger followers of the other party showed their disapprobation of the sentiments of the speakers by hissing.

The Plainfield Cornet Band started the enthusiasm with rousing music, rendered at the entrance of Music Hall, and then they adjourned to the interior of the hall and there continued the musical prologue to the meeting. The crowd began to throng in until all the seats were filled and many were compelled to stand. A number of ladies were included in the audience. When it was announced that Senator Stewart would not speak, some of the curious ones left the hall. The free silver men remained, however, and as the meeting continued grew more and more enthusiastic. In the audience all the prominent advocates of free silver in the city were present, and a number of well-known Republicans and gold Democrats were to be noticed. James E. Martine, the "Farmer Orator," was not present, to the sorrow of his fellow-Democrats. He had engagements elsewhere.

The meeting was called to order by Frank M. Bacon, who introduced Chas. H. Lyman as chairman. He remarked on the great honor of presiding over such an assemblage, and said: "We are the advance guard of a great army led on by the great leader, William Jennings Bryan." His reply, he said, to the inquiries as to why he was going to vote for Bryan was because he stood for the principles of Jefferson and true Democracy. McKinley, he declared, had the money of the capitalists and trusts back of him, while Bryan and his followers are fighting it out by themselves. He spoke of the fire insurance and other combinations in this city, and said that when Bryan is elected all will be different. After introducing Hon. Mr. Beckwith, of Ohio, as a speaker of the evening, he read letters stating that Judge Willey would be unable to be present on account of an important debate at Atlantic City, and that James P. Powers could not come on account of another engagement. Then Mr. Beckwith took the floor.

It gave him profound pleasure, he said, to plead the cause of the American people. It was the most important issue, he declared, that the country had been called upon to decide. The issue of 1861 was for the freedom of a race, this was for the freedom of the American people. Then Mr. Beckworth declared himself a black Republican and and early Abolitionist. The Republican party was founded in 1860, when it stood for the freedom of a race. It has stood for the people and believed in the restoration of silver to its old position on a parity with gold. The representatives of the the Republicans of the south and west met at St. Louis, instructed for bi-metalism and McKinley. They were met by the eastern delegates, he said, who, under the direction of their leader and the capitalists behind them, forced the others to give up candidate or principles. The love, he said, for the candidate was too strong and they became repudiators and traitors to that grand old party. Some went with the party, but others did not, for many in the west and south believed that the money of the constitution was the money of the people.

"This is a campaign of education" he continued, "We are on the eve of a contest, on one side of which are the great masses of people fighting for bread and prosperity and on the other, few in number but vastly richer in money, contending for money." Then he went on to compare the two platforms and spoke briefly on each plank. The object of the one in the Democratic platform relating to the change in the Supreme Court was only, he said, so that the people might be lawfully taxed in the only fair way, according to the incomes. Lauterbach, New York, he declared, had stated that he objected to it and would resist the people if they tried to carry it.

Republicans Hold Forth in Their Own Quarters.

SURROGATE PARROT STILL LOYAL.

Believes That He Represents the Best Interests of the Country—A Speaker Who Has Been Through the South Says the Democrats Want Everything Free, But They Fail to Get It.

The Republicans held a meeting at their headquarters last evening which was well attended and much enthusiasm was manifested. The Independent Fife and Drum Corps made a circuit of the town and then returned to their rooms where several selections were rendered. Wm. N. Runyon sang two popular campaign songs which brought down the house.

Mr. Patten was chairman of the meeting and introduced as the first speaker Surrogate Geo. T. Parrott, of Elizabeth. Mr. Parrott congratulated Plainfield Repnblicans in doing such good word in this campaign, and said their fame had reached Elizabeth. Continuing, the speaker said in part:

"The platform adopted at Chicago is identical with the one adopted by the Populists in 1892. The principle of protection is one of policy and the vital interest of principle is at stake. Bryan and his followers at one time sought free trade. Now they seek free silver, and in fact they seem to want everything free. During the war it was not a question of party, nor is it now one of party. Bryan has asserted that the $50,0000,000 sent here from England caused wheat to go up in price, but he does not say that other things went up in price for the same reason. The fact is that for sometime past the people have been wrongly educated in the currency question. There has been an attempt to inflate currency to the extent of 50 cent dollars. When a Nation is honest she prospers and grows. Now if free silver should be adopted the building loans and saving's banks would be affected. Every promisory note and every bond would be called in. I appeal to every man to cast his vote for McKinley and Hobart and right."

Col. J. D. Slocum, of Cranford, who has been traveling through the south making speeches, was the next speaker. A portion of his remarks follow:

"I have been trying to tell the people of this country that 100 cents is worth more than 50 cents. Times have been hard and ten per cent. of 25,000,000 people have been out of employment. The industries of this State have been built by protection. Four years ago we got free trade, now the same people want to give us free silver. They always want something free. The Democrats have fooled with the tariff too much and they had better leave it alone. The Republican party stands for protection to American industries. A Socialist told me recently that there was 12,000 words in Bryan's Madison Square Garden speech and only two ideas but, Mr. Slocum said. I have failed to catch the two ideas. The speaker then dwelt at length upon the tariff and told how the manufacturer had suffered by having the duty removed from his products, so that England could compete with this country."

Frequent applause was accorded the speakers throughout, and after the meeting many remained to discuss the great issues pro and con.

THE SILVER SIDE.

S. S. Swackhamer Addresses the Business College Students.

S. S. Swackhamer delivered an address in the Plainfield Business College last night on the currency question, arguing for the free coinage of silver as proposed by the Chicago platform. He said that debts contracted on the basis of gold and silver as legal tender should not be made payable in money twice as dear. Referring to the claims of the gold standard people he claimed that the volume of currency was not sufficient to meet the demands of the country, and besides it was centralized in the hands of the few, which depressed prices by reason of the contraction. The inevitable result is that the producers are oppressed and practically ruined. An evidence of this is that debts have doubled between 1880 and 1890. England is our creditor and wants us to pay her in dear money, and we have to borrow gold and issue bonds, which eventually means financial ruin. With both silver and gold, Mr. Swackhamer argued, money could not be cornered by the money gamblers; with free coinage commerce would revive and we would enjoy a new era of prosperity. Mr. Swackhamer's points were received with approval by many in the audience.

A DRUNKEN MAN AND A RASH YOUTH TAKE WHEELS NOT THEIR OWN.

Bicycles Recovered, Culprits Arrested and Arraigned in Court to Explain Their Strange Actions.

An overabundance of liquor had had very serious results for Albert Kruger last night for, in his dazed condition, he took a sudden fondness for a wheel belonging to Sigmund Frucht and decided that he wanted it, no matter what the cousequences were. Kruger, who is a colored man, came down town last evening and, after indulging very freely, walked along West Front street and past the bicycle store of Sigmund Frucht. A wheel was standing in front of the store and Kruger, Frucht claims, picked it up and walked down the street with it. Frucht ran after him and seized him and the wheel. He yelled for an officer and had Kruger arrested and locked up. He was going to have Kruger held for the Grand Jury but, as the liquor was clearly to blame for the trouble, Kruger was held on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Fred Fromkroth, a sixteen-year old boy living at Mountainside, has been placed under $400 bail bonds to appear and answer the charge of stealing a bicycle from Harry Ball of that place, last Sunday.

Ball on that day attended afternoon service in the Mountainside chapel, leaving his bicycle on the front porch, as had been his custom. When services were over and Ball went to look for his wheel, it was missing. He sought the aid of Constable Holmes, of Mountainside, and together they made a long search which ended successfully by their discovering the stolen wheel in the possession of Fromkroth. The lad had removed the name plate evidently thinking that this would serve to cover up his crime.

He was arrested and Justice Perrine held him in $400 bail to appear for trial.

GILDED PALACE OF SIN.

LIVFLY TIME IN COURT OVER BOROUGH LICENSE APPLICATIONS.

S. S. Swackhamer Says the Manhattan Hotel is a Gambling Den—Results in Another Postponement of the Case.

The borough licenses were again considered in the Somerset county court this morning, and both were adjourned, but there was a lively time, nevertheless, and more excitement is promised for the future.

The Sisser hotel license case came up and action was deferred for two weeks. Sisser desires to open a hotel and saloon on Somerset St. close to the county line but there seems to be an opinion that the license will be refused.

Then then license of J. H. Graceley for a hotel and saloon at 179 and 181 Somerset street, the Manhattan Hotel, was brought up. Graceley has been conducting the place for about three months and the general opinion was that his application would be granted. Just as Judge Bartine was considering it, S. S. Swackhamer, one of the lawyers for the opposition, jumped up and asked the Judge not to grant the application as, he said, Graceley has been conducting a gambling den and selling intoxicants to boys.

Instantly there was a stir in the court room and City Judge DeMeza, of this city, and Postmaster Alvah H. Clark, of Somerville, attorneys for Gracely, were on their feet and in one voice challenged Mr. Swackhamer to present his proofs. James Meehan, of Somerville, was also for the opposition and he joined in the heated discussion. At last the Judge called the court to order and adjourned the matter for two weeks to allow the additional evidence to be procured if possible.

Westfield Toughs Attack an Old Man.

John Spellman, an old farmer, who lives near Plainfield, was in Westfield Wednesday looking for a blanket which he claims he lost in town Tuesday night. It appears that a gang of boys stopped the old man at the drinking fountain on Broad street about 1 o'clock Wednesday morning and proceeded to have some fun with him. They loosed his horse from the wagon and turned the wagon upside down. Then they scattered the harness over the road and threw the reins over the electric light wires. Finally, when he could stand it no longer, Spellman took the whiffletree from the wagon and scattered his tormentors. Steps are being taken to find out who the youths were, and when identified they will be prosecuted.

Now They'll Toot Louder Than Ever.

The ball given under the auspices of the Plainfield Cornet Band in the Cycle Academy last evening, was a pronounced success, over one hundred couples being in attendance. The several other meetings and attractions in town during the evening made it late when many of the dancers arrived, but when they did get there they jumped in "with both feet" and enjoyed the mazy walz and quadrills furnished by Prof. Guttman's own orchestra. The proceeds from the ball be quite large and the money will be devoted to furnishing new uniforms for the members.

A GENUINE SURPRISE.

MRS. ANTHONY SURPRISED ANOTHER TO BE AMAZED HERSELF.

First of the Happy Events to be Arranged by the '96 Commitee of Arrangements for the Winter Season to Follow.

During the recent State Christian Endeavor convention there was a committee which had the faculty of making everybody happy and comfortable, and that was the '96 committee, and they won praise for their efficient work. This committee did not disband, however, and after the great gathering they met and decided to hold at different times social conferences. The first opportunity offered itself when it was known that Mrs. E. E. Anthony, wife of the genial chairman, would soon celebrate the anniversary of her birthday, which happened to be today. But the fact that the Christian Endeavor Society at Trinity Reformed church celebrated their anniversary this evening it was thought best not to have the two conflict, so the surprise was arranged for last evening. To mystify Mrs. Anthony so that the surprise would be complete, it was arranged that a surprise should be given Miss Elizabeth Dunn, of West Fourth street, who was acquainted with the scheme. The committee and their friends, including Mrs. Anthony, met at the home of Miss Bonnell on East Fifth street, for the purpose of going to Miss Dunn's home in a body. In the meantime Miss Dunn, Miss Fenner, Miss Mabel Winton and Wm. Crawford went to the home of Mrs. Anthony and took possession.

The party then took a trolley car and went to the home of the latter. This was sufficient to give Mrs. Anthony a surpise; with the rest of her friends she had a jolly good laugh over the joke. The evening was then devoted to playing all sorts of games. Two large pumpkins played an important part in the festivities. One was decorated with green and white ribbons, while the other one bore a card which read "Compliments of the Pie-Eating Squad, Assignment Committee." Another amusing feature was a large cake containing a ring, bell, button and penny. The one receiving the ring was to be engaged first and the one receiving the bell was to be the first one married. The one to secure the button, was to sew on his or her buttons and the one to capture the penny was to marry money. Rev. C. E. Herring secured the ring, J. M. Hawkins the bell, Miss Emma Fish the button and Miss Nettie Remsen the penny. Of course, all agreed the above would come true.

At a late hour the guests were served with refreshments, and when they left for their homes they wished their host and hostess many years of of happiness and joy. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Anthony and family; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Martin, Miss Elizobeth Dunn, Mrs. Hawkins, Miss Spangenberg, Miss Pansy Herring, Miss Florence Hawkins, Miss Emma Fish, Miss Mabel Bonnell, Miss Nettie Remsen, Miss Nellie Fenner, J. M. Hawkins, J. G. MacLaughlin, Rev. C. E. Herring, David Runyon, H. Bonnell, William Crawford, H. C. Van-Emberg, of this city, and Miss Mabel Winton, of Hackensack.

ELECTION FORECAST

Latest Estimate on the Probable Result by J. H. Manley.

GIVES MAJOR M'KINLEY 307 ELECTORS

Five States in Doubt, Three of Which, with Forty Votes, Will Likely Be Found in the Republican Column.

New York, Oct. 30.—There were a good many callers this morning at republican headquarters. Committeeman Joseph H. Manley of Maine has given out the following statement: "After a careful revision of all reports received at headquarters from every state I feel perfectly confident that McKinley and Hobart will carry twenty-seven states and receive 307 electoral votes. There are five states yet in doubt, in which the chances are strongly in favor of McKinley carrying three with forty votes and Bryan two with seven votes." The national republican annex, which is composed of leading Afro-Americans of this and other cities, has issued an address to the colored voters of the country. The address says that the colored voters all over the country, with a few exceptions, propose, as never before, to stand solidly for the St. Louis platform and by the standard-bearers of the republican party, William McKinley and Garret A. Hobart. Senator Quay expects to leave this city for Washington this afternoon and will proceed to his home in Beaver, Pa., where he will vote on election day. He will receive the returns at his residence Tuesday night. Executive committeeman N. B. Scott has returned to his desk at headquarters, after an absence of a few days in Virginia. "We have the votes of old Virginia," he said, "to carry the state beyond doubt, and the only trouble in the old dominion is their methods of preventing the honest expression of the voters at the polls."

GREAT DAYS FOR CANTON.

Visitors Increase in Number as the Campaign Draws Near the Close.

Canton, O., Oct. 30.—Only one delegation is scheduled to visit Major McKinley to-day, the Republican College League clubs, nevertheless the nominee does not expect much rest until after next Monday as many pilgrims arrive without announcing their coming. To-morrow promises to the biggest day of the campaign, and residents are preparing to entertain many thousands of visitors. Major McKinley's residence is already in wire connection with the telegraph lines, but additional wires will be strung to-morrow over which the result of the vote will be announced next Tuesday night. Yesterday the delegations were small but sufficiently numerous. The approach of the election seems at last to have an effect upon the size of the delegations. There was a good deal of variety, too, about the visitors. Four states were represented and one delegation was composed of women who came on stylish brakes and in carriages, bearing armfuls of flowers. The most striking and handsomely uniformed marching organization yet seen here, the C. L. Kurtz club of Columbus, was among Major McKinley's visitors yesterday afternoon. C. L. Kurtz, the chairman of the republican state executive committee, was handsomely complimented by Major McKinley in his speech and the pleasant words he uttered were greeted with storms of cheers. The largest delegation of the day came from Hancock and Seneca counties, O. There were nearly a thousand persons in it and it was organized by H. R. Crouse, editor of the Findlay Republican. The Hancock county callers were presented by H. C. McConnica, in a very happy speech, and those from Seneca county with equal felicity by Dr. A. D. Dickey. Major McKinley was heartily cheered by the delegation. The next delegation was from Columbus and counties in the great coal mining region of Ohio, the Hocking valley. The C. L. Kurtz club of Columbus, with the Seventeenth Regiment band, U. S. A., led the delegations and were warmly applauded all along the line of march. Judge L. D. Haggarty presented the Columbus men and F. S. Purcell of Logan and D. P. C. Taylor of Vinton the visitors from the other counties in the Hocking valley. A delegation from Wakeman, Huron county, Ohio, marched up at the same time and was introduced to Major McKinley by its spokesman. The next callers were a group of flower-laden young women from the Whitman-Barnes company of Akron, Ohio. Major McKinley shook hands with each of the ladies, but made no speech. A delegation from Ashland county, Ohio, were the next callers. They numbered 125 and were presented by T. C. Carey. Major McKinley addressed them briefly. The major's luncheon was interrupted at 3 o'clock by the arrival of the last delegation of the day, an enthusiastic body of 500 voters from Fulton and Williams counties, Ohio, and a number of republicans from northeastern Indiana. J. B. Templeton of Swanton introduced the Ohio visitors, and G. C. Venier of Dekalb county, Ind., spoke for the callers from that state. This delegation was composed of farmers, mechanics, merchants, laboring and professional men. They gave the candidate a rousing reception when he appeared on the porch. Major McKinley spoke briefly of the issues of the campaign, urging the necessity of sound money and a protective tariff, and the maintenance of law and order. At the conclusion of his remarks Major McKinley shook hands with each of his visitors.

TROUBLED WITH INSOMNIA.

A Drummer Tells of a Bad Case—Why He Quit the Farm.

"Was I ever troubled with insomnia?" exclaimed the Chicago drummer, in reply to the question of an acquaintance, relates the Detroit Free Press. "Only one season, when I was about 18 years old, but that was enough. Don't care for any more of it in mine, thank you."

"Do you mean to assert that you had the insomnia at the early age of 18?" demanded the other.

"Didn't assert anything of the kind. I said I was troubled with insomnia, not that I had it. The party who had it was an old farmer for whom I was working at that time, and he had the queerest and also the most persistent and malignant case of it I ever heard of. Couldn't sleep mornings after four o'clock, and he used to get out under my window and begin splitting wood and singing like a whole camp meeting.

"No use trying to sleep after that, so I used to take the hint and get up and go to work.

"Then evenings his insomnia would come on again so he couldn't get to sleep, and to kill time he would take a lantern and go out to the barn and thrash grain or husk corn until about midnight, and of course I was expected to go along and keep my end up.

"Well, things kept on in this way until that insomnia of his came plaguey near wrecking my constitution, and then I collected my back pay and quit. That was my last experience on a farm. Keeping awake 19 hours a day, not to mention the hard work, was a trifle more than I could stand, so I decided to get out and go into some business where I wouldn't have to hang around the premises and help sit up nights with my employer's insomnia, in case he happened to have it. That's why I like traveling—my boss can have insomnia, or fits, or anything he likes, and I won't know a thing about it until I come to draw my month's salary."

KIPLING'S INK SLINGING.

One Peculiarity of the Great Story Writer While at Work.

There is one peculiarity of Kipling's work, says a writer in McClure's Magazine, which I really must mention—namely, the amount of ink he used to throw about. In the heat of summer, white cotton trousers and a thin vest constituted his office attire, and by the day's end he was spotted all over like a Dalmation dog. He had a habit of dipping his pen frequently and deep into the inkpot, and as all his movements were abrupt, almost jerky, the ink used to fly. When he darted into my room, as he used to do about one thing or another in connection with the contents of the paper a dozen times in the morning, I had to shout to him to "stand off;" otherwise, as I knew by experience, the abrupt halt he would make and the flourish with which he placed the proof in his hand before me, would send the penful of ink—he always had a full pen in his hand—flying over me. Driving or sometimes walking home to breakfast in his light attire plentifully besprinkled with ink, his spectacled face peeping out under an enormous mushroom-shaped pith hat, Kipling was a quaint-looking object. That was in hot weather, when Lahore lay blistering month after month under the sun, and every white woman and half of the white men had fled to cooler altitudes in the Himalayas, and only those men were left who, like Kipling and myself, had to stay. So it mattered little in what costume we went to and from the office. In the winter, when "society" had returned to Lahore, Kipling was rather scrupulous in the matter of dress, but his lavishness in the matter of ink changed not with the seasons.

MARVELOUS CURE OF LOCKJAW.

Recovery of a Man Who Has Suffered for Twenty-Five Years.

A cure that borders on the miraculous has been effected in the case of William White, a well-known carpenter of this city, who had suffered from lockjaw for almost a quarter of a century, says the McKeesport (Pa.) Times. Mr. White recently arrived home from the hospital and the improvement in his condition was simply wonderful.

When a boy of five years Mr. White was attacked by fever. The disease settled in his jaws and locked them tight. For 20 years he had been unable to eat anything except food which had been especially prepared for him and which he forced into his mouth through an opening made by the extraction of several teeth. While he could converse in a way with his friends it was an extremely difficult matter to understand him. After consulting with numerous specialists, he left several weeks ago for Chicago, where he was treated by a noted physician with great success.

Mr. White was kept on the operating table for eight consecutive hours, during which time an incision was made in his cheek and the jaw bones sawed apart. The bones had become jointed and had grown together during the progress of the fever. Mr. White then gave up a strip of skin from his breast which was pasted over the parts that had been operated upon. He is now able to use his jaws and his teeth as well as any person who has never had the misfortune to go through such a siege.

Up-to-Date Japan.

Parties who reside in Japan wishing to obtain sawmill machinery, with all the modern appliances and improvements for skillfully sawing lumber, sent word recently to Menominee, Mich., through the Japanese consul at Tacoma, Wash., asking the works to make bids at their regular rates. The bill calls for a full equipment. The letter laid great stress on the fact that they wanted labor-saving machinery of the very best quality. The natives are the only parties interested, and they are pushing the matter with vigor. They want a big bandmill, with its accompanying machinery.

THE NAME MEETING-HOUSE.

Its Probable Origin—Some Interesting Historical Data.

Church, as a name for a house of worship, is now a more dignified word than meeting-house. Its associations are solemn and sacred, while those of meeting-house are social and to some minds almost ludicrous. Witness Lowell's lines

"When I've once made up my mind no meeting-house is sotter."

But in the beginning it was not so. The name meeting-house was probably suggested to the Puritans by a text familiar to them but forgotten by many of their descendants.

The "Tent of Meeting," which in the revised version has been substituted for "Tabernacle of the Congregation," is a change for the better, and had been proposed long before by Bishop Patrick. It is an exact equivalent of meeting-house in the eyes of tent-dwellers.

No doubt it was so in the view of the pilgrims, who knew a Scriptural reason for the name. This tent was so called, not as the place where man met with man, but as the spot where the sacred historian declares that God first met with Moses alone, and then with the people of Israel. It was the door of this tent (the only house of tent-dwellers) of meeting, or meeting-house, concerning which the Divine declaration is made in Exodus 25:22: "There I will meet with thee, and I will commune with thee . . . of all things which I will give thee in commandment," and also in Exodus 29:43: "There (in the meeting-house) I will meet with the children of Israel."

The earliest meetings of the Pilgrim fathers in England were at the house of Elder Robinson, and were as far as possible secret in order to avoid persecutors. They never built a house of worship in England, and as has been shown by the painstaking researches of George Sumner, they never had one in Holland. Their meetings there, if not in a hired hall, were in the house of the same Robinson, "which was large and the scene of the farewell feast prepared for the emigrating Pilgrims by those who remained in Leyden." (Sumner, p. 51.)

The earliest occurrence of the word meeting-house that has met the eye of the writer is in Gov. Bradford's "History of the Plimouth (sic) Plantation," so strangely lost and yet more strangely found. Regarding the earliest religious building in Puritan America the governor's words are these: "This summer (1622) they (the men of Plymouth) built a fort both strong and comly (sic) which served them also for a meeting-house and was fitted accordingly for that use."—(P. 126.)

It may be that they had so named the dwelling of their elder in Leyden, but no proof of such a naming has come to light. If they really began in Holland to speak of their "meeting-house," their spirituality and their fondness for Scriptural allusions indicate that, in adopting the term, their thoughts were not so much on its human as its Divine significance; meaning communion, to be sure, with those who walked to the house of God in company, but above all meeting God where He had promised to met His people.

The first of all known meeting-houses was described within five years of its erection by the earliest visitor from New York. In 1627 De Rasieres wrote: "Their Plymouth fort on the (Burial) hill is a large square house made of thick sawn planks, with six cannons on its roof. The lower part they use for their church. They assemble by beat of drum, each with his firelock, in front of the captain's door, the preacher with his cloak on, the governor in a long robe. They march three abreast."

Quakers call their places of worship meeting-houses, but their founder, Fox, was not born till two years after the name had been given in Plymouth. All dissenting churches are styled meeting-houses by English churchmen, but they could not have been so styled before the name had been adopted by Pilgrims, inasmuch as no English meeting-house has been found to antedate that of 1622 in Plymouth.

In connection with that weak beginning the name is pathetic; it becomes sublime when we behold it associated with Moath, that glorified spot to which the Israelites were bidden to come and meet their God.—Youth's Companion.

COCKRAN INTERRUPTED.

Considerable Disorder During His Speech at Norfolk, Va.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 30.—Hon. Bourke Cockran of New York spoke at Armory hall in this city yesterday afternoon. An audience of 4,000 persons greeted him. He arose amid applause and began his remarks. Some one yelled "Rats!" and the disorder began. There was no violence, but there were cheers for Bryan and hisses for the speaker. "Have you read the Virginian?" was hurled at him from a hundred throats. "How about unreconciled slave holders?" was also heard amid cheers for Bryan. Mr. Cockran replied: "I have read the article in the Virginian, purporting to show what I said in Madison Square garden. I never said it. That paper is the cause of this display of ruffianism. It publishes an untruth by not publishing all the truth. I did make remarks similar to those charged to me, but I also paid sincere tribute to the chivalry, bravery and loyalty to the men of the south and of the courage and fidelity of her women as exemplified in Mrs. Jefferson Davis." It was at this point the greatest disorder occurred. Mayor Mayo, who was present, personally made an appeal for order, and after that there was no further disturbance.

CONQUEST OF THE SOUDAN.

British Egyptian-Expedition Preparing for Further Advancement.

Paris, Oct. 30.—A dispatch from Cairo says that the commander of Egyptian forces, Sir Herbert Kitchener, intends to demand an addition of £64,000 to the military estimates, which already exceed the amount permitted by the international convention of 1885. The object in asking for more money is said to be the raising of the effective force of the Egptian army to 15,000 men and the continuance of the conquest of the Soudan. It is further stated that the rail road from Dongola to Merur will be completed in a few months, that four months' provisions for an army of 15,000 men will be stored there, and that the advance on Berber and Khartum will recommence probably in March next. France and Russia will protest against the expedition and oppose the increase in the effective strength of the Egyptian army. The Eclair expresses itself in favor of granting Germany preferential tariffs in Tunis, provided the former co-operates with France in the settlement of the Egyptian question.

Time To Announce Her Intention.

London, Oct. 30.—Lord Charles Beresford declares that the time has arrived for England boldly to announce her intention to annex Egypt. The Morning Post, conservative, applauds this policy and says that the opposition to it in Europe would be purely platonic. The Graphic, on the other hand, declares: "We have pledged ourselves to evacuate Egypt, and the course Lord Charles Beresford advocates would be an act of perfidity."

Riot Against Health Measures.

Bombay, Oct. 30.—The measures taken by the health authorities to prevent the spread of the bubonic plague has excited much indignation among the natives. As a protest against the regulation compelling the isolation of sufferers from the disease, a mob of three thousand natives yesterday made an attack upon the hospital here for infectious diseases. They did considerable damage to the building before the police succeeded in dispersing them.

Rewarded for Gallantry in the Late War.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The war department has just awarded a medal of honor to James M. Burns, late sergeant, Company B, First West Virginia volunteers, for gallant conduct at the battle of Newmarket, Va., June 15, 1864. In this engagement Burns, under a heavy fire of musketry from the enemy, voluntarily assisted a wounded comrade from the field, saving him from capture.

Boston City Bonds.

Boston, Oct. 30.—City Treasurer Turner yesterday opened bids for the $1,000,000 city of Boston 4-per cent. forty-year registered rapid transit bonds, secured by sinking fund. All the bids were rejected. The highest of five bids received was 105.29 for the whole.

Death of William A. Harris.

Providence, Oct. 30.—William A. Harris, known all over the United States as the manufacturer of the Harris-Corliss engine, died at the residence of his son, Fred Harris, on Harnes street, yesterday, in the 62d year of his age. Death was due to cancer in stomach.

Wilbur F. Porter Ill.

Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Wilbur F. Porter, democratic candidate for governor, is ill at his home here, having broken down on his speech making tour, and has cancelled all his engagements for the remainder of the campaign.

Matthews Defeats Abbott.

Buffalo, Oct. 30.—At the Empire Athletic club last night "Billy" Moore of Syracuse knocked out "Kid" Kerwin of Toledo in the third round. Matty Matthews of New York defeated Stanton Abbott of London in seven rounds.

Death of a Well-Known Physician.

A NEW DISCOVERY BY THE SHAKERS

For more than a hundred years the Mount Lebanon Shakers have studied the cultivation of medicinal plants and sought to extract from them their healing essences. Their labor has not been spent in vain. They have made a discovery that will prove a blessing to mankind. It consists of a cordial that causes immediate relief in cases of indigestion. The importance of this discovery will be apparent when we realize that nearly nine-tenths of suffering are caused by dyspepsia or indigestion. Nearly every person you meet has this digestive trouble in some of its varied forms—sick headache, distress after eating, pain and fullness in the chest after eating, palpitation of the heart, etc., are but symptoms of indigestion. To relieve these sufferings has been the study of the Shakers, and they have succeeded. The reason the Shaker Digestive Cordial has such an immediate and salutary effect is that it causes the food eaten to be digested, for it is undigested food that causes the distress. The Cordial causes the food to be digested before there is time for it to ferment and sour on the stomach. When the food is so digested it gives strength and vigor to the feeble body, makes one feel bright and cheerful, and makes one gain in flesh.

The Digestial Cordial is so prompt in its action that the very first dose will have a perceptibly favorable result. It gives immediate relief.

Every druggist has been sent a supply of our handsome Donkey Puzzle Books, and a copy may be had for the asking. It tells all about the Cordial as well as Laxol, the new castor oil.

Try a twenty-five cent bottle of Digestive Cordial and see what it will do for you.

HUSBAND SUSPECTED

Believed by Norristown Police That Kaiser Killed His Wife.

HIGHWAYMEN STORY DISCREDITED

The Missing Jewelry Found Hidden Near the Scene of the Tragedy—An Insurance Policy One Cause for Suspicion.

Norristown, Pa., Oct. 30.—The alleged murder of Mrs. Emma Kaiser, wife of Charles O. Kaiser, and his arrest for the crime, after his story of a hold up and the killing of his wife by bandits, which, if he really concocted it, would have served as a remarkable plot for a novel, has aroused intense interest here and, in fact, throughout Montgomery county. There are a few who still believe that Kaiser told the truth, and his actions in standing in the roadway and shouting for help with the dead body of his wife in the carriage standing near him seemed to confirm his story, especially when it is remembered that he drove from the place of the alleged hold-up with the corpse of his wife leaning upon his shoulder and her blood streaming down his clothes. His twice fainting in Dr. Mann's office is also adduced as evidence of his innocence, although others say that such a state of collapse might have been caused by fear of the discovery of his crime. The police do not believe his story. They made a thorough search with the result that they found secreted behind a fence, near the scene of the crime, the alleged stolen articles—a man's gold watch and a purse with five dollars in it, and also a revolver with two chambers empty. It is also learned that the couple carried a policy of $10,000 jointly on their lives, that each was the beneficiary of the other, and that each had made a will making the other sole executor and legatee. The police authorities claim to have a clear circumstantial case against Kaiser and say that he is already an embezzler, being a fugitive from justice at Harrisburg, where a warrant exists for his arrest on that charge.

Consul Lee's Vacation.

Washington, Oct. 30.—It is stated authoritatively at the state department that Consul-General Lee's return to this country at this time is without any other international significance than that the state of affairs in Havana just now is so satisfactory that his presence there is not urgently required. Gen. Lee, officials declare, has merely seized the opportunity to visit his family, as well as to see his son, who is a cadet at West Point, he will and possibly take his family back to Cuba with him next month.

Deck Load of Cattle Swept Overboard.

North Sydney, C. B., Oct. 30.—The steamship Durham City, from Montreal to Havre, has arrived here with the loss of that part of her deck load of cattle extending from midships aft. Her captain reports that on Sunday morning last, while off Anticosti, the steamer was struck by a very heavy sea and the volume of water she shipped abaft of her funnels carried away the cattle penned on the deck in that portion of the vessel, including cattle stalls, stanchions and everything moveable.

Albany's Centennial.

Albany, Oct. 30.—Gov. Morton has appointed William Jay of New York city, William Bayard Van Rensselaer and state senator Myer Nussbaum of Albany and Hon. James M. E. O'Grady of Rochester, as members of the commission to arrange a suitable commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the establishment of Albany as the capital and legislative seat of the state. The legislature appropriated $2,500, and authorized the city to expend $5,000 for the purpose.

UNDERGROUND WIRES.

It is not unlikely that in the near future an attempt will be made by city officials to have all electric, telephone and telegraph wires removed from the high poles where they are now strung, to subways built under the ground. It is a fact that the streets are litterly overhung with a network of all sorts of wires and in the event of a large fire this condition might prove a disastrous interference with the work of the fire department. And beyond that there is great danger of human life should the uninsulated wires become crossed with those carrying currents of death dealing volts. The preliminary expense of making such a change would be quite heavy, no doubt, but when once made, the cost of repair would be comparatively light to the corporations owning the wires, and in the end it would be well worth the expense.

HERMAN KELLER'S SIDE.

Says the Trouble Between He and His Uncle Was Simply a Partition Suit.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I read an article in The News' Friday's issue, entitled "Christian Keller Wins His Suit." It is of no consequence to me whether said article was written by Christian Keller or by some attorney employed by him, but I thought it only fair that the public should know that the suit about which so much was said was simply an ordinary partition suit for the purpose of dividing up the lands of the heirs of Madeline Keller, deceased, (of whom I am one) and Christian Keller who owned the other half interest. I, and my brother and father and sisters, had been trying for a number of years to get an amicable division of the property with Christian Keller, and went to our lawyer, W. R. Codington, to have the papers drawn, but then found another obstacle in the way, viz.: one of the heirs of Madeline Keller being a minor could not legally execute the deed. We then instructed our counsel to proceed with the partition suit and get the desired result through a court of equity, which was done; and the court has granted a decree dividing the property between Christian Keller, who owned one-half, and the heirs of my mother, who at the time of her death owned the other half. The result was very satisfactory to me, my brother, sister and father, and the decree was granted without our counsel, Mr. Codington, being obliged to put a single witness on the stand, while Christian Keller called numerous witnesses to prove that my mother did not die intestate, but that she left a will; in this attempt, however, Christian Keller made a complete failure. If the alleged will had been established I would have been out in the cold. As to the exchanging of releases between Christian Keller and the heirs of Madeline Keller, this our counsel advised would be a good thing for us as it would perfect our title. We feel pleased with the result of the suit, grateful to our counsel, and thankful that we live within the jurisdiction of "Jersey Justice."

Respectfully,

Herman Keller.

DEMOCRATIC MEETING.

This, he said, was anarchy, for anarchy is to resist the law of the people. The Republicans were a party of anarchists, a party of nihilists, and not the Democrats, because they were trying to resist the wish of the people. He referred to the fact that the makers of the Chicago platform were called those same names and how Fowler and Sherman had applied like epithets to the people, the farmers, the workingmen and the noble women of Ohio.

The gold standard was his next topic and he asked if it had been satisfactory. He spoke of the recent bond issue and declared that the Wilson bill was not to blame but that no matter whether protective tariff or tariff for revenue only prevailed, the hard times would continue until the silver was raised to its old place.

He then asked if it would be well to sustain trusts. The workingmen are honest, he continued, and will not do anything unjust but they will require that capital be put at its cost value and not a ficticious value and that there be free competition. He refered to the coal and oil trade and how they were in the hands of trusts that raised the price far above the real worth.

He turned his attention next to the history of money in the United States. The so-called crime of '73, was, he said, committed at the last moment when in the bill under consideration the word silver was erased at the last moment thus demonitizing it. It was passed he said, unbeknown to anyone; it was the work of trusts that wished to have their stock payable only in gold. Then he told how many committees appeared before Congress many times and begged that silver be again placed on a party with gold. The results of the crime were very apparent, he said, right here in Plainfield where real estate had fallen 50 per cent in value. The value of labor has sunk and manhood has sunk.

Chairman Lyman then read a letter stating that Senator Stewart could not come but that Hon. Henry Frank, of Wisconsin, had been sent. Mr. Frank was next introduced.

He too spoke of the importance of the present issue. Heretofore, he said, the issue of a campaign had little interested the people as it was a mere struggle between two handfuls of men scrambling for office. He was once, he declared, a strong Republican, but he lost interest in these struggles for supremacy. He touched on the fight in '92 and said that when the Democracy won, Cleveland hypnotized it so that it became Clevelandism and he dictated a form of tariff that was almost as bad as the McKinley tariff. The people had grown disgusted, he declared, with the issues when this new issue arose and astonished even the politicians themselves.

He spoke very highly of the great character of Bryan and his wonderful achievements. When a man, he said, has a noble cause he does not get angry and call names, the consciousness of right gives him more strength. When the Republican party began to call names, he continued, it proved that they had no argument. Their first reason for calling names was because his party, he said, supported a law passed by the two houses and signed by the President, the income tax bill. No man can say it is not right, he continued, as it is not against the constitution or any previous decision of the Suppreme Court.

To show the power of monopolies and trusts, he went on, there entered into the Supreme Court that caused it to change its decision and delared the law illegal. If the Republicans are right in calling the Democrats anarchists, then the three judges in the Supreme Court are anarchists also, as they said it was an unjust decision.

"The Supreme Court," he declared, "is not a legislative body to make laws, it is a judicial body to say whether the laws are right and conform with the constitution. It cannot say that once having rendered a decision it cannot change it; it is not infallible. If Bryan and the Democratic party are anarchists, then Lincoln and the Republican party of 1860 were also, as they declared that the decision of the Supreme Court in the Dread Scott fugitive slave law was unjust; and when the personal of the Supreme Court was changed, the decisision was reversed." He then went on to say that Democracy would use all its constitutional power, but that was all, to change the decision against the income tax bill.

He then brought up arguments to support the claim that more money was needed. Everything, he said, is not money although it may represent it but in the end it must be redeemed. They say, he continued, that 95 per cent of the business in the country is done on eredit, and that there is not enough real money to redeem the credit and thus comes the failures. If a country's credit and obligations are greater than its money, he remarked, then that country may be reduced to bankruptcy; there must be enough real constitutional money to redeam the representative money.

"Up to 1890," he said "the government said they could pay off their obligations in silver or gold. Then Harrison and his secretary of the treasury, aided by some powerful influence of Wall street, thought it would be dangerous to pay out anything but gold for greenbacks. The secret of panics and disasters is there!" He referred to the Matthews resolution which, he says, states that obligations shall be paid in silver dollars.

The fifty cent dollar is the most gigantic of all the campain lies, he remarked. They have a 50 cent dollar already but it will buy a hundred cents of goods. They say that in cases of free silver, prices will go up. Then, he argued, gold is an appreciating dollar. Bi-metallism means that the two dollars go side by side.

The gold is coming back to this country, he continued, but the gold reserve in the treasury is growing less. The money is being hoarded by the Wall street bloated millioniares to pay for a new issue of bonds that is bound to come if McKinley is elected. He closed with a vigorous arraingement of the gold men and an appeal for Bryan.

Mr. Baldwin, of Connecticut, spoke for a few minutes on the issues of the day and under his earnest remarks the excitement of his audience rose rapidly. The Republican leaders were modern pirates he declared and were in league with the Wall street financiers. During the last Republican administration from 1880 to 1892, he said, the debts had increased three times as fast as the wealth and six times as fast the population. Was this prosperity, he asked.

After more remarks on a similar vein, he closed and the audience quickly dispersed, and so ended the Democratic campaign in Plainfield.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

The beautiful Democratic flag, bearing the portraits of Bryan and Sewell was unfurled to the breeze yesterday and many persons driving through town stopped to admire the life-like portraits.

Jonn Thumb, of Martinville, who by the way does not claim any relationship to the late "Tom" Thumb, brought to Cole's coal office yesterday a black rdish, which was ten inches long, measured fifteen inches in circumference and weighed five pounds.

Isaac J. Stites went over to Perth Amboy yesterday to attend a convention of the Epworth League of which he is an interested member.

A little girl living in the western end of the town while playing around a bonfire yesterday afternoon her apron caught on fire and in an instant she was enveloped in flames. By the presence of mind of some of her companions she was thrown to the ground and rolled about until the fire was extinguished.

Miss Mabel Walker is anticipating a pleasant trip to New Orleans. She will leave early next week and will spend a few weeks there visiting relatives.

Postmaster Peter C. Staats was able to go out yesterday for a short walk, but he has not yet been able to break off the attack of chills. He has a chill every alternate day, and his appetite seems to have failed him entirely.

A novel entertainment in the shape of a "Corn husking bee and barn dance" was held in the barn on the Ryder property, on Prospect avenue, last evening and it was a most enjoyable affair. Prof. O'Reilly, of Plainfield, furnished the music for dancing. The dance was given under the auspices of the Dunellen Athletic Association, of which George Richardson is the president.

A family named Hardingham from Plainfield will next week move into Mrs. W. H. Taylor's house on Grove street.

Advices from the party of hunters who are annihilating much of the game in the wilds of Pennsylvania, state that the gunners are meeting with remarkably good luck. Wm. H. Carman, one of the number is expected home this evening.

A private loop was run into the new Town Hall, yesterday, where an operator will be on duty all of election night getting the returns direct from the Western Union Circuit. The wire was put in by the Republicans at a cost of $25.

S. C. Dickson has returned from a trip to Denver, Colo.

Vydel Pyguette a Phillipine Islander, and a sailor by occupation, climbed the pole supporting the Democratic banner yesterday and adjusted the pulleys and guy ropes. He went up the forty foot pole like a monkey.

Patrick McMahon has been engaged to drive for and look after Adam Dealaman's live stock.

Collector George W. Day is calling the tax payers to time. They have yet, however, until the 20th of December in which to pay their taxes without additional costs and interest.

FANWOOD.

If Myron Young, of the Borough of Fanwood, lives till next Tuesday he will go to the polls and vote for McKinley and Hobart, and score his eighteenth Presidential vote, the first of which was given for John Quincy Adams in 1828 in opposition to the first election of Andrew Jackson. The Adams party was then known as the National Republican, and the eighteen votes have all been cast for Whig or Republican candidates. Mr. Young was born in Columbia county, N. Y., in 1806, but for nearly thirty years has been a resident of New Jersey, and has on very rare occasions been prevented by sickness from attending to his usual avocations. Much is said about the good old honest elections of the early days of the republic and the corrupt and dishonest ones of the present, but Mr. Young was solicited and offered money to work and vote for Jackson on the occasion above mentioned, showing that the politicians of today do not differ materially from those of the past.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

Peter McDonough, of West Third street, Plainfield, was hastily summoned to Scotch Plains yesterday afternoon to be at the bedside of his father, Wm. McDonough, aged sixty-nine years, who is very low with pleurisy and pneumonia.

WASHINGTONVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mobus, of Washingtonville, who were married last Thursday, were given a reception last evening by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wycoff, of Washingtonville. There was a large number of relatives and friends present who extended congratulations to the bride and groom. Music for dancing was furnished by Prof. Wendell, of Bound Brook. At midnight a repast was served. The present received by Mr. and Mrs. Mobus were elegant and costly.

MOUNT BETHEL.

A Republican mass meeting will be held at Mount Bethel Hall, Mount Bethel, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. There will be speeches by Lewis H. Schenck, of North Branch, and the regular nominees of the tickets. A big time is expected.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The condition of Edward Maynard, of North avenue, remains about the same.

Miss Carrie Combs, of Linden avenue, has returned from a visit out of town.

Mrs. Warren Brown, of Westfield, was the guest of friends in town yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kreuger, of West Fourth street, have moved to Elizabeth.

W. W. Coriell, of West Front street, is suffering with a severe attack of rheumatism.

Mrs. A. J. Moore, of Westervelt avenue, is very much improved from her severe illness.

Mrs. Martin, a former resident of Plainfield, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Tier, of Bank place.

Mrs. J. R. Vanderhoff, of East Front street, has purchased a new wheel and is learning to ride.

Ex-Marshal J. W. Van Horn, of the borough, is much improved from a severe attack of rheumatism.

Miss Libbie Joseph, of Manning avenue, entertained a small company of friends at her home last evening.

Miss Jeannett Gedaliens, a converted Jewess, of New York, is expected to speak at Warren Chapel this evening.

A few friends from out of town were entertained last evening by Miss Maude VanDyke, of East Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Barkalew, of Lincoln place, North Plainfield, are spending the day with friends in Newark.

Clifford Braider has resigned his position at Randolph's pharmacy, and has entered the Plainfield Business college.

A young son of milkman John Barrett, of Green Brook, is confined to the house suffering from an attack of rheumatism.

Rev. William J. Leonard, formerly editor of the Central New Jersey Times, returned home to Bolton, Mass., yesterday.

Miss Belle Vail and Miss Kate Randolph, of Church street, have returned home after visiting with Amos Vail, of Dunellen.

Mrs. Cochran, of Lexington, Va., has returned home after an enjoyable visit with her daughter, Mrs. M. F. Elderton, of East Front street.

Miss Grace Lyons and her brother, Charles Lyons, of East Orange, are visiting their uncle and aunt Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Vanderhoff, of East Front street.

W. P. Evans, of Elizabeth, has accepted a position with the Citizens Mutual Life Insurance Company here, and is stopping with J. B. Martin on Manson place.

John Waters, formerly in the employ of J. W. Reinhart, of Netherwood, and now of Boston, was in town yesterday after a two years absence in Boston.

Little Arthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Martin, of Park Place, in the borough, leaned his face up against a hot smoothing iron yesterday, while his mother was ironing, and burned his face to a blister which will probably scar his face. The little fellow, however, is very patient with the painful burn.

The Darlington, Wis., Journal says editorially of a popular patent medicine: "We know from experience that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is all that is claimed for it, as on two occasions it stopped excruciating pains and possibly saved us from an untimely grave. We would not rest easy over night without it in the house." This remedy undoubtably saves more pain and suffering than any other medicine in the world. Every family should keep it in the house, for it is sure to be needed sooner or later. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

AN ANTI-SMOKER'S VIEWS.

He Writes of the Smudge Occasioned by Bonfires.

Plainfield seems to be taking a great smoke just now to the discomfort of a multitude of citizens who prefer pure air both inside and outside their dwellings.

To a visitor like myself on pleasure bent, the necessity of inhaling an atmosphere laden with the fumes of burning leaves robs one's perambulations of much of their enjoyment, to say nothing of having one's eyes blinded to many of the beauties of the landscape. Even when I got so far away from the nuisance as the heights about the Mountain Inn, the city from that attitude was seen to be enveloped in a cloud of smoke that concealed half its charms.

I understand that you have a Town Improvement Association which is seeking to solve the problem of removing the leaves in a more rational and Christian way. Cannot the people be induced to co-operate with the association in its most praiseworthy undertaking. Anti Smoke.

A Pleasing Entertainment.

The entertainment given in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church last evening, under the auspices of the Dorcas Circle, King's Daughters, was successful. The chapel was filled with friends of the circle and an excellent programme of merit was rendered. It included vocal selections by the Midmer Glee Club, recitations by Mrs. Smith, violin solos by P. Ludwig Conde, vocal solos by E. E. Runyon, Mrs. E. L. Douglass and Mr. Lewis, and instrumental solos by Miss Lavinia French. Frank J. Smith and Charles L. Lewis presided at the piano. The work of the glee club was especially noteworthy, and in fact the whole programme won hearty commendation.

Dismissed the Complaint.

The case of Miss Victoria Municke, New York, against Valante Gilanski, charged with criminal assault, was brought before Justice Newcorn yesterday afternoon for examination. Lawyer McClure appeared on behalf of the defendant and Lawyer Angleman represented the plaintiff. After a thorough examination Justice Newcorn dismissed the complainant, there not being sufficient evidence to hold the defendant.

MYSTERY, MUSIC AND MIRTH.

The Three Entertaining Qualities of the Star Course Affair.

Mysterious working, recitations and instrumental music made up a very enjoyable programme at the second entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course, last evening. The audience was large and very enthusiastic, and called back the different entertainers for many encores. The Park Avenue Orchestra played with its usual excellence, and its selections were well chosen. A string quartette, composed of members of the orchestra, gave several selections and was well received. The orchestra was composed of Joseph Satteis and Martin Korf, first violins; Dr. W. F. Gaston and T. Gaub, second violins; Geo. V. W. Moy, viola; Dr. J. F. Berg, violincello; C. R. Wallander, first cornet; G. T. Dunham, trombone; Andrew G. Carpenter, pianist.

Miss Edith Norton, the reader, was delightful. Her selections were both humorous and pathetic, and she seemed equally at home with either. Her description of what the little boy saw after eating mince pie before going to bed was particularly pleasing.

The Japanese wonder worker, Soto Sunetaro, fairly captured the audience. He literally captured one of them, a young man, whom he beguiled on to the stage, and there performed some remarkable things with him. All of his tricks were good, and he received much applause from his delighted audience.

Concerning Madison Avenue Extension.

Chairman J. Fred MacDonald and Messrs Edward C. Mulford and William Sandford, constituting the Board of Commissioners appointed to assess benefits and damages occasioned by the proposed Madison avenue extension, met in the council chamber last evening. Only three persons, Messrs. Samuel Drier, Henry Piker and ——— Stimpson were present to complain against what they termed an inequitable assesment. After consulting the map of the proposed widening and extension, at some length, the Board adjourned until Thursday evening Nov. 12th, at eight o'clock.

—Tomorrow will be flag day, and R. C. Rand has muslin flags from 3 inches to 5½ feet long.

—Justice Mosher has issueed a summons in the case of Griffen against Delaney, returnable November 6th.

—S. D. Frazee furnished the music for a dance in Red Men's Hall, at High Bridge, on Wednesday evening, and some eight couples danced to his music.

SULTAN IN DANGER

Powers Again Discussing the Question of Deposing Him.

RENEWAL OF MASSACRES FEARED

The Excuse for the Forced Levy To Arm Imperial Troops Looked Upon as an Invitation to Mussulmans To Begin the Murder of Chrisrians.

London, Oct. 30.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs that the situation in that city is causing the gravest anxiety in diplomatic circles, which are again discussing the question of the deposition of the sultan. The statement of the porte that no forced levy has been made to procure money with which to buy arms, and that the irade which was construed to be an order for such a levy was merely an appeal to Turkish subjects to voluntarily contribute to a fund that was found necessary to raise for the armament and equipment of the imperial troops is recognized as a thinly veiled invitation to Mussulmans to prepare to attack Christians. This cannot fail to bring about massacres in the provinces, even if the vigilance of the guardships is able to prevent the killing of Christians in Constantinople. The correspondent adds that after a meeting held on Monday the diplomats telegraphed to their respective governments asking for instructions with a view to imminent happenings. The Sheik-ul-Islam, the head of the Mohammedan faith, through whom alone can the sultan be legally deposed, remains at the Yildiz Kiosk, the sultan's residence, nominally as a guest of his majesty, but really as a prisoner.

SIX MINERS PERISH.

Result of the Mine Explosion Near Wilkesbarre.

Wilkesbarre, Oct. 30.—By yesterday afternoon's gas explosion in No. 3 shaft of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal company six men were killed and two injured. The dead are: Wm. R. Jones fire boss (had been in the employ of the company for the past twenty-five years; (John W. Josephs (had been assistant mine foreman for the past twelve years); Thomas Owens, Wm. Lacey, contractor; James Herring and Joseph Worth. When the explosion occurred Wm. Lacey was at work in a rock tunnel about a mile from the foot of the shaft with thirteen men. Immediately after the explosion a rescuing gang was organized by fire boss Wm. R. Jones and assistant foreman John W. Josephs. The men proceeded down the shaft, Jones and Josephs being far in advance When about one mile from the foot of the shaft they stumbled over the bodies of Contractor Lacey, Owens, Herring and Worth. At this point Jones and Josephs were overcome by black damp and fell dead in their tracks. The other rescuers were forced to beat a hasty retreat bringing the bodies of Jones and Josephs with them. A few hours later the air current was partly restored and the men were able to push their way into the tunnel and at 8:30 last night signalled that they had recovered the bodies of the four rock miners. The rescuers with the bodies were brought to the surface shortly afterwards. There are several theories as to the cause of the explosion. The most plausible is that the gas was ignited by a blast. The roof of the fan house was blown off and the building otherwise damaged. The shock from the explosion shook the earth for miles around. The mine is on fire and will cause the company much trouble and expense before the flames can be subdued. In past years this colliery has been the scene of several bad explosions. The most disastrous occurred on Sunday, March 9, 1890, by which eight miners were burned to death in a most horrible manner, and two years ago some of the members of the New York coal exchange had a narrow escape. A party of ten were on the carriage and had been lowered a short distance into the shaft when an explosion took place near the foot. The carriage was quickly hoisted out of the shaft just in time to save the lives of the New Yorkers.

Interstate Bowling Matches.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The Brooklyn Bowling club of the Inter-State Bowling league has decided to send a team through the west again this winter, owing to the interest created by their visit to the different cities last year. The team will leave New York January 26, 1897.

County Clerk Appointed.

Albany, Oct. 30.—Gov. Morton has appointed ex-senator Jacob Worth of Brooklyn, the republican political leader of Kings county, to be county clerk of Kings county in the vacancy created by the death of Henry C. Saffon, for the period ending December 31, 1896.

WATSON'S LETTER.

Several Matters in Connection with Its Delay Not Yet Explained.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The mystery of the Watson letter is not yet quite cleared up. Secretary Edgerton of the national populist committee yesterday, replying to Mr. Watson's statement that he (Edgerton) could explain the delay in the delivery to Senator Butler of the missing letter of acceptance of Mr. Watson, said: "The only reply I have to that statement is to oppose to it the testimony of the senate postmaster and to add that neither the personal nor the official mail of Senator Butler is delivered to me. I never saw Mr. Watson's letter until Monday morning last, when Senator Butler called me up to his house and read it to me." "No," he said, in reply to a question, "I have no copy of the letter to make public, nor am I authoritorized to state the substance of its contents. Senator Butler told me he received the letter on Saturday night last." This date being accepted as correctly stating when the letter reached Senator Butler, the mystery surrounding the non-delivery of the document still remains partly unexplained, inasmuch as twice subsequent to that time Senator Butler told representatives of the United Associated Presses that he had not yet been placed in possession of the letter. Delays in the delivery of insufficiently stamped communications to senators and representatives in congress are by no means unusual. They arrive chiefly from laxity of business methods on the part of congressmen themselves in the matter of small dues and charges. Insufficiently stamped letters addressed to senators or representatives are held in city postoffice until the senate or house postmaster pays the amount of shortage. The senate and house postmasters, owing to their inability to collect these amounts from the members, especially in recess, are in no hurry to advance the amount due, and this may be the explanation why Mr. Watson's letter to Senator Butler, being a stamp or two deficient, may have lain in the Washington postoffice eight days after its arrival here. Nevertheless there seems to be much in the incident which has not yet been satisfactorily cleared up.

Fraudulent Citizens Papers.

New York, Oct. 30.—Fraudulent citizens papers have been discovered in the possession of a number of Italians residing in this city. These papers bear the counterfeit seal of the superior court and the forged signature of its chief clerk. One of the Italians found with the fraudulent papers in his possession states that he bought it from a fellow countryman for ten dollars. Many arrests are expected.

Silver Estimate of Vote in Kentucky.

Louisville, Oct. 30.—Chairman Sommers, of the free silver democratic state campaign committee, last night gave out his poll of the state by counties, exclusive of this, Jefferson county. This is the final silver poll and gives Bryan's majority at 29,412. Chairman Sommers estimates the Palmer and Buckner vote at 5,000 but he leaves it out of his figures entirely.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable. NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

RETURNS AT LINCOLN

Mr. Bryan Will Receive Election News at His Home.

A BIG PARTY OF FRIENDS INVITED

Refreshments Will Be Served During the Course of the Night---Journeys of the Democratic Nominee---St. John Tells an Interesting Story.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 30.—Preparations for the reception of election news at the residence of nominee Bryan in this city are being pushed forward rapidly. It was only last evening that Mr. Bryan consented to permit the wires to enter his house. Both the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies will have bulletin wires in Mr. Bryan's library and in addition to this a special wire direct from the office of Chairman Jones in Chicago is talked of. A large party of friends have been invited to the residence on the night of the election, and refreshments will be served during the course of the night. Mr. Bryan will not reach home in time to register, and his vote must be sworn in.

BRYAN IN WISCONSIN.

Bids Adieu to Chicago and Starts on the Closing Tour of His Campaign.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—A campaign sprint to a number of towns in northern Illinois and back again to Chicago, a dozen speeches in the outlying districts and nine more in the city proper completed Mr. Bryan's labors for yesterday, and when he said good-by to his last Chicago audience late last night he hurried to the Northwestern station and was off again on another flying trip, this time through Wisconsin. Threatening clouds hung over Chicago yesterday when Mr. Bryan, accompanied by Mrs. Bryan and a number of local supporters, started out on his visit to neighboring communities. He ran into a rainstorm before he had gone very far, but the downpour ceased during the afternoon. Great masses of threatening clouds hung over the country through which he passed for the rest of the journey. They did not break, however, and altogether the cannon ball campaign he made was not seriously interfered with by the weather. Elgin heard the candidate first, and then, in turn, Belvidere, Rockford, Freeport, Forreston, Polo, Dixon, Rochelle, De Kalb, Geneva, Wheaton and Maywood. All the crowds cheered him, some with wild heartiness, while the enthusiasm of a few audiences was tempered by shouts for the republican standard bearer and display of yellow ribbons bearing Major McKinley's name. Nearly all the stops were brief and a speech was made at each, with the exception of Freeport, where two addresses were crowded into a half hour. It was after 7 o'clock before he got back to Chicago. The distance covered in the flying trip was 285 miles. Mr. Bryan had scarce time to eat a hasty dinner at the Auditorium annex before he was in a carriage being whirled away to the north side.

SAYS IT'S PROVIDENTIAL.

Mr. St. John Speaks of the Democratic Campaign and Relates a Story.

New York, Oct. 30.—As the close of the campaign approaches work at democratic headquarters increases and every effort is being put forward to bring about victory for Mr. Bryan. Mr. St. John arrived early at headquarters to-day. He appeared to be in jubilant spirits and said that as election day approached his confidence in Bryan's triumph increased. "This present movement is a unique one, and there is no precedent on which to base predictions. From the very start I saw it was a providential movement and that the people were behind it," said Mr. St. John. At this juncture he became reminiscent and started in to tell an interesting story. "Why," said he, "the night before Mr. Bryan made his speech before the convention he was in my room in a Chicago hotel. A United States senator was also present. We were discussing matters and Mr. Bryan said he could not see how any of the men mentioned could be nominated. I told him then that Providence would take care of us and that the nomination would come like lightning from a clear sky." Mr. St. John paused a moment and then said solemnly: "And Providence did take care of us, and the nomination did come like lightning from a clear sky, for Bryan was as good as nominated the next night." Mr. St. John would not give the name of the senator who was listening to this historical incident. Mr. St. John says he is of the opinion that Bryan will carry New York state and that he will be swept into the presidential chair by a landslide of popular opinion.

Rev. H. H. Hayden Goes Free.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 30.—The state attorney has nolled the case against Rev. H. H. Hayden, which has been on the superior court docket since 1879. The clergyman was charged with the murder of Mary Stannard of Guilford, and the trial attracted the attention of the whole country at the time.

Rum Smuggler Accidentally Killed.

Lewiston, Me., Oct. 30. — George Grenier, aged 17, who was found in a dying condition in a stable loft yesterday and died on the way to the hospital, is now supposed to have been thrown from a rum smuggler's team frightened by a shifter in the Maine Central yard in the night.

Victims of the Armenian Massacre.

Constantinople, Oct. 30.—The military commission appointed by the sultan to investigate the recent riots in this city estimates that the number of Armenians massacred was 2,250 and that 400 Mussulmans were killed.

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

The Westfield football team will not play tomorrow after all, as the eleven from the Passaic High School has sent word that they cannot come.

The New Jersey Athletic Club is going to strengthen their team for the game with the New York University on Saturday. Charles Dupee of the Y. M. C. A. team was invited to play end and Alex. Milne is also wanted by them. Dupee will not play with them.

The game on Election Day promises to be a lively one and and will give the Plainfield boys an excellent chance to show of what they are capable. The Rutgers "Scrubs" will play them in the morning so that some of the "varsity" team will be able to take part in the game. The college boys have heard considerable of the strength of the Plainfield eleven, and will bring as strong a team as possible. There will be the usual crowd of college boys accompanying them to root for their team. The game is call for at 10 o'clock on the Martine gridiron on Park avenue near Ninth street, and 25 cents admission will be charged. Ladies will be admitted free.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. has no easy game on hand for Saturday, November 7th. On that date, the eleven of the Orange Y. M. C. A. will be the opposing team, and their recent defeat of the New York Y. M. C. A. eleven shows them to be a rattling good team.

There promises to be lots of fun at the next Plainfield-Westfield game which is to be played at Westfield on Saturday, November 14th. The Westfield boys are determined to wipe out the disgrace of last Saturday's defeat, and their team is to be greatly strengthened in weight and improvement in team play. The Plainfield players needn't think that they have a cinch on the gome for they haven't and Westfield is likely to do anything, even to importing the entire Rutgers team, to win the game especially as it is to be played on their grounds. Captain Freeman has realized the fact and the team is going to be in good trim for that contest.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The high score on the Park Club alleys for October is now held by F. H. Ball. Last Tuesday he rolled 238, which included six consecutive strikes.

The opening match on the Park Club alleys will be rolled tomorrow night. It will be between the Republicans and the "All comers," and the latter is explained to include Democrats, National Democrats, Populists, Prohibitionist and Socialists. The composition of the teams will not be decided upon until the night of the game, when all the veteran members of the club are expected to turn out and roll for the honor of their respective parties.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

A very important practice game of the Y. M. C. A. team will be held in the Jersey Cycle Academy tonight.

Charles Smith, of this city, participated in a gun shoot at Dexter Park yesterday. He made a straight score of 22.

J. J. Kline, of Chatham street, will go to Ordenread, Pa., the coming week to hunt on the game preserves of his brother there.

Carroll L. Runyon, Lindley Hillman and George Proctor Smith, of the High School, received the medals yesterday that they won in the spring games of the New Jersey Interscolastic Athletic Association.

The business men's class at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium met Wednesday afternoon. The attendance was unusually large, eighteen being present. The basket ball team practiced a little for Saturday night's game.

OPENING OF THE BOWLING SEASON.

The Parks Defeated the Roselles on the Latter's Alleys.

Very pleasing, to the Park Club bowlers, at least, was the opening of the bowling season for their team last evening. There were two remarkable features in the practice games, which were rolled on the alleys of the Roselle Casino last evening. One was the entire absence of the old veterans from the team, for the younger element are now doing the bowling for the club, and the other was that the Park Club team won the first victory on the Roselle alleys against the famous team from that town. All through the games of the Standard League last year the Parks were never able to win a game on those alleys, and now the young men went down there and gave the Roselles a surprise party. Two games were rolled, resulting in a victory for each team. The scores were as follows:

	1st game.	2d game.

—"Here comes a Bryan man," remarked an old colored woman on East Second street this noon, to a person with whom she was talking. She had guessed right, and the Bryanite stopped on overhearing her remark and asked how she knew that, when she answered: "The Lord seemed to tell me so."

Their First Bungle.

Death Caused From a Fall.

The remains of the late Walter C. Fawcett, son of Thomas Fawcett, arrived here today by the United States Express Company, having made the trip from Elk Point, S. D., in three days. His death was caused by a fall down a flight of stairs. The interment will be in this city.

Not Jones the Actor.

Walter Jones was given his choice this morning by City Judge DeMeza between a fine of $10 or 30 days in jail. He preferred the former, but circumstances pointed toward the latter. He had pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

GOLD MEN'S LAST SAY.

PALMER AND BUCKNER DEMOCRATS HOLD A MASS MEETING.

Their Congressional Candidate Discusses the Issues With Reasoning Arguments—E. M. Sheppard Also a Speaker.

The gold standard Democratic mass meeting in Music Hall last evening attracted a large audience of several political faiths, and judging by the applause there were many Republicans present. At intervals someone would cry out "Three cheers for Bryan," but the response was absent.

The stage and boxes were profusely decorated with American flags while Palmer and Buckner pictures occupied prominent places. Previous to the speech-making a few pictures, mostly comic, were thrown on a screen and this amused the audience. Rogers' orchestra was present and rendered several selections.

A. H. Atterbury, president of the local National Democratic Club, was chairman of the meeting and a portion of his remarks follow:

"It is with pleasure that I welcome you here tonight and especially do I greet the ladies. They have no ballot, but they do have an influence. This campaign is in a peculiar position, for we are fighting for principles and not office. Four years ago we were flush as Democrats and we had a good President and tonight we have no cause for regret. There is 'Another king in Egypt who knows not Joseph.' In 1892 and 1896 the position of David B. Hill and Tammany are vastly different. In the former year they were a bad set and now they are the conservative ones. It is the same old Hill and Tammany, but the Democratic party has degenerated. The more free we are from these Populists and blatherskites, who are trying to set the masses against the classes, the better we are. Think of the education that has been going on during the past few months. You know that Bryan's principles are revolutionary in the extreme. In 1892 he voted against Cleveland. In 1893 he stumped for the Populists. In 1894 he published a Populist paper. In 1895 he said, 'Whatever else I am, I am not a Democrat,' and in 1896 he said he would not vote for sound money.

"This all shows that he is ignorant, vicious and bad. To our Republican friends I want to say that you will win next Tuesday by the aid of independent voters who are above party lines. If I thought there was any doubt which way New Jersey would go, I would urge you to vote for McKinley. But there is none. How can the Democrats hope to win with such a candidate and such a platform which would be ridiculous if it was not vicious. We want to restore the Democratic party. Our principles are good and we urge you to vote for the National ticket straight, also for the Congressional and county nominees."

At this point Carl D. Pfeiffer read the list of vice presidents who occupied seats on the platform. They were W. H. Sterling, E. W. Conklin, H. P. Talmadge, Rowland Cox, James Clark, Ernest L. Walz, Samuel Huntington, C. Burnett, C. A. Leveridge, Louis M. Stover, J. M. Dayton, C. E. Teel, Geo. B. DeRevere, W. E. Mattison, Wm. L. Saunders, Andrew Love, G. M. Phillips, J. H. VanWinkle, E. C. Perkins, J. Oscar Stevens, W. A. Lord, John Mortimer, C. P. Bull, Thomas H. Keller, C. W. Opdyke, J. W. Yates, Wm. K. McClure, Isaac Field, W. P. Smith, Otto Ahrens, Mahlon Vail, S. St. John McCutchen. The following were the secretaries: Carl Pfeiffer, Edward Wilson, Geo. O. Stevens, Howard Huntington, W. G. Wright, Fred W. Yates.

Mr. Atterbury then announced that Mr. Lindabury had sent word at the last moment that owing to a pressing business engagement he would not be able to be present. Mr. Atterbury stated that A. D. Noyes, Congressional nominee, of Montclair, would take his place. In substance Mr. Noyes said:

"We are asked what right a person has to repudiate his party. But the time has come when a man must draw the line beyond his party. Bryan said 'he who does not stand on the Democratic platform is no Democrat at all.' His alternate is accept my free coinage plan and platform or quit my party. The majority has has rights so has the minority, but at the Chicago Convention the gold delegates from Michigan and Nebraska were thrust out of the convention and at the Democratic Convention held at Trenton certain gold delegates were thrown out of the hall. We who are in favor of Sound Money now compose a strong minority. It is not a question of majority but a strong minority." Mr. Noyes then urged all to

LIFE IN A SOCIAL WAY.

Events Last Night That Provided a Time of Pleasure for Participants.

Miss Tiny Voehl, of Somerset street, celebrated the anniversary of her birthday last evening by inviting her friends to her home, where with music, song and games a most delightful time was spent. The young hostess was kindly remembered by her friends and she received a number of presents. A feature of the event was the violin solos by Clarence Mills. Those present were: Misses Ada VanHorn, Addie Marsh, Edith Loomis, Carrie Pangborn, Mary Hoagland, Nellie Valiant, Ethel King, Helen Harned, Mary Higgins, Addie Carney, Hattie Voehl, Beulah Leightfoot, Sadie Winckler, Winnie Carroll, Mabel Stevens, and Messrs. A masquerade dance was held at the home of Miss Jessie Coddington, on Somerset street last evening. The affair was arranged by Miss Lena Smalley, Miss Minnie Smalley and Miss Edith Miles, and there were about fifty young people present. The costumes worn were unusually pretty and attractive. Among those who were conceded to have the prettiest costumes were Miss Morrison, of New Brunswick, as flower girl, Miss Mamie Renigar, as the Spanish dancer; Miss Josie Fritz, as Little Bo Peep; and Miss Minnie Smalley as the Prussian soldier girl. Music for dancing was furnished by LaVere and it was specially commendable. At midnight refreshments were served and dancing was continued until an early hour. The guests present were from Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Newark, Elizabeth and Plainfield.

Miss Laura Holder, of West Fifth street, gave a pleasant Hallowe'en party to a few of her friends last evening. Games appropriate to the event were played, interspersed with singing and instrumental music.

Those present included the Misses Saxton, Mabel Wilson, Lottie Wilson, Margaret Coriell, Charlotte Messerschmith, and Maurice Sutphen, W. J. Tallamy, John Johnson, A. K. Holder, Bert Holder, W. VanAlstyne, of Plainfield; Miss DeCamp and Mr. DeCamp, of Roselle.

This month's copy contains short stories by P. A. Blyth and Edward F. Spence. Sample copies can be had free by calling on L. Sternberg & Co., clothing manufacturers, No. 209 West Front street, upstairs.

A Filthy Cellar.

Complaint was made this morning to Board of Health Inspector Peter V. Weaver, of this city, of the foul condition of the cellar of the Delmonico Oyster and Chop House on Park avenue near Front street. Inspector Weaver investigated and found the cellar in very bad condition and ordered it cleaned at once. Although the place is small, three wagon loads of rotten vegetables were carried away from there. The odor was very unpleasant, and drove the passersby across the street.

Fractured His Arm.

Andrew Thompson, a messenger boy for the Western Union Telegraph Company, fell off of his wheel on Somerset street this forenoon and sustained a fracture of his arm. He was taken to Shaw's drug store and later to his home on East Fourth street, where the family physician set the broken member.

Low Prices Tell.

The wonderfully low prices at J. Linn Edsall's on fine reliable goods, he says, is increasing his sales right along. He claims that he not only advertises to sell at lower prices than other houses, but he actually does it, as he proves by practical demonstration at his store every day.

If your children are subject to croup watch for the first symptom of the disease — hoarseness. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse it will prevent the attack. Even after the croupy cough has appeared the attack can always be prevented by giving this remedy. It is also invaluable for colds and whooping cough. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

HIS CHASE REWARDED.

OFFICER TOTTEN HAS ONE OF THE BROWN BROTHERS FINED.

Edmund, it Was Charged, Helped William to Escape by Driving His Horse Fast and Leaving the Cop in the Rear.

The story of Patrolman Totten's famous chase of a colored offender several weeks ago was recalled in the city court this morning when Edmund Brown, brother of the escaped William Brown, was brought up for trial on two charges, one for aiding and abetting in the escape of his brother, and the other of driving faster than an ordinary gait. Both charges were made by Totten, and Brown pleaded not guilty to both. S. S. Swackhamer was retained as his lawyer and ex-Councilman W. L. Hetfield appeared for the city in the absence of Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh.

Totten told his story in a straightforward manner of how he pursued the fleeing Brown to East Ninth street, where the latter jumped into the wagon with his brother, the one on trial, and was hurried along as fast as the horse could go, while Totton sprinted away on foot, and it was this brief rest, combined with his skill at fence jumping, that resulted in his escape.

The defence protested that Edmund didn't do anything. His brother, it was claimed, climbed into the wagon, seized the reins, and trotted the horse down the street, and that Edmund did not assist in the slightest but sat quietly by and merely told his brother that the officer was in pursuit. A number of witnesses were brought forward showing the excellent character of the accused and his high standing in the community. Mr. Swackhamer made an eloquent appeal for him.

Mr. Hetfield claimed that if Edmund Brown had done as he should he would have stopped the horse and that the evidence showed very plainly that he was guilty of both charges. The Judge declared him guilty on both charges and after stating that the officers must be supported in doing their duty he fined him $8 in assisting his brother to escape and $5 for driving his horse faster than an ordinary gait.

STOPPED THE MESSENGERS.

Package Expressmen Prevented From Using Passenger Trains for Business.

As outlined in The Daily Press the first of the week, the Central Railroad detectives have taken their first step towards compelling the package expressmen to stop using the passengers trains for the transaction of their business. Thursday afternoon, the Somerville and Elizabeth messengers were stopped in the Jersey City station and warned not to board the trains with the bundles, which they carried. The messengers returned to the office of the United States Express Company and there had the packages shipped to their respective towns. Whitney Frazee, the Plainfield messenger, was permitted to board a passenger train with a few small packages last night without interference, though he ships most of his packages by freight. The railroad company will, however, take the same proceedings against Frazee that they have against the other messengers.

Everybody will carry flags and there will be colored fire, roman candles and the like in abundance. Wallace Coriell's trial was adjourned for a week this morning.

The trial of hackmen Barry, Kennedy, Newman and Seader, for the fight and runaway last Monday night, was adjourned for a week this morning.

Sentence was suspended on Thomas Kearns and Bella Hoffmeister this morning for being disorderly.

The case against P. M. French was dismissed this morning.

Mr. Tobin's Position.

A Daily Press representative interviewed George J. Tobin today regarding his position as a resident of this county and being a legal member of the Grand Jury. Mr. Tobin said his position was all right, that he had seen Sheriff Kyte, who had given him assurances that his position was well sustained. "If there had been any question of legality" he said, "I would not have served, for it would not only have been perjury, but I was the loser every day financially while I served. Again, there are twenty four members of the Grand Jury and it only requires thirteen to convict or acquit, and my vote could be thrown out without affecting the work of the jury."

Don't Leave Anything Loose.

Tonight is Hallowe'en, and all the small boys in the city will be out early ready to play all sorts of Hallowe'en tricks. Residents will save themselves lots of trouble and do away with an unlimited amount of profanity if they take in their gates this evening and put them beyond the reach of the mischievous small boy.

ROTATION IN OFFICE.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall Reads a Paper to the Federated Club Women.

The first paper read yesterday at the State Federation of Clubs at Jersey City was that by Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, whose subject was "Rotation and Promotion in Office." Mrs. Hall's style of delivery was impressive, and the women liked her subject so well that she was warmly applauded. In part, she said:

"We all believe in rotation in office in women's clubs—that is, almost all of us do. It is one of our shibboleths, and the reasons for it are not hard to seek. The chief reason, no doubt, is derived from the unwritten law, whereby a President of the United States is eligible to office for two successive terms. We feel we are safe in following the footsteps of the revered Father of Our Country. The advantages of rotation in office are familiar to all of you. The new broom sweeps clean, and the new officers bring in new life and vigor, new methods, fresh ways of thought, plenty of hope and enthusiasm. With rotation in office, a club does or should avoid setting into ruts, and does not grow sleepy and conservative."

Mrs. Hall added that another advantage of rotation in office is that if it is a good thing to hold as many as possible should enjoy this good.

The election of officers took place in the afternoon when Miss Cecelia Gaines, of Jersey City, was elected President and Mrs. Florence Howe Hall was made one of the Vice-Presidents.

BIRTHDAY SOCIABLE.

Pennies Contributed According to the Age of the Giver.

A novel and interesting entertainment was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church, in Vincent chapel last evening, and the arrangements were most successfully carried out in every detail. The entertainment was styled a birthday sociable, and each one present was requested to contribute to the ladies' fund a penny for each year of their age. The contributions were placed in attractive little bags, and as each month, designating the month in the year in which the contributors were born, was announced, the following young ladies responded with appropriate and well-chosen words: January, Miss Edna M. Harris; February, Miss Elizabeth Day; March, Miss Ida Woolston; April, Miss Eva Jenkins; May, Miss Lucie Davis; June, Miss Elsie Horne; July, Miss Edna French; August, Miss Madge Barnes; September, Miss Alice Jenkins; October, Miss Cora Shepherd; November, Miss Lizzie Stafford; December, Miss Susie Davies.

Henry McGee officiated as master of ceremonies, and Miss Adelaide Jackson gave several of her most pleasing recitations. Walter McGee also contributed to the evening's enjoyment with a recitation, after which chocolate and wafers were served by the ladies. The platform was prettily adorned with autumn foliage.

IN THE PARADE.

Plainfielders Who Take Part in the Demonstration in New York.

All the morning the trains carried crowds of sight seekers to New York to witness the big "sound money" parade held there today, and Plainfield sent her quota. It will not only be among the onlookers, but among the paraders as well that Plainfield will be represented.

Many of the business men who reside in this city, but do business in New York will parade with their respective associations, many of whom have never taken part in a political demonstration before. The local business men will be represented by a company of sixteen men commanded by H. L. Van Emburgh, who will march with the Jewelers' McKinley and Hobart Club. Those that expect to join in this party are John E. Petrie, H. R. Ayres, J. A. Green, Herbert Schutt, J. Scranton, Bert Mundy, Frank Clarkson, Alfred Baker, Benj. Levere, Clifford Miller, William Addis, H. Kesselring, Frank VanWinkle, Charles Howard. They began marching at 3:30 o'clock.

The Plainfield Cornet Band had two engagements, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon, so they will marh over the route twice.

Sending Out the Election Ballots.

The County Clerk's office at Elizabeth was a busy place last evening, and up to eleven o'clock the clerks were busy sending out election ballots to the city and township clerks.

To Address Scholars and Teachers.

Rev. Edward Kionka has consented to deliver a lecture before the High School teachers and students of North Plainfield on the literature and schools of Germany. The date of the address has not yet been set.

A YEAR OVER A DECADE.

TRINITY'S ENDEAVORERS OBSERVE THEIR ELEVENTH ANNIVERSARY.

Large Number of Young Christians Present to Enjoy the Special Services That Marked the Happy Celebration.

Eleven years ago a small band of Christian workers in the Trinity Reformed church gathered together and formed a Christian Endeavor society, the sixth to be formed in the state. Now, it is a flourishing society and among the leading ones in the state. It was the eleventh anniversary that was celebrated last evening in the church and a very interesting service it proved to be.

Fred Willett, president of the society, presided and the singing was led by a quartette choir composed of Mrs. H. E. Rider, Miss Lizzie Dunn, Robt. M. Clark and Horace J. Martin. The meeting opened with several hymns and then President Willett read the thirteenth chapter of first Corinthians and led in earnest prayer. Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., was expected to give the address of welcome, but in his absence E. E. Anthony welcomed the visitors with a few earnest words. He referred to the grand address of welcome given by Mr. Smith at the Washington '96 convention and suggested the same thoughts then mentioned, welcome, worship and work.

The work of the society during the past year was told in a very interesting report made by Miss Cora E. Gardner. In the past year twenty-eight names had been added to the roll and eleven dropped for various causes. The total enrollment is now 126 active and 18 associate members. The average attendance for the forty-eight meetings held during the year was 86. The varied work of the different committees was briefly noted.

The missionary committee collected $56.37. $39.92 was contributed to foreign and home missions and $10 to the church building fund. The junior society has now entered upon its seventh year. Many members have graduated to the senior society and four have joined the church. $22.50 was given to domestic missions and $16.50 to foreign. The total enrollment is now 65, and the average attendance 44. Then the report of the treasurer, Elmer S. Garretson, was read by Edgard Shepard. The total receipts were $79.61, and the disbursements $69.10, leaving a balance there of $26.80. Mr. Anthony announced that $178 had been raised by the society toward the convention expenses and that the society was the first to contribute more than its quota and the extra amount was the largest of any.

After another hymn, the ushers took up the collection while a well rendered duet was sung by Mrs. H. E. Rider and Robert M. Clark.

Rev. Titus E. Davis, of Bound Brook, was then introduced and made a short address. He congratulated the society on having reached its eleventh anniversary and on its past history. It was the sixth society in the state to be formed, he said, and was one of the first three hundred societies of the world while many of its members were of the first ten thousand members of the society. It has one of the largest memberships and has accomplished a grand work not only at home but in the missionary field.

He took for his subject, "Only a Youth," and said that although all members of the Christian Endeavor Society were not youthful in age, they were in zeal and enthusiasm. A great many say that they are too young to do any work in the master's service. The youth of the past accomplished much and the youth of today is far better equipped and has greater advantages. He then turned to history and recalled many great military commanders who had risen to greatness when but young men. He gave a number of instances in statesmen who had done likewise and named other examples in the history of literature. He told what the young have done in the fields of Christian work and related several incidents of the the mission field.

"Now Christian Endeavorers," he continued, "you have the same genius of the men of the past. You wish to be great in the eyes of the Lord. You must not be satisfied with the work of the past for another year is before you; make the most of your youthful opportunies. Make it your highest ambition to live like Christ and at the end, you will find great satisfaction in that, although you failed, you have been striving.

"On the members of this society a responsibility rests, a responsibility for the souls of those around us. Remember that God has His work for you. God has His place for you and for me and none of us are too small

POPULIST FIGURES

Forecast of the Election as Prepared by Mr. Washburne.

BRYAN SURE TO WIN, HE SAYS

Claims Thirty-one States, Representing Two Hundred and Forty-two Electoral Votes, More Than Enough to Win, for the Democratic Nominee.

Chicago, Oct. 31. — The following final statement from the populist side as to election day probabilities and expectations throughout the country was given last night to the United Associated Presses by Chairman Washburne of the Chicago headquarters: "In view of the fact that the people are anxious to know what combinations of states are likely to win, I have grouped together several, any group of which is liable to be the correct one on election day. It is conceded that the democratic gold defection will be offset, by the silver republicans which leaves the normal conditions of the two parties the same. Then add to the democratic vote the two millions of populist votes and it is apparent that Bryan must win. Fortunately the populist vote is largest in states where it is most needed and while Bryan cannot win without it, he is sure to win with it, and will get the full populist vote. It is conceded that the thirty-one states west of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio rivers representing 242 electoral votes, eighteen more than needed, are the states which Bryan is most likely to carry, and the states which are comparatively sure for McKinley are the New England states, together with New Jersey and Pennsylvania, representing eighty-one electoral votes. The doubtful states are the middle western, including, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin, together with New York, making 124 electoral votes. It is apparent to any political student that, while Bryan can be elected by half a dozen different combinations, on the other hand McKinley must carry every eastern state, together with every one of the central western doubtful state, in order to win. Therefore he has one chance where Bryan has six. While Bryan cannot win without the doubtful states, his chances for carrying them are better than McKinley's, and should he get them all it would prove to be a veritable landslide. Of the 11 Bryan states, the most doubtful are Iowa, Kentucky, Delaware and Maryland. We can lose Iowa and Delaware, or Kentucky and Delaware, or Maryland and Delaware, and still win, without carrying a single doubtful state in the middle west. We can give McKinley all the eastern and middle western or doubtful states, together with Iowa, or Kentucky, or Maryland and Delaware, and then win. Of the doubtful states, Ohio is most likely to furnish the greatest surprise."

BRYAN'S TOUR THROUGH IOWA.

The Candidate's Wife Watching Him and Glad That the End Is Near.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Oct. 31.—Although William J. Bryan is far from a state of collapse, his work thus far in the campaign has left its mark upon him, and the day of rest which he will gain at his home in Lincoln, Neb., tomorrow before making speeches in the Platte valley in his own state will be as a boon to him. Mrs. Bryan, almost as fatigued as her husband, carefully watches over his welfare, and does not hesitate to express her joy that the long campaign is so soon to end. To-day Mr. Bryan is accompanied by Secretary Walsh of the democrotic national committee in his tour through Iowa. The nominee is to make speeches at Ottumwa and Cresson, and short addresses at Mount Pleasant, Fairfield, Albia, Chariton, Osceola, Afton, Corning and Red Hook. To-night will be devoted to the mass meeting in Council Bluffs, and it is expected that the audience which Mr. Bryan will address will be a large one. Mr. Bryan began his Wisconsin campaign at Greenbay, spending three hours in his special car on a siding near that place. About 8,000 people braved the raw morning air that came with chilling force across the breath of Lake Michigan and stood around the temporary platform in Whitney park to hear Mr. Bryan. "Gold bugs" were quite prominent on the streets of the town and cheers for McKinley were heard. At first the audience was like the atmosphere, but it warmed up as Mr. Bryan proceeded and became enthusiastic. Greenbay was the home of Senator Howe and apropos of his views on the income tax back in the seventies, Mr. Bryan talked about that feature of the Chicago platform, holding that only the people with large incomes were against its enactment. Gov. Peck joined Mr. Bryan at Greenbay to accompany him through the state. Ten minutes at Lapere were devoted to telling a couple of thousand people something about the money question. Kankakuna came next and a ten minutes speech was made by the candidate. His audience numbered almost 3,000. About 5,000 people composed the gathering that greeted Mr. Bryan at Appleton.

Going Home To Vote.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Secretary of the Interior Francis left last night for his home in Missouri. First Assistant Postmaster-General Jones has gone to his home, Springfield, Ill., and Mr. Lamoreaux, commissioner of the general land office, has gone to Wisconsin. All will vote on Tuesday.

Watson's Letter To Be Withheld.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Senator Butler, chairman of the populist national committee, returned to Washington last evening from his trip to Indiana and Illinois. He said again that he did not intend to make Watson's famous letter public.

VICTORIA'S HENCOOP.

Britain's Queen Owns Some Fine Specimens of Poultry.

There are plenty of proofs that the tastes of Queen Victoria are decidedly domestic, but none seems more convincing than that she is an enthusiastic chicken raiser. The royal aviary, or, as the good New England housewife would call it, the queen's hencoop, as described in the London Feathered World by Artist Ernest M. Jessop, is a very elaborate affair.

The queen has her head "chicken man," who is aided by a large corps of experienced assistants. For 40 years the royal poultry hens were under female supervision, Mrs. D'Albertanson now in charge of the queen's room at the kennels, being supervisor. A man named Hammond has succeeded her He knows all about chickens, their value and their artful ways.

Many breeds are kept in the royal aviary—gold and silver-spangled Hamburgs, gold and silver-penciled and black ones besides. Black, white and speckled Dorkings strut about in company with proud American Plymouth Rocks, black Minorcas, white Leghorns, Andalusians, white Rocks and Houdans. American Plymouth Rocks are, by the way, among the queen's favorites.

The bantams, as usual, are the pride of the roost. One named Toby is as tame as a kitten. He is Hammond's toy. When the keeper claps his hands the midget runs to him, jumps upon his hand and chanticleers to his heart's delight.

The chickens are let out daily in batches of the same breed for an hour's run on the grass. For breakfast they get soft food and for the evening meal they get an abundance of wheat. There is no hospital at the royal aviary. As soon as one of the birds appears to be ailing it is put to death and afterwards cremated.

The most formidable creatures in the lot are the wild turkeys imported from Canada, but now thoroughly naturalized. Two beautiful golden eagles are among the curiosities of the collection. One was captured 30 years ago in Windsor forest. There are Aylesbury ducks, but not many. There are also golden pheasants and pigeons of various kinds.

An average of 50 eggs a day are laid by the hens. They go to the castle, Buckingham palace and Osborne house only.

The queen has an apartment at the aviary. It is a bright, sunny room, with nearly pure white walls. A case of stuffed birds shot by the prince consort is the principal ornament.

The aviary was once one of the popular resorts of the royal family, and a tea service of dark blue and white Dresden china is still in the house.

The royal aviary, as well as the royal kennels, is on the private road between Windsor and Frogmore, and when at Windsor the queen never fails to look at some of her pets daily. The pictures used to illustrate this story are copyrighted by the artist, E. M. Jessup.

CRETE'S NEW GOVERNOR.

He Is a Christian and Favors the Christians in His Rulings.

Georgi Pasha, the new Christian governor of the Island of Crete, does not seem to please the Christian Cretans, even though his rule is such as to elicit objections from the Mohammedans, who are in the minority. The new governor's name is Georgi Berovitch, prince of Samos, and he was given his present post at the request of the European powers. Berovitch is a Christian himself, and his policy will no doubt be ultimately satisfactory to the Christian population. He is an Albanian of the Greek church, and was formerly vice governor of the island. In his new position he is not clothed with powers extending over the military, which remains under the command of Abdullah Pasha.

Bamboo for Cavalry Lances.

It is proposed to substitute bamboo for ashwood for the lances of English cavalry regiments, as the ash used is said to be brittle and not to be trusted in actual warfare.

Steel for Pens and Sword.

At the present time there is more steel used in the manufacture of pens than in all the sword and gun factories in the world.

GOOD BIRD STORY.

How a Couple of Orioles Obliged a Mocking Bird Family.

Mrs. Cason, the wife of an Oconee river (Ga.) planter, relates the following interesting episode:

"Early this spring," says Mrs. Cason, "a pair of mocking birds built their nest in a slender young elm tree just outside my window. Before a single egg had been laid therein a violent wind came, tossing the tree hither and thither, utterly destroying the nest. With patient perseverance the birds went again to work and soon had the nest rebuilt in the selfsame crotch, and this time the female deposited two eggs within. One day, but a short time thereafter, during a pretty severe blow of wind, I observed the two mocking birds in considerable commotion, and suspected that they feared another catastrophe to their domicile. Feeling particular interest in the result of the storm for them, I kept a pretty close outlook, and by and by saw the male bird fly away, leaving the female sole protector of the home.

"Wondering considerably at this, and feeling an intense sympathy for the poor female, I went out to see if I could not devise some way to assist her in her distress. Before I arrived at any definite plan of action, however, the male bird came flitting back, bringing with him a couple of orioles that I had seen from time to time in the orchard behind the house. Perfectly familiar as I was with the ingenuity of the oriole, I was not prepared for what I now saw this pair accomplish. After a hurried consultation with the mocking birds, the two yellow fellows began to cast about for material with which to operate in their friends' behalf, and one of them soon found a twine string near five feet in length, which I had left out in the garden after twining my sweet peas. As soon as he lit upon it he called his mate, and the serious difficulty of the rescue seemed solved, for they went to work with a dispatch that would have done credit to greater intelligence than theirs is supposed to be. Each one of the orioles grasped an end of the string in his mouth and flew with it into the tree, deftly looping it over the swinging limb just above the nest. This done, they took the loose end and flew with it to the rose lattice, about three feet distant, and soon had it bound hard and fast to the frame, thus holding the limb securely in position."

Women

Who are nervous, weak, worn out with local troubles find pure blood, nerve strength, and perfect health in Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Like a confidential friend we suggest the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, a reliable blood purifier and tonic; it has helped many others and will help you.

To Kill Thistles

It is not necessary to kill all the seeds of the thistles in order to exterminate these undesirable weeds. You can so cultivate the ground that they will not thrive; and at last will disappear altogether. It might be better to kill the seeds, but we cannot do it. It would be the wisest course to destroy all the germs, or seeds, of consumption, could we do so. But this cannot be done. So we must keep the tissues of the lungs, the soil, in such a condition that the germs will not thrive the

His Annual Statement Shows a Satisfactory Condition of Affairs.

Washington, Oct. 31.—The annual report of E. P. Baldwin, auditor for the treasury department, for the last fiscal year shows a satisfactory condition of affairs. Of the 1,025 accounts remaining unadjusted at that date, not one could have been settled. Mr. Baldwin calls attention to the work of the office under the act approved March 2, 1895, by which masters of vessels are required to forward copies of the manifests of their vessels before making entry at the custom house and collectors are required to forward copies of all manifests filed with them and to show on the same the disposition of all merchandise named therein. Manifests required to be forwarded are received promptly, and each piece or package of merchandise now imported into the United States at 599 ports or sub-ports at which such vessels, cars and vehicles arrive, not including the six ports at which naval officers are stationed, are promptly checked up. The manifests of more than 66,000 vessels, 110,000 cars and nearly 5,000 vehicles have been examined under this system.

LUTZOW SET FREE

The Berlin Correspondent Then Immediately Rearrested.

LATEST CHARGE NOT KNOWN

Probably To Be Again Prosecuted or Misquoting the Reply of the Czar to a Toast Offered by Emperor William.

Berlin, Oct. 31.—Baron von Lutzow, the newspaper correspondent who was recently arrested on the charge of libellously insulting Count von Eulenburg, grand marshal of the court and grand master of ceremonies, was released yesterday, but was immediately afterwards rearrested. The arrest grew out of the reports of the reply of the czar to a toast offered by Emperor William during his Russian majesty's visit. The first version of the reply had it that the czar avowed that he was inspired by the same traditional sentiments as his father had been. A later version made the czar say that he was "inspired by the same sentiments as your majesty." Baron von Lutzow and Herr Leckert, another Berlin correspondent, described the alteration in the phrasing to Count von Eulenburg, who saw a veiled political attack in the charge and caused the arrest of both correspondents. Herr Lockert was soon afterwards set at liberty, but Baron von Lutzow was kept in custody until yesterday. The reason for his second arrest is not stated, but is undoubtedly connected with the original charge against him.

Victim of a Bunco Game.

Putnam, Conn., Oct. 31.—John Kennedy, an aged farmer of Eastwoodstock, went to ride with a stranger who came to his farm one day last week. Inquiry shows that he drew $2,500 from a bank here that day and he had about $10 with him when he left home. He returned penniless. A tin box found in the barn shows signs of a bunco game.

ABOUT MR. POWERS.

James Pendleton Powers, the Free Silver Democratic candidate in Union County for State Senator, was born in the city of New York in the year 1861. At the age of seven years he was bereft of both parents, and through force of circumstances was placed by a friend of his father on a farm in Somerset county in this State, where he continued to reside until 1880, when he concluded to prepare for the practice of law. He then located at Princeton, N. J., where, under the tuition of the late Hon. John T. Hegeman, he in due course of time was admitted to the bar. He then located at Plainfield, and followed the law in all its branches. Meanwhile, being admitted to the highest court as counsellor-at law, Mr. Powers moved to Elizabeth the first of the present year, and is following his profession in that city. He has been fortunate in making a host of friends wherever he is known. He is not a member of any secret organization, and has never sought or held public office.

The Best at the Cheapest.

As stated in these columns a few weeks ago, there will be inaugurated in this city a new enterprise on November 1st. Nothing of this kind before has been introduced in this locality, and the favor which it has met convinces the promoters that their efforts to give to the public the best reading matter obtainable at the lowest possible prices have been appreciated. This new enterprise is introduced by the popular merchant, R. C. Rand, of West Front street, and is to be known as the Rand Magazine Exchange. By subscribing to this exchange for the monthly magazines which you desire, you secure them at a saving of over fifty per cent. and have delivered to you at your residence one each week of the four magazines selected, so that you always have before you fresh reading matter and are not bothered by being obliged to bring them home from the city, nor are you troubled with the old copies lying around after having been read, as the object of the exchange is to call for and deliver these books to you.

Resolutions of Regret.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from His sphere of usefulness, Mr. Eric N. Erickson, president of the Governors' Board of Muhlenberg Hospital, we, the members of the Woman's Auxiliary Board desire to express our regret for the loss the hospital has sustained and in profound sympathy with his afflicted family.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered in the minutes, published in each of the Plainfield daily papers, and a copy be sent to Mrs. Erickson.

Harriet F. Randall,
Corresponding Secretary.

—The residents of North Plainfield who desire to participate in the McKinley and Hobart parade next Monday evening in this city are asked to leave their names with H. N. Spencer or report at the latter's place, Monday evening at 6:30 sharp.

support the National ticket as well as the county local tickets.

The last speaker of the evening was Edward Sheppard, a wealthy lawyer of Brooklyn. In view of the fact that there were a number of Republicans present at the meeting and that Mr. Sheppard made an attack on McKinley, caused the former to leave the hall.

A portion of Mr. Sheppard's remarks follow:—

"I ask the Democrats to vote against the Chicago platform for it is not Democratic, and I also ask them th oppose McKinley because he is not Democratic. In central New York McKinley will surely receive an enormous plurality, but the question is what can we best do for the future. The cry now is of the poor against the rich, and Bryan has warned the people to beware of every speaker who is worth one dollar more than they are. This is the most menacing feature of the campaign and McKinley will no doubt be elected and free silver will be buried, but what next? Socialism offers one plan of misery, though it cannot be denied that Gov. Altgeld's speeches bear intellectual force. McKinley voted for free silver, and you will remember the country asked him to state where he was on the question, but there was no response. He is responsible with Reed, Sherman and Allison for this financial heresy. Didn't President Harrison sign the Sherman bill? What difference is there between that bill and the one proposed by Mr. Bryan? The worst that can be said of Bryan is that he is an exaggerated edition of McKinley. Now is your opportunity to use your votes to put into being a true Democratic party whose leaders now are Palmer and Buckner and I urge you to vote for them." After a selection by the orchestra the meeting was adjourned.

Disgraceful Actions.

To the Editor of The Daily Press—In attending the political meeting last evening in Music Hall I found upon entering some eight young men, sons of respectable parents making remarks in reference to the speakers and annoying the same. An officer had to call them down. I went to the meeting for the sole purpose of instruction and how I should vote in the coming election. I have attended meetings of all parties during this campaign, but the disgraceful conduct of these young men referred to should not be tolerated in a civilized community. Their names are ready at any time for publication if they demand it.

Wm. N. Pangborn.

Superintendent Favorably Impressed.

Rev. J. A. Mets, superintendent of the public schools in Somerset county, paid an unexpected visit to the borough school, yesterday, and made an inspection of its present system. The Superintendent was most favorably impressed with the improvements that have been made under Mr. Warde, and especially so concerning the High School and kindergarten departments recently established. He predicted much better work under the new arrangement and complimented Superintendent Warde.

and insignificant to do our share of His work.

Rev. Lester Leggett then spoke briefly. He said that his coming into the ministry was due to a little Christian Endeavor society out west and he told some of his personal experiences there. He congratulated the society on their good work of the past and urged them on to renewed efforts in the future. There was something for everyone to do, he said, and he ended with an earnest appeal to the Endeavorers to follow God's wishes and trample under foot those things which would not do honor to a Christian Endeavorer.

Mr. Willett then thanked the speakers and the choir, after which Rev. Mr Schenck, Ph. D., who had just arrived, pronounced the benediction.

An Honest Young Man.

John T. Bolsterli, and employee of Vincent L. Frazee, is an honest man. Yesterday while delivering goods at Wm. A. Woodruff's on East Second street, he picked up a twenty dollar bill just outside the yaad. Thinking perhaps it belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff he carried the money into the house but did not find the owner. Then he turned over his fund to his employer and endeavored to find the owner of the bill but he was unsuccessful for a time. During the afternoon, however, William Henry, who peddles truck from the mountain, called at the store, described his property and the $20 was returned to him. Surely such young men as Bolsterli are scarce, and he is to be congratulated upon his honesty and integrity.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

Neither of the schools will hold sessions on election day.

Miss Sallie Lake, of Somerville, is visiting Mrs. Wm. R. Gulick.

New and attractive white-wood shutters were hung yesterday on the town hall.

Miss Anna Dickson, of St. John's, N. B., is visiting her brother, S. C. Dickson.

It may seem a little out of place, but women here do most of the leaf burning nowadays.

A. S. Giles was Thursday night appointed chief of the Dunellen fire department by Mayor Brakeley.

A delegation of the railroad employes have gone to New York today to take part in the great demonstration.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Giles are the recipients of a Presidential gift. The little one arrived yesterday and mother and baby are doing nicely.

A gang of four men in the employ of the Central Railroad Company were at work yesterday fixing up the batteries for the Dunellen signals.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Dunellen Presbyterian church is planning for a fair on November 17. A musical programme will be given.

Messrs. Dealaman, Randolph and Terry got home last night late from Pike county, Pa. A refrigerator car will bring down their game early next week.

Rev. S. F. Custard, pastor of the M. E. church, and Isaac Stites, took part in the Epworth League convention of the Elizabeth district at Perth Amboy, Thursday.

Flagman Costello interspersed business with pleasure yesterday. He saw a fair-sized ground hog wading in the mire near his shanty, so he took a club and dispatched the animal.

The Washington Avenue Card Club will meet at the home of one of the members, yet to be announced, on the evening of Nov. 6th, when a schedule of games will be arranged for the coming winter.

Drill engine No. 30 jumped a partly-turned switch in the yard here yesterday afternoon, but the crew got the locomotive back on the rails after two hours hard work, and nothing was broken or damaged.

Miss Ella Fisher has resigned her position as stenographer and typewriter with the Russell & Erwin Manufacturing Company, and has accepted a position as book-keeper with a large wholesale establishment in New York.

The days are growing shorter, but the Dunellen Electric Light Company wait until 6 p. m. before turning on the current. Last night some of the patrons of the company were obliged to light lamps in their stores before the electricity was turned on.

It is just possible that some action will be taken by the borough council to limit the membership of the fire department. Every active member will be entitled to exemption of $500 on his taxes next year, which is an item worthy of consideration.

Under the borough law of 1878 all parties paying their taxes before Dec. 20th are entitled to a rebate from the day they are paid until that date, of interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. The officials have just made this discovery and the collector has been busy returning rebates to those who have already paid. There is still time to get three-quarters of one per cent. on your tax bills, if you wish to take advantage of it.

The Dunellen Athletic Association are already laying plans for a series of entertainments this winter, the proceeds from which will be devoted to organizing and fully equipping a first-class baseball team early next season. Heretofore a regular hat collection on the diamond each day of a match game, has been the means of keeping the players in good humor, but next season some of the moneyed men intend to put a team of both expert ball players and athletes in the field that will be second to none in the State. The facilities for rowing and other aquatic sports are probably unsurpassed in this section, and it is the intention of the projectors to include rowing races next season.

SCOTCH PLAINS.

Goodwill Lodge, No. 101, K. of P., are making extensive preparations for their ball and supper on the third Thursday of November. The ball to be held in Excelsior Hall will be one of the finest ever given here, and minehost W. S. Emery will spare neither time or expense to provide an elaborate supper for the guests.

The Italians about here are generally quiet and inoffensive, but last night two new arrivals nearly precipitated a small sized riot in the rookery on Front street. As usual the fracas started over a game of cards.

The Bible Day celebration in the Baptist church Sunday-school tomorrow afternoon at 2:45 promises to be an interesting event. G. E. Hall, the superintendent, will preside, and there will be singing and recitations by the the scholars, and an address by a prominent Sunday school worker.

EVONA.

Charles Debele, of Rock avenue, has just completed a board walk of a half mile in length on Clinton avenue, running from the Clinton avenue railroad bridge to Greenbrook road.

Clinton avenue now boasts of a political banner, a rather small one, perhaps, but still it is one, and bears the names of gold standard Democratic candidates, Palmer and Buckner. It was hung across Clinton avenue at the corner of West Front street, by George H. Apgar, of Clinton avenue.

MOUNT BETHEL.

James Loughlin, of this city, has leased the Mt. Bethel hotel and will take possession of the same shortly.

A Bryan and Sewell mass meeting was held at Mt. Bethel, last night. The speakers were Horace Coddington, of that place, and S. S. Swackhamer and ex-Assemblyman Vetterlein, of the borough. There was a large gathering present and much enthusiasm. A stage load of citizens from the borough was present.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Nora Williams, of Somerset street, is visiting out-of-town friends.

Miss Emily Coriell, of Fairview avenue, has returnec from a visit to New York.

Miss Mamie Renigar, of Watchung avenue, will spend Sunday at Morristown.

Michael Higgins, of the West End, is able to be out again after his recent illness.

Miss Bertha Needham, of Craig Place, is the guest of relatives in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Campbell, of Park avenue, have been visiting in New York.

Louis Darling, of Rahway road, will entertain a number of friends at his home tonight.

Miss Mabel Winton, of Hackensack, is the guest of Miss Elizabeth Dunn, of West Fourth street,

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Simmonds, of New York, have been spending a few days in Plainfield.

Mrs. T. Randell Armour, of Brooklyn, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Connett, of East Fifth street.

Armstrong Mulford and Fred S. Cutter, of this city, are among those who will take part in the parade today in New York.

Miss Homan, of New Brunswick, has returned home after a visit with her cousin, Miss Laura Emmons, of Jackson avenue.

Edward Sheppard, of Brooklyn, who spoke at Music Hall last evening, was the guest of H. P. Talmadge, of Netherwood, while in Plainfield.

Walter B. Rittenhouse, of East Sixth street, returned home from Stevens Institute last evening, and will remain here until Tuesday so as to be able to vote.

William Jones the colored man who so far forgot himself as to mistake Frucht's wheel for his own, was taken to Elizabeth this morning for a 30 days visit.

The engagement is announced of Miss Alice M Spangenberg, daughter of ex-Councilman Spangenberg, of Netherwood, and David M. Runyon, assistant cashier of the First National Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter S. Kline, of Rago County, Kansas, will arrive in town today for a visit with Levi C. Kline, of 235 Somerset street, North Plainfield. This is the first time they have been in Plainfield in seventeen years, and they will no doubt notice great changes in and about the city.

The Darlington, Wis., Journal says editorially of a popular patent medicine: "We know from experienee that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is all that is claimed for it, as on two occasions it stopped excruciating pains and possibly saved us from an untimely grave. We would not rest easy over night without 'in the house.'" This remedy undoubtably saves more pain and suffering than any other medicine in the world. Every family should keep it it in the house, for it is sure to be needed sooner or later. For sale by T. S. Armstrong, druggist.

One View of Free Silver.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Very much has been published and said in regard to the great losses that will accrue in the event of Bryan's election to hundreds and thousands among the laboring classes of both men and women who have investments in savings banks, building loans, life insurance, and other institutions.

The writer has seen no allusion to another class of workers equally unfortunate—vz., foreigners who have families or friends in Europe to whom they remit a portion of their earnings.

At the present time a pound sterling at the Post Office costs $4.92, but at the prospective value of the "free-silver" dollar a pound sterling will cost about $9.60, and, although those remittances go in small sums they are taken from hard earnings, and in the aggregate amount usually to a large sum.

At the Plainfield Post Office from $500 to $600 per month are drawn for in this way.

If we included the Post Offices in all parts of the country, to say nothing of what is drawn through bankers, the aggregate would be large, the greater part of which is taken from voters, or those that ere long are intending to be voters, and these should be advised as to their personal interest in this matter. Mahlon Vail.

—Those who heard Mr. Rein at the Y. M. C. A. on Oct. 18th, will be glad to have an opportunity to hear him speak and sing again tomorrow afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. The meeting will continue one hour only.

M'KINLEY'S CANVASS

Chairman Hahn's Latest Estimate on the Probable Result.

CLAIMS 314 ELECTORS AS CERTAIN

Workmen Preparing Major McKinley's Residence for the Entertainment of Friends Who Will Receive the Returns Next Tuesday Night.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Chairman Hahn of the speakers' bureau of the national republican committee last night gave out a statement claiming that McKinley would receive 314 electoral votes from the following twenty-nine states: California, Connecticut, Delawara, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Dakota, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

GETTING READY FOR ELECTION.

Canton Residents Confident Their Townsman Will Be Elected.

Canton, O., Oct. 31.—Maj. McKinley, as usual on every Saturday since the delegations began to make pilgrimages to visit the republican nominee, arose early in order to prepare everything necessary for the entertainment of the numerous delegations scheduled to arrive in Canton to-day. Maj. McKinley expects no surcease from his labors until the night of the last day of the campaign. Workmen are busy to-day arranging the McKinley homestead so that the candidate and his guests may comfortably receive the election returns by private wire. Chairman Hanna of the republican national committee will not be here, as he has decided to remain in Chicago. So sure are the republicans of Canton that Maj. McKinley will be elected that they have made preparations for a big demonstration in honor of the event, and have planned for a large procession, with plenty of fireworks, colored lights, bonfires, and speechmaking, when the result shall have become known. The unique features of yesterday in Canton was the visit and speeches of Chauncey M. Depew and the gathering of several thousand school children at Major McKinley's house late in the afternoon. Mr. Depew was warmly welcomed and spoke twice, once to a club of colored men and once to the college students who came from various parts of the country to pay their respects to Major McKinley. The speech which Major McKinley made to the college boys was one of the most carefully prepared he has delivered this week and it was listened to with the deepest interest. The visit of the school children was a beautiful incident of the closing days of the campaign. Three thousand boys marched in line, each carrying a small flag. The small girls with their mothers clustered in dense groups about the house and in all of the neighboring yards. When the boys marched up, they waved their handkerchiefs and shouted: "Hurrah, hurrah, McKinley is the man; I can't vote, but daddy can." The air was filled with the music of fresh young voices. The boys cheered lustily for several minutes and then three small boys mounted the stand and told Major McKinley that all the boys were for him and that it was the main regret of their lives that they were not old enough to vote. It was dark when the children, after listening the Major McKinley's pleasant talk, marched away behind their band and drum corps. The first delegation yesterday was the original McKinley colored republican club of Cleveland. Major McKinley introduced Chauncey M. Depew to the audience. Hundreds of Cantonians who had learned of Mr. Depew's visit to the republican candidate had assembled at the McKinley residence, expecting a speech from the New York orator, and the crowd that surrounded the porch numbered a thousand. As Mr. Depew stepped forward some one proposed "three cheers for New York," and they were given with a great deal of vigor. Mr. Depew bowed his acknowledgments, and spoke at some length. A few moments after Mr. Depew finished speaking, a delegation of college students from various parts of the country marched into the McKinley yard and they were full of enthusiasm and made the air ring with their college yells. Wm. Burns Wolfes, editor of the College Republican, spoke in behalf of the college men in the delegation and Edward J. Hannan for the college league clubs. Responding to these addresses Mr. McKinley made the principal speech of the day. Mr. Depew was introduced again by Major McKinley and addressed some remarks to the students. Major McKinley drove to the station with Messrs. Depew, George W. Smalley, correspondent of the London Times, and Myron E. Herrick of Cleveland, who accompanied him, returning in time to address the school children. Chauncey M. Depew will speak at Cincinnati to-night. Starting from Cleveland this morning he will make republican speeches at Wellington, Crestline, Galion, Delaware, Columbus, London, Springfield, Dayton and Middletown.

Union Veteran Campaign Closed.

New York, Oct. 31.—The Union Veterans' Patriotic league closed its campaign work last night by a great meeting at Carnegie hall. One of the features of the meeting was a portrait of General Grant, furnished by his son, Col. Fred B. Grant, and which was unveiled at an interesting moment.

THEIR SENTENCES SUSPENDED.

Prize Fighters Convicted of Manslaughter Let off with a Warning.

New York, Oct. 31.—Sentence has been suspended in the case of a youth named John Shagner, recently convicted of manslaughter in the first degree for having caused the death of Henry Rodriguez, another youth, in a prize fight. A half dozen other young men, who were present at the fight in the capacity of referee, seconds, timekeepers, etc., had also been indicted under the new state law. Sentence in their cases was also suspended. The young men have been in jail, for a fortnight. The extreme penalty for manslaughter is ten years. Judge Smyth, in discharging the young men, admonished them to avoid prize fights and informed them that the penalty for their present offense hung over their heads and if they should again be found guilty of a similar charge under the same circumstances the extreme penalty would be inflicted.

REVENUE CUTTER ON GUARD.

Steamer Dauntless Held in Custody at Fernandina, Fla.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 31.—The steamer Dauntless, captured by the cruiser Raleigh off the Florida coast on Oct. 21, has been released from quarantine, but is now in the custody of Collector of Customs Baltzell at Fernandina and guarded by the revenue cutter Windom. The collector has notified W. A. Bisbee, the owner of the Dauntless, that the steamer was fined $500 for going into foreign waters without clearing from a custom house and $200 for lying-to off the coast without having lights burning, as required by marine regulations. The owner will pay the $200 fine, but he will not pay the $500 fine, and the boat will be libeled.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

LOVE LIGHTENS LABOR.

Advantages Country People Have Over Their City Brothers.

The countryman has, if he be wise enough to perceive it, good reason to count himself a luckier person altogether than he whose work is done in town. For the latter, says Black and White, unless he be exceeding well off, there are few pleasures easily obtainable in the intervals of toil. Food and sleep are excellent in their way, but they are necessities, and they are usually taken under such circumstances as to have nothing of the character of luxuries. The countryman is luckier than this. It may be that his toil is tiring and that his wage is a small one, but he labors in such a way that he always gets the fullest enjoyment out of his rest, and when he pauses to take his midday meal it is under conditions that would make a perfect holiday for the city, and to whose charm even the man accustomed to them cannot grow callous. He lies at ease among the sheaves that he has cut, and the sun, whose ardent rays made his toil the heavier, now adds to his delight. Moreover, he eats with the pleasantest of waiters to see to his comfort; it may be his wife who brings his dinner, or perhaps it is some buxom girl from the farm who is not yet his, though she will some day be, as she knows within herself, and he is not afraid to believe. Verily, his toil is hard in itself, but he must be a singularly discontented person if he do not find it light amid these surroundings and under these pleasant conditions.

ASHAMED OF HIS BLUNDER.

Zeal of a Hound Led Him Into a Mortifying Mistake.

Up among the green hills of Vermont two country ball nines were contending for supremacy one hot afternoon in an old pasture. Among the assembled spectators was a sad-faced, lop-eared "houn' dog" which had previously been investigating the contents of a woodchuck hole. He had worked his passage in, says Forest and Stream, until no dog was visible, but a steady stream of dirt shooting out like the blast from the blowpipe of a sawmill proclaimed that the investigation was still on. Becoming tired of this, the hound was sitting down watching the home team getting "done up," when suddenly, without warning, he shot across the field with a trajectory as flat as a 32:40 and with nearly the same velocity. The cause was soon apparent. Several little girls were coming up through a hollow and one was just tall enough for her brown hat to show through the fringe of grass on the rising ground in front. When the hound came near enough for the supposed woodchuck to merge into a hat with a girl under it he stopped an instant with a look of horrified surprise. A yell arose from the assembled farmers who had seen the incident, and this so mortified the hound that he made straight for home and was invisible for several days.

An Experiment to Try.

An interesting experiment in magic may be performed that will show it to be a mistake that water will find its level, says the Chicago Interior. Take a glass tube and bend it in the shape of a U. Pour it half full of pure water, and be sure that the pitcher from which you pour it will only fill the bent tube half full. That is for effect on the observer. Now take another pitcher containing pure brine, a solution of common salt, and pour it slowly into one of the arms of the tube. The water in the other arm will rise an inch or two above the level of the brine in the other, and if you continue pouring it will run over, until all the fresh water is driven out. There now, you have an illustration which can be used for a number of purposes!

REVIVAL OF DEMAND

Leading Houses Take a Hopeful View of Business Outlook.

FURTHER ADVANCE IN PRICES NOTED

Orders to an Enormous Amount Placed with Manufacturers, Jobbers, Commission Houses and Importers—Exports of Wheat and Corn.

New York, Oct. 31.—Bradstreets' weekly review of the state of trade will to-day say: Business in staple lines is confined to immediate wants. The volume of trade is smaller than a week ago. Advices from important distributing centres indicate that leading commercial and industrial houses take a hopeful view of the business outlook and expect an early revival of demand. The restricted distribution of merchandise for several weeks has begun to register itself in the bank clearings totals, the aggregate for which at all cities during the past six business days is $969,000,000, 7 per cent. than last week, but 10 per cent. less than in the corresponding week one year ago, 7 per cent. less than in the last week of October in 1893, and 30 per cent. less than in the corresponding week in 1892, when the total was exceptionally large. In some instances higher rates for discounts have served to further contract business, but at Chicago there are reports of improved collections.

Enormous Orders Placed.

Orders to an enormous amount have been placed with manufacturers, jobbers, commission houses and importers. An encouraging feature is a further advance in the prices of leather, wood, Bessemer pig iron, wheat, Indian corn, lard, raw and refined sugar, and for crude and refined petroleum. Prices are practically unchanged for pork and coffee, but hides are a little weaker, and prices for oats, wheat flour, cotton and print cloths are lower. Only moderate orders have been placed for woolen goods for spring delivery, but manufacturers are disposed to buy some raw material. Pacific coast wheat exports continue to attract attention. San Francisco sent another cargo of wheat to Calcutta October 27, the third from that port, and Tacoma reports a steamer chartered there also to load with wheat for Calcutta. Mercantile failures throughout the United States have declined in number this week, the total being 546, against 293 last week, 299 in the week one year ago, 253 in the corresponding period two years ago, and as compared with 353 in the like week of 1893.

Exports of Wheat and Corn.

Total exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States amount to 3,346,030 bushels this week, exclusive of shipments from Galveston, no report of which has been received, compared with 4,067 000 bushels last week, 2,743,000 bushels in the last week of October, 1895, 2,934,000 bushels in the like week of 1894, 2,860,000 bushels in 1893, and as contrasted with 3,714,000 bushels in the corresponding portion of 1892. Exports of Indian corn amount to 2,597,000 bushels this week, nearly 400,000 bushels less than last week, one-third more than in the corresponding week of 1895, fifteen times as much as in the corresponding week of 1894, and three times as much as in like weeks of 1893 and 1892.

Death of Washington Bullard.

Buffalo, Oct. 31.—Washington Bullard, general manager of the Union Steamboat company, is dead at his home on Sumner street. Death was due to a complication of heart and kidney troubles which had caused him suffering for a year past and had confined him to his house for about two weeks. Mr. Bullard was perhaps the best known man in the steamboat service of the great lakes.

Amateur Bicycle Records Broken.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 31.—Bicyclist John Davidson rode 26 miles and 1,599 yards in one hour on the quarter mile track on Hanlan's point. This time lowers all American amateur records from eleven to twenty-six miles, both inclusive, and breaks every Canadian amateur record from three to twenty-six miles, both inclusive. Davidson was paced by four tandems.

More Suffering for Newfoundland.

St. Johns, N. F., Oct. 31.—The price of Newfoundland fish dropped seventy cents per quintal in the Portuguese markets yesterday, owing largely to French and Norwegian competition. This will further accentuate the prevailing depression here and widen the area of probable distress during the coming winter.

An Alleged Pious Fraud.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 31.—Rev. W. H. Jones of the African Methodist Episcopal church of Meriden, who was in town recently collecting money to pay off a debt on his church, has gone south, it is alleged, taking with him the funds collected.

Prince Louis in New York.

New York, Oct. 31.—Prince Louis of Savoy, nephew of the king of Italy, who arrived here yesterday from Philadelphia on board the Italian cruiser Cristoforo Colombo, will spend a few days in this city before returning to Europe.

Schooner Totally Wrecked.

A MOUNTAIN MYSTERY.

Arizona Residents Puzzled by a Strange Mountain Formation.

For the last half century the American residents of Tucson, A. T., have been trying to solve the mystery of what appears to be a hole through a mountain peak in sight of the town. In the clear air it looks to be only a short distance away, when in reality it is at least 40 miles.

By the aid of a good marine telescope the mountain can be brought to within a few miles, but not near enough to tell the exact nature of the rock formation. A first peep through the glass would lead one to believe that there was no mystery about it. The hole appears as plain as possible, but several days' study of the spot will develop the fact that the hole does not always look the same.

Many days when the sky is dark behind the mountain the hole will appear a brilliant white, like a snowdrift, and on days when the sky is blue it will often look so dark as to be almost invisible. These facts have led many to think that it is an immense piece of mica lying with its polished surface toward the sky and reflecting the cloud formations of another part of the horizon, instead of being the light seen through a hole. Viewed with the naked eye, the hole simply appears as a white spot, but the telescope reveals pine trees and other details, although very indistinctly.

The range of mountains in which the strange peak can be seen is known as the Catalinas, and numerous parties have made the attempt to climb it, but all have failed on account of the steep and rugged precipices in the vicinity.

Not More Destructive.

Strange to say, says the Military Gazette, the improvement in firearms has not increased the murderous results of battles. The battles which have been fought in the South American wars since 1890 show that only one out of each 79 men engaged was killed. In the Franco-German war of 1870-71, one in each 53 met death, while in the Crimean war one in each 35 of the effective force were left dead on the field.

THADDEUS S. CLARKSON.

The New Commander in Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Thaddeus Stevens Clarkson, the new commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, was a candidate before the Louisville encampment last year, but finally declined to enter the race against Gen. Walker. He is well known and well liked in the grand army, especially in the west. He was born at Gettysburg, Pa., in 1840. He was educated three miles from the great battlefield of Antietam. He enlisted April 16, 1861, within two hours after the appearance of President Lincoln's call for 75,000 men for three months, in Company A, First Illinois artillery. He went to Cairo, served under Gen. Grant there; reenlisted for the war July 16, 1861; was promoted December 1, 1861, to adjutant of the Thirteenth Illinois cavalry; served with that regiment, and on the staff of Gen. John W. Davidson, participating in the battles with that commander on the march to Helena and Little Rock, Ark. He was assigned to command it during the Arkansas campaign. In August, 1863, he assisted in raising the Third Arkansas cavalry of union white men of that state; was promoted to major and commanded the regiment until nearly the close of the war, participating in nearly all of the battles in Arkansas under Gen. Steele. On November 11, 1862, he was married to Mary Beecher Matterson and to-day has five children. He came to Nebraska, settling in Omaha with his brother, the late Bishop Clarkson, in March of 1866, and has lived in the state for 30 years. He was postmaster of Omaha under President Harrison's administration. Maj. Clarkson was on the executive committee of the national council of administration, G. A. R., for three consecutive years, was elected department commander of Nebraska at the encampment in February, 1890, and has been commander of the Loyal legion of Nebraska.

CAUGHT UP ON GRIDIRON

INTERESTING NOTES CONCERNING THE FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Comment on Local Players and What Their Chances Are With the Teams That They Are Matched to Play Against.

The Alis football team expects to play the Junior eleven from Roselle this afternoon on the Martine gridiron.

The second team of the Alis Club defeated the Crescent Wheelmen Juniors yesterday afternoon by a score of 28 to 0.

The result of the game between the Orange Athletic Club and the Orange Y. M. C. A. this afternoon is being watched for with interest as next Saturday the Orange Y. M. C. A. plays in this city.

The Y. M. C. A. eleven met in the Cycle Academy last evening for practice and spent the time very beneficially. Several new plays were introduced and an improvement made in the already excellent interference.

Louis E. Waring will be unable to play with the Y. M. C. A. team on Election Day as he will be at Worcester Academy coaching their eleven Captain "Ted" Freeman will play quarter back in his place and Charles Dupee will probably go back of the line to fill the vacant place.

The New Jersey Athletic Club has decided to place an association team upon the gridiron this fall. The team is made up principally of the cricketers of the club. Among them are several who have played on the prominent teams of England. The season will be opened on Election Day, when the New Jerseys will meet a team from the Cosmopolitans of New York.

Among the principal games played this afternoon were the following: Yale against West Point, at West Point; Harvard against Carlisle Indians, at Cambridge; Princeton against Cornell, at Princeton; Montclair Athletic Club against San Remo Football Club, at Montclair; New York University against New Jersey Athletic Club, at Bergen Point; Rutger against Annapolis, at Annapolis; Trinity against Amherst, at Amherst; Tufts against Wesleyan, at Middletown; Staten Island Cricket Club against Newark Field Club, at Livingston; Irving Club against Yale Freshmen, at Eastern Park.

The E. A. C.'s eleven will play for the second time this season at the Elizabeth gridiron this afternoon. The Stevens team has been greatly strengthened since it first met the Elizabeths. Elizabeth will put in a strong team in order to perfect her plays for the Orange game on Election Day morning. They will line up as follows:

ELIZABETH A. C.		STEVENS INSTITUTE.
Stillman, Hall	centre	Littlejohn
Shaefer	right guard	Bock
Coe, Hughes	right tackle	Munby
English	right end	Tock
Denise	quarter back	Hagstoz
Knapp, (capt.)	left half back	Christie
Smith	right half back	Bradley
Langford	full back	McGee

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The Park Club will enter the Journal League this year and some great bowling may be expected. The league has changed from ten men to five men teams this year, and a meeting will be held this evening in Elizabeth to arrange a schedule.

To Small for Use of Both.

A large proportion of the members of the golf club, can only play the game on Saturday afternoons and on holidays, in order that the golf course may be not overcrowded on these days. The trustees, at a meeting held on Wednesday last, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved that only members of the club, and ladies of their families over seventeen years of age, and non-resident guests, shall be privileged to use the golf course on holidays, and on the afternoons of Saturdays.

Blew Out a Cylinder Head.

The engine attached to the train that arrived here at 9:37 o'clock last evening, blew out a cylinder head as it arrived here last night. It was temporarily repaired and the train went on to Dunellen where it stops.

—W. A. Woodruff has paid to Alexander Dunn, of Dunellen, the sum of $2,000 insurance for the destruction of the latter's buildings by fire the first of the week. It was first thought that Mr. Dunn's insurance had expired, but Mr. Woodruff had been kind enough to have the policy renewed without seeing Mr. Dunn, and consequently it proved very fortunate.

THE LION'S ROAR.

A Great Physical Effort Is Necessary to Produce the Full Effect.

Dr. Livingstone noted the odd resemblance of the lion's roar to that of the ostrich, says the Spectator. Mr. Millais says that though the roar of the latter is not so loud, it has exactly the same tone as that of the lion. But the ostrich always roars his best, the lion very seldom. This is partly because a "good" roar needs a great physical effort. The whole interior and muscles of mouth, throat, stomach and abdomen are, for the moment, converted into an organ of terrific sound, and the sound does make the earth tremble—or appear to do so. But the attitude is not that usually drawn. Unless he roars lying down, when he puts his head up, like a dog barking, the lion "emits his first moan in any position, then draws in his neck and lowers his head with extended jaws, right down to his forepaws, as if about to be violently sick; while at the same time the back is arched and the whole animal bears an appearance of concentrated strain."

This is Capt. Millais' phonetic rendering of the sound, taken when listening to three lions roaring their best: "Moan — roar — r-o-a-r — roar — roar—roar — grunt—grunt—grunt — grunt (dying away)."

Why lions roar, when it ought to pay better to keep silent, is not yet explained. Gen. Hamilton was convinced that tigers hunting in company roar to confuse and frighten the deer. Possibly the lion roars, when prowling around a camp, in the hope of causing some of the draft animals to break loose: at other times it appears to be a form of conversation with others at a distance.

Origin of Billiards.

The origin of billiards is obscure, but the best authorities on the subject declare that the game was brought from the east by the Crusaders. It was certainly played by the early Knights Templar and the Knights of Malta, and in medieval times was exceedingly popular among the monks in the monasteries of France and Italy.

GOLD FIELDS OF GUIANA.

An Arizona Miner's Prospecting Tour Among Them.

The first fine placer on the Cuyuni was found in 1893 by a Frenchman named Jacobs. His outfit was furnished by two Portuguese named Carrara and Rosa. They took out from 200 to 300 pounds a month for two or three years the gold being worth $195 a pound. When I reached there, in 1893, the placer was in full working order. Jacobs is said to have disposed of his gains at Monte Carlo; Carrara died insolvent; Rosa left a few thousands; that is, in brief, the history of the owners of one of the richest placer-mines in that country. The mine was sold in 1895 for $1,500, and Jacobs is now simply an employe in the placer. The Barnard syndicate has taken out a great deal of gold from placers situated on the Potaro river; but it is my impression that placer-mining is about over unless new territory is opened up. Quartz-mining is still in its infancy. There are at present two quartz-mines in operation on the Parima river with a good showing; but they are in the disputed territory, and, I think, have been obliged to shut down. Quartz on the Cuyuni is finely defined, although there is not a quartz-mine on the river at present; but in all probability good quartz-mines will yet be worked in British Guiana.

At present it is impossible for a poor man to prosper to advantage in that country. He must purchase all his provisions at Georgetown; buy or hire a boat; pay big wages to his captain and bowman; and give security for the wages of his men, and pay for their food. I have known only one or two poor men who have made a stake out there.

After prospecting three or four months, which is very fatiguing and trying to the constitution of the strongest, a man may find nothing; but he will have learned a good deal. Then he may take a notion, if he has a few hundreds left, to buy another outfit. This time he may find a creek that will pay him one or two ounces a day in the tom. When that much is got in the tom sluices are soon put in, which yield two or three times as much gold. If he has the good fortune to keep his health and to find gold, he has to carry his yield to Bartaca Grove, where he passes through the gold station. Here every man, both laborer and master, is searched. Some think this very disagreeable, but I see nothing objectionable in the law, which is a great protection to the placer-owner, the object being to prevent laborers and others from stealing gold. At Georgetown he must carry his gold to the commission's office, where he gets a permit to pay the royalty at another government office, after which he may sell it to the banks.

Miners are not allowed to sell gold in the bush or in Georgetown. Each day a miner must enter his find in his gold book, and if an inspector should come along and find gold that was not entered he might confiscate it. This is why a miner must buy his entire outfit in Georgetown, and have money enough to see himself through before he starts. All the British colonial officials, at least all that I came in contact with, are polite and gentlemanly. I have met foreigners who think their laws are very stringent, but I would rather be where there is some law than on the other side of the Yuruan, where there is none.—Thomas Dalgleish, in Century.

ENGINEER OF THE ST. LOUIS.

Something of the Man Who Looks After the Ship's Machinery.

When the American line steamship St. Louis lowered the Southampton record the other day the one man most talked about down in the engine and fire rooms was her chief engineer, John Wall.

"Top" Wall is the name he goes by, and he is known by every fireman in the Atlantic ocean trade. His reputation lies in knowing how to get the most out of his fires, and he has to his credit no less than three ocean records. Two of these he won with the Paris when she belonged to the Inman line, and then the run was on the Queenstown route.

Mr. Wall is a Scotchman. His first great run was with Capt. Watkins when the Paris broke all ocean speed. A dinner was given at the Engineers' club, and Messrs. Watkins and Wall were honored guests. When Mr. Watkins rose in response to the toast in honor of the run of the ship he thanked the members, and, with a smile, said: "Gentlemen, I merely pointed the ship. Mr. Wall did the rest."

The recognition of where the credit was due, coming as it did from Capt. Watkins, caught the club members by storm, and they cheered and cheered with delight. Mr. Wall, sitting in his chair, blushed and stammered with confusion.

Mr. Wall has under him nearly 200 men in the engine department of the St. Louis, and his engines develop normally 20,000 horse power. The engineers proper number 27, and are divided into three watches, nine in a watch. In charge of each watch is an assistant engineer. Mr. Wall stands no watch, or rather is on watch all the time.

When the Paris and New York were transferred to the American line, Mr. Wall went along with the Paris. It was because of the possession of such a man that the Cramps and American shipbuilders were opposed to the enacting of any law prohibiting the employment of any foreigner as engineer. The law was enacted, however, at the last session of congress, but it is understood that Mr. Wall has in the meantime come over to this side of the water for his residence.—N. Y. Times.
